The hymnist believes the pilgrim to Gethsemane should learn a number of things during his journey. In the first stanza he suggests that he learn to pray. In the second stanza (not given here) he urges that he learn to bear the cross, in the third that he learn to die, and in the final verse that he catch the full impact of the triumph of Christ's resurrection.

An original version of the hymn appeared in 1820; the verses which appear above were published in 1825 in a revised version.

No roll of English hymn writers is complete without the name of James Montgomery. He was born at Irvine, Ayrshire, Scotland in 1771 and grew up in a deeply spiritual environment. His father was a Moravian minister and James joined a church during his was a Moravian minister and James joined a church during his student days at Fulneck, England.

Later on he became in his faith and drifted away from the church but this happily, was but a temporary experience and when he was 43 he returned to the Christian fold. The return was for him a very moving occasion and he wrote a poem to commemorate it.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

DIFFICULT TO DISTINGUISH

The warbler family is made up of so many members, they are so small and vary so little in size that there is no wonder we get them mixed up. Of course certain ones can be identified because their plumage is particularly striking, as the black redstart with his flame colored patches.

Others are known by their simple, catchy songs, like the yellow-throat that sings "Witchity, witchity, with," so very plainly. Perhaps the Canada is the most difficult to distinguish—not that its costume is not distinctive, but because the bird so rarely comes into the open to be properly inspected, and has a definite song to be remembered "and easily recognized.

Yes, the Canda warbler has two real distinguishing marks: a necklace composed of a number of black pendants which show up well on a very yellow background, and a pair of gold spectacles. An entirely grey upper side (no white in the tail) is very unusual, too, for a warbler that is all yellow underneath. If we could just get a good view of the male we could not go wrong. But this happens so seldom that we are thrilled when it does occur.

Even in migration this little bird keeps low in bushes and shrubbery.

FEEDS NEAR GROUND

Although a flycatching warbler, it generally feeds near the ground. Peering in among tangled branches to see the singer, we are apt to catch a mere glimpse of yellow as color common to so many species.

Some of the Canada warblers stop off to nest in the southern part of our country, others continue north as far as central Manitoba, central Quebec, and Newfoundland. Their homes are made in cool, moist localities.

Favorite spots are under clumps of moss, among fallen logs, in the upturned roots of trees, or in cavities in banks near streams. Pine needles, dead leaves, tiny strips of bark, and grass are put together, and the nest is lined with fine rootlets and hair.

It is as a singer that the Canada warbler confuses us. The long song is composed of a jumble of notes varying in length and pitch, and if we hear it repeated several times we are still unable to describe it. Indeed, each readering will probably be a little different. There is no definite pattern, but the voice is loud and musical, and the phrasing strongly accented. Occasionally we are reminded of the yellowthroat — especially when he ends with an emphatic "wip."

A Lift for Living

Taking Another New Look

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

We hear much about a "new look" at our foreign and defense policies. Let's take a new look at some things more personal and nearer home.

Some time ago I was riding at night in a car with several persons. After a while I exclaimed, "How foggy it is getting." Then I discovered that the car was closed and the seeming fog was the vapor filming the inside of the car windows. Similarly, our conversations about the ills and dangers of our times film the lens of our vision and make us think the fog of our world is denser than it is.

To be sure, the world is befogged, public issues are clouded by controversies. It is hard to know the real facts about Indo-China and about issues under investigation here at home. But the first task of a citizen is to clear the fog from his own mind.

And the way to start clearing one's own vision is to test it on situations nearest to us. Let us take a fresh look at the members of our own families. Sometimes we cease to see clearly those who live beside us. Familiarity may dull our vision. Or self-centered thoughts may film the windows of our minds so that we fail to appreciate those who love us.

TAKE NEW LOOK

Take a new look at that life-partner who has been sharing your ups and downs through the years. Look again at that boy who is growing up beside you and will be gone before you know it. Some of us would give all we have for a second chance with our sons.

And how about another look at our neighbors? Some time ago a friend sent me these words, addressed by Phillips Brooks to his congregation:

"You who are letting miserable misunderstandings run on from year to year, meaning to clean them up some day; you who are keeping wretched quarrels alive because you cannot quite make up your mind that now is the day to sacrifice your pride and kill them; you who are letting your friend's heart ache for a word of sympathy which you mean to give him some day; if you could only know and see and feel, all of a sudden, that time is short,' how it would break the spells. How you would go instantly and do the thing which you might never have another chance to do."

TRAGIC STORY

One of the tragic stories of the theater is that of the team of Gilbert and Sullivan, whose gay farcical operettas have charmed generations. For some likely trivial reason these talented partners refused to speak to each other, and each died without becoming reconciled.

And as with our families and friends, so our communities can benefit from a new look. It is well known how the city of Pittsburgh has cleared its air of the smoke which once begrimed its buildings. But more significant is the way Pittsburgh has gotten a new and clearer view of its civic life.

We can dispel some of the clouding fear of these days by thinking and talking about the things that make for brotherhood rather than bitterness. We can take Saint Paul's advice:

"What is true, whatever is honorable, whatever is just, whatever is pure, whatever is lovely, whatever is gracious—think about these things."

A new look at our personal situation will help to fit us for a better look at public issues.

WE CAN AFFORD EDUCATION

Not all children can go through high school successfully—and the public must learn to accept other kinds of schooling for these students.

That assertion is reported to have been made at London, Ont., by S. G. B. Robinson, secretary of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation.

It appears a reasonable view. One's first reaction is to accept it.

But later in his address to the Associated High School Boards of Ontario Mr. Robinson made another statement which has sinister implications.

To put all children through high school to senior matriculation level was striving to force and achieve the impossible, he declared. While there are now 150,000 students in the province's high schools, with 6,200 teachers, by 1965 this number will jump to 250,000 and 10,000 teachers will be needed.

A vital question at once springs to mind. Why does Mr. Robinson believe that it is impossible to put all children through high school to senior matriculation?

Is it because all the children are not capable of learning?

Or is it because there will not be enough teachers to instruct them—nor enough schools to accommodate them?

If the latter is the real reason for Mr. Robinson's view, then let us quickly admit one thing. There is nothing impossible about providing additional accommodation for 100,000 students and 4,000 additional teachers in ten years' time. It can be done—if we are willing to pay the price. And we can pay the price if we are not too selfish.

To decline to put all children through high school because not all children are equipped to benefit by such instruction is one thing. To fail to do so because of the cost of providing such instruction is quite another thing. There is an all-important difference in motives. In one case the child's best interests would be the motive; in the other the adult's pocketbook.

Our fathers, who were much poorer in material wealth, did not stint their expenditures on our education. What right have we to refuse their grandsons and granddaughters equal opportunities to those we enjoyed ourselves?

BREW IN A BELFRY

Up in Bruce County, two 18-year-old high school students are anxiously awaiting the results of an analysis of a mixture discovered in the belfry of the Eden Grove public school.

This mixture has been tentatively identified as homebrew beer, but the Mounties in charge of the case have ruled that samples of the mash must be analyzed before they decide whether charges will be laid against the youths.

The inference is, of course, that being a most efficient police force the Mounties are eager to make certain that they have an iron-clad case before hauling the erring youths before the bar of justice. It is just possible, however, that they will find that this is one case where they are not eager to get their men. In a section of the country peopled largely by families of German descent, where brewing has been a part of normal home life as burping babies, there may be more admiration for the ingenuity displayed by these young men in locating a suitable brewery than there is disapproval of their disregard for the technicalities which surround such enterprises.

We are told that the analysis of the mash will determine whether it contains enough alcohol to warrant charges being laid, or whether its alcoholic content is so low that the whole brewing operation can be classed as an "experiment." If it is considered an "experiment" it is little more than the objective of the two young "scientists" and it appears that their only hope of escaping prosecution is to have the police experts pronounce their research a total failure.—Either way, the youths lose this round.

BRRR — BABY IT'S COLD OUTSIDE

We are in for a succession of frosty Fridays—not to mention shivering Saturdays, sunless Sundays, miserable Mondays, freezing Tuesdays, wasted Wednesdays and terrible Thursdays.

For the next thirty days the temperature is going to be below normal in the Quinte district. It is going to be below normal in the Canadian Lakes, the mercury is going to be moping in the lower end of the tube at Goose Bay and Regina, New Orleans and Jacksonville, too. New York and Washington are going to be worse off. "Much below normal" is the forecast for a section of the United States stretching from north of Boston south to the Charleston area and almost as far inland as Memphis.

If you want to enjoy normal temperatures you will have to hike out to Edmonton or Vancouver, or Salt Lake City or go south down Mexico way.

And if you really like your weather hot you have a choice of the Pacific Coast, from San Francisco south, or the Canadian northland, west of Hudson Bay. From Churchill to Prince Rupert and north to the Pole, or thereabouts, temperatures will be above normal.

Weatherman does not say what are normal May and June temperatures for Fort Smith and Port Nelson and points north. Think we will settle down right here by Quinte waters and try and brave it out.

THE UNATTAINABLE

If you have sought for heights beyond your reach,
Set out for distant goals but dimly seen,
If you have spent your years, each after each,
Striving to climb where man has never been,
It is not failure that you miss the goal;
The thing you dared for glorifies your soul.

You are not charged to gain your heart's desire,
It is not written down that you must win
Or reach the heights to which you now aspire
And close with triumph all that you begin.
He that for goals beyond his strength will try
Shall be victorious, even though he die.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

How do all the little uptown shops in city and town survive? No matter how far out from the down-town area or a city you go there you will find small local shopping sections, sometimes consisting of three or four stores. In the smaller cities and towns, in the residential districts, there will be a little shop serenely carrying on its trade in an area almost magazine, millinery, a few draygoods sundries, souvenirs, a little china." The main reason for its success is that customers can get waited on. There are far more people than you might suppose who have a decided hatred of the big stores, with all their push and shove. Service becomes a contest there, and some people just aren't interested in contests. They just want to get on. And they save all the trade they can for the small neighborhood shop.

"You might be surprised the number of lonely people there are who come to these shops like to drop around the local shops for a little friendly conversation, and you and I don't get much satisfaction in life from being lonely. And surely makes them feel lonelier to see all those throngs of people, not one of whom had so much as a friendly glance for them. The clerks are far too busy for conversation.

"So these lonesome ones spend the afternoon chatting around the stores of the neighborhood. We small shopkeepers know that. We welcome that sort of thing, that conversation. We are supplying a needed social service in return. We get a little business. It's very comfortable, all around."

Conservation Briefs

A series of little known facts about conservation, under the heading of "Conservation Briefs" will occupy this space weekly. These briefs are being written by Moira River Conservation Authority to let you, the people, know what your Conservation Authority stands for.

DID YOU KNOW that in Southern Ontario alone, forests have been removed from some 8,000 square miles of land incapable of producing any crop but trees?

For sound conservation practice, spurts from forest management, at least 20% of the land in Southern Ontario should be under forest cover, instead of the 4-10%, which actually is the case.

Letters to the Editor

Brock St. Playground Closing Is Deplored

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

It is with consternation that many of the parents of children who attended the Brock Street playground, view the fact that there is to be no playground this year. This is very unfortunate as there does not seem to be any other vacant lot in this part of the city that could be used for a play ground.

The primary use of a playground, as I understand it, is to keep the youngsters off the streets which are definitely an extreme danger, more so in the tourist season, and to teach them good sportsmanship and handicrafts. The exhibit at the Belleville Fair each year prove that they certainly accomplish this. Safety as handicrafts are concerned.

There are well over 150 children who are to be deprived of a supervised, safe place to play this summer, and as children will play, it will be the streets on which they play, to the detriment of the residents who like neither their windows to be broken nor their lawns trampled upon. To say nothing of the clamor which ensues. We can only say that shilling has pens as far as motor accidents involving children are concerned.

The West Hill playground, while available to the older youngsters, involves too much of a hazard for the younger ones, in that Bridge street, being the tourist section, isn't safe for anyone to cross, let alone small children.

The main idea of this letter is not so much to bewail and bemoan the fact, but to find a solution to a very pressing and worrying problem. We can believe me that anybody who comes up with a solution to it is going to have the heartfelt thanks of many to whom children mean something more than just pesky nuisances.

Conditions 'Stagnant' In Two Townships

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Backward Township

As I have been unable to get any results in other ways I am addressing myself by way on behalf of our native citizens who want progress. The city is getting on very well but up but we find conditions in the townships of Sidney and Ameliasburg fairly stagnant. Thurlow is quite progressive and the expansion is nearly done, the others are practically dead.

That will be sufficient I hope, to start them up. If not we will go into further detail.

Horse Trading Had Its Rules

(Boston Herald)

Half a century ago solid citizens matched wits in horse trades. The principles that governed that transaction were the ones that helped build our nation. The amenities were always observed, the professionals were the amateurs engaged in the pastime.

Barney Cohen was in business in the seventies, just across the street from the city hall. Barney was interested in trading, but yes, he had thought of it. Not seriously now, but the old Jerry was still a good horse, with years of service in him yet. The Farmer Jim was interested in swapping off his old Nell, perhaps, with enough to boot, so that a man might let old Jerry go. Hate to do it, of course, for old Jerry was the best horse a man ever had. Steady, willing worker, never shied at a thing. Just about a horse like old Jerry every day.

Barney knew, probably a trifle tender in his left rear foot, but nothing serious.

Jerry was only occasionally doesn't amount to anything.

Old Shorthand Notes Saved

(UNESCO).

The manuscript of a codex containing a system of late-Roman shorthand invented by a freedman of Cicero has been restored to legibility by means of a bombed building in Freiburg, in Germany. The shorthand system had been transcribed on to parchment by monks in the Middle Ages. In the fire which broke out after the bombardment the parchment had almost been burned to a solid lump. A Freiburg professor, using a special liquid to replace the albumen which had been melted out of the parchment, has succeeded in restoring the manuscript to a state of legibility.

Red Clowns Not Funny

(Watertown, NY, Daily Times)

Even the official government newspaper of the Soviets complains that the clowns in Russia are no longer funny. In fact there is little fun in Russia these days, that vast nation of many millions, and evidently they can find nothing funny in such allies as the circus which was once the thriving Russian institution. has reached the grade of being third rate.

For no matter the clowns cannot get out of Russia to see what their colleagues are doing and imitate their more successful acts abroad. They have lots of tricks and gags worn thin, where are the Russian clowns to find any new ones? Not in their press. Meanwhile a bureau grinds out what is thought funny for the clowns to use and how can such handed down material prove anything but dull?

While the Soviets claim themselves to be the creators of practically every modern invention one hears nothing being said about their having originated the most amusing clowns. Nor is that all. Wooden Humor can scarcely be called an element common to the Soviet regime. Humor implies balance, an ability to see both sides of the incongruities in life, a willingness to laugh at oneself. It would be unpardonable to jest about Stalin, Malenkov, Beria, probably win a life sentence at backbreaking labor in the Siberian mines if not immediate torture and death.

Pipe Dream About Ladies

(Halifax Chronicle-Herald)

James Barrie would probably be profoundly shocked by the news that men are to be given the continuing investigation of the pre-smoking habits of women. Men are turning from cigarets to pipes to enjoy the fragrant weed.

The most interesting possibility is that pipe-smoking may change the feminine attitude. Smokers are notoriously men of few words; they have to be, because of the necessity of removing the pipe from the mouth before giving utterance. And the few words which ultimately emerge from behind the blue veil of smoke are pithy and full of wisdom, matured in the vapor in whose fragrance thoughts grow and ripen.

And pipesmoking women will like that. Sitting by the fire side of an evening, they will not knit, read or talk (you can't, while smoking a pipe?). Contemplating their husbands through half-closed eyes they will ponder the deep problems of the universe. And finally they will not only have the last word of an argument, but they will be sure that it is a deep and well-thought out word.

OUR OLD ALUMINUM POTS AND PANS.

Dr. Brady

We have been using aluminum ware at our house, a few pieces of which, purchased when we set up housekeeping a few years ago, are still in daily use.

According to the weighty professionals that it comes in the mail every day we ought to be dead of aluminum poisoning, or cancer, colitis, anemia or something. But so far we haven't developed any alarming symptoms. Incidentally I examined the pots and pans this morning and told Micky she was mistaken, that the aluminum ware was not the brand we had bought in the hardyen days in Penn Yan. She marched me down to the kitchen, pointed to the bottom of a pan and there was the brand name. Oh, well, when I grow up I'll learn that mother is always right.

'I was caught by a bit of such propaganda the other day by a reader who asked "is there any truth in this?" The writer enclosed a statement from unidentified source purporting to be a Report from Dr. A. McGuigan for the United States Trade Commission.

Docket Case 540

Among the statements in this phony "report" was this:

All vegetables cooked in aluminum utensils are poisonous by the production of hydroxide acid — which is known to gastric disorders such as Ulcers of the stomach and bowels, Colitus . . .

And then underneath this absurd statement, spaced by a short dotted line, is the statement that—

"The sale of aluminum for cooking purposes is prohibited in Germany, France, Belgium, Great Britain, Switzerland, Hungary, Brazil, Norway and Sweden."

Whether the intent was to ascribe this irresponsible assertion to Dr. McGuigan, it is impossible to tell, but that's probably the reason why the thing is anonymous.

From the Bureau of Antideception Practices, Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D.C., I learn that a company whose agents represent that food prepared or kept in aluminum utensils is detrimental to the user is ordered to cease and desist from so doing.

Dr. H. A. McGuigan, Department of Pharmacology, College of Medicine, University of Illinois made this statement:

"I have never said that aluminum utensils or alum baking powders are harmful. In fact the metal is beneficial to use and consider them perfectly harmless."

Now, knucklehead, please don't bother me any more about this imaginary harmful effects of using aluminum ware and alum baking powder.

Lack of Skills

(Brantford Expositor).

Parents of youngsters who want to quit school before completing the course might find it useful to draw their attention to the fact that one of every three persons in Canada now registered as seeking work is unskilled. When the labor market shrinks it is the unskilled who have the least chance of keeping a job.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

WHY NOT CHANGE?

Too many people are afraid to change. They are the masters of thinking and in the conduct of their daily lives in our homes it is a good idea to change the furniture every once in a while. New interest is thereby added. Even the change of a tie gives a new accent to one's dress. A change of a hat with a woman. Changes affect us all to a greater or lesser degree.

It is a compliment to a firm and to a worker to say that one remains in the same place, but if there is no mental or material advancement, a change becomes a duty. There is new life to it. It isn't a good idea to get too satisfied. Discontent is often a sign of growing pains, and ought to be met with decision. A change could mean everything in one's mental attitude. It is a challenge to keep adventuring.

Aspiration is a precious gift. Without it there would be little progress anywhere. William Allen keel!

While once wrote that "every one expects to be better as he was born and every generation has one big impulse in its heart—to excel the other generation." Some of the past in all the things that make New interest is thereby added. Forward, forever changing. This should be watchword motto for us all: "To keep improving and not constantly learning and determining a new world of thought and action! It's like the aftermath of spring house cleaning. It's like suddenly turning on the light in a dark room. We also need a spiritual change to keep us on an even keel.

COUCHES IN THE CHURCHES

A man said to me recently that pretty soon couches will be installed in the churches instead of pews, and worshipers will be told to relax and be at ease. Beautiful thoughts while the good Lord is trying to get through to us that every day in every way etc., etc.

I hope such a contingency will definitely delayed to enable me to get on into another world. Personally, I hope and believe that that will be a better world than the one in which I now live. But I am hardly imagine a more ludicrous world than one permeated and dominated with the couch variety of Christian teaching.

Anything would be better than that—yes, anything.

Weddings

O'CONNOR—QUINLAN

MARMORA—A pretty wedding took place at the Sacred Heart Church, Marmora, on Tuesday morning, May 18, when Mary Margaret Quinlan, only daughter of Mr. Thomas Quinlan of Marmora and the late Mrs. Quinlan, became the bride of Thomas Dennis O'Connor, youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard O'Connor, also of Marmora township.

Rev. W. P. Healey officiated at the marriage ceremony and said the nuptial mass. Leo Méthan, nephew of the bridegroom and Patrick McCrodan served as acolytes. The church was decorated with tulips, lilies and snapdragons.

Mrs. Hugh Brady was organist. Miss Genevieve Shannon sang "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother", and with Mrs. Hugh Brady rendered "Ave Maria". Mrs. Brady also sang "Mother at Thy Feet Is Kneeling."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was daintily gowned in nylon net over ivory slipper satin, fashioned with a Chantilly lace high neckline pointed to meet the matching peplum. Her veil was a finger-tip length of tulle caught with a tiara of lace and pearls. She carried a cascade of American Beauty roses.

Mrs. Keith Cassidy, cousin of the bride, as matron of honor, was prettily gowned in a hyacinth blue silk organdy over taffeta trimmed with lace and ruching with matching headdress and mitteens. She carried a cascade of pink roses.

The best man was Joseph Mooney, of Marmora township. William Méthan, nephew of the bridegroom was usher.

After the ceremony the wedding breakfast was served to the wedding party at the Empress Hotel, Peterborough. Later the bride and bridegroom left for a trip to Sudbury and other northern points.

They will reside at the bridegroom's farm in Marmora township.

BRIAND — FRANCOEUR

A very pretty wedding took place at St. Anne's Roman Catholic church on Saturday, May 8, when Jacqueline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Francoeur, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Quebec, became the bride of Mr. John Briand, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ludger Briand, Quebec City, formerly of Belleville, Ont. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers. The nuptial mass was celebrated by the Reverend H. Clement, P.P., Holy Sacrament Church, Montreal.

The organist was Miss Pauline Brunet and Notary Ovide Crete was the soloist.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white nylon tulle gown ornamented with Chantilly lace over white satin and a short veil of tulle illusion with a coronet of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and pompoms.

Her sister, Miss Claudette, her only attendant, wore an azure blue nylon net and satin matching small hat and carried pale pink carnations.

Mr. Robert Briand, brother of the groom, acted as best man.

A large reception was held at the Harpell Hall, where Mrs. Francoeur, mother of the bride, wore a peach taffeta gown with a natural straw hat, matching accessories and short mauve cape. Her corsage was white carnations. Mrs. Briand, the groom's mother, wore a marine blue crepe gown with marine blue accessories and hat. Her corsage was red roses.

The bride's table was beautifully decorated with flowers and greenery and centered with a three-tiered cake, adorned with rosebuds and flanked by tall white candles in low silver holders.

For travelling the bride wore green suit with a pink jacket and tan accessories. Her corsage was of sweetheart rosebuds.

The couple left by motor for Niagara Falls and on their return trip visited friends in Belleville. They will reside at the Maple Ave. apartments, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Quebec.

SILLS — BOYLE

Mainsaiga United Church was the setting on Saturday, May 15th, at 2.30 p.m. for the marriage of Hazel Hattin Boyle, of Belleville daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Boyle, to Edward Jerome Sills, of Sarnia, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sills, of Belleville. The Reverend H. H. Sillis officiated before a background of chrysanthemums, tulips and ferns.

Mr. Harold McNish presided at the organ and rendered the traditional wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. Gordon Boyle, the bride was charming in her ballerina-length gown of white lace fashioned with accordion frill panels. She wore a lily-of-the-valley headdress with tulle illusion veil, and wore a corsage of pink roses mingled with lilies-of-the-valley on a lace fan.

Mrs. William Jose, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing a mauve gown in ballerina length; while Mrs. Elmer Forsythe, and Mrs. Floyd Locke, sisters of the bride, were bridesmaids, the former in green and the latter in yellow, both of ballerina length.

A Pakistan Wedding

Editor's note: The following excerpt is taken from a personal letter to Dr. Lily B. Mathieson, local physician, and contains an interesting account (accompanied by pictures) of a Pakistan wedding as viewed by Miss Kathleen Hinton, of Toronto, an employee of the British Embassy in Washington, who later was transferred to the Pakistan Embassy. Miss Hinton has travelled extensively and has many an interesting story of the novelty of foreign life.

Embassy of Pakistan,
Washington, D.C.
May 13, 1954

"Dear Dr Mathieson:

"I have been meaning to write to you ever since Easter and thank all of you so much for transporting me out to Aldershot. It made my leave taking so much less painful and we had another chance to visit.

"I have been extremely busy socially and otherwise since my return. Among other things I was invited to a big Pakistani wedding. It was extremely interesting and a great opportunity to see. One of the girls in our office, whose father is at the International Bank had her family invite us to her sister's wedding.

"She is the only Pakistani girl we have on the staff, as a matter of fact. They are very wealthy people and it was a wonderful affair. Her trousseau was like fairy tale things, embroidered in gold and silver. She had about a hundred saris and other forms of outfits in it.

"The ceremony itself took place at the embassy as it's Pakistan territory, and it took place in two separate rooms. A Moslem wedding is a civil ceremony, rather than a religious. The bride and groom sign contracts separately and the poor girl doesn't see the groom whom she hadn't seen in a year and a half, until they went back to her parents' place, and her first look at him was in a mirror!

"The guests' outfits (the Pakistanis) were absolutely beautiful. I am sending you the pictures which I thought you would be interested in. As a matter of interest, you might like to know I created the veil of flowers which the groom wore at one point in the ceremony, as we could not get a florist to undertake it at the last moment. I spent all day sewing on flowers, and the Pakistanis present said it was very authentic.

"There were about 250 guests at the wedding and they had a buffet dinner of Pakistani foods afterwards.

"As a matter of interest, the bride at the wedding is a medical doctor who interned up in Baltimore, last year."

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Galloway

Recently we've found it hard to keep sliced side bacon any length of time in the refrigerator. It either dries up and withers, or turns mouldy in a few days. They say the reason for this is faulty curing on the part of the packers and too lengthy storage of the bacon. A friend tells us the cellophane wrapping has something to do with the difficulty.

She takes the pieces out of the wrapper at once and rewraps it in plain wax paper. This keeps the bacon much fresher, much longer, she says.

DOMESTIC HAPPINESS

Some man contributed something to verse when he wrote:

"We live in perfect wedded bliss.
No griefs, no gripes.
The way we manage it is this,
I wash, she wipes."

FORT HENRY

Members of the Fort Henry Guard who are Queen's University students in the wintertime, are up and out at dawn these days. They are drilling with their band all over the hills close by the Fort at Kingston as they prepare to go on duty for another season when the Fort opens with a bang on May 24.

It is strange to see them marching in their college windbreakers and civilian trousers, like new recruits reading for service. It won't be long until they will again delight thousands of tourists in their scarlet tunics.

CHEQUES

A friend said the other day that he was issuing cheques to pay all his bills now because it doesn't cost anything anymore with no stamps. How wrong, oh how wrong he is. There is a bank service charge of 10c on each cheque now instead of 5c which can mount up when several cheques are written each month. Note, this was a man who made the remark, not a woman!

TIME PAYMENTS

Paying by the month for things you can't afford has reached the point where many people are not only living up to their incomes—they're piercing through them.

One family we know has it figured out this way. If they skip one payment on the washing machine and one on the wife's fur coat, they could just swing a down payment on a new TV set.

Uncle Frontenac says the trouble with moving picture ads in the papers these days is that they are scraggerated.

Friends, Relatives Mark Birthday With Surprise Party

Last evening the home of Mrs. Pauline Petrie, Church Street, was the scene of a delightful and happy surprise birthday party was held in honor of Mrs. James Alexander.

Mrs. Petrie, assisted by Mrs. Jack Bird, sister of Mrs. Alexander, as co-hostess, received the several neighbors, friends and relatives who assembled to wish the guest of honor "many happy returns of the day."

The evening was spent in games and a general get-together, "chit-chat", following which Mrs. Alexander received many beautifully wrapped gifts, which were useful as well as pretty.

Refreshments were served of sandwiches, coffee, and a lovely, one-tier birthday cake, ornate with blue, pink and yellow rosebuds, bearing the inscription: "Happy Birthday, Mate, from the Gang."

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

LETTERS AND ANSWERS SHE HAS WRITTEN THAT AWAY FROM THIS MAN

Miss Fairfax:

I am 25 years old, and four months ago met a man who is at least 38 years old, who tells me he wants to marry me.

One of my neighbors is a woman of about 40 who is after him also. This young man has a bar, and every night he calls me after I get home from work, and at least three nights of the week he sends his brother up to take me down to his bar, where I wait until he closes the place and then he takes me home. The trouble is that about ten minutes after I reach the bar this other woman always walks in and insults me and wants to fight with me. Then, after a little while, she leaves. My friend tells me to ignore her, because he says, she is mentally sick. He claims she is after him for his money, and he says he doesn't care for her at all.

Can you please give me your opinion on this mixed up situation?

R. S. T.

Dear R.S.T.:

My opinion of this situation is that it is one from which any self-respecting young woman or girl should keep as far away as possible.

In the first place, I don't think the average young woman of your age should associate with an intimate friend of a man 15 years her senior. There are a few 25-year-olds who would be suitable wives for men crowding 40, and most normal men of that age like women more closer to them in years more congenial than those in their early twenties, which is as it should be.

In the second place, a man of this age who is sincere in what he says about wanting to marry a young woman, would have more sense and better judgment than to want her to spend her evenings in his bar, particularly when she is exposed on such occasion to being the unpleasant as you describe.

If you really are interested in my opinion, it is that you have chosen a most unsuitable man friend and you would be far better off without him.

ARE YOU LOOKING IN THE RIGHT PLACES, GIRLS?

J.C.J and S

Dear Girls:

Usually, you find nice boys just where you find nice girls. If you have found it hard to find nice boys, then I wonder if you have been looking in the right places. Personally, I can't imagine a town that yours having no boys in it who would make suitable friends for nice girls.

Are there really no boys in your school whom you feel would be the kind of friends you would like? Aren't there any in your people's clubs at your church? Don't you meet any nice boys at parties you go to at the homes of your friends? Aren't there any clubs in your town where boys and girls who enjoy some particular hobby or other, as photography, dancing, collecting something, some particular sport, etc.—can get together and have fun working at such a mutual interest?

If there aren't any organizations of this sort, then I suggest that you girls take the lead in getting one or two organized. You might ask the help of some adult in town who is interested in boys and girls who would like to help them develop some happy recreational opportunities. If you would do this, I'm sure it wouldn't long before you'd find the nice boys coming out of hiding, where you think they are at present, and eager to join with you in your project.

Readers' Saturday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

Letter: I saw "attention M.S." . . . the love for cookies still stands. How will I get them to you? I gather all cookie recipe but two Oldies I can't replace:

SHORTBREAD.

(To put through cookie press).
(Courtesy M.S.) One-half lb. butter or margarine, 1/3 cup fruit sugar, 2 cups flour (sift). Measure flour two level cups, then sift and find it is just right. (Work in other ingredients with hands.) Put on floured board and shape to fit cookie press. Use the different shapes, I use colored sugars (especially red), candies, cherries, etc., to doll them up. They are the delicious melt-in-your-mouth kind.

ALMOND COOKIE.

(Courtesy M.S.)
One cup shortening, 1 cup sugar, 1 egg, ½ cup chopped almonds, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon cream of tartar (salt), 2¼ cups flour. Would with hands into small balls. Leave room for spreading. Put pieces of cherry on top. If I want a variety I separate this dough into 2 or 3 parts. One part put in nuts with cherry. Could take some dough, roll in balls, drop in cocoa, egg whites and drop in finely ground nuts, etc.

Both kinds of these cookies kept in cookie box will be just as nice in a month's time. M.S.

Question: You are a peach to be so generous. I'm drooling for the cookies and have written saying how to send them. I have letters from two readers . . . one in Alberta and one in Manitoba asking for copies of your recipes when you send them, so I will send them a copy of this release to make sure they are there.

Question: . . . interested in lady who is fancy cookie hobbyist . . . is it possible to get some of her recipes? . . . In your Perfect White Fruit Cake the quantity of milk is omitted, and is cream of tartar the only leavening agent? Some time ago I had a piece of delicious cake . . . It is what I call date-walnut bar. It has a dark layer of rich cake dough for a base, covered with layer of dates, then topped with an egg, sugar, nut mixture, but it all is dark, as if it had molasses in both cake and topping. It could be spices but thought it had a molasses flavor. Didn't look like spices. Bella P.

Answer: See recipes above sent in by M.S. The amount of milk in Perfect White fruit cake that appeared here Nov.: 30, 1933, is ½ cup. Yes the cream of tartar is the only leavening besides the leavening the eggs give. I think the recipe you want is:

WALNUT DREAM BARS.

One-quarter cup butter or margarine, 1¼ cups sifted cake flour, ¼ cups firmly packed dark brown sugar, 2 eggs, ½ teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1½ cups moist pitted dates (or shredded coconut), 1 cup chopped walnuts. With a pastry blender cut the butter into ¼ cup of the flour and ¼ cup of the dark brown sugar, until mixture is of consistency of fine meal. Put this mixture firmly into ungreased pan 8 x 8 inches, and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes. Meanwhile beat the eggs until light, adding remaining brown sugar gradually, until mixture is light and fluffy. Fold in remaining flour, sifted with baking powder, Add vanilla, dates and walnuts and mix well. Spread this over top of still-warm baked mixture and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes or until lightly browned. While still warm cut into 1½ inch squares.

For Parents Only

Playing The Game

By NANCY CLEAVER

"Play the Game! You can't always beat the other fellow, John. If you lose, take it on the chin!" Mr. Brown admonished his son.

"But, you don't like to get licked in a golf tournament, John protested. "And whenever I come home from a school game, you and Mum ask me, "Did you win?" It's fun to be on top—and I hate losing."

A child is sometimes unfair-ly candid. John had noticed his father's discomfort when he was beaten at golf. He felt that his parents were eager that his team should invariably be the winning one in the sports at school.

Occasionally he had listened to comments from teachers about good sportsmanship. But John got no pleasure out of a game unless he and his teammates were victors.

What does your child think about winning and losing? Do you know? Have you placed so much emphasis on excelling in sports, that, like John, he hates to lose? Or have you held up as a hero, being a gracious loser and a good sport?

LEARN BY EXAMPLE

How much faster a child learns by example than by verbal instruction! It is very hard for a child to play a game fairly, to stick by the rules, to refrain from blame on his partners or complain that his opponents cheated when he is defeated. But if mother and dad take time to play simple games like checkers, parchesi, ping pong, dominoes, and if they themselves are good sports, this is very "calming." Mary soon sees that she can't keep up with Dad and Brother Tom at crosslocks, nevertheless mother still continued to have a perhaps more than any other age this is a very competitive one. While they are still young, it is in games that children realize the spirit, play is the vital thing, not coming first. The Duke of Wellington said that the battle of Waterloo was won on the cricket field of Eton. He was paying a compliment to the sporting code of the English public schools. This has always asked for triumph if you prize that the boy wasn't discouraged. But the boy laughed. He was having a grand time. He wasn't disheartened. His team hadn't come to bat yet!

MEANS SO MUCH

When Junior plays ball or hockey or some other game on a special night of a series for a school or a church team, mother or dad should make a real effort to see the game. It means so much to a youngster to have his parents cheering on the side-lines—and how few parents manage to get there! How can they commend their boy for his good sportsmanship if they have never seen him in the moment of victory or defeat?

A boy may have to memorize the fine lines of Sir Henry Newbolt's famous poem "Play the game." He may admire the ideals expressed there, But his thinking on good sportsmanship will be colored even more by his Dad's attitude in a chance remark such as this:

"Your team played good hockey—but the others fellows had the edge on you in their passing and checking. They deserved to win. But you'll have another chance next year—and I was proud the way you all shook hands with the winners when the game ended!"

WALKERTON, (CP)—Total sale revenue for 10 males and 29 females was $8,725 at the semi-annual fleet-breeder-feeder shorthorn sale here Thursday. Top price for a bull was $416 while the top female brought $305.

GO ON STRIKE

WINDSOR (CP)—Employees of National Auto Radiator Company went on strike Thursday after two days of fruitless negotiation for their first union contract. GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

GIVING A GUEST OF HONOR PRESENT DOESN'T MAKE SENSE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Ye gods—is there no end to the presents one is "supposed" to give to a bride-to-be? Now I've heard for the first time of a "guest of honor present" from my cousin telling me that I must provide such a present for a friend of mine, a bride-to-be, for whom I am giving quite a large buffet luncheon in my home. This is not a shower—she has been given so many showers that I didn't think it made sense to give her another. Hence I planned the luncheon. But, Mrs. Beeckman, must I also give her a present, a "guest of honor present"? — Ellen S.

Absolutely no reason for a present at a luncheon or any kind to give a present to her guest of honor. And I agree with you that this is carrying the present-giving to ridiculous lengths. You are being most gracious and most generous to plan such a fine party (and certainly this party will not be an expensive one) in honor of the bride-to-be. Also since you have never heard of this procedure, obviously it is not a custom of your community which you might be expected to follow. And another thought: there's that wedding present coming!

SHE WANTS PRIVILEGE OF DECLINING WEEKLY DATE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Don't you think it's a girl's privilege to decline a date with her boy-friend occasionally? My boy-friend and I go out on the average of once a week, but when I wish to skip this weekly date once in a while (always for a good reason) he becomes offended and says that I am losing interest in him. He wants us to have our date each week without fail. He hasn't said this in so many words, but that is his attitude. It isn't that I want to go out with him less often, and I don't that he doesn't ask me for suggestions as to how or where I would like to spend the evening (he always does ask me for suggestions)—it's just that I wish to have the privilege of declining a weekly date once in a while, when I really have a good reason to do so. And I'd like to know how I may exercise this privilege without hurt feelings on his part. M.B.

Here you have a frequent problem of the "going-steady" procedure. . . even though the going-steady is only once a week. My advice is that if you really feel as strongly as you do about having this "privilege" of declining this weekly date, you should have a straightforward talk with your boy-friend about this. Assure him most graciously that you don't want to hurt him, don't want to have him disappointed, but explain, if you wish to, what in general are the reasons. . . a family perhaps or a business or professional responsibility . . . that demands your time.

All Over World Folks Dislike New Dishes

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (CP) People over the world share a dislike for having new dishes foisted on them, a Canadian nutritionist reports after a world tour.

Dr. Margaret Hockin, chief home economist for the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization, found the surest way to get people to try unfamiliar foods is to add them to the regular diet and adapt them to local cooking.

Dr. Hockin, a native of Truro, N. S., said this has been done successfully in India during a rice shortage when beans and pulses—edible seeds—were substituted.

Next month the FAO will assist in establishing a college at Bombay to train men and women in improved nutritional practices to be applied in cafeterias and other eating places.

BELLEVILLE INDUSTRIAL, HOME AND

Insulation, Finishes, Trim

Insulating a house in a climate as variable as that of Canada, is an aspect of house construction that warrants serious consideration from the prospective home builder.

The use of sawdust or wood shavings between batts on exterior walls and full thick or inner inch batts on ceilings is standard practice in insulating a home. More insulation is required on the ceiling because heat rises.

The proportion of heat loss from inside to outside for a standard house is 60 per cent through the ceiling, 30 per cent through side walls and 20 per cent through windows and doors.

Paper-backed batts are considered more effective insulation than bulk or blowrock types because of the even density of the batt and the fact that the paper backing makes such a good vapor seal.

When applying rockwool batts on walls and ceilings be sure the paper back is tacked across the inside face of all studs, joists, and especially across sill and plate. The seals tightly whole of the inside surface of exterior walls and ceilings against penetration of moisture. The insulation batt is applied to the inside edge of the studs and joists with an air space towards the outside.

MAKES POOR JOB

Do not push the batt through to the exterior sheathing as it makes a poor job. If you have noticed dark streaks on a finished ceiling you can be almost certain that they were water marks and that they were there before the paper of the, rockwool batt was not tacked across the inside face of the ceiling joist. Since there was no vapor seal between the wood joist and the plaster lath the condensed water travelled through the joist and marked the plaster.

There are many types of insulating materials besides rockwool and fiberglass which are accepted by the more rigid building codes.

Aluminum foil woven between studs insulates by reflection. Zonolite, a granular mineral, can be poured in place to an even density without packing. Gypsum plaster lath with tin foil glued to the back of the lath also insulates by reflection. Fibre board can be used in large sheets or in lath form.

DETERMINES FINISHES

The amount of insulation already in exterior walls will determine to some extent the selection of interior wall finishes and it is these finishes—plaster base laths and dry wall finishes such as plywood and sheetrock—that we wish to discuss now.

Sheetrock is a poor insulator but an economical and satisfactory plaster base, Ten Test and Insulboard, being pulp boards, are good insulators as well as good plaster bases. Plywood is a poor insulator but it is easy to apply and very ornamental. Grained sheetrock, like Gypsum lath, requires added insulation while certain pulp board wall panels such as those manufactured by Colonite are good insulators and are painted to that when applied, no further finishing is required.

All the materials mentioned above may be applied to ceilings as well as walls. They may vary in shape bupt are basically of the same composition.

INVITE INSPECTION

Most builders' supply houses stock these products and invite the inspection of prospective users without obligation. In the last decade so many different types of dry wall finishes have been developed that it is better in see as many as possible before choosing a finish.

If you decide to finish your rooms with plaster there is a wide selection of paints and wallpapers from which to choose a final finish.

Millwork is another important item in the construction of a house, and includes everything from window frames and sash to cornice work.

Since the advent of metal window units the old standard wooden window frames and sash have undergone a few changes and have many features added.

A prospective home owner can now purchase, in either metal or wood, a completely weather-stripped, counter-balanced and prefitted window unit which is the ultimate in window satisfaction.

INSIDE INSTALLATION

Storm sash and screens can be installed and removed from inside the room which is an aid in easy cleaning. Sash operates quietly and stays in place when opened. And the insulation is perfect.

For those who still prefer the old standard wooden sash, there are for those with windows which standard frames will not fit, there are custom shops available that will make windows to your specifications.

A unit that is becoming more popular each day is the picture window which is an attractive addition to any home and which, if doubly glassed, provides perfect insulation as well

There are new door designs on the market which will add to the beauty as well as the comfort of your home. The slab door has taken the market by storm and is probably the newest addition to the door industry in the last 20 years.

Built of a grid construction with plywood faces, these doors are very strong, reasonably sound proof, and economical. Very attractive panel designs plywood faces, these doors are still available.

Trimming in a home is important too. By that is meant window and door casings, baseboards, etc. The tendency in recent years has been towards narrow trim with simple lines and trim that is easy to keep clean.

Although woods for natural finishes are still available the majority of houses are using a paint grade material and finishing the trim in the same color, as the walls making little importance of the casings and baseboard in the color scheme of the home.

Cabinet work in the home includes stairs, fire place mantels, kitchen cabinets, front door entrances and other such items to complete the convenience and beauty of your home.

The main precaution in ordering cabinet work is to be sure that good quality, well-seasoned lumber has been used by skilled cabinet men. Quality materials, skilled workmanship and proper machinery are the chief guarantees of fine joints and fittings.

Rack of Plywood Plays Dual Role

A convenient wall hanger for trousers that needs only a saw and screw driver to construct can be made in an evening. It helps keep trousers pressed and neat as well as easy to locate.

Not only that, but the hanger could easily be adapted as a towel rack for either kitchen or bathroom.

The wall bracket is cut from a piece of three quarter inch Douglas fir plywood in a series of steps as shown. Arms are fastened to each step with glue and counter-sunk flat-head screws.

A rub-down paint or strain to match woodwork or walls can be applied as finish. Several pairs of trousers or towels can be neatly draped ready for selection.

Waterproof glue fir plywood sheathing around the perimeter of the roof helps to prevent melting snow from seeping up under shingles or shakes at the eave and draining through into the building interior.

SECTIONAL TRAY . . . Discarded tin cans of uniform size, preferably the type in which condensed milk is sold, can be cut in the manner indicated in drawing and then crimped and soldered together to make storage trays that will be useful for storing various small articles.

Old Picture Frame Makes Handy Tray

A serving tray can readily be made from an old oval or oblong picture frame. Cut a piece of fir plywood to fit the back and fasten it securely. The tray can be painted to suit your color scheme or the natural grain can be retained with wipe-down stains or wax finish.

Phenomenal growth in acceptance of B.C. fir plywood as a building material is reflected in production figures which show total 1945 production of 326 million square feet had jumped to 580 million square feet by 1953. Ninety-five percent of Douglas fir plywood production is sold in Canada.

Replacing of Sash Cord Easy Task for Amateur

By J. RALPH DALZELL
Author of Books on Home Building and Repair

Lower window sash with broken cords are very disconcerting when one wants a window to stay up. New sash cords are easy to put in.

The illustration shows double-hung window parts. Compare head jamb (X) side jamb (X) and sill (Z) with your window, where the same parts will be seen. For example, note the stop which keeps the lower half of the window in place. This stop is shown in both the side jamb (Y) and sill (Z).

Note the cord shown in the side jamb. When sash is taken, it goes up through the pulley shown in the head jamb, and then down behind the pulley strip (see sill) to connect with the sash weights also shown in the side jamb pictures. Sash weights balance the weight of the sash, and make it possible to raise the lower sash to any point and hold it there. Each sash has two weights. New cords are available at hardware stores, and about five feet are needed for each replacement.

REMOVE SASH

To replace the cord, the stop on the side where the cord is broken must be removed. If the window is weather stripped, both stops must be removed. Insert a putty knife between stop and frame, and loosen the nails holding the stop, and take off the stop. If windows are not weather stripped, the lower sash can be lifted out toward you. If weather stripped, lift the sash above the strips and then out. If one cord is to be replaced, remove the unbroken cord carefully and allow the weight to drop without losing the cord through the pulley.

FIT IN NEW CORD.

When window is out, look for a piece of wood inserted in the pulley strip, near the bottom of the window. Use a screwdriver to loosen it and pry it out on the strip. Now reach in and remove the weight. Drop the upper sash enough to raise its weight out of your way. Measure the length of the old cord and cut a new length the same size, but be sure to allow extra length for two knots.

Knot one end of the cord to the other knot, as shown at L and M, and put the weight back behind the pulley strip. Tie a nail to a piece of thin string and thread it down from the pulley to the weight. Tie the string to the unknotted sash cord and pull it through the pulley. Make a knot in the top end and insert the knot into the hole in the sash edge, as shown in the picture of the side view of the sash. Replace the insert in the pulley strip.

Place the sash back in the frame carefully. Hold it in position and slide it up and down to make sure it works properly. Replace the strip, being careful to position it so it will not bind against the sash.

From this procedure it will be easy to determine how to replace cords in upper sash.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q.—How can I make dowel holes the same depth?

A. Make a depth gauge from a block of wood to the correct dimension, drill through it and leave it on the bit.

Q.—The backrest on our antique chair is formed like a lyre; and the legs curve out. What design is it?

A. This design is typical of Duncan Phyfe, probably the first acknowledged American furniture designer.

Fir Plywood Panel Stops Heat Loss

If your fireplace has a good draft you are probably losing heat when the fire is not lit. To prevent room heat from escaping cut a ¼ inch fir plywood panel to fit the opening.

Edges of the panel can be stripped with felt for draft-free fit. The panel can be painted to match the room color scheme or the natural Douglas fir grain can be retained with a variety of finishes.

Whenever roof decking is exposed to weather such as soffits on the underside of eaves a good material for decking is water-proof glue Douglas fir plywood.

Knick-Knacks Fit On Plywood Shelf

Here's an idea for a modern corner shelf made of fir plywood. It can be cut from one piece of plywood in a few minutes and will make an attractive corner for figurines, knick-knacks or even a trailing plant.

Douglas fir plywood shelves can be finished with a variety of wipe-down stains or be given a popular "blond" finish. If first given a good primer coat, they can be painted with any woodwork paint or enamel to match or contrast with the walls.

When remodeling attic or basement, fir plywood should be ordered by panels. Standard fir plywood panels cover 32 square feet. To arrive at the required number of panels, divide the total square feet of wall area to be covered by 32.

Eisenhower Administration Headed for More Conflict With Senator Jos. McCarthy

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Eisenhower administration appears headed for continued conflict with Senator McCarthy, despite cautions from some Republican quarters against broadening the Wisconsin Republican senator's dispute with the army.

Harold R. Stassen, foreign aid administrator, opened a fresh attack on McCarthy Friday with an assertion that "we need less headline mutters and more Eisenhower backs for the good of America."

With what some circles here believe was a White House accent, Stassen asserted that McCarthy had made a "legion of false statements" in a Senate speech Wednesday in which the senator said was "criminal folly" to continue to give financial aid to allies who "ship goods to what China Stassen wouldn't say if the issue was discussed by his associates with President Eisenhower Friday.

Stassen used strong terms at a press conference despite what an influential Republican senator said was his earlier advice to the White House: Let McCarthy's row with Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens run its course without unnecessarily fanning further the flame of party disunity.

MAY NEED VOTES

The Republican senator, regarded as one of Eisenhower's staunchest supporters, declined use of his name but told an interviewer of his counsel to White House officials.

"I just reminded them," he said, "that McCarthy is going to be a senator for 3½ years more and there will be a lot of occasions around here we may need Republican votes."

McCarthy and Eisenhower are at odds over a presidential order cutting off testimony about a high level administration conference at which the army's dealings with McCarthy and his aides were discussed. Eisenhower issued his ban on the ground that the constitution requires separation of the executive and legislative branches of the United States government, and he said the order was aimed at keeping the Internal Senate investigation of the dispute "on its rails," not at hindering it.

At Sturgeon Bay, Wis., Friday night, McCarthy said he' will not criticize the president for what the senator termed "pulling down the iron curtain" over the administration discussions affecting his row with the army.

He added that if the Senate hearings into his dispute with the army continue he would like to have five newspaper men subpoenaed. He identified these as Homer Bigart, New York Herald-Tribune, columnist Joseph Alsop, Phil Potter of the Baltimore Sun and Murrey Marder and Al Friendly of the Washington Post.

Three Boys Burned

TORONTO (CP) — Three boys were burned, two severely, at Maple Leaf Baseball Stadium Friday night when a powerful fireworks bomb they were playing with exploded.

Harvey Robinson, 13, was admitted to hospital, with severe burns to his face, right hand and left ear. His younger brother, Brian, 10, was burned on the hands and face. David Gordon, 12, suffered severe burns to the face and hands.

The bomb is believed to be the type used at the stadium to send off a shower of sparklers every time Toronto scores during a ball game.

Unemployment Situation Needs Careful Study

TORONTO (CP) — Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario CCF leader, said Friday that while seasonal employment is picking up, the more basic problems of unemployment remain and threaten to become more widespread.

In an address prepared for delivery at a conference sponsored by the CCF trade union committee, Mr. MacDonald said that "the time has come to take another good look at the facts of the situation. This is too serious an issue to become lost in name-calling."

He said official unemployment stood at 559,000 on March 1 and 569,000 on April 1. By May 1 it had dropped less than four per cent.

"All winter provincial and federal cabinet ministers have accused CCF and trade union spokesmen of gloom-mongering every time the seriousness of the unemployment situation was stressed. These Polyanna boys at Ottawa and Queen's Park seem to have been working on the assumption that if everybody remains optimistic, all will be well."

Mr. MacDonald said 1,200 men have been laid off indefinitely in Windsor in the last two weeks and another 1,200 in Oshawa. A St. Catharines foundry has laid off 600, another in Port Colborne has closed down for good.

Short-time work with layoffs was becoming more widespread in the four major metal manufacturing plants in Galt and unemployment in Sault Ste. Marie had reached the point where it has been declared a "distress area" by the National Employment Service."

Mr. MacDonald saw "disturbing trends" in two basic trends in the Canadian economy — the tapering off of postwar expansion and a decline in export trade.

BACKWARD METERS

LEAMINGTON, Ont. (CP) — Traffic committee of this town 30 miles southeast of Windsor has discovered its parking meter program is running backward at the rate of about $1,000 so far this year. A report by the firm which installed the meters said some of the 336 tickers lacked parts. Others had the wrong parts and some were running backwards. A repairman will be hired.

Deep Breathing Helps Smokers Break Habit

CHICAGO (AP)—A doctor contended Thursday that simple breathing exercises can greatly aid heavy smokers who want to break the tobacco habit.

Dr. William Kaufman of Bridgeport, Conn., said the exercise worked for 15 heavy smokers who had failed repeatedly in previous attempts to give up cigarets.

Dr. Kaufman said a heavy smoker who is not smoking often takes shallow and irregular breaths. Sometimes such an individual will unconsciously hold his breath for 20 to 30 seconds and sometimes up to 40 seconds, he went on.

The result, he said, is that the smoker becomes uneasy, restless, tired, irritable and anxious, and his heart seems to pound or his pulse becomes irregular.

"It is thought then he is inhaling and exhaling tobacco smoke that has been driven from the normal minute volume and the symptoms caused by hypoventilation (inadequate air intake) disappear," he said in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Kaufman said the exercises consist of breathing out and then in 16 times a minute in normal fashion. This is done for five minute periods at least 10 times a day for a month.

"Once a heavy smoker has acquired the habit of breathing properly, he can feel, relaxed and comfortable when not 'freaking,' the doctor said.

Rhee's Party Wins Majority Of House Seats

SEOUL (AP) — Unofficial returns from almost 90 per cent of South Korea's 203 assembly districts indicated Friday that president Syngman Rhee's Liberal party won a majority in the one-house legislature in Thursday's election.

Thirty-five unreported districts were in rural areas where Rhee's candidates were strongest. Unofficial returns give the Liberals 88 seats in the bag, with independent candidates getting 64, Democratic Nationalists 24 and Korean Nationalists two.

There were predictions that final returns would give the Liberals their goal of 110 seats—or eight more than a majority.

Murder Charges Filed Against Former U.S. Army Captain

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—Murder charges in the 23-and-five slaying of three German citizens in Germany eight years ago were filed here Friday against James M. Leech, former United States army captain. Extradition papers have been forwarded to the U. S. seeking Leech's return to stand trial.

Victims of the slaying were Maj. Everett S. Cofran, Capt. Adrian L. Wessler and Lieut. Stanley Rosewater. Their charred bodies were found in Cofran's house on the banks of the Danube in Passau Jan. 7, 1946.

The slaying of the three officers was one of the most sensational in post-war Germany and lingered in police records as puzzling and unsolved.

Leech, Cofran's deputy as town commander of Passau, was severely suspect in the case, but was released and later returned to his Ohio home.

Two of the three victims had died of a wound to the third by fire. They died on the upper floor of Cofran's old house.

Fire billowed from the house in the early morning hours, fed by several cans of gasoline stored in the attic.

Authorities said the deaths of two of the men may have been a ghastly error on the part of the slayer. The two were overnight guests of Cofran and one was occupying his bedroom when he was slain.

This is how army authorities described what may have happened the night of the slayings:

The murderer entered the house, armed with an ax, and crept into Cofran's room, then occupied by Rosewater. He struck the sleeping Rosewater with the ax before discovering his error. Then he went to an adjoining bedroom and attacked Wessler, believing he was Cofran. When he learned of his second mistake, he went upstairs to the attic where Cofran slept on a spare bed. Cofran was then bludgeoned.

Then the slayer set fire to the house and fled.

Authorities said Leech had been friendly with a German girl secretary who was discharged by Cofran. Cofran also cancelled an order which would have provided business funds to her father "and financially ruined the old man."

Ordered to Appear

MONTREAL (CP)—Paul Rivet, 33, of nearby Westmount Friday was ordered to appear for voluntary statement May 26 on a charge of attempted murder in the wounding of two persons during a shooting here May 15.

Judge Rene Theberge at preliminary hearing refused bail after counsel for the plaintiffs, Mr. and Mrs. Beauchamp, said his clients were "mortally afraid of the accused."

Police said Mrs. Beauchamp was shot through both legs by a .22-calibre rifle bullet and Mrs. Marguerite Poirier, 44, was wounded in the foot. The shooting occurred during a visit to the Rivet home.

Fortune Awaits French Heroine Of Dien Bien Phu

HANOI (AP) — A fortune awaits nurse Genevieve de Galard when ever she gets out of Dien Bien Phu. All she'll have to do is write and talk.

Offers running into tens of thousands of dollars have poured into this French headquarters city for relay to the lone French Air Force nurse who administered to the French Union wounded troops as the Red-led Vietminh rebels crushed their fortress.

It will be up to the French national defence ministry to say whether the heroic nurse will be allowed to write or talk for pay. The offers have come from newspapers, magazines, news agencies, book publishers, and radio and television organizations all over the world, but mainly from the United States.

3,000 Store Owners Vote Five to One to Sell Beer

TORONTO (CP) — The Retail Merchants' Association reported Friday that 3,000 of Ontario's independent food store operators have voted five to one in favor of selling beer and wines by the bottle in their stores.

The 3,000 are the first of Ontario's 9,000 independent operators to be polled by the association.

H. T. Barnes, secretary-treasurer of the association, said the results of the survey will be presented at the annual meeting in Toronto Oct. 17-19. He said such a system of selling beer and wines is practised in Quebec and most of the United States.

A postscript on the ballot sent to the grocers pointed out the advantages of voting in favor of the sales. It reads:

"Even if you do not intend to sell beer or wine, your store is worth thousands more when, and if, you want to sell your business."

CHURCH OPPOSED

Rev. Ernest Hutchmor, secretary, board of evangelism and social service of the United Church of Canada, commenting on the move, said: "We don't want the combination of the decent bread business and the bad beer business."

Mr. Barnes said the move will help the small independent grocers more than the large supermarkets, particularly if the Quebec system is adopted and beer licenses are issued only one to a company.

"The sale of selling beer in grocery stores has been brewing for some time," he said.

Some Toronto grocers said the time "may not be ripe" for such a drastic change.

"There are still too many people opposed to beer, we might offend more people than we would please," said one city grocer.

GLORIOUS 24th!

Monday is the Glorious 24th of May, as it was known back in the days when we loafed down the hill barefoot to the ole swimming hole in Johnny Branscombe's pasture field—and if it lives up to form, you can settle back for a little indoor "blacksmoking" and imagine you are a long-hair poet who loves the patter of raindrops on the roof.

For believe it or not, 70 per cent of the "24th's" within the past three decades have dished out rain checks, hung out "game called because of wet grounds" signs, or "C'mon over Bill, we may as well drink it here"—and other rainy familiars.

Just what the weather man had against Good Queen Vic we have never been able to discover. Back in the late twenties and early thirties (it didn't matter much then anyway, what with depression and twenty-cents a day wages) people were afraid to mention the words "Victoria"-Day in making their plans for fear the rain would start forty-eight hours ahead of schedule.

As the bishop in the back fifty were wont to say, "the rain was the hired man's friend." It came down nights, Sundays and the 24th of May." And they were not far out at that.

However, occasionally the sun did shine and this year's holiday may be one of the brighter kind.

There is nothing of a diamond nature in the city for lovers of baseball and softball. Stock car racing and lawn bowling are the two major sports that are holding city attractions. Dick Burrowes and his throttle-joy of the stock cars are holding forth at the Fair Grounds with demolition crashes and regular racing, starting at two o'clock. The Belleville Lawn Bowling Club opens the official season with a mixed Jitney tournament starting at 2 p.m. Belleville Bataa are in Peterborough to help the Eyes open the senior baseball season with a parade, bands, etc., not forgetting a baseball game later. Down at Point Anne, the 1951 Intermediate "A" champions are back to Henry (the Ole Cracker) Henn's Northern Electrics at 2.30 when they pay the official bid off the Belleville District Softball League.

It should be a great week-end for the great fraternity of the rod, reel and creel. Brother, if we only could get time off to go back north to the cottage or camp where some of the gangs go, man, what a holiday. We could stand three days of it, then come back to work for a rest. Wonder, hell, who cares about the weather. Fish, well, that's different. It depends on the weather in some extent. In my event there is always somebody that wants to go fishin'. It's the camaraderie that is important, second to the aspirin.

Seriously, if the weather is warm and sunny, we would like nothing better than retire to some northland cabin on the shores of a silver lake, and "let the rest of the world go by." "Let thinkin', that's all." And that would be too much effort.

Yup, folks will take to the country if the weatherbloke is in any kind of a spring mood. Some will take to boats, and some to swimming. A lot will travel the highways and byways—and some of them won't come back. The Tuesday morning papers will carry the tragic stories of lives that were taken by the holiday toll. Tragedy, it seems, rides the highways, streams and woods, wherever people take a vacation. "Death takes no holiday"—to paraphrase a once famous motion picture.

So there it is. There is baseball in Peterborough, Monday afternoon; lawn bowling in Belleville all day; stock car racing in the afternoon; softball in Point Anne at 6.30 p.m. and the northern highways are wide open. There are picnic tables "every 1,000 yards." Parks will be open, and some summer resorts operating. The fish will be a-nibble, and the eyes of the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club just "achin'" to be used. You can fish off the Bay Bridge and swim off the same place. Take your choice.

But be careful, eh. If you are driving, keep an your own side, the other is suicide. Don't feel around to the back. A five-pound fish is a poor substitute for the life of a five-year-old child. If you are swimming, stay where you can keep a table on bottom. It feels good, and it's safe. Happy holiday!

HE GOT EVEN:

This is a story out of the aging archieves of baseball, but it shows that the game of those days had as much drama, color, rivalries and personal feuds as does the modern brand.

Dick Cooley, an outfield star, rode umpires unmercifully. Eventually he went a bit too far with Joe Cantillon, one of the umpiring greats of those days. Joe decided to even scores with Dick at the first opportunity.

Cooley banged one far into deep centre field against Chicago when Cantillon was umpire, and figuring it had cleared Bill Lange's head for a sure triple, rounded first, sped on to second and dashed for third.

Cantillon raced across the diamond, caught up with Cooley and yelled at him:

"Touch third, touch third!"

Cooley touched third and headed for home, Cantillon racing beside him, roaring in his ear, "Touch home when you slide, touch home and don't spike the catcher, you dirty bum!"

Ten feet from the plate, Cooley hurled himself at it, sliding on his face to safety. Picking himself up, dusting himself off and waiting for the plaudits of his fellow players, he heard Cantillon hiss in his ear:

"You're out, you big lug. You've been out since Lange caught your long fly."

Extend Lead Over Yankees And Chicago White Sox; Brooks Edge Pittsburgh 3-2

By BEN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Tribe is on the warpath, and it looks as if the Indians from Cleveland really mean business this time—a full scale drive right through the American League.

The Indians have stretched their lead to two games over New York Yankees and Chicago White Sox since moving into first place last Sunday.

The 3-1 squeaker over Baltimore Orioles Friday night was their eighth straight victory, longest winning streak in either league this season.

Early Wynn gave Baltimore five hits and the Indians needed their luck. They managed just three hits, and the only solid one was a fine single in the third by George Strickland. The first Oriole to get past first base was Dick Kryhoski who homered with the bases empty to start the ninth.

YANKS BEATEN

The Yankees, who had burned up the West, resumed hose to get beaten 6-3 by Boston Red Sox. The White Sox moved into the best Chicago record with a victory over Detroit and Philadelphia—A's lost their seventh straight, 9-5, to Washington.

In the National League, St. Louis Cardinals overcame Cincinnati 8-7 in 10 innings. Brooklyn edged Pittsburgh 3-2 and Philadelphia defeated New York Giants 5-1 to move into a tie for best Chicago Cubs 6-4.

Whitey Ford baffled Boston until the sixth inning. Then the weakhitting Red Sox opened up with six hits including a triple by Milt Bolling, a three-run homer by Harry Agganis and two singles by Jacki Jensen.

Bob Keegan gave up only three hits to Sox in pitching his second shutout for Chicago. Cass Michaels drove in three for the Sox with a pair of singles.

CARDS WIN IN 10TH—

A two-base error by Johnny Temple and consecutive singles by Ray Jablonski, Tom Alston and Rip Repulski gave the Cardinals the two runs they needed in the 10th to beat Cincinnati. Stan Musial hit his 14th home run—his one with the bases loaded—in the seventh.

The slump-ridden Dodgers had a hard time dispatching of last place Pittsburgh. The Pirates grabbed a 2-0 lead in the sixth. Brooklyn caught up in the seventh on Pee Wee Reese's homer, and error and a double by George Shuba. Then in the eighth Billy Cox walked, was sacrificed to second and romped home on Junior Gilliam's pinch single.

Home runs were the big factor in Milwaukee's first Chicago triumph of the season. The winning margin came on a two-run homer by Hank Aaron in the eighth.

Greenberg Has New Proposition
CLEVELAND (AP) — Hank Greenberg, general manager of the Cleveland Indians, has a plan for regular season ball games that count in the standings to be played between all National and American League clubs.
He said the fans would love it and it would help sagging attendance.
Greenberg has asked Will Harridge, American League president, for permission to present the plan to the major leagues' meeting here prior to the all-star game in July.
The proposal would not change the present total of 154 games for each major league team. But each American League club would play the National League club four times—two at home and two away. The number of games within the league would be gut from 11 at home and 11 away with each opponent to nine at home and nine away.
This is the argument Greenberg advances for the plan:
"It would add spice to the schedule. In a year where one team makes a runaway of the race, more or less killing off fan interest, an interleague schedule would help keep baseball interest alive."

Pt. Anne Honors Trent Valley Hockey Champs

The Point Anne Comentmen hockey club, champions of the Trent Valley League and winners of the Thomas Bata trophy, held their banquet in the Orange hall at Point Anne last evening.

All those connected with the team, special guests, part of the Trent Valley executive, radio and press were present and enjoyed an excellent meal with all the trimmings.

A. O. Drysdale, assistant superintendent of the Canada Cement Plant, was chairman and offered appreciation to the Orange lodge for preparing the delightful dinner. He welcomed the guests and the league executives. Lee Bradshaw introduced the head table and guests.

Earle Anderson, team manager, thanked all who had made the season such a success. He said: "I want to give credit where credit is due, to the coach and players.

League president Bill Regan, of Marmora, congratulated the team on winning the championship. "It was a good season all around with all the teams playing good hockey. Point Anne are worthy champions because they did not win the title at a meeting, but on the ice with their excellent play."

Secretary Cecil Nobes also congratulated the winners and manager.

Mr. J. H. Legate, Canada Cement superintendent, offered his congratulations and presented the players with leather jackets. He said: "I'm proud of the boys here, not only as hockey players but as employees as well."

Earle Anderson presented gifts to George Jacklin as top point scorer and to Gerry Goyer as high point man in the playoffs.

Mr. Stanley Safe, Belleville business man, presented manager Earle Anderson with a beautiful fly fascinated silver tray. "You took over this club at the first of the year and built it into a championship team. It was a terrific task but you carried through with the responsibility on your shoulders all during the season. You did an outstanding job," he told Mr. Anderson.

Mr. Drysdale thanked the radio and press for their coverage.

The boys settled down for an evening of card tricks by Mr. Drysdale, a singsong led by Jack Divine and musical entertainment provided by a plant trio.

DERBY ODDS

LONDON (CP)—Blue Sail, Alberta-owned entry in the Derby, closed at 100 to 6 Friday in the weekly call-over on the bluegrin course of the English flat-racing season, to be run at Epsom Downs June 2. Johnny Longden, veteran U.S. jockey who grew up at Taber, Alta., will ride the colt, owned by Max Bell and Frank McMahon of Calgary.

Rowton Manor continued the favorite although his price lengthened slightly from 5 to 1 to 11 to 2.

Can. Amateurs Adjusting Well

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (CP)—The greens are fast and the fairways narrow but Canadian golfers are "adjusting well and quickly" to the bunker-studded course beside the Firth of Forth where the 59th British Amateur tournament opens Monday.

This was the report Friday from Gordon Taylor of Montreal, captain of a seven-man Canadian team.

"We have had three practice rounds in our three days in Scotland," he said. "The boys are doing very well—we're all shooting between 70 and 72."

Phil Farley of Toronto has the hottest round so far. He shot a 69 Thursday. Don Doe of Granby, Que., had a 73 on the par-72 course today while Bob Fleming of Victoria, B.C., shot a 76 and Nick Weslock of Windsor, Ont., 77.

FEATURES DIFFER

Taylor, who was Farley is on his second trip to Scotland, said there are some features of the 6,800-yard seaside links which differ from Canadian courses.

"Bunker play is terribly important. That puts a premium on direction off the tee because there are lots of bunkers. The grass on the fairways is light and the ball hits up well. Of course, the fairways are narrower than at home. The greens are good, though fast.

"We have been playing with the small ball they use over here and we've found that the hard greens and the small ball make the roll a lot longer. You've got to play for the pin."

The Canadians will get one more crack at the course today before regular play begins Monday. By custom in Scotland, the course will be closed Sunday.

The amateur has attracted a field of 303 including 38 Americans, Joe Carr of Dublin, who shot a 96 Friday, is the defending champion.

All Canadians and Americans drew first-round byes.

Mercs Lose Top Defenceman

OWEN SOUND (CP)—The Owen Sound Mercurys of the OHA senior A series will lose one of their top ranking defencemen, Elwin (Moe) Morris, next season. Morris is scheduled to become playing coach of the Stratford Indians, succeeding Howie Meeker.

Morris came in Owen Sound last summer after a lengthy professional career that saw him play with Toronto and New York of the NHL and Pittsburgh and Providence of the AHL.

Correlation Favored For Preakness

BALTIMORE (AP)—The search for a three-year-old racing champion of 1954 continued today with 11 sophomores set for the $100,000-added Preakness, second jewel in the triple crown and Maryland's most famous thoroughbred classic.

A crowd of some 35,000 was expected to see the 78th running of the mile-and-three-sixteenths affair which has the richest gross purse since the Maryland Jockey Club's initial Preakness in 1873.

The California-bred Correlation, owned by Robert S. Lytle of Los Angeles, was established as 7-to-5 morning-line favorite due to his close victory over Hasty Road in Monday's Preakness Prep.

Odds on Hasty Road, who finished second behind Determine in the Kentucky Derby, were set at 5 to 2.

Bisons Trounce Havanna 8-1; Wings Nip Ottawa

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tony Jacobs, a stylish relief pitcher, has picked up where he left off last year with Rochester Red Wings in the International League.

The righthander, who compiled a 12-3 record last year, recorded his fourth relief victory Friday night as the Wings defeated Ottawa Athletics 13-9 in the first game of a doubleheader. The A's took the nightcap 4-3 for a split.

In the only other game, Buffalo Bisons trounced Havana Cuban Sugar Kings 8-1 behind the two-hit pitching of Ken Johnson.

Jacobs gave up five hit as Rochester relief victory five runs in the top of the seventh inning off Ed Monahan and Al Romberger. Allie Clarke collected two home runs in the doubleheader.

Johnson, who finished his first game since coming to the A's from Syracuse Chiefs, hurled a five-hitter in the second game.

Langlois Wins Over Giardello

NEW YORK (AP) — Pierre Langlois, third upset winner in a week from Jean Bretonnel's fighting French stable, scrambled middleweight title plans for manhandling Joey Giardello in Madison Square Garden Friday night.

Giardello was in line for an October shot at Bobo Olson's crown —if the champ got past Rocky Castellani in August. Now Langlois is screaming for the champ.

Harry Markson, watchdog of the International Boxing Club, said he'd like to stage a Langlois-Giardello rematch. "One loss doesn't put him, Joey, out of the league," he said.

The lone knockdown of the fight came in the ninth when Langlois landed a solid counter-right to the jaw, a punch Bretonnel said they had practised all week. Giardello got up at about two, but took the automatic eight and one more for good measure standing in a corner. Langlois, 155¼, treated Giardello, 160½, roughly in the corners and along the ropes.

Hofman Aids Giants In Pinch Hit Staff

NEW YORK (AP)—Bobby Hofman, 28-year-old infielder with the New York Giants, is earning his major league salary making manager Leo Durocher's strategy stand up.

Hofman, in his fourth season with the Giants, has slammed two of the 11 pinch-hit home runs in the majors this year and both have been vital blows.

On May 2 he connected as a substitute batter with two runners aboard in an eighth-inning fourth inning and the Giants went on to whip St. Louis Cardinals 9-7.

Ten days later, Hofman came through even more spectacularly. With Cincinnati's Harry Perkowski moving towards a two-hit shutout in the ninth, Durocher sent Hofman in to bat for pitcher John Antonelli and Bobby delivered with one man on base for a 3-1 New York victory.

These blows, incidentally, are the infielder's only hits of the season.

Hitting pinch-hit homers is nothing new to Hofman. In 1953, he turned the trick three times. Two of them were game-winners.

Lectures in engineering were given in the arts faculty of McGill University at Montreal as early as 1856.

Weinmeister Will Play With Lions

SEATTLE (AP) — New York Giants of the National Football League lost their suit Friday to prevent Arnie Weinmeister from leaving the club.

Superior Judge Lloyd Shorett, in an oral opinion, denied the Giants' request for an injunction to stop the 235-pound tackle from playing next season with British Columbia Lions of the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

The Giants contended Weinmeister's 1953 contract contained an option clause which gave the New York team first call on his services in 1954 if they cared to exercise it.

Judge Shorett said he based his ruling mainly on a letter to Weinmeister in 1953 from Wellington T. Mara, secretary and co-owner of the Giants, in which Mara wrote that a replacement would have to be found for the star tackle in the coming season. Weinmeister said he read Mara he would not be back in 1954.

NOT EXPECTED BACK

"I see no other way to interpret this than that Weinmeister was not expected to return to the Giants," the judge said. He added that he felt the letter "stops the Giants from exercising the option in a court of equity."

Weinmeister, who was named from 1949 through 1953 on the Associated Press all-National League team, testified at the trial that New York is not "conducive to good family rolling" and he preferred to have his wife and children in Seattle, their permanent home.

He signed with the Vancouver team, a new entry in Canadian pro football ranks, for $15,000 as player-coach. He said Mara had offered him $13,000 to play for the Giants next season and help coach the line.

Solunar Table Complications

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables)

By and large, the Solunar Tables are handy things to have around. Once in a while, however, they do complicate matters. Take was when a fellow could go to the north woods, hire a guide, and fish all day to his heart's content without anyone harassed from his paid companion.

Not any more! Several of my friends have taken me to task rather severely for what they refer to as "spoiling their sport with those (deleted) tables." Their guides insist that there is no use fishing unless a Solunar Period is just around the corner. Might better go ashore and take things easy in the shade until "the book" says that the time is right.

A friend of mine operates a summer camp near a small city in northern Vermont wherein a certain circuit judge holds court each spring. This judge is a fanatic when it comes to landlocked salmon.

Now through this city flows an excellent salmon stream. The city park, through which this stream flows, lies about half a mile from the mouth of the stream where it empties into a famous landlocked-salmon lake. The park is grass cleared of brush and tended lawn goes to the water's edge. The water is deep and the banks are undercut. In all it makes an excellent place to fish for salmon.

JUDGE DONS FISHING TOGS

During the salmon season, this judge, they tell me, actually goes to court dressed in his fishing clothes. Well, why not? After all, the robes of his office cover up khaki pants and flannel shirts while he presides on the bench.

A standard item of equipment which lies, open, on said bench is a copy of the Solunar Tables. Should a Solunar Period be scheduled for, say, 10:30 a.m. and the weather be fine, it is not uncommon for his honor, without explanation, to declare a recess until afternoon.

It takes him just about 10 minutes to shuck himself out of his robe, grab his tackle, and be casting for salmon in the park, right at zero hour, leaving lawyers, jurymen and jury to twiddle their thumbs, or, more widely, to follow his example and go salmon fishing.

A year ago last March, one of my friends and his wife were driving through South Carolina on their way to Florida. Admittedly, he was exceeding the speed limit somewhat, but he felt that he was driving safely and he wanted to get some road under him that day. Somewhere near the Georgia line a traffic-cop flagged him down.

SCALE OF FINES

Instead of turning back to the county where he had been speeding, the cop took him on to the next town which lay in an adjoining county. It developed that this judge had adopted his own peculiar sliding scale of fines—$12.00 from 55 to 60; $37.50 from 60 to 65; $60.00 from 65 to 70, and so on. My friend was fined $37.50 and costs.

After the trial, he questioned the cop about the sliding scale of fines, expressing doubt that it would stand up under the scrutiny of a higher court.

"I'm sorry about that," said the cop. "If I'd had the time, I'd have taken you back to the other county. There the fine is a straight 25 bucks, plus costs."

"Time!" said my friend. "What difference would half an hour make to a traffic cop?"

"Plenty of difference. You see, I'm goin' fishin' and this town is right on my way. Now I'll get there in time for the early fishin': the other way, I would be late."

Suddenly a great light dawned. "What you mean is that you fish by the Solunar Tables and you don't want to be late for today's maybe Solunar Period."

COSTLY TABLES

"That's right," admitted the cop. "So you know about them things, too?"

"Know about them! I know the guy who writes them. He's going to hear about this when I get home. He and his tables have just cost me about 25 bucks."

Having just returned from Florida and, incidentally, had had time to cool off, he sent the cop two complimentary copies—one for his tackle kit and the other for the glove compartment in his patrol car. No use, he said in his letter, taking chances on fishin' late.

No doubt you have heard of Capt. Bonnie Smith of Islamorada, Florida. Bonnie and her husband, Capt. Bill Smith, are famous bonefish guides down in the Florida Keys. Bonnie isn't guiding any more, but for years she poled her bonefish skiff on the sand flats of Upper Matecumbe Bay, showing her customers top-quality bone fishing.

That leaves Bill without a mate in his cruiser, Bonnie, so Bonnie has trained two younger guides, Cecil and Jake, in the art (and it is an art) of expert bonefish guiding, and these two boys alternate as mate for Bill when he has a party of two or more. Last March I was talking to Bonnie about the Solunar Tables.

DEFEND ON TABLES

"Sure I used 'em," said Bonnie, "used 'em a lot. They hit the good fishin' right on the nose of the time. Bill uses them, too, although I don't suppose he'd admit it if you asked him. What's more, I've taught those two boys, Cecil and Jake, to depend on the Solunar Tables when they get in trouble."

"Some days," she continued, "the real nice days, you can catch fish all day long. Then don't worry too much about looking up the times of the Solunar Periods.

"But when the going is tough—bad weather and fish hard to find—believe me, I know before I leave the dock what time to expect the Solunar Periods. That way I'm pretty sure to find my sports at least some fishing during a rough day."

I guess things work themselves out about even most of the time. The Solunar Tables may have cost my friend 25 dollars, but they offset that by helping these Florida guides find fishing for their customers which, perhaps, they might not find otherwise. As in most things in this world, the good and the bad average up about even in the long run.

AT THE McCARTHY

The secret of "The Kidnappers"

"The Kidnappers" opening Monday at the McCarthy Theatre is not a sickly glamorized or sensationally publicized film. It is an unpretentious British production, and its story unfolds in a Canadian community about 50 years ago. Unlike some of Hollywood's purported depictions of old Presbyterian patriarch, whose religion frowns on pictures and whose frugality "excludes pets from the house. But he has universal human traits - like the disposition to blame whole nations (the Dutch, in this case) for the deeds of the few. In addition, McKenzie is very much an individual, and altogether a powerful characterization.

The two grandsons, of course, are the main attractions in the film. As child actors, they are neither cute nor precocious, but just boys. Their acting gives the impression of being spontaneous. It is their yearning for a pet that leads to the innocent kidnapping and brings the story to a climax.

"The Kidnappers" is a movie well recreated, and memorable episodes stay in the mind - the formidable dominie conducting school, the court scene with its odd combination of improvisation and traditional procedure.

Apart from his grandsons, James McKenzie is the leading character for the cast. His part is played by a Glasgow actor from the legitimate stage, Duncan Macrae. He is typical of the stern old Presbyterian patriarch, whose religion frowns on pictures and whose frugality "excludes pets from the house. But he has universal human traits - like the disposition to blame whole nations (the Dutch, in this case) for the deeds of the few. In addition, McKenzie is very much an individual, and altogether a powerful characterization.

The two grandsons, of course, are the main attractions in the film. As child actors, they are neither cute nor precocious, but just boys. Their acting gives the impression of being spontaneous. It is their yearning for a pet that leads to the innocent kidnapping and brings the story to a climax.

"The Kidnappers" is a movie with a charm and authenticity of its own. The fact that it is not overdone makes it all the more effective. It is both acceptably Canadian in setting, and a very good motion picture.

One of the main items of discussion was the subject of lighting out-of-town streets and a wish to erect T.V. antennas in town. The group discussed this subject from every angle, and the executive finally decided that only a by-law would be advisable as it could not be properly enforced.

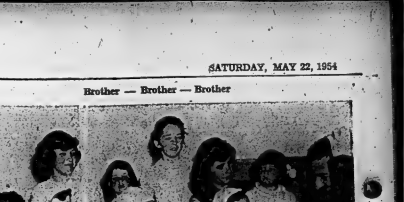
BLOSSOM TIME

Nature lisselding a skilful brush,
Paints a lovely time picture rare,
Sunlight blending the twilight hush,
Bridal gowns for the trees to wear.

Bright the bloom of the Mayline sweet,
Tulips gay and blending heart—
And in the early morning hours
Nature's perfume form a part.

Oh! dull is he who no beauty sees
In the Mayline scene before his eyes,
Who grasps alone life's sordid things,
And sees no beauty in azure skies;

For in all the bloom of bush and tree,
In the growing green of the Mayline sod,
In all the picture of Spring we see
The heart and hand of a loving God.



HELEN B. ANDERSON.

WELLINGTON — Nature is truly painting a May-time picture. Tulips are now in bloom, taking the place of the faded daffodils. The pear tree is donning its bridal robes and the early apple trees are revealing buds of pink. The purple martins have returned to their box, robins are heard and the friendly flicker, too, while the oriole cheers us with his morning song. But a tragedy occurred when Tabby caught a little pet bird. It was a pair nesting in a pretty red-box in the back yard. We miss its cheering chirp, and hope the bereft bird will soon find a mate.

THE COUNTRY CALLS.

Many from Ontario town and the City heard the call of the country on Sunday and spent the day in Wellington. In a drive around Consecon Lake, one noted many fish from town enjoying the sport. Numerous cars of which have been built on the north shore in recent years.

The entertainment "Skirts Away", presented by Picton amateurs in the auditorium of Wellington School on Tuesday even-

Cpl. H. A. Baker of Camp Petawawa, was hoping for a son when he took his wife to the hospital the 18th of April. Already the father of six girls he thought a boy would be nice. Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SUNDAY, MAY 23, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Spirited influences augur well for school and church activities, outdoor sports, all wholesome fun that doesn't interfere with duties owed and family. Necessary work owed, too.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Stimulating rays for vigorous action. But be sure it is rightly directed—in God's service, for charity, for health programs, for children, etc. It can be a happy day for you and yours.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — This day may not be entirely favorable for bright ideas, contracts and other written matters but it is promising for Sunday interests, happy doings with family, good friends. Pray.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Your Moon is favorably aspected, but there may be a tendency to overdo and tire. Be careful in this respect. And don't neglect religious activities, home duties, urgent matters.

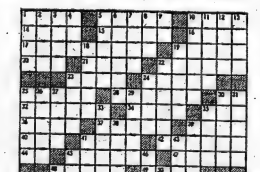
July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Watch restrictive where unnecessary. Business transactions are considered, this is a good day for wholesome social activities, church services, outdoor relaxation and sports. Join good folks in healthy fun.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — Your day similar to Gemini's. You could catch up on good reading, music, enjoy drama or fine entertainment, or just rest. Start right by going to church and thanking God for blessings.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Your inclinations much like Thurs'. Invigorating, benefic outlook. If you must work, do it cheerfully and time will pass more quickly. All honorable activities sponsored. Have some fun.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Recall past good efforts and how pleased they made you and others. Remember the benefits of sound advice heeded carefully. These tabs are meant to be picked up now.

November 22 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Organize your affairs carefully, and don't leave out those important little details that make a completed whole. Be concise, but not abrupt. Start day with church services.



December 22 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Don't be engulfed in others' affairs to the detriment of your personal ones, and to the elimination of time for small matters helpful to your personal welfare.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Mistakes are made by everyone. Don't fret over yours; just try to prevent them happening again. For an uplift, give good humor a play.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Some things may seem to go awry early; others will speed along as hoped. Be philosophical, take hindrances in stride. Start your day at church where we all see things more clearly.

YOU BORN TODAY are a combination of Taurus and Gemini, born while Taurus was still waning and Gemini in the ascendant. Gemini characteristics are strongest, however. You are always mentally alert and make quick decisions and conclusions before you even realize you have formed them. So what you study, how you are reared and how you yourself develop your best traits is important to your whole life. Constantly correct your faults to enjoy a happy home life and to benefit by opportunities. Be wary of quick-money schemes. Employ some leisure time outdoors and with music. Pray daily for guidance. Fields excellent for your talents: publicity, acting, landscaping, music, exploitation.

Garden Notes

Annuals for Garden Flower Borders

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

The lawn, especially on small properties, should be a carpet of unbroken green. Unless your garden is very large do not cut the lawn with beds of flowers, but add color to banks along the walks and the property lines.

The smaller the lot, the narrower the flower border should be. Yet a narrow border can be very effective. Given only a foot wide can offer a wide choice of material and color.

You can buy plants from the florist which are well along and ready to bloom, or you can grow annuals which germinate quickly and begin blooming at an early date. Sweet-alyssum either white or purple, or used in alternate clumps makes a mat of bloom all summer.

The white combines well with ageratum either little blue cap, one of the tiniest of the blue annuals or yellow. The purple looks handsome combined with the scarlet zinnias. You will have to buy the begonia plants.

MARIGOLD TYPES

There are several of the marigold types which are useful to grow and make excellent edging plants. Tagetes pumila is the smallest and single flowers. The plants are bushy and compact. The dwarf French marigold is a little taller, inches tall and has clear yellow, orange and crimson flowers.

This too is a very compact little plant. Color magic is one of the new dwarf French marigolds. Its flowers are two and one half inches across, in bright shades. The plants only six inches. The flowers are mottled, striped and margined in color. All marigolds germinate in five to eight days and come into bloom very quickly.

FOR WIDER BORDER

Where a wider border is possible a handsome bed can be planned from a mixture of dwarf marigolds, using the taller types in the centre and sloping them toward the front. Put the tallest in the middle and low along each edge if the border is along a walk.

Somebody Knew But Nobody Told Murder Secret

By FRANCES LEWINE

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP)—Somebody knew, but nobody told the unsavory secret of the sensational Dahlia-Mae murder mystery.

Thirty-two years have passed since a strolling couple made a gruesome find in a lonely lovers' lane.

Under a crabapple tree, neatly laid out, were the bodies of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, handsome 41-year-old New Brunswick clergyman, and attractive Mrs. Eleanor Mills, 34, choir singer and wife of the church sexton.

The rector's calling card was at his feet, his eyeglasses were nearby. Mrs. Mills had covered his face and the single bullet hole in his head.

Next to him lay Mrs. Mills, shot three times, her throat slashed, a pearl over both ears.

Love letters between the couple were strewn at their trysting place.

MISSING TWO DAYS

Hall, married to a wealthy woman seven years his senior, and Mrs. Mills, mother of two teen-age children, had been missing for two days when their bodies were found.

Before the case came to its bafflingly unsolved end, hundreds of words had been printed about it.

A special prosecutor learned that the widow, Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, was in Europe when death with remarkable calm. She told police her husband went out in the night of Sept. 16 after receiving a phone call. The next morning, she called police, but told if any "casualties" had been reported.

James Mills, church sexton, a school janitor and a man of modest means, was told the news of his wife's affair with Hall.

Though both Mills and Hall professed they knew nothing of any love affair, it was common gossip in New Brunswick that the love notes apparently had been passed in hymn books.

Four years passed . . .

Then in the summer of 1926, Arthur Hall, 38, an amusement suit against his wife, Louise Geist Hall, former dancing partner of the Hall home, claimed she was bribed to confess the slaying.

July 28, 1926, Mrs. Hall was arrested at her home at midnight and arraigned before Judge Kalisch.

THREE OTHERS CHARGED

At a preliminary hearing, Mrs. Jane Gibson—soon to be known to readers as "the pig woman" because of her testimony—told the murder scene—testified she saw Mrs. Hall, her brother, Willie Stevens, and a cousin, Henry D. Carpenter, at the murder scene. All three and another brother of Mrs. Hall, Henry Stevens, were arrested and charged with the murders.

They opened Nov. 3, 1926. The big woman, now seriously ill with cancer, was the major witness, testifying from a stretcher carried into the courtroom.

The end for Hall, despite her husband's testimony that she received a bribe of $5,000 to keep quiet, resulted in a hung jury, confusion at home on the murder night.

The trial was marked by a revelation by a local business man, Ralph Wilder, that Mrs. Hall told him she was in the lovers' lane with another chair singer—just 200 feet from the murder scene.

The jury, after sifting through 1,200 pieces of evidence, took only five hours to return its verdict of not guilty.

Of all the principal characters, only elderly Mrs. Gibson had any direct link to a mystery still as deep as it was three decades ago.

Question Box

A Public Education Service of
THE HEALTH LEAGUE OF CANADA
111 Avenue Road, Toronto 5,
in co-operation with this newspaper.

All questions submitted are answered anonymously by members of the medical advisory board or special technical sections of the HEALTH LEAGUE.

The "Health League Question Box" grew out of questions submitted over the years to the Health League of Canada—a unique voluntary lay organization which enlists the advisory support of leading specialists in every field of medicine to combat preventable sickness by means of public education. All questions submitted to the "Question Box" are answered by medical or scientific experts and checked for accuracy by members of the specialized technical sections of the Health League.

The Health League, in presenting this weekly newspaper feature, hopes, by making good medical advice available, to counteract the bad advice on health matters freely offered by non-professional passers-by and old wives. Readers are invited to submit questions to the above address. Of course, the "Question Box" cannot undertake to diagnose specific ailments by mail. However, all questions will be given courteous attention and answered as fully as possible.

RETURN FROM OBLIVION

The old saw about the ill wind that blows nobody any good also words in reverse. The material progress of a nation seems to carry certain penalties. For example cancer is a greater killer in progressive countries than in backward countries, because more people in the former live to cancer age. Polio is more common in countries where sanitation is good than in countries indifferent to pollution. Researchers now believe that infants in the latter countries come into contact with the polio virus through filth and acquire immunity when they are too young to experience the full effects of the disease.

Perhaps one of the most tragic of these seeming penalties of progress is alcoholism, which is most common in the nation with the highest standards of living. The United States leads the world in incidence of alcoholism. Canada stands sixth, in a line-up including all the so-called "advanced" nations of the world. In poverty-stricken India alcoholism is so rare as to be hardly worth considering.

UNIQUE

Alcoholism is unique in that it is tragic in the Shakespearian sense of the word. Other diseases cause pain and death, but do not necessarily diminish self-pride. Alcoholism undermines, humiliates and impoverishes its victims long before it kills them. There is good historical evidence that it was alcohol and not Cleopatra that caused the downfall of Mark Antony. But that is ancient history. Alcoholism can not be measured statistically except in comparatively recent years, but there is ample reason to believe that there are more alcoholics today than ever before in the history of the world.

The Health League technical section on alcohol firmly believes that alcoholism can be prevented by public education. The section does not take part in preserative activities for special types of legislation, but concentrates its energies on reaching the citizens of Canada with constructive information about the true nature and potentialities of alcoholic beverages, which have become so great a part of social life in modern Canada.

PROBLEM DRINKERS

Question: "I know at least two men who have been problem drinkers in middle life as a reaction to personal problems. One started because he lost his wife and the other because he lost his business. Both had been fairly heavy drinkers in their thirties and forties. Now both of these men are extremely moderate drinkers. They both say that it took a lot of self-discipline to straighten themselves out, but that they aren't slaves to alcohol any more. This seems to conflict with the AA propaganda that the only way to licit problem drinking is to become a teetotaller. What is the truth?"

Answer: In order to answer your question sensibly it would be necessary to know what you meant by "problem drinkers." If it meant that the reaction to alcohol had become stupid and uncontrollable, they would not have been able to return to moderate controlled drinking.

If however they drank to excess for a short period as a reaction to a stressful life situation and stopped before an atypical reaction had been acquired, there is no reason why they could not have retained the ability to drink moderate amounts of alcohol in a controlled manner.

Next week's Question Box will take up two aspects of nervousness. The high-strung child with unexplainable stomach pains is explained in one answer. The other deals with nervous upsets during pregnancy.

What to do...

FOR BLEEDING FROM NOSE, MOUTH OR EARS

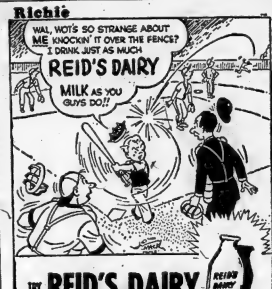
Bleeding from the nose, mouth or ears is a fairly common occurrence. Each requires special treatment, says St. John Ambulance.

The best treatment for a nose bleed is: place the patient in a sitting position in a current of air before an open widow, with his head thrown slightly back and the arms raised above the head. Undo all tight clothing around the neck and chest. Tell the patient to keep his mouth open and so avoid breathing through his nose. Apply cold over his nose and also to the spine at the level of the collar.

... feet in hot water. Warm fo... ... not to blow his nose.

The important thing to note is bleeding from the mouth is whether the blood is coming from the lungs or stomach. If you find it is, get medical help immediately. However, if you find that the bleeding is from the cheek, the tongue, the gums, the socket of a tooth or the throat, the following steps should be taken: give ice or cold water to hold in the mouth.

If bleeding from the front part of the cheek or the tongue is excessive, press on the part with a piece of clean gauze or cotton wool; over this place a small cork or other substance of suitable size and instruct the patient to bite on it.



Bleeding from the ear is, in most cases, more serious than bleeding from the mouth or nose. It generally indicates a fracture at the base of the skull. No attempt should be made to plug the ear. The head should be inclined to the affected side and a dry dressing should be applied over the ear and bandaged lightly. Medical aid should be summoned.

HONORED MISSION

Mount McDougall in Alberta was named after Rev. George McDougall and his two sons, missionaries to the Stoney Indians.

BIG INCREASE

HAMILTON (CP)—With organization of the Lutheran Ministerial Association of Hamilton it was stated the Lutheran population here has increased five-fold from fewer than 2,500 in 1945. Congregations have increased in the same ratio two to seven.

See Guatemalan Threat to Panama As Kremlin's Plan

Dulles Voices Opinion As U.S. Arms Its Friends

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles said today the Reds may have shipped arms to Guatemala in order to build up a Communist base near the Panama Canal.

Dulles told a press conference that was one possible objective of the arms shipment last week from Poland amounting to 2,000 tons. He said that Communism is the dominant military power in Central America.

Dulles discussed the Guatemalan situation in response to questions from reporters, after he had issued a statement, noting that Guatemala is the only American nation to have received "massive shipment" of arms from an Iron Curtain country.

FLY ARMS TO OTHERS

In a move to counter the Communist shipment of arms, the United States is flying rifles, machine guns and other light combat gear to friendly countries in Central America.

The state department announcement late Monday that arms are being airlifted to the area was made public to Nicaragua and Honduras, Guatemala's neighbors to the South, revoked a quiet denunciation from Moscow radio, which broadcast in Spanish, as a part of "an attack against Guatemala."

Foreign Communications Minister, Guillermo Gutiello, apparently views the new development as a joke, reporters here said. He told reporters, "We do not believe the arms shipment has anything to do with us."

President pointedly sidestepped any mention of Nicaragua, which has recalled its envoy from Guatemala. But he said Honduras is a good friend of the Guatemalan government.

SAYS WAR NEAR

The Chicago Tribune said Monday night that war seems imminent between Honduras and Guatemala, Jules Dubois, Tribune staff writer, filed a dispatch from Tegucigalpa, Honduras, in which he said Honduran border guards Sunday fired on a group of Guatemalan Communists inside Honduras on a training base. He also told of reported troop and military air activity on both sides of the Guatemala-Honduras line.

U. S. ambassador John E. Peurifoy said he has heard of no border incidents like those reported in the Tribune story.

In Washington, Lincoln White, state department press officer, said the department has no information that a war is impending, but added that U. S. officials believe that there is considerable tension between the two countries.

Diplomatic sources in Guatemala quoted long-time American residents there as saying privately they could not recall a similar strained atmosphere. There were no signs workers planning to go home grings (Yankee)" to North American women.

The state department last week announced the arrival of 2,000 tons of arms in Guatemala port. It views this as a "substantial increase" and has informed the diplomatic representatives of other American republics. The shipment reputedly was worth $10,000,000.

CHLORINE BLAST FATAL

LIMOUTIER, France (Reuter)—One person died and six others were seriously ill Monday night after explosions of poisonous chlorine gas exploded at a tannery in Sallieres, about 30 miles from here. 2,500 inhabitants of the village were evacuated.

Refugees Tell Of Stark Terror In Guatemala

WASHINGTON (AP)—Refugees from Communist - swayed Guatemala are quoted as saying that "stark terror" and "Soviet secret police tactics" are rampant in the Central American republic.

U. S. News and World Report, independent weekly news magazine, devotes five pages of its current issues to copyrighted interviews in Mexico with two men described as victims of "sudden arrest, torture and flight."

The magazine said it located the men in exile in Mexico City and obtained from them the story of "their arrest and agonizing experiences in the torture chambers of Guatemala."

Both said they are married last January, and claim to civil guard (police) headquarters.

BEATEN SAVAGELY

One said he was stripped, repeatedly beaten and tortured by having his head rushed under water, once until he lost consciousness. He was blindfolded before questioning and a gun "which I recognized as that of Rogelio Cruz Wer, director of the civil guard," asked such questions as:

"Why are you a Communist?" "Don't you know that communism is going to rule the world?" "Are you a Jew in the service of the gringos?" "How much money does the American ambassador give you?"

He said he refused to sign "a declaration" and finally both men were taken to the Mexican border.

Their sister said he was kept bound on the floor of a cell for five days, except that every few hours he was taken to a special room where "they applied electric shocks to my body by applying a steel band to my head which caused such pressure on my brain that I lost consciousness."

Discover Axe Believed Used To Slay Woman

TORONTO (CP)—An axe which police say they believe to be the weapon used in Monday night's slaying of a middle-aged woman was discovered by searching detectives today.

Mike Bajerowski, 26-year-old Polish immigrant, has been charged with murder in the axe slaying Monday night near his parents' home in Thornhill, 16 miles north of Toronto.

The axe was found hidden below bushes in a field near the woman's killing.

Police said the operator of the west-central rooming house where Bajerowski lived found Maria Stelnicki, 36, girl-friend of Bajerowski, lying in a pool of blood in the man's room.

GIRL'S NECK BROKEN

There was a deep wound in the dark-haired girl's forehead. Doctors said her neck was broken.

Frank Parzych, chief operator of the rooming house, told police he had been sitting on his verandah when the woman walked into the house about 7:30 p. m. He said Bajerowski had left earlier to go to church.

At about 9 p. m., said Parzych, he discovered the woman's body knocked on the door of Bajerowski's room, which was ajar, and discovered the body.

Detectives said there was little sign of a struggle.

GOVT. TAKES LESS AUTHORITY IN RADIO DEFENCE

Only 14 NATO Nations Will Be Given Rights

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has agreed to take less authority than it now has under emergency powers in letting non-Canadians operate radio defence installations in Canada.

The previously-unlimited authority, it conceded in the Commons Monday night, will be restricted in future to nationals of those countries with which Canada has joint defence agreements. These are the 14 NATO countries.

At the end of the House's sitting Monday Prime Minister St. Laurent said External Affairs Minister Pearson will report to the Commons Friday on the Geneva conference on Korea. Pearson arrived home Sunday night after serving as head of the Canadian delegation.

Under the Emergency Powers Act, passed in May, 1940, the cabinet can waive a basic provision of the federal radio act and permit the minister to operate a radio station run by his government in Canada, Mr. Pearson said, or allow British subjects can operate radio stations here.

The government Monday ran into snags on a bill to continue the emergency powers power and, after opposition protests, agreed to limit it to defence-connected countries.

"But it declined to go along with opposition demands that reciprocal radio-operating privileges should be confined to these countries, most specifically the United States that would have the citizens operating radio stations in Canada.

OPERATIONS SHARED

Transport Minister Chevrier said the legislation is aimed at implementing agreements under which the U.S. shares operation of a radio station in the Labrador navigation system, weather stations and U.S. radio in Canada.

He said there would be no point in Canada objecting to reciprocal arrangements in the U.S.

"Does anyone think we want to operate radio stations in the United States?" he asked.

Suggestions for reciprocal arrangements came from Howard Green (PC—Vancouver Quadra), Earl Rowe (PC—York-Simcoe, North Centre) and Solon Low, Social Credit, Peace River.

Maj-Gen. G. R. Pearkes VC, chief military critic for the Progressive Conservatives, said the door would be opened too wide if Canada were to allow aliens to be allowed to operate in Canada's north.

BILL AMENDED

It was somewhere along the line in the House that the government's bill eventually was amended to give the Governor-in-Council final say before cabinet receiving approval in principle. The minister said they could not recall a similar strained atmosphere. There were no signs workers planning to go home grings (Yankee)" to North American women.

The state department last week announced the arrival of 2,000 tons of arms in Guatemala port. It views this as a "substantial increase" and has informed the diplomatic representatives of other American republics. The shipment reputedly was worth $10,000,000.

'Only Did My Duty' Declares Heroine After Being Flown from Fortress

BY LARRY ALLEN

HANOI (AP) — Geneviève de Galard Terraboe declared today that tending French wounded in the terrible battle of Dien Bien Phu was the duty of any nurse.

The fortress of Dien Bien Phu was a "quite formidable experience of my life".

"It opened new horizons to me of courage and devotion to duty while French soldiers and officers were so brilliantly fighting and dying."

Facing a battery of 50 correspondents, movie newsreel cameramen, photographers and television representatives, the heroic nurse in her first news interview calmly and simply said:

"I only did my duty."

The most "dangerous and dramatic moment" of the long, savage battle for the French fortress came on the night of March 13-14.

It was then that the Vietminh hurled over thousands of mortars and artillery shells at projectiles and there were hundreds of French wounded and so many dying.

". . . So many of the wounded had to wait for so many hours in line in the underground bunkers in terrible pain before I could help them."

The French high command, meanwhile, said it hopes to wind up the battle of Dien Bien Phu within three days.

India Steps Up Behind-Scene Diplomatic Activity at Parley

GENEVA (CP) — India today stepped up her behind-the-scenes diplomatic activity in the Far East before the nine-powers Indo - China conference debated terms of a cease-fire.

United States delegates also became more active in the morning round of diplomatic action. The private meetings came in what delegates are describing as the crucial week of the Far East conference which began April 26.

V. K. Krishna Menon, Indian Minister Nehru's envoy who represents India at the United Nations, conferred this morning with Chou En-lai, Communist China's premier and foreign minister. It was their second meeting since Menon arrived here Saturday.

Menon arranged a luncheon date with Britain's foreign secretary Eden, who also is serving as a go-between in the efforts to halt the war between the French and the Vietminh Communists in Indo-China.

Meantime, Walter Bedell, Smith, chief of the U.S. delegation, talked with Prince Buu Loc, prime minister of the French associated state of Viet Nam at U.S. headquarters. Donald Heath, U.S. ambassador to Viet Nam, was also present.

DISCUSS VIET NAM ENTRY

It was understood the palace discussed two main topics with Smith:

1. The possibility of Viet Nam's entry into the proposed Southeast Asia security pact.

2. The need for France and Viet Nam to sign two treaties, negotiated recently in Paris, which give Viet Nam full independence as an equal partner in the French Indo-China union. These treaties are the signing of these treaties as an essential preliminary to joining any collective defence organization.

A new hitch developed at the conference Monday when Russia's foreign minister Molotov demanded that the conference discuss all efforts to general political problems of permanent peace. The Soviet diplomat, U.S. officials said, suggested a five-point program Friday for getting down to brass tacks on an Indo-China cease-fire, said the military aspects of the question should be handed over to the "two sides." France and the Vietminh. Western delegates were caught by surprise. They had believed the proceedings would be limited, at least temporarily, since Molotov's Friday proposals dealt solely with military problems.

Lodge Considers Red China 'Unfit' for UN Representation

CHICAGO (AP) — Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., United States representative to the United Nations, declared today he considers the Chinese Communist regime "wholly unfit" for representation in the UN.

He called it a "strange paradox" that the Chinese Communists demand to be let into the UN while at the same time persistently attacking it.

He drew up an indictment of the Chinese Communists which the United States mission in the UN described as the most comprehensive bill of particulars yet presented by a United States official against the Communist Peiping representation in the UN.

In an address prepared for the 70th annual spring meeting of the Inland Daily Press Association, Lodge said the Reds are wrong charges of direct aggression to the use of atrocities for subversive purposes.

Lodge said that, considering their policy and practice "it seems to me a very strange kind of moral blindness which can advocate that state."

The Chinese Communists he regarded as "unqualified and unfit to sit in the United Nations.

"I can promise you here today that the United States will steadfastly resist all manoeuvres by the Chinese Communist regime and its associates to bribe its way into the United Nations on mere promises of future good behavior in the future."

Lodge accused the Chinese Communists of being "guilty of flagrant aggression"—direct aggression in Korea, indirect aggression in Indo-China and internal aggression against the Chinese people.

Lodge said there are estimates that the Communists have killed "up to 15,000,000 people in China since 1949. Additional millions have been impressed into slave labor along the lines pioneered by the Soviet Union.

"Chinese Communists have broken the basic Chinese patterns of life, forcing children to inform on their parents and friends, 'National-izing' Chinese culture and thought, forming China into a total police state."

U.S. Army Engineers Agree 27-Foot Seaway Depth

WASHINGTON (AP) — Engineers of the United States army and maritime administration agree with Canada that the 27-foot depth for the St. Lawrence seaway will meet shipping needs for the foreseeable future.

To make the waterway any deeper would involve huge legislation and a great deal more money.

A 27-foot depth is specified in both the Wiley-Dondero act which authorizes the U.S. to join with Canada in building the waterway from the Atlantic as far inland as Toledo, Ohio.

It makes the channel 30 feet deep, it is estimated that the extra cost would be $68,000,000 for the U.S. and $66,000,000 for Canada. To make it 35 feet deep, the total additional cost to the two countries is estimated at approximately $200,000,000.

Engineers fixed the 27-foot figure after a study of the shipping coming into New York harbors, the continent's largest. The engineers concluded that the cost of deepening the harbor and engaged in foreign-port cargo trade, 75 per cent could use the seaway.

Larger sea-going tankers, some bulk cargo carriers and ocean liners will not be able to use the waterway because of their larger drafts.

Maritime administration officials say the system, now used by "Liberty" or "Victory" ships not fully loaded in terms of weight but still carrying "profitable pay loads."

On this score, Charles Sawyer, former U.S. commerce secretary, told a senate public works committee in February, 1952:

"Admiral (Edward L.) Cochrane (former head of the maritime administration) testified last year . . . that Liberty ships could use the seaway if loaded to the level of dead-weight capacity while Victory ships could use 11/2 inches to 2 feet of capacity. These would be profitable loadings."

W. F. Johnstone Named Warden Of Kingston 'Pen'

KINGSTON (CP)—Appointment of Walter F. Johnstone, 49, as warden of Kingston Penitentiary was announced today by Lt.-Col. Leonard R. B. Gibson of Ottawa, federal commissioner of penitentiaries.

Mr. Johnstone succeeds Richard W. Allen, a 69-year veteran of the penal service who retired in April.

Deputy warden Sidney Davidson has been acting as warden in the interim. Mr. Johnstone is to take office June 1.

Mr. Johnstone, who joined the penal service in 1924 at British Columbia Penitentiary, has in the last two years held the position of superintendent of the penitentiary staff college, "Calderwood," in Kingston. He organized the first Canadian staff college, opened in 1952.

Thomas D. McDonnell, executive secretary at Kingston Penitentiary, will succeed Mr. Johnstone as superintendent of the penitentiary staff college, Gen. Gibson said.

TWO FOREST FIRES DESTROY 1,800 ACRES OF TIMBER

Blazes in North Ont. Still Uncontrolled

HAILEYBURY, Ont. (CP)—Fire which has destroyed at least 1,800 acres of timber stands crackled in two uncontrolled blazes today in northern Ontario.

One of the fires, started Monday by careless anglers, was ravaging unchecked in the Haileybury area about 10 miles north of North Bay. It spread across a 2½-mile front, leaving a black stubble of valuable pine, fir, spruce and balsam in its wake.

The other was giving more than 100 firefighters a tough time in the Espanola district 30 miles southwest of Sudbury. More than 600 acres of woodlands have been destroyed.

The Ontario department of lands and forests, up against the most serious outbreaks of the year, ordered men, planes and trucks to both areas. Firefighters in the Haileybury area said of the blaze: "It's big and wild."

The fire near Espanola, one of more than 30 burning in the province, was racing over flatlands and hills of pine and hardwood. Dave Spence, chief ranger, in charge said "if we don't get this contained soon, it's going to be disastrous."

TWO UNCONTROLLED

Two other uncontrolled fires in the province out of control. The others were small but were particularly dry and could develop any serious outbreak. Some 30 fires were under control over the week-end.

Forest fires ruin millions of dollars' worth of timber every year and officials of the lands and forests department said today:

"The woodlands are dry from the recent rains. The situation is not yet serious but the two northern blazes are tough."

The Espanola fire was started yesterday by the hot ashes from a freight train and was burning in an area between Nairn and McKerrow.

PRISONERS

It began as a small bush fire but jumped the Spanish river on a 15-mile-an-hour wind and raced into stands of jackpine and second-growth. There were more than 100 men in the fight, including prisoners from Burwash industrial farm near Toronto.

Men hurried to the scene along the Canadian Pacific railway, Sault Ste. Marie line. The ashes started about 10 small fires. More were put out.

No towns or settlements were in the path of the fire, but a forest inhabited area is at McKerrow, four miles from the blaze.

Nearly 1,000 acres of forest were destroyed near Haileybury. The fire was burning in the Lady Lundy township. The flames feasted on dead timber, second-growth and mixed timber. At least three planes, including a helicopter, were used as part of the fight to blaze.

Hugh Mc. and Mrs. Elliott worked in Trenton, while their son, Cleon was home on leave from Korea. Cleon had served in Korea on two different occasions with the Canadian army and was said to be awaiting his release from the army.

Fire Chief Ralph Ebey of Trenton were driving on No. 33 highway east of Carrying Place when they saw the flames some distance off the road. They turned down the road to the shocked Elliott girl in the Cunningham home.

"The flames were rolling out from beneath the eaves when we drove through the window when we arrived," Mr. Ebey said. "Nothing could be done to save the building or the persons trapped inside.

Mr. Ebey and Mr. Cunningham tried to save the Elliott's new sedan parked alongside the house but were able to move it only a few feet when the flames got too hot and they had to stop. The car was burned.

SPEND DAY WITH PETS

Allen Taft, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Taft, who lived only a short distance down the road from the Elliott's, had spent Saturday afternoon and evening with the Elliott family.

He was a close friend of Cleon's and had gone to Picton with the family Saturday afternoon. At Picton they had visited Mrs. Elliott's sister, Mrs. Cecil Rybolt, and had left about dark. Later they had stopped at the home of Mrs. Elliott's brother-in-law, in Wellington.

The Elliott girl said they had arrived back home about 1.30 in the morning and Taft had decided to stay the night with Cleon.

A pet cat at the Taft home gave Mr. and Mrs. Taft alertby after the fire at the Elliott home was started.

Mr. Taft said the cat had a habit of climbing onto a window sill and meowing to get in. He had got up to let the cat in when he saw flames leaping from the Elliott home a short distance a mile up the road.

"I still can't believe that it is true," Mrs. Taft said three hours after the fire. "We were hoping against hope that their son and Cleon had left the Elliott home to spend the evening with friends in Trenton.

Provincial police from Picton and county constable Earl Marvin of Wellington, went to the scene. Frank Gardner, of Belleville, inspector with the Ontario fire marshal's department, investigated, but said nothing had been learned which might indicate the origin of the fire. Coroner Dr. R. A. Thompson, of Wellington, also visited the scene.

The funeral for the four victims will be held on Wednesday.

Allen Taft is survived by his parents and four brothers, Rowland, Richard, Lorne, Jack and Floyd and Roy, of Detroit.

4 Burned to Death At Carrying Place; Girl Leaps to Safety

Cause of Blaze in Frame Home Not Yet Determined

Four persons burned to death and a teen-aged girl jumped to safety from a second-storey bedroom window when fire demolished a small Carrying Place early Sunday morning. Carrying Place is six miles south of Trenton.

Dead in the fire which swept through the frame storey-and-a-half home are Mr. and Mrs. Earl Elliott, age 50 and 47; their 27-year-old son Cleon, a veteran of the Korean war, and Allen Taft, 27, close friend of the Elliott family.

Darlene Elliott, 14 daughter of the dead couple, saved herself when she jumped in her nightgown from her bedroom window to a neighbor's to raise the alarm.

The charred bodies of the four victims were recovered from the debris in the basement of the home Sunday afternoon by Belleville firemen. Cause of the fatal blaze was undetermined.

CHOKING WITH SMOKE

"I was awakened choking with smoke," Darlene Elliott said as she sat on the couch in the living room of the Gilbert Cunningham home where she was taken. Mr. Cunningham's home 200 feet away that the girl ran after she jumped from her bedroom window.

The girl said she had been sleeping in the front upstairs bedroom with her mother. When she was awakened the house was so filled with smoke that she could not get down the stairs. She awakened her mother, then smashed out the window and jumped to the ground 12 feet below.

Although her mother was awakened and heard screaming she failed to follow her daughter through the window and perished in the flames. Mr. Elliott was sleeping in the upstairs bedroom, while the two boys slept downstairs.

Word for a cut, too severed when climbing through the window the girl was uninjured in her jump to safety. She ran screaming to her neighbor's and awakened Mr. Cunningham by pounding on the door.

The fire broke out about 7o clock, said that when he got outside it was already too far gone to do anything to save the four persons still inside. Flames were already roaring inside and threatened to belch out from windows.

Mr. Cunningham said the girl woke him at 3:40.

OPERATOR SPREADS ALARM

The telephone operator at Mountain View then spread the alarm by waking neighbors with emergency calls to the fire department, which would be normally called for fires in the area, received an early fix on the blaze.

Hugh Mc. and Mrs. Elliott worked in Trenton, while their son, Cleon was home on leave from Korea. Cleon had served in Korea on two different occasions with the Canadian army and was said to be awaiting his release from the army.

Fire Chief Ralph Ebey of Trenton were driving on No. 33 highway east of Carrying Place when they saw the flames some distance off the road. They turned down the road to the shocked Elliott girl in the Cunningham home.

Finds Queen Bee Rules Her Subjects By Turning Them Into Dope Addicts

LONDON (AP)—A British scientist reported Monday a queen bee controls her subjects by turning them into dope addicts which have to come to her for their supply.

Dr. Colin Butler, head of a bee research project at Rothamstead, Hertfordshire, made the report in a published book, "The World of the Honeybee."

Dr. Butler identified the "dope," which he calls the "queen substance," as a kind of wax which covers the queen bee's body. The worker bees get the stuff by running their tongues over her, or by licking other bees which have been in bodily contact with the queen.

The author said the "queen substance" can be rubbed off with a cotton swab, which then becomes as attractive to the bees as the queen herself. Dr. Butler said there is evidence that the same sort of addiction prevails among ants and termites.

The "Hasty Pees" of a regiment old in trials of battle and accomplishments in battle and Sunday brought reminders of some of their finest hours.

The campaign medals, bright ribbon in the ranks of dull khaki; the shrapnel-pierced battle flag with the regiment's names; the rifle wood carving of an Indian chief flanked the reviewing stand.

GIVEN BY HIS CHIEF

The flag was presented to the "Hasty Pees" by Italian nuns, after the successful storming of Monte Cassino and was carried when the unit saw its subsequent actions. The present Indian mascot has been with the regiment since 1940, when Pte. Joe Bonaparte was jettisoned on the beaches of Dunkerque.

A round of spontaneous applause broke from the reviewing troops when Lt.-Col. Bruce Malcolm, the Bancroft cadets gave an exhibition of precision drill under their 17-year-old sergeant-major, Ralph Burke.

The competitors then split into groups for demonstrations in field tactics.

A lecture on map-reading was given by officer-cadet W. Rothwell while Capt. Bruce Sharpe served a signals display.

Other demonstrations included medium machine-gun drill, under Sgt. R. C. Down; mortar practice, under Sgt. C. Richardson, and anti-tank drill directed by Capt. Ken Shacks.

PRESENTATIONS AT ARMOURIES

At the conclusion of the demonstrations the troops were marched back to the armouries for the presentations.

Reading solemnly from the official scroll Brig. Dunn presented Lt.-Col. Ewart's Commission to 2nd Lt. Ken Broad. Lt. Broad, 23, was awarded the commission following a successful course at Camp Borden.

The Canadian Forces Decoration, not long in existence, is awarded for 12 years' efficient service.

Presenting the decoration to Capt. Jim Crawford, he praised said Capt. Loucks had devoted a great deal of his time to the regiment and he felt this was a distinct contribution to community activities.

NCO's BACKBONE OF UNIT

Congratulating CQMS Leonard on his receiving the award, he stressed the importance of NCO's and warrant officers and said they are "the backbone of the unit."

In a brief address to the men he urged them to intensify their recruiting campaign for the regiment.

Prior to the inspection, the troops enjoyed a steak dinner served in the armouries. On the menu were steak, onions, carrots, peas, salad, ice cream, coffee, milk, etc. The meal was prepared by RCMS H. E. Little, Staff Sgt. Mitch Bashotie, Sgt. Cook, Joseph Soules and Corporal Jack Pitman. Also, assisting were 22 members of the ladies' auxiliary of the sergeants' mess under the supervision of president Mrs. Jeannette Thoms.

Nearly 140 men, under Lt.-Col. R. Widdifield, O.C., including the Bancroft high school cadets, mustered for the event from Picton, Trenton, Frankford and Bancroft.

Former Principal Of Albert Speaks At Chapel Service

Dr. Charles W. Bishop, a former principal of Albert College, was the guest speaker at the annual Alumni Homecoming Chapel Service held Sunday morning in the College chapel.

"The greatest need in the world today is the sanctifying of the social instincts of young people," said Dr. Bishop in an address in which he presented his belief that the proper blending of the social instinct and the instinct to worship was "a call of God and a challenge of Christ."

"This worship service is family worship", said the speaker as he noted that those in attendance were of the family of Albert College.

"Fixing more and more firmly in the idea of family worship is one of Albert College's great functions", said Dr. Bishop in speaking of "family in the larger sense as it applies to institutions rather than to the natural born."

"It is customary to think of social life and worship as separate from each other," said Dr. Bishop, but the possibilities of welding the two conceptions together is a challenge to the modern world with worship", said the speaker," and those who are interested in the service are in need of the social touch: This linking can best be done in the home and institutions like our own Albert College."

Dr. Bishop expressed the hope that life at Albert College would bring about a sanctifying of social life that "that will have a deep effect upon us, all the days of our lives."

"I believe that in the expression in the Lord's prayer, 'Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven' the essence of what God was teaching was a dedication of our social life to the highest purpose."

"Why didn't we say institutions and Sunday schools directly. He was speaking of the roots that grow deep and rise to thee things. He was giving to the people of His land a feeling that He was dealing as He could impart."

Dr. Bishop spoke briefly about two students who attended Albert while he was principal who were nearly wrecked the ideal of service and social life in their own lives.

In conclusion he said, "I dedicate Dr. Bishop and his memory" as invoked by Rev. Bert Howard, D.D., principal emeritus.

The Albert College choir, under the direction of J. H. MacKay, sang several hymns during the service.

Always Well To Take Along Fishing Gear

It is just as well to take along a fishing line or trolling gear, when you take the kiddies out for a spin in the family motor boat.

Look at what happened to Jack Bond, of the Ontario Intelligencer advertising staff and a brother-in-law, also of Bancroft, jeweller.

The boys decided to take the children out for a boat ride on a lake near Bancroft over the holiday, and just for fun they let out a trolling line.

You guessed it. The ride was cut short when the boys landed a rainbow lake trout that tipped the scales at ten pounds, one ounce.

Dr. Bishop spoke briefly about two students who attended Albert while he was principal who were nearly wrecked the ideal of service and social life in their own lives.

In conclusion he said, "I dedicate Dr. Bishop and his memory" as invoked by Rev. Bert Howard, D.D., principal emeritus.

The Albert College choir, under the direction of J. H. MacKay, sang several hymns during the service.

Children Had Grand-Time With Fireworks

...Yowie fellas, lookit that one! ...Stand back men, here's another! ...Boy whatta a show!

Such exclamations as held day last night as fireworks flared and crackled round the city, marking the end of Victoria Day and the long holiday week-end.

Golden Rains and Roman Candles sprinkled the lawns of many houses and multi-colored blobs of light shimmered in the air as rockets answered each other across the bay.

The kids apparently had a good time without getting their fingers burnt and hospital authorities reports no mishaps from unexpected explosions.

The only highway mishap coming to the attention of provincial police occurred Saturday midnight when a car driven by Gordon Roberts of Frankford went off No. 33 highway south of Frankford and ended up with its front wheels in the Trent Canal.

Roberts is reported to have gone asleep at the wheel and the car left the highway, ripped out several fence posts and struck a telephone pole before coming to rest at the river bank. None of the occupants in the car was injured.

District Members of Legion Hear Reports, Hold Parade In Convention Held in City

Upwards of 300 members of District "F", Ontario Provincial Command of the Canadian Legion, BESL, added a brilliant touch of color to the city on Sunday when they paraded through city streets as part of their annual convention.

The colorful pageantry of the flags borne by forty-eight stalwart standard bearers, and the trim blue and white of the band of RCSCC Quinte Isle the semi-skilled blazer-clad Legionnaires to the Station Street Cenotaph at noon, where they paid tribute to the "Glorious Dead."

Thirty-four branches of the 47 in the district were represented at the convention which started at nine a.m. and lasted through to 4.15 p.m.

They heard reports from zone commanders and various committee chairmen. They passed final resolutions and heard an outstanding banquet address given by Colonel Sidney Harvey, Ottawa, 1st vice-president of the Ontario Provincial Command. They dined heartily at one o'clock at the Moose Hall, where the ladies of the Belleville Branch 99 auxiliary served a delectable dinner. They heard sermons. They passed dozens of membership initiation and paid membership forms to incoming and outgoing officials.

The legionnaires who came down for far-flung Command, their pastor, car and bus registered at the collegiate auditorium at nine a.m.

The convention went into session shortly afterwards with President Bill Bailey of the Belleville host branch No. 99 extending the Legion welcome. "It is the first time in years the convention has been here", he said. "We are proud to have you here and hope this convention will be the best ever."

OFFICIALLY WELCOMED.

Mayor John Both voiced the official welcome to the city. He congratulated them on their fine appearance and said: It is an honor to have you here. You represent all that Canada stood for in two wars and know how much our freedom means to us. The city welcomes you with a great deal of pleasure."

Len Taylor, Commander of Zone F.3, extended the zone welcome to the convention. "It is the second time we have had you in this zone and we as well as Belleville extend you a cordial welcome."

In his report to the convention, District Commander J. W. "Scotty" Broughton paid tribute to Frank Threadgold, district chairman, unable to be present due to illness and paid district commander, Jack Burnell, DCM, mayor of Cobourg, now the regional vice-president.

"In a district of 8,000 square miles," he said, there are 47 branches with a membership of 3,300. This district is on the march. It had a 62 per cent membership increase last year and this year it should be doubled.

He outlined the birth, aims and objectives of the Legion terming it "one of the most powerful voices in the Dominion on veterans affairs. It is asking a grateful country to redeem the promises made to the fighting men and who must be looked after in times of peace."

DOING GOOD JOB.

The Legion Service Bureau," the district commander said, "is doing a wonderful job. We are proving daily that we are our brothers keepers. The Poppy Fund, he pointed out, had two objectives — to remember the fallen and provide for those in distress. One and three-quarter million poppies were sold last year and this year it is hoped some five million will be sold.

The Legion is proud of its educational efforts. "We have donated $29,000 to 'C' sons and daughters of worthy veterans for college educations."

He stressed with emphasis the "11th of November holiday, for Remembrance Day will never be disposed of by those in power while the Canadian Legion has something to say or do about it. It is a special day for all veterans especially those who served in the First Great War. We, their sons, solemnly promise, that it shall be taken away from them."

He urged all to go on working for the good of their fellow men and comrades, the community, province and the Dominion. "Serve in peace as you did in war."

Reports from the various zone commanders were heard at this point. These included F.1. Slan Dunn, Bowmanville; F.2., Bill Coulter-ton, Trenton; F.3., Len Taylor, Tweed and Belleville; F.4. George Pope, Lindsay and F.5. McIville Hamblin, Norwood. The reports revealed the district to be in a healthy condition with emphasis placed on the membership drive.

In a simple impressive ceremony Comrade Paddy Burke, Peterborough, substituting for Senator W. A. Fraser, Trenton, who was unable to be present, presented the past district commander's badge to Comrade Jack Burnell, DCM, Cobourg. Comrade Burnett in turn presented a similar badge to District Commander Broughton.

Comrade Burnett thanked the many branches that had honored him during his tenure of office. He gave to the district a most dynamic force in the Ontario Command. It is doing a magnificent job and setting its sights on the award for the largest membership in Ontario.

Ontario Command first vice president Henry Harvey, Oshawa, is presently the district delegate, district chairman in absentia, with an official badge through District 'F.' Bragg of the Whitby branch, is in absence of Comrade Threadgold, Comrades Jim Lovell and Frank Grant acted as co-chairmen for the session.

Prior to the opening of the session a brief service of remembrance was held with Comrade Youdale at the Hammond organ. Two minutes silence was observed and hymns sung.

COLORFUL PARADE.

At noon the convention "fell in" on the collegiate campus under the supervision of Parade Marshal Les Digby. The colorful parade moved off behind the motor cycle escort of Traffic Officer Tom Schrieder to Front Street to Station Street, thence to the cenotaph.

The Rev. Eric Strain, padre of Branch 99, conducted the Memorial service, Comrade Henry Harvey, escorted by Comrades Jack Burnett and James Lovell, deposited the wreath of the provincial command, with the district wreath deposited by District Commander Broughton escorted by Comrades Bill Bailey and Len Taylor.

The parade re-formed and marched over the same route to the Orange Hall, Church Street, where the convention banquet was held.

Opening the afternoon session was the colorful ceremony of initiation of new members. With Zone 3 Commander Len Taylor officiating, eight members were sworn in and formally admitted to membership.

Three resolutions presented by Comrade Ben Jacklin, Oshawa, were approved and adopted. These include, one, that the government be requested to extend D.V.A. credits to ex-service women; two, that veterans of Korean, Malayan and Kenya campaigns be afforded full membership, and three, that where war veterans have to travel distances for treatment, when no local doctor is available they be allowed mileage expenses.

REPORTS HEARD.

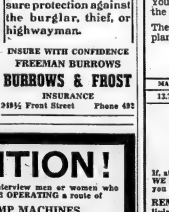
Comrade Doug Weeks, Oshawa, gave a line report on sports covering all phases with athletics it was mentioned that two Legion-sponsored hockey teams from Stirling and Kincardine battled through to the O.N.H.A. juvenile "C" championship.

Mr. W. Stephenson, D.V.A. representative, spoke briefly mentioning a certain changes in D.V.A. legislation. He was pleased to co-operate with branches at all times and his services were always available, he said.

Speaking on membership, Comrade Paddy Burke urged that persistent contact be made to increase the number of members. He was not, satisfied with the membership reports, with all zones except one showing a decrease from December '53 to mid-April '54. Zones F3 and F4 were showing up well in the drive and it is hoped the district would double its membership this year.

Comrade Everett Liddle chairman of the Poppy Fund, presented his report showing that the total received from poppies and wreaths amounted to $10,718.30. Zone F. 3 led the zones with $3,617.42; Zone F. 5 was next with $2,763.85; Zone F. 1 with $1,613.10; Zone F. 4 $1,-021.75 and Zone F. 2 with $1,122.20.

HOUSING REPORT



Comrade James Lovell, Oshawa, speaking on "Housing" said he deplored the lack of co-operation of branches in this respect. His committee should have full information, or little can be done. He said the Federal government plans to help veterans build and finance their own homes on standard residential lots. The plan calls for establishment of a $15,000,000 revolving fund to provide veterans with an interest-free source of capital during actual construction.

To qualify for a loan, a veteran must put up $800 or the equivalent value in a lot as part or all of a down payment. Cost of construction up to $8,000 will be financed out of the revolving fund. With the completion of the house, the veteran will be granted a mortgage by the crown-owned Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation. The revolving fund being reimbursed by the amount of the loan. D.V.A. has reduced the size of the property to what is required to build on, instead of the former two acres or more acres.

It was pointed out that a similar plan to help veterans build their own homes showed that savings of 20 per cent or more could be made on construction costs.

Brief reports on organization and ways and means were submitted by Comrades Ewart Jones, Lindsay and Frank Grant, Belleville.

Prior to the conclusion of the convention it was decided to hold the next drumhead service at Haliburton and the next district convention at Peterborough.

Bowling Season Opened With Mixed Jitney

Under ideal weather conditions with greens in excellent condition and the largest number in attendance in its history, the bowling season of the Belleville Bowling Club was officially opened on the Holiday afternoon. The president, Ald. Gerald B. Hyde, welcomed the members and thanked everyone for the great amount of work that had been done to put the greens and grounds in such excellent condition.

It appeared, when the bowlers gathered, there was not one blade of grass out of place. The boulevards and lawns were closely cut, the long grass along the fences had been removed and the greens were sparkling in their radiant color.

Under the direction of Orlo Smith, Jitney chairman, with his co-worker, Gordon Watkin, a mixed jitney and two 12-end games were arranged and suitable prizes awarded the winners, which happened to be everyone, who took part. Despite the fact it was the first time the bowlers had a chance to exercise their arms, the high scores were quite good.

A number of new bowlers were on hand and welcomed by the members, while there were a number of old timers who were renewing back after being away from the game for a number of years. All indications point to a successful season at this popular pastime.

For the first time in Belleville, Moira-Schuster Limited offer you fuel oil on a budget plan

AND AT NO ADDITIONAL COST TO YOU!

It's simple and it's easy! You estimate the number of gallons of fuel oil that you will burn in a year — multiply it by the price per gallon of fuel oil — then divide by the number of months you wish to take to pay for it. The result — a perfect, systemized fuel oil budget plan, which will not only allow you to run your house on a budget, but

IT ELIMINATES THOSE BIG FUEL BILLS!

You pay by the month and we deliver to your residence in accordance with our "Keep Fill System" — charging the prevailing selling price at the time of each delivery.

The earlier you purchase on our budget plan, the smaller the monthly payments are going to be, as all budget plans expire in March of 1955.

The following chart is based on an estimated 800 gallons consumption of FURNACH FUEL OIL at today's price of 18.5c per gallon.

MAY	JUNE	JULY	AUG.	SEPT.	OCT.	NOV.	DEC.	JAN.	FEB.	MAR.	Total Paid

CANADIAN FOOTBALL ON TV

The announcement that the National Broadcasting Company had agreed to a television deal involving the showing of the Canadian Big Four football games in the United States, at a price of $250,000 to the teams (including CBC network contributions) left us as dizzy as a teen-ager who has been kissed on her first date.

The thought of the good old Canadian game actually being sought after for public viewing in the United States, where football players are as thick as grass every fall, was enough to unsettle even the most manly amongst us. It was like a pat on the head from a big brother after having been told for years that in our own small way we were not too bad, just immature. Like a key to the house and permission to use the car alone, the NBC's endorsation of Canadian football with cold cash, generates the heady realization that maybe, just maybe, we have arrived.

However now that the first blush of their compliment has faded away, the unsettling thought occurs to us that maybe, just maybe, the man paying the TV piper might want to start calling the plays. NBC announced that a TV team, including commentators "to interpret the game to American viewers" will be despatched to the Big Four cities to do the actual broadcasts. That interpreting business worries us.

The Canadian game of football is a thrilling spectacle. In our humble opinion it is a more enjoyable game to watch than the American game—precisely because of the differences between the two games. We think the three down limit in Canada as opposed to the four downs allowed in the U.S. game imposes a different strategy on the teams, and by forcing a more frequent exchange of the ball, lays greater stress on kicking, a feature of football that is one of its more exciting elements.

The five yard limit on punt receiving allows the defending team to operate a kick without the safety man's life being endangered by a horde of charging tacklers, at least until he can get turned around to face them. It also provides the offensive team with the opportunity to recover fumbles. Kicks to the deadline are good for a single point, a reward for penetration into your opponent's end zone, an appreciably safer one than subsequent strategy of a game. Running out punts from the end zone is another exciting phase of Canadian football that the U.S. version lacks.

Lack of downfield blocking in the Canadian game has been criticized as one of the facets of the game that cannot compare with its U.S. counterpart, but it is a matter of opinion whether or not it is a defect at all.

All in all the Canadian game is a good game with a lot to recommend it. We only hope that the influx of American money and interest does not turn the heads of the men running the Canadian game. Canadian football, in its specific appeal and quality of play, need not apologize to anyone. In fact, we believe that the features of the Canadian game, together with the speed of play, if left intact, will arouse more interest and comment in the United States than any imported professional entertainment caliber of players. Another advantage in retaining the Canadian game is that it will be recognized as a Canadian game because of its differences, none of which are serious enough to require wholesale "interpretation" to American fans.

EISENHOWER CLEARED

Army Secretary Robert Stevens has declared at no time did "higher-ups in the Eisenhower administration" give orders to the U.S. Army in connection with its dispute with Senator Joseph McCarthy.

What this really means is that President Eisenhower is not responsible for "arranging" the McCarthy-Army row.

All the President's friends will be glad of that. For, no matter what may be the public opinion of McCarthy, it would be extremely difficult to justify any scheming by the President to throw a showdown fight with the Senator and still leave the President safely on the sidelines.

President Eisenhower has been roundly criticized in many circles for his failure to take issue with McCarthy. But even the most caustic of these critics would surely be willing to admit that inaction is preferable to arranging for others to conduct the fight.

It is rather strange that a man who won his fame as a soldier should have been suspected of such a scheme. Nor does the fact that this suspicion is now revealed to be baseless altogether remedy the situation. There was a time when the suggestion of any such an arrangement would have been laughed to scorn, long before it could be officially denied.

THE OLD-TIME FAMILY

It makes me smile to hear 'em tell
About other nowadays
The burdens they are bearing,
With a child or two to raise.
Of crimes the days of living has gone scaring to the sky
And our kids are wearing garments that my parents couldn't buy.

Now my father went a-wailing,
Eight that cleaned our plates of pone and then passed them
squeal
Because eight of us were sitting at the table every meal.

People fancy they are martyrs if their children number three;
And those few, they reckon, are a large-sized family.
A dozen hungry youngsters at a table I have seen,
And their daddy didn't grumble when they licked the platter clean.
Oh, I wonder how these mothers and these fathers up-to-date
Would like the job of loving little shoes for seven or eight

We were eight around the table
In those happy days back then,
Eight that cleaned our plates of
pone and then passed them up again.

Eight that needed shoes and stockings; eight to wash and put to bed,
With mighty little money in the purse, as I have said.
But with all the care we brought them, and through all the days of stress,
I never heard my father or my mother wish for less.

Strange Crimean War

(New York Times)

The centenary of the Crimean War is reviving again this year some of periodically told tales of the exploits of that conflict. Waged in the rough terrian around Imperial Russia's Black Sea naval base, the British-French-Turkish campaign had its little historic and military significance but more than one commentator has called it "the insane war". Others have kept its memories alive in the residuum of its associations and by-products. A stem of romantic and biographical legends, the origins of some familiar institutions and practices and the roots of many handy items of language—these are among the more obvious connections of the expansive term Crimea.

The story of Florence Nightingale and Tennyson's "The Charge of the Light Brigade" head the list. One set a pattern for both military and civilian nursing and foreshadowed the Red Cross idea of public samaritanism in times of war and disaster. The other symbolized in stirring verse the heroic bravery of the soldier's to-and-die tradition and set off popular admiration for curbers extravagant military abuses, demonstrating how easily the pen can become mightier than the sword.

It is to the T. G. that we owe the abundance of recorded detail about the Crimean War and its fascinating offshoots. Forerunner of the Club what W. H. Russell, the Traveling Gentleman of that day, innocent of passport and other formalities, had only to book passage to Balaclava and there he was, among the troops and those of the troops, heedless of shot and shell. These inquisitive letters to the London Times and once to the socially oriented Brighton Herald are what they saw in their rambles filled many a diary, to the profit of writers of memoirs and the joy of readers of history. Cecil Woodham-Smith, the most recent literary historian of these jottings with her popular biography of Miss Nightingale and her "Lonely Crusade" and the Light Brigade exploded and its implications.

On the fringe of the T. G.'s was William Howard Russell, a bearded dandy, whose dispatches to The Times made him more than a little annoyed at the first war correspondent in history but a main source of the furor that tidings of "the insane war" churned up at home. Another "first" was Roger Fenton, who took the deathless photographs and toiled to develop them by the pioneer wet-plate process in his darkroom-van. His piecemeal panorama of the war scene and its opera bouffe characters makes them live as vividly as if they had been taken yesterday.

Lord Cardigan and Lord Raglan, who gave their names to a sweater and a sleeve, were prominent among the gentlemen-officers in reward. A personal feud between Cardigan and Lord Lucan, his superior, contributed to the immortal blunder that sent the brave Six Hundred on that tragic ride. The social swash of these privileged peers set the military pace. Cardigan dined and slept each night on his yacht in Balaclava harbour, seven miles from the front. So many officers' wives had followed their husbands to the Crimea that no dearth of dinner guests. One of these was Lady Errol, who visited the troops in a celebrity mode with the troops in a celebrity frenzy, striding hand-in-hand Lady George Paget, a society beauty, was another early equivalent of the USO girls.

Not to be outdone, the Russians had their social diversions, too. Prince Menshikov, commander of the Czar's forces, was invited thirty young women from the Russian Court. They rode in open carriages, with picnic hampers and champagne, and made a buff overlooking the contested valley of the Alma. As the battle raged, they rapidly watched the scarlet-coated Englishmen struggling up the explain below. But the matinee had a surprise climax when the British flank attack made the position impossible, suddenly stormed the height. The picnic minded by the each indecorum that the victors found the bluff strewn with luncheon, champagne and fluff will

It's a long way from the Crimea to Seoul and Saigon, from cavalry and cannon-balls to tanks and jet bombers. Progress and science have not banished the controversial gap between officers and enlisted men and file. But the projection of change for another hundred years, may one wonder, whether fluff will become a fusty museum-piece?

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A young man born and raised in a small town was lately at the age of 30, offered a big job in the big city. Some time ago, he had told me he has been working the past eleven years. He was first employed in his home town, as office junior for the firm's local office. Then he did do that five years ago, he was transferred as manager of the branch in another town.

He had, of course, often been to the city. He with his wife had visited the sights in Toronto, week ends. They had come by train and had sometimes driven down by car.

The offer of a job at head office, with a big increase in salary, and a promotion in rank that required he move to the city he had been doing in the small town branches, was a matter of intense delight and excitement to him and his wife. Head office told him to come to the city and discuss the details, and of course, to bring his wife, so she could look over her new home city.

To visit a city on holiday is one thing. To come into it as a prospective home town is quite another. The young couple drove the car the 200 odd miles to the city, full of the highest spirits and excitement. They packed the best skirts about half an hour before 5 p.m. They arrived at the hotel just as it erupted on its daily five to six p.m. home-bound rush hour.

They were caught in traffic jams, up for minutes on end by stoppages at traffic intersections. They were glowered at by the cabbies in their tired strangers of the big city home at the end of day. They were directed, but briefly to find their reservation was mislaid, and after 20 minutes or so. They left uneasy, distressed, jostled, amid a million strangers.

So they went back out to a motel they had spotted on the highway down, and stayed the night.

And next morning, full of joy, composing as they travelled, the nice letter, declining the job which they were the following day to head office.

FOREIGN BODY SWALLOWED

When child or adult accidentally swallows a foreign body, blunt or sharp these are good rules to follow:

Dr. Brady

1) Do not give laxatives or cathartic
2) Do not try to induce vomiting
3) Wait at least two or three days to see whether the foreign body will pass through the intestine, and have X-ray examination only if it fails to pass naturally within 10 hours.
4) Let the child or adult eat a good size bowl of mixed vegetables—such as cabbage, celery, green beans—or twice over a large salad of leafy vegetables, root vegetables cooked not and fruit, especially ripe banana. A baby or young child should be given all the banana he will eat.
5) Cut rawhiding threads into pieces 1½ to 2 inches long and feed the patient enough of them to make a ball the size of a horse chestnut, in jelly, apple sauce or custard.

The threads unwrap the foreign body like a cocoon, more smoothly wound than it could be found by hand, and in this form the foreign body easily passes out of the body, but may escape notice unless all the dejects are carefully flushed through a sieve for four days.

Colored News

(Financial Post)

Ever since the Eisenhower election, Canadians have been finding its harder and harder to find out from the daily press what is really going on in the United States—and to a considerable degree in other parts of the world.

The reason is the ardent Republicanism of the great majority of U.S. daily publishers and the fact that so many other foreign news such as European and Asian carried by the news associations is written primarily for U.S. consumption and is then filtered and reprocessed for Canadian consumption.

An interesting example of this turned up this week.

Canada's largest circulation daily reported Dulles' return from Geneva with the streamer headline "Dulles Visiting 'mad' at British." This was based on one U.S. news association report on why Dulles left in the early stages of the Geneva conference.

The "mad at the British" notion was of course one which would have a very wide appeal among Americans, and particularly among Republican Americans who like to believe that any of their troubles in foreign affairs are somebody else's fault.

Just to show what confusion the reader contends with, look at the Spectator's Washington report in a Democratic paper.

It refers to the Dulles departure as "fantastically inept" manoeuvre.

"The Administration's original strategy for the conference in Geneva was discreetly to view at the clashing statements that have emerged from on high in recent days. If there was any plan, it has been fatally muddled. No matter how able his replacement, an abrupt departure by Dulles

VIRTUE PRESSED TOO FAR

The ideal of the "golden" mean is pagan in origin, but is frequently held as a certain virtue. Balance between two extremes generally brings one to a knowledge of the truth, but when balance is pushed even the most commendable virtue to an extreme may produce embarrassment, discomfort, and sometimes evil itself. Plato said, "For evils, I suppose, there are no evils, the extremes on both directions."

People are inclined to lose patience with a reformer, not because he denounces evil, but because he does nothing else. On the other hand, those who denounce evil also tolerant of evil that they will never take up arms against it, and will a bland expression of confidence, that they are not alone are following the true Christian line.

Jesus is a constant comfort to both people who go around with a sour look on their faces all the time are those who are down, and to the other hand, there is probably no one more intolerable than the type of person who is always smiling and bubbling over with optimism, even when the heartiness seems to be being sounded full blast.

Truth usually resides about halfway between extremes. There are always two sides to every question. Even a virtue pushed to an extreme may become a vice. Watch out for evil which flows out of good unwisely utilized, or a virtue pressed too far.

BE BEYOND REACH

There are those among us who are so genuine, and God-formed, that no insult, lie, or malicious statement can reach us. Deserters, noted teacher and philosopher, has said: "When a man injures me I strive to lift up my soul so high that his offense cannot reach me."

We can easily afford to overlook the petty jealousies and malicious assaults. Note how the big dog marches steadily on, regardless of the yapping curs at his heels. He has dignity that he values. Always remember that the persons to those who would seek to drag you to their level.

If the great figures of history stopped to argue with their detractors, they would lose their leadership in the world. The bigger you are the more you are liable to be misunderstood and often maligned. When Christ was taken before Pilate he left the Roman governor do the talking. And in exasperation Pilate had to confess that there was no evil in the Man.

Be beyond reach of all bitterness, vile criticism, and misunderstanding, and you will at least retain your dignity and balance. Nothing can harm an honest man. He is too far beyond reach! All the unfavorable arguments that anyone can offer are futile. Greatness has always been challenged, and always will be, but "the carping critics" have no effect. It is a thing as being too great to be dishonestly challenged. Yet we see it attempted every day.

Be beyond the reach of little barbs and sarcastic darts. Hold firm to the dignity of the character that you own and "trust God and do right." Be sure that the faith and fear you are bound to be questioned, misunderstood, but there is a spiritual reward for all those who march steadily on and they are beyond the reach of smaller minds.

Does Not Know Music

(Fort William Times-Journal)

Sir Douglas Ramsay, 76, deplores a decline in the standard of popular music. He says modernized "Pipers are blowing wrong notes," he says. To which a non-Scot, with no appreciation of the music replies: "How can you tell when a wrong note is played on the bagpipes?"

British Snail Sets Record

(Montreal Gazette)

The British athlete, Roger Bannister, broke the four minute mile by running a mile in less than four minutes.

It was the record for a human being. But each species is to be judged according to its own limitations. The British Snail Watching Society has issued its Ninth Annual Report. The report provides statistics on the speed-record for the year. The championship, so far, goes to a snail that was able in one hour to travel .0036300 of a mile. If such an athletic snail were to go a full mile, he would need over 100 days.

Yet no one should scorn such an achievement. All things are relative, each according to his kind. In the same way as the world was waiting to see if any human could possibly do a mile in four, it was a question to be doubt the British Snail Watching Society in breathless anticipation who will go .0036300 of a mile in an hour.

Perhaps there is more unfairness to it all, than just making unfair comparisons. For Roger Bannister certainly knew what he had achieved. The human snail acclaimed him. But the snail who breaks the record will never know what he has done. The delighted acclaim of the British Snail Watching Society will be lost upon him. He will still go on his way, unaware that he has given to "snail's pace" a brand new meaning.

Side Mirrors A Necessity

(Niagara Falls Review)

We believe the majority of policemen in this district and also side-view mirrors should be mandatory on all vehicles that travel highways and city streets. Such a law probably should be more applicable to highway drivers and especially the need for side-view mirrors is evident on dual-lane roads, where vehicles dart out of line without warning.

Side-view mirrors are necessary among the "extras" in motor vehicle equipment, just like flashing lights that must be in good operation with a finger touch to warn that a motorist is approaching an L-turn. In the latter case, at least a motorist is supposed to signal with his arm when he is about to make a turn, but there is no substitution for a good sideview mirror that keeps all rear traffic in full view.

If you believe side-view mirrors are just as adequate as a side-view mirror, make your own tests. Look through an inside mirror and try to keep one car in a car that turns out to pass you. The answer to the question is right there.

One thing that is said of Joe McCarthy—he's versatile. As near as we can make out from watching those headlines on TV, he's being simultaneously as accused, prosecutor, counsel, clerk of the court and one-man jury.

Albert College Alumni Hears Splendid Address on Canada

"Canada has what it takes to achieve the highest standard of living any country, at any time, has ever enjoyed," said Rev. Richard Jones, of Toronto, in an address entitled "The Country in Which We Live," delivered Saturday evening at the Alumni Homecoming Banquet of Albert College held at Tobe's County Gardens.

"Canada has the soil to give us this standard of living" he said. "Already we are embarrassed by our surplus grain. Under the soil are the ingredients of undreamed of wealth. From Labrador to Kilimat we hear of iron, gold, nickel, ore aluminum.

"Our educational system is producing the scientists and engineers capable of working with these resources to give us the standard of living of which I dream.

"I dream, too, for Canada, the continuation of decent, honest, good government. I come from New Jersey and know something of political graft, and I believe that the people in government in Canada have higher standards than those in New Jersey.

MUST WATCH GOVERNMENTS

"But when we hear of horses on the payroll and bridges bought and paid for, that cannot be found, it becomes the job of every Canadian and especially those Canadians like yourselves with the training you have received in your school, to be aware of what your government is doing at the federal, provincial and municipal level.

"One of the things new Canadians, like myself, notice about Canada is the freedom of the nation. You do not have here trial by television, or guilt by association, and you won't have it if you see that we have good men in government and in the courts."

Mr. Jones continued by noting that of the scores of resources which Canada possesses, Canadians have one commodity — the commodity of good relations — that is Canada's most important export.

"Canadians are people who come here from all over the world," he said, "who have learned to live together. Here two great streams of culture, French and English, two religions, Protestant and Catholic, have come together and lived side by side in harmony.

GET ALONG TOGETHER

"Mathematics, English and science are not as important as people getting along together.

"Germany has a magnificent educational system but what did it get them? It produced a race of people who hated their neighbors and who destroyed those of a different race or religion.

"We in Canada have learned to get along together."

The speaker, in noting that Ontario had recently passed fair employment legislation, said, "it hurts me to think such legislation is necessary. It would have been better if it had come from the heart rather than the court.

"I visualize a unity in Canada springing from diversity. I hope in the future that people will work together for something we all can love more than ourselves, and that is our country. I don't think we have to go to extremes to boast about Canada," he said, "but I do think Canadians are too apt to sell their country short. Canadians, as a rule, are not as proud of Canada as they have a right to be."

VISUALIZES PERFECT CANADA

"I visualize for the future, a Canada that is perfect — with help of God. In the future I hope to see Canada a country where everyone is interested in something outside of himself in which there is no personal monetary reward. Teaching Sunday school classes, singing in your church choir, or leading a young people's movement brings no thanks. But if you want Canada so be the best kind of country, everyone must freely give something of himself to it. With everyone contributing it will not be too much work for any one person.

"I hope, too, that in the Canada of the future, everyone will be thought of as a religious person. As young people you may think sometimes you do not need God, but everyone, sometimes, must recognize that there is something outside of himself that is greater than himself and on which he must depend."

When his remarks to pass we will have unity and all the good things for which we desire and dream.

LOVES COUNTRY

"I love Canada, and am proud to call it 'home'," said Mr. Jones.

"Our job, as Canada grows, is to work forward in the ideals about which I have spoke. If we all dream the same dream and work for it it will become a reality.

"Albert College has had a part to play in Canada's development in the past and it has a place in Canada's future. You, as graduates of Albert College, have a part to play, too."

Mr. Jones was introduced by T. K. Franklin and the thanks of the alumni were expressed by Pat Brewer, vice-president of the Albert Alumni Association.

Approximately 100 alumni and friends attended the turkey dinner at Tobe's. Master of ceremonies for the evening was James Pullen, first vice-president of the Alumni Association, who officially welcomed the guests. A special mention was made of Jose Martinez, of the Dominican Republic, the alumnus travelling the greatest distance to attend the Homecoming.

PROPOSES TOAST

Miss J. B. Tuite, in proposing the toast to Albert College, stated that the alumni had a precious asset was its spirit and the sense of sacrifice, which, handed down from year to year, has made Albert College better and better as it approaches its 100th anniversary.

Rev. A. E. MacKenzie, B.A., principal of Albert, responded to the toast to the school. He welcomed the alumni and both living ex-principals of Albert College, Dr. C. W. Bishop and Dr. Bert Howard, who were at the head table.

"Ours is a small family, numerically," said Mr. MacKenzie, "but I am convinced that we have a significant role to play in the community."

He said in connection with Albert's approaching centenary, that if a proposed financial appeal meets with success, the college will build a building to house 40 girls and which will contain a household science room, a music room and a recreation room. Cost of the building is expected to be $165,000, and construction would take place on the college's property on Highland Ave.

MEETS WITH SUCCESS

"Already the project has met with an encouraging degree of success," said Mr. MacKenzie, "I have visited 13 of the 17 Presbyteries of the Bay of Quinte and Toronto conferences and all have endorsed our campaign.

"Prospects for enrollment were never better," said Mr. MacKenzie in stating that the rate of enquiries has never been at a higher rate than this year.

"We have every reason to face the future with confidence," he said, in assuring the alumni that the staff and Board of Governors would go forward, not in a boastful fashion, but with confidence to meet the greater challenges that lie ahead.

Mr. MacKenzie read a telegram of greeting from S. B. Warriner, chairman of the Board of Governors, expressing his regret at being unable to attend the dinner in person.

BOOK DEDICATED

Sylvia Fitzsimmons, editor of the "Ailbl," the Albert College year book, officially dedicated the book to Dr. Bert Howard, former principal, and Miss J. B. Tuite, former Dean of Women, and presented them with special copies. Dr. Howard replied.

Following the dinner the alumni attended a dance in Ackerman Hall.

Those at the head table at Saturday night's dinner were: N. A. Beath, secretary-treasurer of the alumni; Mrs. J. Gillis, Dean of Women; J. H. MacKay, Dean of Studies; Mrs. H. D. Simpson; Miss J. B. Tuite, former Dean of Women; Dr. and Mrs. Bert Howard; John Hayman, president of the Alumni, and Mrs. Hayman; Miss Pat Brewer, vice-president of the Alumni; Mr. and Mrs. T. K. Franklin; Dr. C. and Mrs. McMullen, vice-principal, and son Thomas; Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Bishop, and Rev. A. E. and Mrs. MacKenzie.

Success of Canadian Legion Said Result of Comradeship

The outstanding success of the Canadian Legion as a war veterans' organization is mainly due to the fact that at first it grew in comradeship and then in membership, Mr. Henry Harvey, first vice-president of the Ontario Provincial Command, Ottawa, said here on Sunday.

Mr. Harvey was the guest speaker at the banquet of the annual convention of District "F" Ontario Provincial Command. Canadian Legion, which attracted nearly 300 members to the city.

Speaking at the Moose Hall, Church Street, at the noonday dinner, Comrade Harvey said another factor of the Legion's success is because there is wholehearted cooperation not only among members but branches as well. There is no ill feeling.

Quoting the aims and objects of the organization, Comrade Harvey said the "Legion stands for united comradeship for all who served so that their rights and dependents will not be forgotten. It gives the war veteran the opportunity to serve his fellow man and comrades because being good comrades means being good citizens. We serve in the hope of giving those less fortunate hope and by doing this we can be a good organization."

CAN CHANGE HISTORY

"Only in union of good thoughts can action arise", he said. "Man alone can do but little, but in conjunction with his fellow man can change the whole course of history, for is richer because we have the privilege of helping comrades less fortunate in health and adversity."

Membership in the Legion is the concern of all, the speaker declared. "The day comes that we can claim representation of the great majority of service men, we will be in a position to get our rights from governments."

"Because we believe in the Legion," he went on, "we should be able to double the present membership. Salesmen are made not born."

"You can be successful salesmen for the Legion because of its splendid background. You have the fine trumpet and drums band of the RCSCC "Quinte" under P.O. Ken Bradshaw.

Ladies and Gentlemen, the Queen!

In Tonga she ate roast pig with her fingers; in New Zealand she took part in a Maori war dance. She opened parliaments, attended 185 state functions; shook 50,000 hands — yet, through it all, she looked like "an orchid under cellophane."

Comrade Harvey urged all to know and study what the Legion means to the community and to the country. "Don't be just a member" he concluded. "Take an active part in all the activities and you will be worthy of the name and the organization."

Comrade Harvey was introduced by Comrade LeRoy Madden of Belleville with Comrade Bob Blair also of the Belleville branch voicing the convention appreciation.

LES DIGBY CHAIRMAN

Comrade Les Digby was chairman of the banquet and introduced Mr. Frank Follwell, M.P. Hastings South who brought "Greetings from Parliament Hill."

"I shall always keep working for you as long as you keep voting for me", Mr. Follwell said in light vein. Seriously, he said, he brought greetings from Ottawa and stressed the fact that if he can be of any assistance to the Legion, he would be very pleased to co-operate.

"Veterans", he said, have a wider field to serve Queen and country. The Legion has taken the lead in looking for the economic good of not only the veteran but the community as a whole. And, he added "there are no better people fitted to take the lead."

Comrade Jack Gardiner expressed the appreciation of the convention to the ladies of the auxiliary of Branch No. 99 under president Mrs. William Bean and chairman of the banquet, Mrs. Joyce Slater for the excellent repast.

Chairman Digby voiced convention appreciation of the efforts of

Weddings

ETHIER—LEPORE

On Saturday, May 15th, a very pretty wedding was solemnized in Tabernacle United Church, at 3:00 p.m., when Nina Marie Lepore, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Lepore, became the bride of John Albert Ethier of Trenton, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ethier. The Rev. R. A. Rowley, pastor of the church, officiated before a background of pink and white apple blossoms.

Mr. Alec Gordon, guest organist, rendered the wedding music and the soloist, Mr. Bob Lucy, sang "Ave Maria."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her wedding gown of white organza over taffeta, featuring a molded bodice embroidered with crystal and pearl beading around a sweetheart neckline; the sleeves were of three-quarter length. The full, crinoline skirt was of ankle-length. A crystal and pearl encrusted headdress held her fingertip veil, and she carried a white Bible crested with a mauve orchid.

Mrs. Jo Ann Campbell, of Belleville, was matron of honor, wearing a rosewood taffeta gown with matching headdress. She carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations.

Mr. George Ward, of Picton, Ontario, attended the bridegroom. Mr. Bruno Lepore, and Mr. Donald Ethier, were ushers.

The reception was held at Glenden Acre Inn, Kingston Road, where the bride's mother, wearing navy sheer with white accessories and corsage of white carnations, received. The bridegroom's mother, attired in old rose taffeta with matching accessories and corsage of white carnations, assisted.

For the wedding trip to the southern United States, the bride chose a grey worsted suit, with white and navy accessories, and corsage of white carnations. Mr. and Mrs. Ethier will reside in Trenton.

Guests were present from Trenton, Montreal, Kingston, Toronto, Shawinigan Falls, Kirkland Lake and London, Ontario.

CAMERON—TERRY

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the Protestant Chapel, R.C.A.F. Station, Trenton, on May 10th, when Barbara Joan, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Terry, of Frankford, became the bride of Wallace Alfred son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Cameron of Alberni, B.C. Flight Sergeant Hoare, padre of R.C.A.F. Station, officiated at the doublering ceremony. The chancel was decorated with lilac and white yellow and white snapdragons.

The chapel organist played the traditional wedding music and Handel's "Largo" during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a pale blue suit with navy accessories and a corsage of pink roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Lynda Lee Terry, wearing a grey suit with white accessories and corsage of red roses.

The groomsman was Mr. Allan Weeks of R.C.A.F. Station.

The couple will reside in Gimli, Manitoba.

About 30 friends and relatives were entertained at a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

Prior to her marriage, Joan was tendered a shower by friends and relatives of the church of Murray. She received numerous gifts including an electric tea kettle and iron from the community.

RENDELL—TWIDDY

Tall standards of pink and white carnations and tulips formed a lovely setting in Bridge Street United Church, Ivanhoe, on Wednesday, May 12th at high noon, when the Rev. J. Glover, assisted by the Rev. Allan Borland, of Bancroft, united in marriage Doris Vivian Twiddy, of Ivanhoe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Twiddy, to Edmund Gaynor Rendell, of Deseronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rose Rendell.

Mrs. Arnold Creaser, of Hillside, Ontario, sister of the bride, rendered the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. J. Glover, who sang, "I Pass This Way But Once."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in a ballerina-length bridal gown of white nylon net, lace trimmed with pink rosebuds. Her three-quarter length veil of tulle illusion fell gracefully from a seed pearl encrusted coronet, and she carried a bouquet of pink "Happy Days" roses and white gypsophelia.

Her only attendant was Miss Mary Rendell, sister of the bridegroom. She was gowned in yellow net over taffeta in ballerina length, with a matching headdress and carried a crescent-shaped spray of mauve chrysanthemums.

Mr. Rose Twiddy, of Ivanhoe, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Arnold Creaser, of Hillside, Ontario, and Mr. Walter Elliott, of Campbellford, were ushers.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's mother. The bride's mother received, wearing navy sheer with white accessories, and corsage of red roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was attired in navy sheer with white accessories and similar corsage.

For travelling to points in Eastern Ontario, the bride donned a grey two-piece dress and gold shortie coat, with navy accessories, and corsage of Talisman roses. Mr. and Mrs. Rendell will reside in Deseronto, Ontario.

Out-of-town guests were present from Huntsville, Fenelon Falls, Peterborough, Campbellford, Deseronto, Madoc and Bancroft.

During the business period one of the little folding tables, which had been generously donated to the beginners Sunday School room, was shown to the group. Details of the coming strawberry social were also discussed.

The group was entertained by two solos by Bob Lessels, accompanied by Thelma Wilson at the piano, "Bless This House" and "Come to the Fair".

Joanne Twining, in pink costume, did a peppy tap dance number; Jane Gray, in yellow dress and poke bonnet, sang "Cruising Down the River," then danced also. Games followed.

Refreshments were served.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

PERFUME ADDS TO GLAMOUR

Glamour is a lot like love. It is grand and glorious, but if you were put under oath you could not define it. Like charm, if you have it you need nothing else. If you don't have it, nothing much helps. But many women have decided that one thing that helps to create glamour is a luscious, compelling perfume. It is as romantic as moonlight. It brings pleasant memories. It boosts morale.

A perfume expresses a woman's taste and character. If she is fastidious she will select a scent a dainty as herself. She will use it discreetly, knowing that, as she is accustomed to it, it will seem less pungent to her than to those with whom she comes in contact.

She will not tip the bottle on a frock or coat, but will keep this precious fluid in an atomizer, spray her chest and shoulders after her the bath. The warmth of her flesh will cause the alcoholic content to evaporate, leaving the fragrance alone. Never will she spray her hair. Even the cleanest scalp may have a slight film of secretions on all that will change the character of the perfume.

Unless the perfume shopper gets excited at the first whiff, it is not for her. She may prefer a blend or bouquet or find delight in some old-time scents that are being revived —violet, sweet pea, jasmine, gardenia or rose—scents beloved by our great-grandmothers when they were young.

It is economy to have a toilet water of the same scent as the perfume. You can use it more lavishly and not feel extravagant. Sachets of the same aroma can also be found. They are good buys, have wonderful lasting qualities.

Cannifton C.G.I.T. Re-Affiliates With Missionary Society

Once again the C.G.I.T. of Cannifton met with the ladies of the W.M.S. to re-affiliate and to re-affirm their desire to serve their churches in the missionary program.

An inspiring address was given by Mrs. L. S. Throop, the minister's wife.

Added to the solemnity of the evening was the first graduation exercises to be held for two members, Barbara Williams and Myrna Milton, who will pass into senior society with girls were presented with a gift, after which the ladies were entertained with a "Campfire" sing-song.

Tea, hot chocolate and cookies were served and all left feeling that an evening of fellowship had been established between adult and adolescent.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

SHE THANKS FOR A COURTESY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When my boy-friend and I go to the theater or movies and, on entering the row in which our seats are, somebody rises to let us by one side or otherwise tries to make it easy for us to pass to our seats, I always make a special point of saying "Thank you" or "Thank you, very much."

"Thank you so much—that is very kind of you." My boy-friend insists that this is being what he calls "overly polite," that this is a usual courtesy, and so shouldn't be thanked for. Who is right about this?—Mrs. Boy-friend and Girl-friend

You are right. . . you are right. . . you are so right! And your boy-friend is most definitely wrong. You have such a right sense of courtesy that I hope your son, graciously and subtly, show him some of this lovely grace. People of charm, always, say a thank-you for any courtesy, small or large. To them no courtesy is ever taken for granted. I wish you'd promise me that you never let anyone persuade you to give up your charming habit of saying thanks. It's a tonic all around. . . to you, and to everyone with whom you come in contact. Incidentally, I wish I could agree with your boy-friend that is a "usual courtesy". . . my observation in the theater, movies, at lectures and concerts wouldn't regret to say, agree with him. Generally the point is that it's apt to be a courtesy to "unusual" that we're apt to be more inclined to say "Thank you so much—that is very kind of you." And this way of expressing thanks, your way, is a most thoughtful and pleasant way!)

HOW TO SIGN PLEDGE CARDS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When one signs a Pledge Card for church contributions, should one sign "Mary Smith Brown" or "Mrs. Albert Brown"? I'm inclined to think the former is correct but a friend is of the opinion that the latter is correct.—L.B.

The name would be signed as it is recorded in the church membership, since this would be of most convenience to the one in charge of these pledge cards. In the majority of cases, for pledge-card identification I think the woman should sign her formal name, Mrs. Albert Brown.

THE BRIDE'S HAT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I'm to be married at home, and I'm to wear a suit. There is to be a dinner here at home after the ceremony, with only the very few wedding-ceremony guests present.

DUBLIN (Reuters)—Mrs. Maureen O'Carroll, 41-year-old mother of eight, today prepared to take the Lord Mayor's Bell and her husband prepared to take on the job of bathing the youngest kids.

"I told him I wouldn't mind a bit if he voted against me," the brunette legislator said, "I told him I wouldn't blame him, because he knew that if I got elected he would have to bathe the children."

Mrs. O'Carroll was the first housewife to be elected to the Dail. She was a Labor party candidate and ran under the slogan, "A Housewife for Housewives."

During her vigorous campaign against a member of Eamon de Valera's Fianna Fail government party, Mrs. O'Carroll was careful not to neglect her family.

"I had to get the breakfast and do the household washing," she said Thursday. "And believe me there's plenty of work with small children around."

She said her husband, John, a Dublin cabinet-maker, has been "bathing the youngest and putting them to bed."

She has been getting up every morning at 6 a.m. to get her work and campaigning done during the last three weeks. She chatted with housewives in her constituency, and usually had "a meeting or two" to address in the evenings.

Should I remove my hat before the dinner? I don't think it is necessary, but several of these invited think I should.

—Elizabeth

My advice is that, since you are to wear a suit at your wedding, you should let very, very special care to choose a hat that would beautifully harmonize with your suit, would be particularly becoming, and therefore would be appropriate to wear during the dinner in other words, your hat would be an important, really quite necessary, part of your ensemble And today you have a wonderful chance to "achieve" a hat like this, a "little hat" or half-hat, fashioned of flowers or tiny feathers or fat leaves all shades of green or vari-colored. Get a gay, pretty hat, dear Bride-to-be, to wear to your wedding, to the dinner, and as you and your bridegroom go forth on your wedding trip!

Training For Home or Career

By Mary Moore

If it were possible to have a second chance to counsel one's only daughter on the sequence of her education, this faltering counsellor would firmly advise at least one year at McDonald Institute.

In a recent sight-seeing tour of the Institute's new wing the comment was made: "They would be hard put to compete with this equipment in New York."—and how true it was.

A group of Home Economists had been invited to see the new departments in the field of home economy, and after the tour my conclusion was that Canadian girls and boys are fortunate indeed to have such training opportunities right here in Canada.

At McDonald Institute (the Home Economics division of Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, Ontario) besides the course in food production, food processing and food preparation and hostess-training that one expects, a laboratory for nutritional research has been established under the leadership of Dr. M. L. Irwin. This is for degree students and will be for post graduates too. As most Canadian women know there is a diploma course in this subject from which almost any marriageable or career seeking girl could profit.

While the food subjects, of course, intrigued me most I found myself loitering in the weaving rooms by those looms — set up for pattern weaving, a striped warp, and harness techniques. Fascinating too were the metal, pottery and leather work departments.

Not even the last-minute developments in the fast-moving textile industry will escape their attention. Their textile department includes four laboratories, a conditioning room, ballance room, chemical preparation room, and weaving room.

A curiosity-provoking machine called a Fade-ometer tests fabrics for fastness and sunlight. Strength and washability of woven and knitted fabrics are tested in a Launder-ometer, with a Ballhurst attachment.

And mothers, your daughters can learn to unravel those piaguey mysteries of new detergent and synthetic fabrics, and be knowledgeable spenders of their future husbands' hard-earned money. McDonald Institute is delving into them all. They test the new automatic stoves, washers, driers, ironers, refrigerators, and know the models that fulfil the manufacturers' claims.

How I wish Marianne could spend a year studying under Mr. Crandall and Miss Bay and Miss Singer. For, if the interior decoration of McDonald Institute itself is the results of their designing and planning, any girl about to establish a new home would be lucky indeed to have the benefit of their training.

One of the interior decorating rooms was hung with samples of Swedish and American draperies that made me yearn for new drapes to the Manor living room, they were luscious with color, modern without being bizarre, colorful without being confusing.

After the tour, when the varsoul sightseeing parties met in the reception room for coffee, we had a chance to question Dr. Margaret McCready who is the beloved principal of The Institute.

Her charm was infectious. As I watched her pour coffee, for some reason the saying "A great institution is only the lengthened shadow of one man" came into my mind. There is little doubt in this mind that Dr. McCready's influence is at once constant, practical, progressive and vision-ary.

Mothers, if you are in the throes of deciding what course—be it diploma or degree—that you would like your daughters to pursue, McDonald Institute is bursting with the arts of household management and meria your exploration.

Origin of Women's Institute Told at Quinte W.I. Meeting

The Woman's Institute, which is the most popular movement for women the world over, Mrs. D. Robertson, told the Quinte W.I. meeting May 11.

The idea originated with Mrs. Adelaide Hunter Hoodless, of Hamilton who was born in 1854 and reared on her father's farm near the village of St. George, South Dumfries. She knew by experience how narrow was the sphere of activity for farm women and how self-centred they often become because of their isolation.

When she married she went to live in the city she began a vigorous and persistent agitation for the benefit of her old friends and neighbors and for country women everywhere.

FREEDOM'S VIEWS

In 1896 she received an invitation to present her advanced views on rural economy before a meeting of the Experimental Union in Guelph. She accepted, knowing full well that most of the men in her audience would think her a fanatic.

Chairman Lee, however, who presided at the meeting was kindly disposed to her. She made the most of her opportunity and spoke with sincerity and persuasive power that she made a profound impression.

Lee was pleased that he invited her to address a special meeting of the Farmer's Institute at Stoney Creek. The farmers' wives and daughters were to be special guests on this occasion. A full audience of men and more than a 100 curious, excited women and girls found their way to this meeting.

ADDRESSES WOMEN

Mrs. Hoodless addressed her remarks chiefly to the women. She knew so well the drabness and narrowness of their lives but there was reason, she said, that these conditions should continue. Farm women are just as intelligent as their city cousins, and they could be as well informed, as cultured and efficient. It is possible to rise above their limitations, she said and to lead a fuller life.

But they must have a wider contact with other women, a broader knowledge and interest in public and world affairs and a different attitude to the drudgery of farm work.

The Farmer's Institute was doing for the men what a similar organization could do for the farm women. If men needed social contact with other men to oil the machinery of farm life, was it not reasonable to suppose that the same lubricants would ease the burden of home life.

ORGANIZE WOMEN'S DEPARTMENT.

So far as she knew women had the same social instincts as men. She proposed that a women's department of the Farmer's Institute be organized without delay. The women were thrilled and responsive. Their hearts told them that Mrs. Hoodless had painted a true picture of their uneventful existence. She had drawn back the curtain which had separated them from their rightful heritage of a new and broader experience. That very year the women of South Wellington organized a Women's department of most of the local Farmer's Institutes with a slate of women officers. "For home and Country" was the motto chosen and its object was more knowledge of domestic economy, hygienic value of foods and clothing; more and better care and training of children and attempts to raise the general standard of the home members.

PERSONAL ATTENTION.

Mrs. Hoodless gave the movement her personal and constant attention. Her enthusiasm spread to other rural communities and she willingly assisted in organizing in neighboring counties giving the value of her wide experiences to new organizations.

Meanwhile she approached the Department of Agriculture and interested them in the project. They made it possible for her to study under the direction of government officials, women who were specialists in their own fields; such subjects as child welfare, schools and education, public health, home economy, and legislation affecting women.

Soon the country women were clamoring loudly for facilities which had been previously accorded to urban women and their families. They were determined to have such advantages as medical and dental inspection in the schools; baby clinics; supervised playgrounds; skating rinks; swimming pools; public libraries and teaching of music in schools.

SERVICES MATERIALIZED

Many of those services have materialized. Farm women are learning to be practical in every way of life. They are learning to make over hats, coats, and dresses, with good results. They are busy stifling barren school grounds; neglected cemeteries; wayside churchyards. They are exchanging tested recipes for goods, sharing time-saving devices for the kitchen.

The W.I. is the largest organization of women in Canada. It tolerates no discrimination of race, creed, or politics. It has created a healthy community spirit in many isolated districts, and brought many a woman from a cheerless, sequestered life to the joy of companionship with other women, a new interest in the affairs of the nation.

Mrs. Hoodless continued to work with government officials in the interests of rural women, keeping track of the courses given under the direction of the branch institute. She persuaded the Department of Education to add the study of household science to the program for the secondary and normal schools of the province.

PASSES SUDDENLY

In the prime of her life and in the midst of her untiring activity, Mrs. Hoodless was brought face with death. She was addressing a woman's club in Toronto in 1910 when she suffered a cerebral hemorrhage and died almost instantly. Her sudden and untimely death shocked the thousands of W. I. members throughout Ontario.

A committee was immediately formed to make a suggestion for a suitable memorial to her. It was decided that the memorial should take the form of an oil painting to hang in MacDonald Institute. This painting was unveiled in the presence of a large crowd of friends and co-workers. The women of Brant County felt Mrs. Hoodless belonged to them in a special way for she had been born and bred among them, and many of them had known her from earliest childhood. They felt that this intimacy warranted some special recognition of her work. Near the village of St. George, the women of Brant County erected a marble slab to commemorate her birthplace.

The movement which Mrs. Hoodless started in her native province spread rapidly to the other provinces of Canada. Then it crossed the border to the United States where it found a welcome and grew.

In 1915, Mrs. Alfred Watts, of Victoria, B.C., had the honor of carrying the idea to England and with great success. Queen Mary became the nominal head of the Sandringham branch and popularized the movement among the women of the higher classes.

DIET IMPROVED

The diet of the families were soon improved and the children were better cared for. The homes of rich and poor alike became happier and cheerier. Institutes were soon organized in France, Wales, Scotland, New Zealand, Australia, India, South Africa and Russia. "For Home and Country" was the motto of this world-wide movement which had begun humbly in the little Ontario village of Stoney Creek, not far from the mouth of the Grand River.

Mrs. Hoodless, in whose noble soul glowed a love for women and a desire to help them improve their standard of living, brought fame to the unpretentious village of Stoney Creek, where the first Institute was organized, and to St. George, which was the birthplace of the founder of this great organization which has benefited the women of all countries of the world.

Indians Around Ponchartrain, 200 Years Ago, Friendly Lot

By ART REYDON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A little more than 200 years ago a band of Huron Indians watched silently while white men built a palisade fort and christened it Ponchartrain.

It was not the first act of civilization in their particular corner of the wilderness. Explorers and missionaries were already tramping the trails of the land where a river linked two lakes, later to be known as St. Clair and Erie.

The Indians around the new fort were a friendly lot. They traded freely with the coureurs du bois and listened quietly to the missionaries. When a group of the Hurons moved to a new hunting ground across the broad river, Father Pierre Potier moved with them.

FOUNDERS OF WINDSOR

Father Potier has been identified as the first man to raise a roof-tree and dig a garden in Upper Canada, later Ontario. His final home and mission were on the same ground now occupied by Assumption College. Father Potier and his Hurons were the first residents of Windsor.

It was not until more than 100 years later, in 1834, that Windsor became an incorporated village. This year, Windsor, a thumping city of more than 137,000, is celebrating the centennial of its incorporation. Fort Ponchartrain just across the river now is known as Detroit.

Father Potier was not long alone with his Indians. By 1753, younger couples from Detroit had occupied a string of farms along the river and Lake St. Clair. A living from the land was not hard to come by. Soil was rich, hunting good and fish plentiful.

HISTORIC CENTRE

In 1796, Sandwich became the centre of the community around Assumption church, a Protestant church, jail, court house and registry office. Into the picture came the Baby family (pronounced babe), .

The Baby family were prominent in the district from the time of the revolution as government leaders. When American forces occupied Windsor during the war of 1812, headquarters was the house of Col. Francis Baby.

The historic Baby house is still a centre of conflict. Located on the Detroit river front, it is on the site of the proposed Windsor civic auditorium. Certain factions want the house left intact but others argue its ancient red bricks will not fit the modern facade of the auditorium.

The rumble of American cannon has changed to the mutter of irate city councillors.

During the 1830's, the community took the name Richmond for a few years but Sandwich was the county town and centre of government. The name Windsor was adopted in 1837 and the Municipal Act of 1848 allowed it to become a village by 1854.

RAILWAY SPURRED GROWTH

The Great Western railroad was a steaming fact by the summer of 1854 and Windsor soon began to eclipse Sandwich. Population was up 15-fold by 1866, Windsor became a town in 1858 and built a distillery the same year.

Despite a fire in 1871 which destroyed many downtown buildings, Windsor had 7,000 persons by 1880 compared to 1,100 in Sandwich and 600 in Walkerville. The Canadian Pacific Railway entered Windsor in 1890. It became a city in 1892.

Salt and pharmaceuticals became major industries during the 1890s and as the 20th century opened, population figures clicked over the 12,000 mark.

The Ford Motor Company began manufacturing from the Walkerville Wagon Works in 1904, and General Motors and Chrysler Corporation moved in later. The population reached 105,000 by 1922 and the communities of Sandwich, East Windsor, Walkerville, and Windsor amalgamated in 1935. All were joined in Windsor's centennial celebrations.

BIGGER CHIPMUNKS

Chipmunks of eastern Canada are .bigger and have broader stripes than the western variety, for the study of Judaism in the time of Christ and for the study of the Old Testament text." He said the material would keep scholars occupied for the next 50 years.

"They 'provide in many places an alternative wording to the traditional Hebrew text on which the King James version is based, but will not make any significant difference in matters of doctrine and belief."

The fragments now are being cleaned and sorted in Jerusalem. They were being placed between pieces of glass 12 inches by 18 inches. McGill's part of the collection filled 24 plates with smaller fragments still to be sorted.

The most interesting piece so far noted is a fairly large fragment of a Biblical book which was of a version quite unlike anything previously known," said Dr. Wilfred C. Smith, of McGill's institute of Islamic Studies.

$350,000 Will Be Contributed For Building

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government plans to contribute $350,000 towards the construction of a $2,000,000 building in Toronto for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

The government made provision for the contribution Friday in its supple m e n t a r y estimates. The grant is to be, matched by the Ontario government, with the CNIB making up the rest of the money needed.

McGill Obtains Old Manuscripts Found in Cave

MONTREAL (CP) — McGill University revealed Friday how shrewd haggling with Bedouin tribesmen gave it possession of a valuable collection of ancient Hebrew manuscripts.

Dr. F. Cyril James, McGill's principal and vice-chancellor, announced that, working through the Jordan government's department of antiquities, the university has obtained fragments of the Old Testament and other non-Biblical writings transcribed in the days of Christ by a little-known Hebrew cult.

The fragmegta were found in a remote cave at Khirbet Qumran, 10-miles from Jericho, near where in 1947 the famed Dead sea scrolls were discovered by a wandering Arab.

The new fragments were found in a cave where they had been deposited by the Essenes before they were dispersed by advancing Roman armies in 70 A.D.

NEW BOOK REVALED

One-quarter of the fragments were bought for $15,000 by the university before examination—a condition of the sale.

Dr. H. B. Y. Scott of McGill divinity school, described the collection as of "utmost importance

Murder-Victim's Widow Dies From Beating

SIMCOE, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Ida Victoria Beatty, 63, widow of murder-victim Bruce Beatty of Nearby Renton, died in hospital here Friday night.

She was the only known witness to the beating which took the life of her husband, a 68-year-old service station operator, last Feb. 2. Mrs. Beatty, also badly-beaten, was unable to talk to police after the attack.

Two Americans, Jerry Simmons, 47, of Syracuse and Joe Glen Lotharp, 23, of Detroit will be tried at Supreme Court sittings here starting Nov. 1 in the slaying of Mr. Beatie. They were committed for trial on a charge of murder at a preliminary hearing this week.

The body of Mrs. Beatty will be taken to Hamilton today where an autopsy will be performed by Dr. W. J. Deadman.

Mrs. Beatty was educated in Haldimand county and Hamilton Normal School, and taught at several schools in the Niagara peninsula and Vittoria, near Simcoe.

Little Benny's Note Book

I went to the market with ma, and she was looking among the delicatessen for baloney for Mrs. Columbo's lunch, when she comes to clean our house tomorrow, and I said, Look, ma, all rapped up in silver paper, Limberger cheese. That's the smelly kind, aint it, ma?

Yes it is, and they can have it with my compliments, ma said. But I say, ma, it says Imported from Germinny.

I dont doubt it, the Germans are just smart enough not to keep it over there, ma said, and I said, But if it aint any good, ma, why do they sell it?

To get rid of it, ma said, and I said But Jimmiey rocaleen, ma, it wont hert to get just one package, will it?

Now look here, I can never even get you to eat ordnary- store cheese because you say you dont like the smell, ma slad. You wont even eat cream cheese unless I give you jelly with it. So what's all this nonsence about wanting Limberger? she said, and I said, I dont want to eat it, ma.

Well for land sakes nobody eits in the house does either, so that concludes the subjecj ma said, and I said, No it dont, ma. Cousin Artie made up a swell game the last time I was at his house. He was the ex-caped convict and he dropped little peeces of paper for the bloodhound to follow the trale, and I was the bloodhound. Oh boy, if I had some of that Limberger cheese, I could make a real trale the next time Artie comes to our house. I probably wouldn't even have to take the silver paper off, ma, just rub the packidge over the carpit and I bet it would make a swell trale. So how about it, ma? I said.

Balcombe Goes to Gallows Still Protesting Innocence In Slaying of Sweetheart

CORNWALL (CP)—Peter Balcombe, 34-year-old father of two children, was hanged today for the murder of Marie Anne Carrier, the attractive reserve army sergeant he lured into a romance.

The former army lieutenant walked unfalteringly to the gallows in the courtyard of the old jail here. He was pronounced dead at 1:27 a. m., 15 minutes after the trap door slammed open.

"He didn't utter a word," said sheriff D. A. McNaughton. "He refused stimulants."

As Balcombe was about to climb the 13 steps to face the executioner, he stopped momentarily to shake hands with the jail governor, an archdeacon of the Anglican church and the deputy sheriff.

SEGUIN GALLOWS USED

He was executed little more than seven months after the stabbed, nude body of the 22-year-old Blenville, Que., girl was found in a ditch near the St. Lawrence river town of Iroquois, 30 miles northwest of here.

He died on the gallows built for convicted murderer Henri Seguin, who committed suicide an hour before his scheduled hanging last Jan. 18. He was buried in the unmarked grave where Seguin was to have been placed.

Actually, Balcombe died at 12:27 a. m. EST. Sheriff McNaughton said the hanging took place on Eastern Standard Time because the court's sentence was handed down when Cornwall was on standard time.

Balcombe spent his last day partly in solitude and in religious counsel with Archdeacon H. A. E. Clarke of Cornwall.

Dressed in regular prison clothes —blue denim trousers and shirt—and wearing a pair of slippers, Balcombe walked the 25 steps to the gallows with Mr. Clarke, jail governor J. S. Dickey, deputy sheriff G. D. Villeneuve and two guards. Jail officials said he protested his innocence to the end.

Big spotlights silhouetted Balcombe against the 20-foot-high jail wall as he mounted the gallows. A crowd of at least 500 gathered outside the jail. They started arriving at 10 p. m. Some set off firecrackers.

APPEAL FAILED

Balcombe was convicted in February and appealed unsuccessfully in the Ontario Court of Appeal last week. He showed little emotion when he learned his fate. He ate the regular jail meal Monday, with a few extras, and drank several cups of coffee in the evening.

He died as a civilian. The army said Monday that Balcombe was "compulsorily released" from the army by cabinet order.

Miss Carrier was stabbed five times with a stiletto-type weapon. When her body was discovered she was wearing only a ring which trial witnesses said Balcombe had given her in token of their "engagement."

Some of her clothing and Balcombe's fingerprints were found in a tourist cabin at Beachville, near Woodstock, 200 miles west of where the body was found. A witness said Balcombe rented the cabin the night before the girl's body was found.

PARENTS IN ENGLAND

Balcombe, who kept company with Miss Carrier while he was stationed at Valcartier army camp, was arrested at his father-in-law's home in Komoka, near London, Ont., three days after the slaying.

Balcombe had lived in Montreal and Brantford and was a medical student for 18 months at the University of Western Ontario. His foster parent left him behind in Canada when they returned to their native England five years ago. They now live in the London suburb of Putney.

The last execution at the jail here was in 1925, when Thomas Collinson was hanged for shooting his 18-year-old girl friend.

U.S. Navy Blimp Stays Aloft For 180 Hours

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A U.S. Navy blimp Monday broke the world endurance record for a crew and aircraft by remaining aloft over Miami without refueling for 180 hours.

The navy said the ZPG-2 airship of the NAN type was now cruising toward the Florida keys.

The lighter-than-air ship broke the old mark of 170.3 hours set in 1947 by an M-type airship, also out of Lakehurst.

Cmdr. Marion H. Eppes of Pinson, Ala., is in command of the aircraft which carries a navy crew of 14 and a civilian observer.

He told reporters by radio telephone as the blimp cruised over northwest Miami that all aboard had eaten and slept well. "But after a week we need baths," he said.

The 342-foot non-rigid airship will have covered more than 3,000 miles by the time it gets to Boca Chica, naval air station near Key West. It has been on patrol over the Atlantic seaboard, the Caribbean and the Gulf of Mexico.

Denies Assertion

TORONTO (CP) — Col. Hedley Basher, Ontario's deputy minister of reforms, Monday denied an assertion by a delegate at a CCF convention here that a prisoner at Guelph reformatory was "whipped so severely he had to be castrated.

Col. Basher said the delegate, L. H. (Red) Rosen, was "a stranger to the truth."

Mr. Rosen described to delegates at the annual convention of the Ontario CCF party what he said were conditions in the reformatory as he had seen them as a prisoner last year.

The convention approved a resolution calling for abolition of corporal punishment.

Farmer Leads Police to Bodies Of Wife, Daughter

LISTER, B.C. (CP)—Frederick Allan Huscroft, 49-year-old father of three, was charged with murder here Monday after he led RCMP to the bodies of his wife and five-year-old daughter.

RCMP at Creston, six miles from the Huscroft dairy farm, said he arrived at their office at 5:15 a.m. PDT and "told us his wife and daughter were dead."

Police accompanied him back to the farm and found Agnes Louise Huscroft, 40, and their daughter, Joanne, dead in bed. Their bodies were battered about the head and they had been strangled with silk stockings. A hammer was believed used in the bludgeoning.

Commons Sits As Usual On Queen's Birthday

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons observed the Queen's birthday Monday by singing "God Save the Queen" at the opening.

It then went about its work as usual after Prime Minister St. Laurent said it would be manifesting devotion to the Queen by considering "Her Majesty's business."

During the Commons question period, Harold E. Winch (CCF—Vancouver South) asked the prime minister why the Commons must sit on the Queen's birthday when the Senate and ig employees have a holiday and banks and normal business establishments are closed.

Woman Judge Says Courts Need Reforms

TORONTO (CP) — Judge Helen Kinnear of Cayuga, Ont., county court judge for Haldimand, says a royal commission might well be set up to study ways of improving the operation of Ontario's county courts.

Her honor, only woman judge in Ontario, says her experience since her appointment in 1943 has shown her the need for many reforms in the system.

"The basic question is whether our present system is adapted to the simple, equitable and speedy determination of litigants' problems at a cost that is not prohibitive," she writes in an article in the current issue of the Canadian Bar Review.

She says the cost of trial by jury is so heavy that the time has come to consider whether civil trial by jury should be abolished.

She also proposes the appointment by the province of a public defender to act for accused persons unable to pay for their own defence.

Electrics Edge Pt.Anne 8-7 In Opener

(By GARRY ALEXANDER)

Herb Hann's Northern Electric softballers squeezed out a close 8-7 win over the Point Anne Cementmen last night in the opening game of the Belleville and District league played at the Pointers home field.

Deacon Whitney's line double in the top of the ninth that was belted twice, allowing Whitney to score, proved to be the winning blow although the Ox-Pointers came up with two singles and one run before Pat Gilmour went down swinging for the final out.

With only nine players present, none of which was a pitcher, the Pointers sent big John Green to the mound and the Electrics went one ahead in the initial inning. Lead off batter Soules was safe on an error, went to second on a sacrifice, reached third on Whitney's single and scampered home on a fielders choice play. They made it 2-0 in the second with a pair of walks, stolen base and a passed ball.

John Green put the homesters back in the game with a line hit that bounced by the left fielder for a homer with one on in their half of the second and Pat Macade arrived in time to start the third inning.

THINGS START TO HAPPEN.

He sent the "cackler's" boys down with three singles and two runs for the next four frames but was behind 4-2 going into the bottom of the sixth when things started to happen. Jack Elliott led off with a ground double and Doug Hull drew a base on balls batting for Bradshaw. The next batter, Pat Gilmour slapped one just off the ground that slipped through Ned Culkin's legs in left field with the baserunners both scoring. Gilmour came all the way to put the Pointers ahead when Soules also had trouble in handling the hit while covering Culkin. Carson settled down to retire the side without further damage.

Young reached base on an error to open the seventh but was erased when Nick Sero pulled a neat double play on the attempted bunt, John Baichelor was also safe on another miscue and Locke, De Rushie and Cousins smashed out successive doubles to put the visitors in the lead, 7-3.

Roger Mallory's double, a fielder's choice and Elliott's home run cut the Northern's margin to 7-6 in the seventh and Al Adams was called on to hold Carson's one run lead during what looked like a Point Anne rally in the eighth. Bill Strahan notched the loser's last run on Hall's single in the ninth after a base hit himself.

WHITNEY LED WINNERS

Deacon Whitney led the winners at the plate with a double and a brace of singles in five trips while Carson helped his own cause with two singles. Locke, DeRushie and Cousins each had a double with Young claiming a one-bagger.

Pat Gilmour banged out a double and single for the losers, Bill Strahan two singles and J. Green a home run. Mallory and Gordon 2 2

Swedish Star Beats Rosewall

PARIS (AP)—Australia's hopes for a second straight men's singles title in the French International tennis championships almost disappeared Monday as defending champion Ken Rosewall lost to Sven Davidson of Sweden 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.

Davidson's stunning upset came only one day after Gardnar Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla., had defeated Lewis Hoad. The defeat of the two 19-year-old stars who kept the Davis Cup in Australia this year left Mervyn Rose as the only Aussie representative in the quarter-finals along with five Americans, Davidson and Enrique Morea of Argentina.

Hoad and Rosewall kept their hopes alive for some share in the titles as they defeated Antonio Maggi and Orlando Sirola of Italy 4-2, 7-5, 4-6, 6-3 in a ragged third-round doubles match.

McQueen's Tug, Atomic, Wins Tugboat Race

WINDSOR (CP)—The Atomic, a 600-horsepower tug owned by Capt. J. Earl McQueen of nearby Amherstburg, churned down the Detroit river Saturday ahead of eight other craft to win the fifth annual international tugboat race and return the England Trophy to Canada.

The Atomic, which won the title in 1950 and 1951, was defeated the following two years by tugs owned by John Roen, Sturgeon Bay, Wis. None of the Roen craft was entered this year.

The 1,000-horsepower Maryland, owned by the Great Lakes Towing Company, Detroit, was second and a sister ship, the Wisconsin, only steam tug in the race, was third.

Elliott each hit doubles. Hull and Pat Macade had a single each.

Lum Carson hurled for seven innings plus and was touched for six runs off seven hits. He fanned one, while walking three. His successor, Adams worked the last two innings and gave up two hits and a run.

John Green faced eleven men in the two-inning stay, two runs were scored off on hit, while he issued a trio of free passes. Macade was the loser as the Northern crew scored six runs off eight hits. Pat struck out three, walked none and hit two batsmen.

The teams:

Northern Electric — Soules, Young, Whitney, Batchelor, DeRushie, Locke, Cousins, Culkin, Woods, Carsop, Adams.

Point Anne—Elliott, Bradshaw, Hull, Gilmour, Sero, R. Strahan, J. Green, W. Strahan, Brannigan, Mallory, Wardhaugh, Macade.

Malcolm Hanover Paces 2.12 Mile At Race Meet

PICTON — One thousand attended the holiday race meet at Picton, the event being favored by perfect weather. Interest centred on Malcolm Hanover 2.04, which completed a heat in free-for-all purely as an exhibition, and as a tune-up before leaving for Vernon Downs. The McKinnon horse covered the mile in 2.12. M. Bradley's "Guilty" made a race of it with Malcolm Hanover in the first heat but was nosed out in the second heat by C. Goldgy's "Mr. Tripp". Three false starts, without the use of a gate, caused three entries to be scratched in the final heat of the free-for-all, in other heats there was no difficulty in getting the horses away well by starter H. J. Patterson, of Kemptville.

In a running race for farmers' horses, a light horse ridden by Lawrence Way, of Consecon, was the second heat the winner was barred with Bill Farnsher taking first place and Way, on a heavy farm horse, second. Difficulty was experienced in preventing the horses from dashing to the barns as they passed that point and though several left the track they returned to complete the race.

Both heats in the 2.28 were taken by H. Corcoran's "Serenity," the only trotter in the race, and driven by Corcoran, who, is over 80. She won the first heat in the last 15 yards and in the second secured a break to again win in the stretch.

Bert McKane drove "Tim Blacklock" to a win in both heats of the 2.24 class. Driving finishes brought the crowd to their feet.

Imperial's shopping bill is more than $1 million a week ...that's what we spend in Canada just for everyday needs. It doesn't include crude oil, which alone runs to $4½ million a week! Nor does it include wages, salaries or taxes. What do we buy? Everything... from soup (to feed geological parties) ...to nuts (to fit a few million bolts) derricks, dynamite and diesels and even catalytic cracking units ("cat crackers" they're called) to make those better gasolines. We buy things from 6,000 Canadian firms from coast to coast. Shopping on this scale creates a lot of work for a lot of people... right across Canada.

BCI Team Wins COSSA Track Field Meet

Bellevile Collegiate Institute's track and field team won the COSSA annual meet held in Peterborough on Saturday, amassing 32 points to lead the district schools.

Peterborough Collegiate Institute and Peterborough St. Peters were tied for second place with 26 points with Oshawa Collegiate fourth with 25 points.

Glen Maracle of BCI caught the favor of the crowd with his tremendous run —in the intermediate class 440 while Barry Wray's efforts in winning the 100 and 220 yard dashes also featured the meet.

Sam Gault of BCI fashioned a great performance in winning the two mile open race while Lynn Cole added another BCI victory in the senior pole vault.

One of the outstanding performances of the meet was the fine effort of G. Burleigh, of Trenton High School who won the intermediate high jump with a mark of 5 ft.

Coach Fred Bradley's team deserve all the praise they received in amassing victors over the crack squads of other secondary schools of the district.

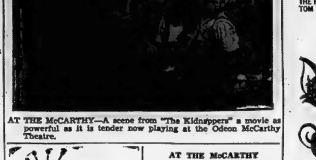
Electrics Win Over Kingston

Northern Electrics defeated the Kingston Koncordias 3-0 in a scheduled Eastern Ontario Football League game over the holiday.

After a slow start, Northerns scored their first goal when Gemmell counted from a long pass from Lauter. Bunyan culminated a three-way attack by scoring the second goal just before half time.

Gemmell scored his second goal a few minutes after the second half started from a goalmouth scramble.



The win puts the Northerns in second place in the league standing. They meet Belawa at Bain Park, Trenton, next Saturday.

GLASGOW WINS

VANCOUVER (CP) — The touring Glasgow Rangers, led by centre-forward Billy Simpson who scored three goals, defeated British Columbia Mainland all-stars 9-0 here Monday night.

It was Glasgow's second victory in the Canadian section of a North American tour. On Saturday at Toronto the Scottish League team defeated an Ontario All-star team 4-2.

Attendance at Toronto was 10,445. A pounding rain kept the crowd here down to 6,000.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You soon get wise to hotshot guys whose bids may seem unsound. They know their act depends on the fact that easy like to fool around. So, learn to know the wily foe who seems to lose his pace, His method may be a ruse to catch you off the base.

The boys got the spread you see here:

♥A 9 5 3
♦A Q 10 7 5 3
♣A, 6

WEST EAST
♠A Q 8 6 4 ♠10 2
♥10 ♥K 8 7 2
♦K 6 2 ♦J 8 9
♣J 8 7 2 ♣K Q 9

SOUTH
♠K J 5 3
♥Q J 6 4
♣10 5 4 3

South was dealer and they bid it like this:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Double	1 ♦	1 N-T
2 ♣	Double	3 ♦	Double
Pass	Pass	4 ♦	Double
Pass	Pass	Redbl	Pass
Pass	Pass

Nobody took seriously the defensive bid of one no-trump that east stuck in at once. Clever players often use this as a signal for asking partner to bid his best suit.

Usually it is done with a hand that could not quite open the bidding. But a skilful player may vary his line of attack. Just when you think he is weak he may do it with strength.

Anyway, north did not let east dilscourage him. He had all the values promised by his three bids and redoubles. He had enough tricks, rebiddable diamonds, heart support.

He knew that south could not possibly have less than you see. Or south would not have the two free responses. So, north would have been chicken not to redouble the double he got.

Of course, unseen cards may be in the wrong hands now. But this is a chance a skillful pair must take and usually does.

The west opening lead was a diamond. If trumps are pulled there may be a loser in every suit. But simple and practical fingering will take the needed ten tricks. Go ahead and do it.

Rush Reveled At Only Girl in Her Class

(Current)

There's quite a point in being a girl, proclaims Barbara Rush, currently co-starred with Rock Hudson in Universal – International's "Seminole" adventure, "Taza, Son of Cochise," closing today at the McCarthy.

Being a girl opened the door to dramatics for the rapidly-rising brunette newcomer—particularly, being the only girl in the class of 17 students at the Pasadena Playhouse Theatre Arts College, which she attended for a year.

Such a situation had never happened at the school before. But Barbara didn't spend every "plum" role. In one production alone, she played five female parts.

Her affinity for grease-paint began with the influence of her mother, an ardent sponsor of and participant in little theatre groups. At the age of ten Barbara made her first appearance at the Lobero Theatre in Santa Barbara, in a children's fantasy called "Golden Ball," playing the eldest dryad.

The new star came to U-I for the leading feminine role in "It Came From Outer Space."

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Donna Reed is living proof of the adage that as an actress you've got to be had to be good.

Miss Reed walked off with an Oscar for playing a shady lady in "From Here to Eternity." This was after playing nice girls for more Hollywood years (13) than she would like to recall.

Now she is back at her home lot, MGM, where she worked eight years in Andy Hardy, Thin Man, Dr. Gillespie and other films before reaching stardom. She came back to the lot to play the fiancee to appear with Liz Taylor, Van Johnson and Walter Pidgeon in "The Last Time I Saw Paris."

"The role I play is not really a good girl," she remarked, "but she turns out to be all right in the end. No, it's nothing like 'From Here to Eternity'. That kind of a part comes along only once in an actor's lifetime—if he's lucky."

I asked how the Oscar has changed her professional life. She replied that the scripts are being submitted to her and the roles are better. But she hasn't noticed any change in fiims that would cast her as a bad woman.

COLUMBIA BREAK STRANGE

Oddly enough, she left her Columbia contract shortly before she won the Oscar. It seems strange that the studio would let her go at the peak of her career. Donna was just as puzzled as anyone.

"The break came when I turned down a fourth B script that had been sent to me," she related. "I had done the first three, because I don't like to raise a fuss. I could not understand why I was getting that treatment.

"When the fourth B was submitted, I decided it was time to take a stand. Either they were going to capitalize on whatever I had accomplished in 'Eternity' or they were just going to use me. Since it appeared they were doing the latter, I asked to be let go. They agreed to do so."

AT THE CAPITOL—"Dangerous When Wet" is now showing at the Capitol Theatre on our Giant Panoramic Screen. On the same program in Technicolor "The Golden Blade" starring Rock Hudson and Piper Laurie.

Magic Wand Waves Over Braves; Take National Lead With 7 Straight

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

NOSTALGIC

It looked like a revival of the good old Central Ontario Baseball League days up in Peterborough yesterday afternoon, with those ancient diamond rivals from Belleville and the Little Lock City once more clashing baseball horns in organized combat.

Lots of baseball at its best. The sun shone from a cloudless sky. The stands were filled with shirt-sleeved fans. There was a lot of good-natured heckling from the Peterborough crowd, especially when the Bates' coach Vern Geyer came up with his characteristic, colorful diddoes.

While you could scarcely mistake the game for a Yankee-Dodger world series battle, nevertheless, there was plenty to cheer about. Both teams showed strong potentialities and came up with some neat baseball despite the fact it was not a pitcher's day.

There were sixteen walks dished out by three hurlers, Mulholland, Wade and Kotowsky handing them out in clusters at times. 'Six wild pitches blazed into the backstop, three coming from one Sammy, all of which proved costly. The Bates erred four times as against twice for the Fetes and the Fetes infield of Edgar and Ferguson pulled off the only double killing of the game. The hits were almost even with the Fetes getting eight, one a triple, and our side seven.

The Bates, neat and natty in their brand new blue-trimmed white uniforms, and the Fetes as immaculate in black-trimmed whites, came up with a good performance taking into consideration it was the first game of the season. Manager Carson's crew has a lot of potential strength and by the time they have a few more games under their belts will give the best in the league a run for their money.

The infield of Gerry Goyer at first, Fitz at second, Keith MacDonald, who starred defensively at short, and Claude Carr at third, looked very good despite the fact they erred twice.

The Fetes looked equally as good and by the time the glitches of both squads settle down into form, there should be some exciting baseball between these old enemies of the diamond.

PROVING POPULAR

Dick Burrowes since Joe performing before the largest crowd of the season at the Fair Grounds yesterday, came up with an exciting exhibition that augurs well for the future of the sport. The daredevil drivers had the weather, the crowd and they held up their end with a thrilling exhibition. Drivers from all parts of the district were here, but it took a Kingston daredevil, Lindsay, to cop the feature event of the meet. There was a thrill a minute, another proof that if you give the public what it likes, it won't let the box-office down. Stock car racing is increasing in popularity here and with the fine grandstand accommodation now available, the sport should attract big crowds in the future.

GOOD HOLIDAY!

Apparently the weather bloke does not peruse this pillar for it was prognosticated on Saturday that that fickle gent would stay in character and send down the rain in keeping with more or-less traditional "24th's". However, apart from the tragedies that occurred it was as near perfect a week-end as one would wish for.

Rounding up along the rialtoes, one of the surprising pieces of sports news to come out of the week-end holus bolus was the terrific blow handed to English soccer prestige. An All-England star club was humiliated by a Hungary eleven to the tune of 7-1. That's about as bad as that Moscow defeat at our Lyndhurst last winter.

One of baseball's great passed away when Chief Bender, full-blooded Chippewa Indian pitcher of the Philadelphia Athletics, died. The "Chief" was the first pitcher to win six World Series games and got more than twice the money coaching the Athletics in later years than he did when at his pitching peak.

BIG LITTLE MAN

Rugged little Karl Kruger, one of the quartet of midgets that delighted 2,000 fans here last Friday night, has a background of this world thru lil' rails, who bears a strong resemblance to the late Phil Lawson, manager of Whipper Billy Watson, believe it or not, is the son of an officer of the Prussian Guards.

Herr Kruger never recovered from the trick fate played on him when it gave him a son the size of Karl. In fact he never recovered from the shock that his son did not come up to the superior physical characteristics of the Prussians. His bitterness and resentment eventually drove young Karl from his home and he made his way to America.

He had perfected a powerful physique for one of his size and it stood in good stead when he ran across an old friend in New York City. He had been a physical instructor to the sons of Kaiser Wilhelm. Karl told his friend he would like to get into pro wrestling but feared his lack of catch-as-catch-can training would prove a handicap. However the war was smoothed and Karl entered the grab-and-groan ranks. Today he is rated as tops in the ranks of "little people" of wrestling.

Kerwick Wins Over Williams

TORONTO (CP) — Johnny Kerwick of St. Catharines earned a five-round decision over Denny Williams of Oshawa in the 135-pound main bout of the weekly amateur boxing show here Saturday night.

Kerwick, a recent arrival from Ireland, thus maintained an undefeated record in Toronto rings. He softened Williams with body blows in the early rounds and had the scrappy Oshawa slugger wobbling near the end of the bout.

Results:

118 pounds—Fred Cannon, Toronto, decisioned Grant O'Reilly, Oshawa (5).

Pirates Credited With Assist In 5-2 Defeat of Brooklyn; Yanks Gain on Loop Leaders

By Ben Philgear
Associated Press Sports Writer

Seven magic days have given Milwaukee Braves undisputed possession of first place in the National League.

Only a week ago they were sixth, then suddenly everything started coming their way. They won seven straight. And when they took the night off Monday night, the lowly Pittsburgh Pirates rose up and toppled Brooklyn 5-2, knocking the Dodgers down to second position.

For the Braves it was a week managers like to dream about. An ailing pitcher found himself. A rookie pitched a complete game in his first start. One game was won with five runs in the ninth and another with four in the ninth and still another in extra innings.

Chet Nichols, the young lefthander fresh from the army who was supposed to be up the pike with the trades of Johnny Antonelli and Max Surkont, pulled his record almost to .500 with his two good triumphs. He's now 4-3 after losing his first three.

BIG JUMP OK

Ray Crone, making the big jump from Class A ball to the class-A Sally League, chalked up a 10-inning relief victory.

In winning a doubleheader Saturday the Braves scored the final tie against Cincinnati in the finishing of the first game and five in the ninth in the nightcap.

The Pirates' decision over Brooklyn was one of the surprise playoff Sunday night. In the others, Chicago Cubs defeated St. Louis 6-2, New York Giants edged Philadelphia Phillies 5-4 and New York Yankees whipped Philadelphia Athletics 11-0.

Pittsburgh had lost six in a row and eight out of nine to Brooklyn this season. But Monday night a two-run homer by Frank Thomas and a bases-empty blast by Dick Cole gave Max Surkont the margin he needed to win his fourth game. Carl Erskine, Brooklyn's biggest winner last season, suffered his fourth loss against four victories.

Jim Davis, a rookie lefthander from Seattle, held the Cardinals to seven scattered singles in his first Major League outing. Lineup alignment for the Cubs, Stan Musial between Hillers and Ray Jablonski, the league's leading hitter, managed only one hit in four times at bat.

RASCHI HURT

Vic Raschi started for the Cardinals but gave up after one inning when he was hit on the right leg by a line drive. He suffered a ruptured blood vessel, but apparently no lasting damage. Not a expected back in action in a few days.

Willie Mays drove in four of the Giants' five runs at Philadelphia. He hit two home runs, one with a man on base, and a single that drove in a run. Hoyt Wilhelm, who took over from Sal Maglie, picked up his second victory.

The Athletics fell into last place as they fanned on three hits to rookie Bob-Grim of the Yankees. They are tied in percentage with Boston Red Sox, but trail the Sox by a full game in the "games behind" column.

Six in A Row Gives Maple Leafs League Lead

By The Canadian Press

Toronto's slam-bang Maple Leafs rode the top of the International League standings to a triumphal three-in-a-row and Victoria Day holiday which saw them take six victories in a row.

The Leafs strengthened their league lead Monday with a 9-3 triumph against Buffalo Bisons, 5-2 and 10-2. Toronto now leads Rochester by a full game.

Clint Hartung, who has slammed 10 home runs in 36 games with Havana Sugar Kings, hit a pair Monday night in first game of a doubleheader at Montreal, but the Sugar Kings still lost, 4-3. Cubs could have used a couple more in the nightcap, which Montreal also won, 6-5, on Hamp Cole man's five-hit pitching.

The hapless Syracuse Chiefs lost their fifth straight, 8-2 to Rochester.

...Richmond whipped Ottawa twice 2-1 and 8-1. Ed Mierkowicz' grandslam home run was the big blow in the second game. He also drove in one of the two first-game tallies.

Ricki's ace tennis player Fred Perry made his professional debut in England 17 years ago today by defeating Jack Crawford, his old Davis Cup rival from California, 6-4, 6-2, 6-4. Three years later Fred Perry, in 1936, had won his third U.S. men's singles title.

Three-Way Tie For Top Spot In Intercounty

By The Canadian Press

The senior intercounty schedule is only 12 games old and already three games separate the league-leaders from the cellar-dwellers. Six of the nine week-end games were on Victoria Day.

London Majors, Galt Terriers and Brantford Red Sox, who have each won three games and lost one so far, are in a three-way tie for first. Each won two of their three week-end games.

St. Thomas Elgins, who lost their opener Friday, also took two out of three during the week-end. The Elgins are in fourth place with a 2-2 record. Guelph-Waterloo Royals won their first game of the season Monday and are in fifth place — two games behind first.

TRAIL THE PACK

Kitchener Panthers, last year's Intercounty champions, trail the pack with no victories in four starts.

London was the only successful visiting team Saturday. The Majors defeated the Royals 12-7 in Guelph. St. Thomas swamped Kitchener 11-2 and Galt defeated Brantford 10-7 in other Saturday games.

The Red Sox bounced back from their Saturday defeat to sweep a doubleheader from the Terriers Monday. The second game, a 9-inning nightcap, 10-0 Monday doubleheaders were home - and - home series. Guelph downed the Terriers 12-8 in Galt and then dropped their home game 8-4. The game at Guelph was stopped by rain after six innings.

The Elgins trounced London 9-4 in St. Thomas but were pasted 10-1 by the Majors in the return contest at London.

'Hasty Road' Wins Rich Preakness Stakes

BALTIMORE (AP)—Regardless of what he does in the Belmont Stakes three weeks hence, Hasty Road will go down in turf history as the horse of thrilling finishes.

When Allie Reuben's blazed-faced three-year-old son of Roman won the richest of all Preakness Stakes last Saturday, it was only the sixth race this year in which he left spectators limp at the finish.

If Hasty Road does go in the Belmont, New York fans can look for a thriller. For Correlation, who beat the Toledo-owned colt in the Preakness step by a head, lost to him by a slim neck in the Preakness, also is headed for the third race of the triple crown.

Hasty Road went to the front soon after the start of the Preakness set a burning pace through the early stages and then held on "catch me" in the final drive for the finish line.

The long - striding Correlation came from far back, drew within a neck a sixteenth of a mile from home, then failed to gain another inch.

Correlation was involved in some bumping, just as he was in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness Prep. The judges listened to the complaint of Arnold Kirkland, who rode Hasteyamps into third place, but finally let the order of finish stand.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

Remember the pleasant parlor game called ping-pong, in which you gently and politely tapped a celluloid ball across a net six inches high, and your opponent as gently and politely bounced it back?

You would hardly recognize that game today. Now it's table tennis, a whirlwind, hard-smashing game of split-second reflexes. The little celluloid ball now is called that, bounced on the table by a smash shot, it spreads out like an egg, or, clouted full power on side, it sets out like a bullet.

And you probably never thought ping-pong, a term that is frowned upon in table tennis circles today, would become one of the greatest of all international games. But it has. The 21st World Table Tennis Tournament was held in London and its entry was surprisingly international.

For the first time, the world meet welcomed into the field competitors from Argentina, Australia, Lebanon, Nepan, Saarland and Spain. Also competing were officially nominated representatives of Hong Kong, Jamaica, Singapore, Hungary, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Rumania, England and the United States.

And in its broad-mindedness, table tennis can teach a lesson to other sports whose administrators waste so much time on the pointless business of dividing the amateurs from the professionals. All are classified as players and those who wish to make money out of it have merely to reveal the fact and the matter is settled. It is not a matter of record and information, but it makes no difference at all in the eligibility of the players for competition in any event.

The freedom from meaningless dividing lines is one of the things about table tennis that impressed this observer. Another is its internationalism. Take some other sports for comparison. Canada's own favorite game, ice hockey, has had a great upsurge of popularity in Europe. But it isn't nearly as international, for instance, as soccer. And still, soccer is only a minor game in the United States. Basketball, though spreading rapidly, is still American-dominated. And baseball's so-called "world series" isn't even international.

Judging by the list of countries involved in the recent table tennis titles, the game that started so modestly as ping-pong has as much right as any to be termed the greatest of international sports.

Belleville Batas Lose 10-6 To Peterborough In Viaduct League Opener

Alas, Twas Not A Mound Day Wild Pitches, Walks Feature Tilt Played in Ideal Weather

By GEORGE H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

PETERBOROUGH — Six hundred fans sat in ideal baseball weather here Monday afternoon and saw two ancient diamond rivals from Belleville and Peterborough open the newly formed Viaduct Ontario Senior Baseball League.

The Petes, natty in black-trimmed white uniforms, won a 10-6 verdict in a game that had pretty well everything in the baseball calendar. It was not senior baseball at its best but the consensus was that both squads have strong potentialities and by mid-season should rank with the best in the loop.

Slingin' Sam Mulholland who started on the mound for the Batas from Belleville showed an inclination to heave wild pitches at critical times. Five of them accounted for as many runs. Sam was relieved in the eighth after yielding three walks in a row, by Bobby Runton, who likewise uncorked a wild heave during a brief sojourn on the mound.

USE THREE PITCHERS

The Petes paraded a trio of pitchers two of whom were yanked when they developed streaks of wildness. Tony Kotowski started and gave up two hits for no runs in three and one third innings. He loaded the bases on walks but Mulholland failed to come through with the clutch clout. Brian Wade, who was given credit for the win, relieved him and was touched for five hits for six runs until the last of the eighth when he loaded the sacks with walks. Frizzelle was rushed into the breach and put out the Belleville fire after four runs had crossed the plate.

The Petes scored one in the first off Claude Carr's error and Hunter-ley's single and added another in the fourth on singles by Kearns and Foley. A wild heave paved the way for the marker.

The Petes added three in the sixth off two hits, a walk and two sacrifices: shot home another in the seventh as Edgar scored on another wild pitch after singling and going to third on Pettitt's error, and rammed home four in the eighth on a single, four walks, a wild pitch and MacDonald's error.

The Batas never held scoreless until the seventh on Sammy Mulholland's single, a walk, a sacrifice and an error by the Petes' shortstop. They had the sacks loaded with two out in the fourth but Mulholland dribbled a grounder to the infield to end the threat.

They capitalized on Wade's wildness in the eighth when they scored three runs off relief hurler "Mouse" Bush and Gerry Goyer, three walks, a hit by pitcher and a sacrifice. The Batas left the runners stranded with the Petes leaving six.

ONLY EXTRA BASE HIT

Eddie Redmond, Petes left fielder got the only extra base clout of the game when he drove in the deep left field that scored Edgar and Huntley ahead of him. He also connected for a single. Edgar was good for a pair of singles with Kearns, Huntley, Lowrey and Foley accounting for the remainders of the Petes eight clouts.

Gerry Goyer paced the Batas with a pair of singles. Keith MacDonald who played a fine game at shortstop, Tony Pettitt, Davey Jones, Sammy Mulholland and "Mouse" Bush got the rest.

Coach Vern Goyer got into the fray in the ninth when the Batas threatened to pull the game out of the fire, and drew a walk.

Opening ceremonies featured the game with Messrs. Max Swanson, Hugh Campbell and Alderman Col. Dewart taking part. A parade led by a sea cadet corps band added to the color of the opening day.

The Batas play hosts to the Toronto Hookings here next Saturday afternoon when the 1954 baseball season will be ushered in with fitting ceremonies. The Hookings play a night game in Peterborough on the same date.

'Kentario' Sets New Mark At Woodbine

TORONTO (CP)—A son of the great Whirlaway Monday smashed a 10-year-old track record for six furlongs at the Woodbine race course here and tied a 25-year-old Canadian record for the distance.

The yearling performance was turned in by Kentario, a big, chestnut stallion who was near death from shipping fever while a three-year-old. This, along with the fact he's an offspring of Whirlaway, probably accounts for his erratic racing career.

Kentario, now a six-year-old, has shown he can run like his daddy, the world's best, but he's 1-8 set no telling what he'll do. He won only four of his 31 starts in 1953.

Monday he won the $5,000 Highland Stakes in 1:10 1-5, breaking the track record of 1:10 3-5 for six furlongs set by Sabulas in 1944. He tied the Canadian record established in 1929 by Miss Rascalet at Devonshire Park, Windsor, Ont. Sir Gallahad III set the 1-5 set by Bolero...at...Golden Gate Fields, Albany, Calif., in 1950.

Kentario, owned by Miss Veronica Hulland of Toronto, was ridden by Alfie Nash and trained by John Calhoun.—A longshot in the field at 16-1, Kentario paid $36.60. Close Support was second and Ringo third.

ANOTHER RECORD SET

Kentario was not the only horse to set a track record at Woodbine Monday before a Victoria Day crowd of 19,757. Miss Stifle, owned by Eric Craddock's North Downs Farms, clipped two-fifths of a second off the record for two furlongs when he was named the winner of a five-horse photo finish in 21 3-5 seconds. The old mark of 22 seconds was set by Albion in 1950 and has been equalled twice.

The winter-book favorites for the Queen's Plate lived up to their advance notices in winning their divisions in two of the four Plate trials at Woodbine Saturday.

A crowd of 16,000 saw the winter-book choices — Mrs. Gordon McMackin's King Maple and E. P. Taylor's Queen's Own — come through as expected in their divisions, with Collestee from the Bur-Pit Stable of Hamilton and Harry Trotter from Toronto in support, winning impressively also. Queen's Own and Collestee both covered the six-furlong distance in 1:11.3.

King Maple, "Horse of the Year" in 1952, scored a two-length victory in the Plate Trial for 3-year-old pacers, who paid $10.80, was forced to a driving finish to win by a nose over Beau Bunty, owned by Mrs. B. S. Chris of Kitchener.

Flyweight Champ Retains Title

TOKYO (AP) — Yoshio Shiral, world flyweight boxing champion, Monday night hammered out a narrow, 15-round decision over little Leo Espinosa of The Philippines in a title bout.

A crowd of about 35,000 paid some $50,000 to see the slim Shiral gain a split verdict over the rugged Filipino challenger in a snarling, action-packed battle.

It was Shiral's fourth successful defense of the title he won in May, 1952, from Dado Marino of Honolulu. The champion weighed 110½ for the battle and the challenger 111.

'Chief' Bender, Famous Phil Pitcher Succumbs to Cancer, Heart Attack

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Charles Albert (Chief) Bender, one of baseball's great all-time pitchers and a member of the Hall of Fame, died Saturday at the age of 71.

Bender, who had been ill for some time, died in Graduate Hospital. He had been under treatment for cancer and had recently suffered a heart attack.

Bender in 12 years as one of the best pitchers in baseball never made more than $2,400 a season as an active player. The full-blooded Chippewa Indian had been serving as coach for the Philadelphia Athletics at more than double the pay he got as a pitcher.

Connie Mack regarded Bender as his greatest one-game pitcher. "If everything depended on one game" Mack once said, "I just used Albert."

The Chief was the first pitcher to win six world series games. He took two each in the 1911 and 1913 classics, and one each in 1905 and 1910. He headed the pitching staff of one of Connie Mack's greatest teams, the 1910 through 1914 American League champions. Mack had the famed $100,000 infield of Frank (Home run) Baker, Jack Barry, Eddie Collins and Stuffy McInnes.

Bender's greatest year was 1910 when he won 23 and lost 5.

The man who won 208 games and pitched 41 shutouts, served for many years both as minor league manager and major league coach.

The chief reached the goal of all professional baseball players in September, 1953, when the Old Timers' Committee elected him to the Hall of Fame.

Wake Forest Stars Sign With Canadians

WAKE FOREST, N. C. (AP)—Two former Wake Forest College football stars have signed professional contracts with Canadian teams for next season.

They are Bob Ondilla, 2, of Hillside, N.J., and Ken Bridges, 24, of Shelby. Ondilla, an end, and Bridges, a tackle, both were named to all-conference teams while at Wake Forest.

Ondilla signed with Hamilton Tiger Cats and Bridges with Ottawa Rough Riders.

Weslock Wins Opening Match In British Open

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (CP)—Nick Weslock of Windsor, Ont., Canada's representative in the Canadian Open on Five Farley bowed 5 and 3 to Scotland's Jack Newton.

Defending champion Joe Carr of Ireland led the advance of favorites, downing John McNeilly of Lynn, Mass., 4 and 3.

Windsor Schools Take Four Titles

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Four Windsor high schools combined to take all four team championships in the 32nd annual WOSSA track and field championships here Saturday.

The schools, Kennedy, Walkerville, Patterson and Assumption, took the four championship-ships of the individual titles and were credited with eight of the 10 record-breaking performances at the meet.

Kennedy Clippers came home first in both the junior and intermediate division with 21 and 30 points respectively. Patterson scored 19 points to take the juvenile crown and Walkerville won senior honors with 40.

Longdon Rides Canadian Horse In Epsom Derby

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—A contingent of horse-happy Canadians arrived by air Monday from New York. Their objective: To root home Canadian-owned Blue Sail in the 175th renewal of the Derby at Epsom Downs June 2.

With them came jockey Johnny Longden who will ride Blue Sail. Longdon was greeted by his wife Hazel, formerly of Winnipeg, who told reporters invitations have already been issued for a "victory party" the night after the derby.

But Longden, who has ridden more than 4,400 winners—including one in England in 1948—said "we'll have to wait and see."

Travelling with Longden were Max Bell of Calgary, who with Frank McMahon bought Blue Sail for the Derby bid some six months ago; Charley Conacher, Toronto hotel owner and former National Hockey League star, Mervyn (Red) Dutton, former NHL president, George Gardiner, Toronto stockbroker who this winter paid 5,100 guineas for the English horse St. Vincent, and Hal Stanley, managing editor of the Vancouver Sun.

The Canadian party, along with Longden, will go to Ireland today to take a look at Blue Sail, now in the care of Irish trainer Michael Dawson.

The odds on Blue Sail shortened from 100 to 8 to 110 to 7 in Monday's early-over. The Irish-bred son of Tehran, out of the Blue Peter Mare Set Sail, is ranked sixth in the current betting.

The favorite remains Rawston Manor, owned by 79-year-old Lincolnshire farmer F. W. Dennis and quoted Monday at 6 to 1.

Hungary Hands British Soccer Worst Setback in History

BUDAPEST (Reuters) — One of the world's hottest athletic combinations exploded behind the Iron Curtain here Sunday to hand England its worst international soccer defeat in history.

Eleven elusive Hungarians, whose soccer knowledge stemmed from the teaching of British coaches, beat the Britons at their own game and rubbed it in to the tune of 7-1.

Before a howling crowd of 92,000 supporters, Communist Hungary's Olympic champions toured the ball through England's defence with bullet-like accuracy, running up a 3-0 lead in the first half.

BRITONS DEMORALIZED

In the second half, the roof fell in on the fighting but demoralized Britons as Hungary socketed the ball into England's goal three times within four minutes.

All Communist Hungary's top leaders were on hand to watch their machine-like team add to its Olympic laurels and establish itself as undisputed favorite for the world soccer championship contest in Switzerland this summer.

British sports writers covering the match gave the English side a lambasting. Some wrote off the defeat as the passing of England's football greatness.

The London News Chronicle reproduced on its front page a small urn on which was inscribed a requiem to English soccer.

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR TUESDAY, MAY 25, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Though you possess the ability and adaptability for real success, you often "just miss" through lack of concentration. Check this today; you can reap fine results.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Your quick retorts coupled with your keenness of mind can produce excellent results this stimulating day. After work hours give your mind a rest; time to family, home.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — A Gemini period made-to-order. Don't delay, sidestep or play around with unessentials. Press forward vigorously. Mobilize your intellectual strength, use your innate ability—and achieve!

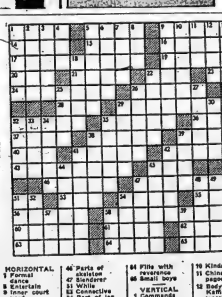
June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — You are smart and realize that you can't always expect to win or get your way. Today could be either, or otherwise. Don't butt your head against the wall; with some things, wait.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Stress double-barrelled effort during this more-than-auspicious day. It's excellent for those who are alert and willing. Don't scatter your forces or talents on non-essentials.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—There is a tendency toward indifference today, but it may be avoided by reasoning and intelligent study. Make no hasty decisions or snap judgments.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—There is no reason to hurry or take chances unless you really feel it necessary. Stand advocate careful looking around and strong resistance to questionable schemes, promoters of impractical ideas.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Handle all financial and business matters with care and finesse. You may become involved in a transaction where losses could occur, so be alert.



November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Forethought could well mean the difference between success and just ordinary results today. Affairs pertaining to property, trading, personal income depend upon your attitude, shrewdness, tact.

December 22 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Activities should be governed by good commonsense and intelligent management now. And heed sound advice! With such a program, it's the sort of day you can really put over successfully.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—This period should be a "breezy" one, day. But you'll have to steer clear of some obstacles, and not fall into thinking that things will take care of themselves. Pep up; keep on the job.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Avoid foolish talk, bickering and dissension and you should attain fairly productive results. Smile, be agreeable and you'll bluff opposition.

YOU BORN TODAY have an active mind and many fine gifts which, properly used, could bring much happiness. You have a sense of humor, are imaginative, and are usually quick of speech and actions. The latter trait could get you into difficult situations if you are not discreet. You are likely to act on impulse, change ideas, opinions without warning. Check this; it could be troublesome. There are many fields of endeavor you could explore, but choose wisely and be suited to your education. And stay with it! Practice your religion, tolerance. Birthdate: Ralph Waldo Emerson, author, poet, essayist.

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR WEDNESDAY, MAY 26, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — An unusual day, with unique and difficult matters highly favored. The only admonition concerns finances and behavior. Be most careful about business expansion, expenditures generally.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Venus favors domesticity and the artistic professions. A responsive day for all intelligent, earnest efforts aided and are suggested in finances but gains in most other lines a likelihood.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — The promotion of brilliant ideas and plans may not be easy but the day is genuinely benefic for smart business ventures, advancement in useful occupations for benefits through steady effort.

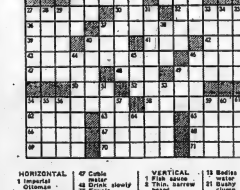
June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Practical lines of endeavor are stimulated and civic interests sponsored, so you should start early and keep a steady pace in order to accomplish. Be cautious in themes involving money.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — This can be an active, favorable period for you energetic, ambitious folks. But don't go overboard in activity nor invest unwisely. There is a tendency toward over-confidence. Protect home affairs.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—A good day to keep to sensible rules and to go forward confidently where familiar matters and domestic interests are concerned. You may also succeed in difficult tasks, new ventures, unusual projects.

September 24 to October 22 (Libra) — Excellent indications. Have no doubts or fears. You can manipulate this day to meet emergencies, if any, and to top previous achievements in your field, and add to your popularity.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Industrial trades, artistic professions, religious interests and management of children's organizations and hospitals especially favored. With proper self-restraint you can have a big day.



November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—You may feel some restraint but look beyond yourself and your immediate interests and you will find new benefits to be had for the effort. Laborious work, business needing ingenuity honored.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Your Saturn in fine position. This can be a red letter day for you. Have faith, be of good cheer, and tackle duties with confidence. Some new, many familiar projects favored.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Strive for top attainment today and you should do well. Do not be careless with money. Investments, however. All honest, useful activities favored.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Not entirely favorable for activities connected with sea travel, shipping, etc. or handling beverages chemicals, oil; more encouraging rays for other matters.

YOU BORN TODAY are talented, versatile, and energetic, but may be too changeable at times for your own good. Recognize and correct a tendency to seek flattery or be too fond of praise. True friends and those who help us won't flatter but may give needed criticism. Cultivate your fine talents and use them daily. Do not allow yourself to be easily discouraged. Smile, try and try again. Always ask God's help and guidance. You can handle a high position or do less prominent work efficiently, creditably. Birthdate: Lady Mary W. W. Montagu, noted English writer.

Canadians Mark Birthdays Of Two Queens

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadians marked Victoria Day, the former queen's birthday and the nation's official observance of Queen Elizabeth's birthday, in traditional fashion with flowers, flags and 21-gun army salutes in many cities.

The House of Commons at Ottawa sat as usual. Prime Minister St. Laurent said he would be in mark of the country's devotion to the Queen and "our deep and youthful sovereign." Members opened the session with the singing of "God Save the Queen."

The Queen's actual birthday April 21. May 24 was designated as her official birthday by the federal government to enable Canadians to take advantage of warmer weather and an already established national holiday.

Warm, sunny weather was general in Quebec, Ontario and Alberta, but overcast skies or rain hampered ceremonies in some of the prairie provinces.

The Maritimes reported rain, but the weather in Ontario and Quebec, with temperatures in the 70s and low 80s. Holiday-seekers packed their cars with lunch hampers, fishing tackle and golf clubs, and jammed highways leading to theI. favorite vacation spots.

FARM EXPERTS

The Dominion experimental farms system was inaugurated in 1886 with a central farm at Ottawa.

Bullfrog Breaks Official World's Jumping Record

ANGELS CAMP, Calif. (AP)—A three-year-old bullfrog owned by a Calaveras county farmer jumped in his spare time broke the official world's frog jumping record Sunday.

Under the gaze of an estimated 5,000 spectators, the frog Lucky Lager leaped a total of 18 feet, 10 inches in three jumps to capture the $2,500 first prize for the owner, Angels Camp rancher Roy Wiemer. High Tension Then, owned by Ben Graham of Owen Sound, Ont., jumped the farthest of three Canadian entries with a leap of eight feet, six inches.

Wiemer's record jump broke the record of 16 feet two inches, set in 1944 by the frog Maggie, owned by Merlin Fisher of Stockton, Calif.

General Electric Makes Offer To Employees

NEW YORK (CP) — General Electric Company Monday offered its employees a general wage increase of four to five cents an hour, plus holiday and vacation improvements.

The offer was made to negotiators of the International Union of Electrical Workers (CIO) and its rival, the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America (Ind.).

The company said the same offer applies to other unions and to employees not represented by unions.

Reaction to the company offer was not immediately available.

Noted Dairy Farmer, Albert H. Fair, Dies

KINGSTON (CP)—Albert H. Fair agriculturalist, dairy farmer and cattle breeder for many years, died Sunday.

He made his fortune in Singapore where he founded the insurance companies—the Great Eastern Life Insurance Company Limited, of Singapore and London, England, and the Eastern United Assurance Co. He was a fire and marine insurance company, of Singapore.

He retired from active participation in these in 1924, and returned to Glenburnie, Ont., and the farm on which he was born.

He developed a model dairy farm at Glenburnie which was, in the early 1920s, considered the best on the North American continent.

2,800 Canadians Killed Last Year in Traffic Accidents

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

More than 2,800 Canadians were killed last year in traffic accidents. This year motor-vehicle registrations are expected to reach a record figure of 3,500,000. Coast to coast the provinces have started safety campaigns to keep deaths down despite heavier traffic.

Devices ranging from tickets for jay-walking pedestrians to colored pants for careless drivers are being used in campaigns which have caught the attention of everyone from the traffic patrolman to the member of Parliament. Here are some provinces are doing to promote highway safety:

VARIETY OF MEASURES

1. Nova Scotia is emphasizing safe driving among high school students.

2. Quebec plans a fortnight's safety campaign in June with a blaze of newspaper, radio and TV publicity.

3. Ontario penalizes the stubborn driver who refuses to keep right-of-way, and is testing radar to trap speeders.

4. Manitoba has turned the high-on passenger way signposting to safety and now urges motorists to keep "Manitoba Alive."

5. Saskatchewan has formed a committee for Kamloops, suggested a federal-provincial highway-safety meeting. Justice Minister Wismer expressed doubt of the effectiveness of such a meeting. He said the best way to cut accidents is to cancel drivers' licences.

SAFER IN Ontario

Safety authorities in Ontario, where last year's record traffic death toll of 1,087 was highest of any province, say that driving actually is getting safer in proportion to total driving mileage. Registered motorists roll up 1,000,000,000 miles a month.

Statisticians counted 8.8 deaths per 100,000,000 miles driven in Ontario last year. This compares with 25.2 deaths for the same mileage in 1942, a wartime year when traffic was comparatively light.

Ontario's 1954 safety program includes fines, jail sentences and cancellation of licence for hit-and-run drivers. Drivers refusing to yield the right-of-way at intersections now may be summonsed and the 30-mile limit in built-up areas has been extended to school and church areas.

Quebec, next to Ontario with its record 1953 death toll of 901, last year introduced a compulsory test for operators' licences, long part of the law in other provinces. Magistrates now are handing out stiffer fines and longer licence suspensions and, in some cases, prison sentences for careless driving. About 12,000 are on the province' blacklist of convicted drivers.

STIFFER PENALTY

Alberta, only province with province-wide automatic licence suspensions in cases of impaired or drunken driving, plans to stiffen the law with a minimum seven-day jail term for driving while the licence is suspended. It is also giving magistrates authority in cancel speeders' licences.

Alberta's death toll from last year's record 27, Alberta is sending out "slow Drivers" signs. Unmarked cars driven by plain-clothes officers will cruise at the speed limit in pairs, about five miles behind the other. A radio message to the first car will trap a speeder passing the second car.

Prince Edward Island, which had only 2 of 102 was only three short of 1948's record, has turned the study of highway safety over to a safety committee of the legislature with orders to report at the next session. The province, where penalties already are stiff, has 4,000 gram.

Over 50 Canadians Lose Lives In Variety of Accidents Over Victoria Day Week-End

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

More than 50 persons lost their lives across Canada in highway accidents, drownings, fires and by a variety of other means during the Victoria Day week-end.

A compilation by The Canadian Press showed early today that in the period from 6 p.m. local time until midnight Monday the fatality toll had reached 54.

This was the same number who died in the same week-end last year. The 1953 figure was certain to be surpassed with the expected result of late reports to come in.

It was the first, long spring week-end and the crowded highways caused a heavy toll in traffic deaths, especially in Ontario and Quebec where the weather generally was at its best warm throughout the three-day week-end.

Traffic fatalities accounted for 22 of the deaths, with 10 in Ontario and eight in Quebec. Drownings claimed 13 lives and fires eight.

22 IN ONTARIO

Fatalities from all causes in Ontario totalled 22, four more than the number reported from Quebec. There were five deaths in New Brunswick and British Columbia, three in Nova Scotia and one in Newfoundland. No fatalities were reported from Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Prince Edward Island.

The fatality toll included four child victims, two in British Columbia and one in both Ontario and Quebec.

Mrs. Frederick Allan Huscroft, 40, and her five-year-old daughter Joanne were bludgeoned and strangled to death on their dairy farm at Lister, B.C. Mrs. Huscroft's 45-year-old husband was charged with murder.

Maria Soudut, 26, was found dead in a Toronto rooming house room on a week-end. Police said that Mike Bajerowski, 26-year-old Polish immigrant, was arrested near his parents' home in Bradford, Ont., 32 miles north of Toronto, and charged with the girl's murder.

MOTHER HELD

At Rimouski, Que., seven-year-old Guy Trepanier was beaten to death with a baseball bat. Police said the boy's mother, Mrs. Louis Trepanier, 30, is being held as "an important witness" in the case. A coroner's inquest will be held today.

The most unusual fatality was the death of 14-year-old Ward Fatnes of Vancouver. He died in hospital in Kelowna, B.C., from head injuries suffered when he was hit by a golf ball while playing golf with his J. C. Minden and his son. The boy was struck when Minden played the ball out of the bunker.

In another unusual accident Guy Labbe, about 40, died in Sudbury Saturday night when crushed by three 3,000-pound rolls of paper he was adjusting a block-and-tackle to a paper roll at the Hinde and Dauch Paper Company plant in Montreal when a chain broke and sent three rolls hurtling down.

Four persons died in a house fire near Carrying Place, Ont. They were Earl Elliott, 30; his wife Pearl, 47; their son Cleon, 27; and Mrs. Elliott's father, Taft, 87.

Near Amos in northwestern Quebec, a car plunged into a river, drowning three. The family doctor, Dr. Joseph Dion, 63, of Amos, collapsed of a heart attack when called to the scene, and died later.

Lions Hold Annual 'Father, Son Night'

BANCROFT — The annual "Father and Son Night" held by Bancroft Lions was attended by 31 members accompanied by 33 sons. The youngsters joined heartily in the club sing-song and, after dinner, were entertained by a series of films depicting conservation and preservation of Canadian natural resources and wild life.

The films were presented by Alan Bronson, of the department of Lands and Forests education branch, who was introduced by the Rev. Owen E. Johnston.

Mike Burns reported on the recent rally at Coburg, where Whitney L. Macnee of the Bancroft club was acclaimed deputy district governor for 1954, when his opponent, Herb. Goddard, of Bowmanville, withdrew his nomination.

Swimming pool committee chairman, Jack Folds, hoped that it would again be possible to obtain the services of Scott Peaston, of Peterborough, as instructor for the season.

A special attractions committee, composed of past presidents, was appointed to arrange items of unusual entertainment for the annual regatta, to be held at Baptiste Lake, in July.

ALUMNAE SUPPER

Mrs. O. W. Anderson, accompanied by Miss Sigrid Laine, superintendent of the Bancroft and District Red Cross hospital, attended the Alumnae buffet supper party held in honor of the 1954 graduating class, at the Ritchie Memorial Residence, Belleville General Hospital, on Wednesday evening.

The class wore corsages of dark red roses and, during the evening, each graduating nurse was presented with an Alumnae pin. Upwards of 100 Belleville graduates were present at the party.

Expect City of 40,000 By 1960 Near Don Mills

By WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—The Ken Marcus family moved into 17 Fordham Place last December. The next day Ken hooked up the television aerial and settled down to a type of suburban living new to Canada.

The Marcuses are among original settlers of Don Mills, an integrated community of homes and industry rising out of farm lands in North York township, only seven miles northeast of downtown Toronto. By 1960, a city of 35,000 to 40,000 will be in existence.

The Marcus family—Ken and Betty and their three children, Susan, 9, Timmy, 8, and Jenny, 4—are still pioneering. Their $13,700 bungalow sits in a sea of mud ("I have to hose the kids off every night before I let them in," says Betty). The nearest telephone is three blocks away. The winding streets and crescents contain Betty. The baby-sitting problem couldn't be worse.

RIGHT ON SCHEDULE

But the Marcus' are willing to put up with these irritations for a while. The builders—the Don Mills Developments Limited—are working on schedule.

"And if economic conditions continue favorably we should finish before 1960," says Kari C. Fraser, Don Mills president and mastermind of the $200,000,000 project.

Don Mills was formed two years ago by Mr. Fraser, engineering and economics expert, and E. P. Taylor, millionaire industrialist and chairman of the board. The company acquired 3,000 acres of land.

The location of Don Mills was the prime consideration of the community's existence. Mr. Fraser said experience has shown whole communities are best erected on the fringe of a metropolitan area where the skilled labor pool is readily available for community industry.

Don Mills is roughly divided into four sections, bisected north and south by Don Mills road and east and west by Lawrence Ave. Seventeen builders began construction in the northwestern quadrant last spring and by October the first family moved in. More than 300 homes are occupied now and families are moving in at the rate of 10 a week.

PLAN CHURCHES, SCHOOLS

The first quadrant, containing 500 building lots, will be completed this year. An elementary school will be opened in September. Negotiations are now under way with religious denominations for the erection of churches in each quadrant. The whole project will contain four public schools and one high school.

The first steel work is up on the 44-acre town centre which will eventually contain 60 to 70 stores all connected by a covered mall, parking space for 4,000 cars, banks a library and theatre.

Eight industries, including the $4,000,000 International Business Machines plant, are now in operation. Five more firms have purchased sites and options have been taken out by 10 companies.

The company is planning with the Don valley conservation authority for the erection of a dam on the Don river which will create a mile-long lake for the recreational use of the community. Construction of the planned Eglinton avenue extension will put the area within a few minutes commuting distance of the new Toronto subway.

The community is planned to have a balance assessment of 40 per cent industrial and 60 per cent residential.

FAMOUS ESTATE

Operational headquarters are located at Donalda Farms', the former luxury estate of the late David A. Dunlap, Toronto financier. It was taken into the project and will eventually be turned into a community centre and its lush acreage subdivided into lots for luxury-type homes.

"I think we could go even further," Mr. Fraser says. "We have tried for four or five years to design a home to meet the $2,000-a-year income bracket, but it's impossible under the present building codes."

Metropolitan Toronto's code requires a type of construction that can't be done cheaply, says the president. No frame homes can be erected.

To meet the needs of the lower-income bracket, the company included 336 suites in 2½-storey apartment buildings, the rents ranging from $65 for a bachelor apartment to $115 for two-bedroom suites.

The three-bedroom homes, purchased from the builder and financed under the National Housing Act, range from $11,500 to $15,000. Future owners have 53 different plans to choose from.

The company is providing sewer and water facilities, paved streets and sidewalks, sod and trees.

Announce New Way To Shrink Painful Piles

Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and relieve pain—without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where such observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) — the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

Now this new healing substance is offered in ointment form for hemorrhoids under the name Preparation H.® The price is only $1.19 a tube including an applicator. The name to ask for is Preparation H—at all drug stores. And remember—if not entirely satisfied—your money will be refunded promptly.

Non-Operating Rail Unions Will Call Strike Vote

Fringe Benefits, Not Wages, Main Issues in Dispute

MONTREAL (CP)—Plans for a strike vote among 133,000 non-operating employees of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National railways was announced today by Frank H. Hall, chairman of a union negotiating committee now involved in a contract dispute with the railways.

Mr. Hall said ballots will be distributed in mid-June and will be marked for return not later than mid-August 2.

Allowing time for compilation of the vote, this could mean that the result of the strike ballot may not be known until mid-August.

GREGG NOTIFIED

Mr. Hall said Labor Minister Gregg was notified by letter today of the decision to take the strike vote.

The decision to take the strike vote came after unsuccessful attempts since late last year to agree on a new contract with the railways.

The employees involved do not actually operate the trains. They include workers in railway shops, freight-houses, stations, offices, express services, signal men, commercial telegraphers and sleeping car porters.

SAFE CONDITIONS SLIPPING

In his letter today to Labor Minister Gregg, Mr. Hall reviewed the points at issue in the dispute and the findings of the conciliation board.

The employees' committee, said Mr. Hall, is of the opinion that working conditions on the railways are suffering constant degradation in comparison with other industries.

"The employees affected must decide whether this is a state of affairs to be longer tolerated."

Last week Mr. Hall and his committee met representative members from all parts of the country, met here for several days and then disbanded without any hint of their intentions.

RETURN TO LOCALS

It was understood they returned to their locals to advise them on the strike vote decision before a public announcement.

Points at issue between the unions and the railways include accumulative sick leave, eight-day statutory holidays a year with pay, three weeks' paid vacation after 20 years' service and double pay rates for Sunday work.

Wages are not an issue, but Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways have estimated the union demands would cost $60,000,000 a year.

Early negotiations between CNR, CPR and the unions ended in stalemate and the dispute was submitted to a three-man federal conciliation board headed by Mr. Justice St. Laurent.

REPORTS UNSATISFACTORY

The board delivered individual reports rather than majority or minority reports as is customary. As a whole, the reports were declared unsatisfactory by railways and unions alike.

Besides the national railways, two Ontario lines, the provincially-owned Ontario Northland Railway and the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo Railway Company are involved.

The non-operating employees brought Canada's rail transport practically to a halt for nine days, starting Aug. 22, 1950—a walkout that was ended by a government measure directing the workers to get back on the job.

PLANE STRIKES CABLE

TOKYO (Reuters)—The pilot was killed and a passenger seriously injured when a United States mail plane flew into a 150,000-volt electric cable north of Gifu, in central Japan, today.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Under clear Ontario skies temperatures fell as low as 35 degrees the night in southern Ontario and near 25 in northern sections of the province. A slow-moving disturbance in the mid-western states has spread cloud as far east as Lake Michigan this morning and this weather will reach southern Ontario on Thursday.

Judge Convinced Man Shot Wife While Asleep

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—A man who shot and killed his wife was freed Tuesday, cleared by a judge who said: "I am convinced this man was walking in his sleep."

James Patterson Twomey, 46, tried without a jury before Superior Judge John A. Hewicker, shot his wife, Margaret, 41, April 20 as she lay sleeping in her twin bed.

Judge Hewicker said evidence presented by psychiatrists convinced him Twomey was having a nightmare when he fired the gun.

Appeal Court Gives Youth A New Trial

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Appeal Court Tuesday quashed the conviction against a 19-year-old youth and in the appeals of four other teen-agers the court granted a new trial to a boy of 18 and reduced the sentence of three other youths.

The one-year reformatory sentence received by James Ross Stewart, 18, on a charge of assault with intent to rob was quashed when the court ruled that Magistrate T. S. Elmore had erred in his approach to the case. The court described the youth's trial as "unsatisfactory."

A new trial was granted Larry Gibson, 18, of Kingston, who pleaded guilty last month to breaking into a tourist camp and was sentenced to six months in reformatory. Crown counsel W. B. Common conceded there should be a new trial.

The court ordered the immediate termination of the sentences of two Sault Ste. Marie youth. They had served three months of their original sentences, which in the case of Norman Lamothe, 18, was six months definite and nine months indeterminate and that of Mario Dettore, also 18, six months definite and six months indeterminate.

They had pleaded guilty to theft of $320 worth of caulking lead from a Canadian Pacific car at Sault Ste. Marie.

Arthur Maloney, their counsel said neither youth had a criminal record and their action was foolish. Mr. Maloney said they had committed the theft to raise money to repay a debt owed by Dettore's father in the hope he wouldn't learn they had been involved in a criminal activity.

The court reduced the sentence against Ross of Kingston, 19, who had been convicted of assault. His original term was cut to three months and a $200 fine was wiped out.

KINSEY BOOK BANNED

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP) — An abridged translation of Dr. Alfred Kinsey's "Sexual Behavior of the Human Female" has been banned throughout Formosa (Nationalist China) today because it might "corrupt under-privileged intellences, particularly among students".

1,200 Inglis Workers at Toronto Are Involved in Sitdown Strike

TORONTO (CP) — A sitdown strike involving nearly 1,200 hourly-paid workers at the weekend plane of John Inglis Co. Ltd. continued today.

The workers, members of the United Steelworkers of America union (CIO-CCL), went on strike Tuesday in wage dispute.

The plant held out recently when workers in two other divisions of the company signed a renewed union agreement calling for no increase in wages but improvement in fringe benefits.

Union officials at the plant said they had been ready to sign the agreement after negotiations had altered some of the fringe benefits but the company added some new wage classifications.

Union officials said today the strike will last until the agreement is signed. A company spokesman said no talks are planned.

ATTEMPT TO WRITE DUES CHECKOFF INTO CODE LOST

Liberals and PCs Split on Vote

OTTAWA (CP)—A renewed attempt to write a form of union dues checkoff into the federal labor code has been defeated by the Commons.

Liberal and Progressive Conservative party lines were split Tuesday as the House voted 107 to 87 against a bill sponsored by Stanley Knowles (CCF — Winnipeg North Centre) to provide for the voluntary revocable checkoff in federal jurisdiction.

That type of checkoff, described by Mr. Knowles as the minimum measure of union security, would require employers under federal jurisdiction to deduct union dues from employees' pay when the employees subscribed it. An individual worker could exempt himself from the checkoff.

It would apply to railways, communications and other interprovincial undertakings under federal labor code jurisdiction.

Eleven Liberals and six Progressive Conservatives voted with the CCF and Social Credit parties and two Independents. The motion was opposed by 87 Liberals and 20 Progressive Conservatives.

ATTEMPTS DEFEATED

Repeated CCF attempts since 1948 to obtain passage of similar legislation have failed. In the last recorded vote in 1951, 67 members supported a similar bill, including 17 Liberals. Last session the proposal was referred to a Commons committee whose report, adopted by the House, recommended government consideration of the plan.

Labor Minister Gregg was not in Ottawa for Tuesday's vote. However, during previous debate on the bill March 23, he said the government still is studying the issue but he saw no great urgency about bringing it to Parliament as legislation.

Mr. Knowles said the government should not require any more time. It should take action, rather than merely promise further study.

One Liberal who voted for the bill, Elmore Philpott of Vancouver South, said similar legislation in effect in some provinces has improved differences between employers and workers. The British Columbia example, he said, has improved labor relations at such key industries as the Trail smelter plant.

The CCF measure, debated during an one-hour devoted to private members' bills, was one of a number of pieces of legislation withdrawn during the day's sitting.

BILL INTRODUCED

A government bill to provide death benefits of up to $5,000 for members of the regular and reserve armed forces was introduced after William Bendickson, parliamentary assistant to Finance Minister Abbott, outlined its terms.

He said the government will pay one-sixth of the payment, which will be either $5,000 or a year's pay, whichever is the lesser amount. Persons covered, all those who contribute to the service death superannuation plan, would pay $4 a year for each $1,000 of insurance.

Everyone eligible would be required to take the insurance coverage made the low cost possible.

Another bill sponsored by Mr. Knowles also met defeat. The measure voted 156 to 31 against his measure to increase to 30 from 20 the Commons quorum—the minimum attendance required to transact parliamentary business.

The bill was supported by CCF and Social Credit members and C.W. Hodgson (PC—Victoria, Ont.).

Arrest Eleven Puerto Ricans For Conspiracy Against U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney-General Herbert Brownell today announced the arrest of 11 leaders of the Nationalist party of Puerto Rico on charges of seditious conspiracy to overthrow the United States government.

Six of the arrests were made in Chicago, four in New York City and one in San Juan, the capital of Puerto Rico, a U. S. dependency.

At the same time, Brownell placed detaining orders against six other members of the Nationalist party, including the four in jail here charged with shooting and wounding five members of the U. S. House of Representatives on March 1.

The other two detainers were placed against two Puerto Ricans now imprisoned in the federal correctional institution at Danbury, Conn.

LONG INVESTIGATION

The roundup resulted from a lengthy FBI investigation into Nationalist party activity extending back to 1939.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover noted in connection with today's roundup that members of the party were responsible for a bloody revolutionary attempt in October and November, 1950, for the attempted assassination of former president Truman in November of that year, and for the recent shooting affray in the House here.

Vietminh Troops Veer North In Effort to Encircle Delta

HANOI (AP) — Communist Vietminh troops moving east from captured Dien Bien Phu suddenly veered north today in an apparent attempt to encircle French defences in Indo-China's vital Red river delta.

The chief of rebel Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap's legions is believed massing for a giant pincers movement squeezing the delta's northern perimeter while other Vietminh troops threaten it from the west.

The French sent out B-26 bombers and napalm bombs to attack the advancing columns. The air strike was concentrated on troops bunched near Nha Phu, about 90 miles southwest of here.

In the delta itself only light action was reported. Twelve rebels were killed as French planes pounded Vietminh forces harassing outposts southeast of Hanoi.

Hoa Binh, the airlift of French wounded from Dien Bien Phu continued. The French command said 148 men were flown out Tuesday night, bringing the total evacuated to 1,000 since the fighting wind up the shuttle today. The rebels have given permission to evacuate a total of 858.

BUILD NEW UNITS

The French command in Saigon said it will build up 13 new military units from the reserves of France. Defence Minister Rene Pleven, a spokesman said, will reinforce units expected from France, the new units will total some 12,000. This is about the number lost at Dien Bien Phu.

The spokesman said the new units will be sent in to bolster the imperilled delta.

Getting Down to Brass Tacks On Cease-Fire in Indo-China

GENEVA (AP) — East and West delegates, got down to brass tacks today on a possible Indo - China cease-fire in a series of private conferences. A scheduled session of the Korean negotiations was postponed until Friday to clear the decks for the discussions.

Britain's foreign secretary Eden was expected to meet privately with Russia's foreign minister Molotov to discuss a four-point proposal which Eden submitted to the day's closed-door session of the nine powers involved in the Indo-China question.

Other delegates also planned private talks on the proposal for a cease-fire. Eden's plan was said to include controlled elections and creation of assembly zones in which the opposing forces would be concentrated before the cease-fire is established.

The plan was described as a "slimming up" of Western and Communist proposals on the cease-fire question.

France's foreign minister Bidault took advantage of the one-day recess in the formal talks to go to Washington tomorrow. Eden's proposal with Premier Joseph Laniel, will report to President Eisenhower. He is expected back Thursday.

TO DISCUSS ZONES

The question of creating disarmilty zones will be taken up at the next formal conference session on Indo-China, scheduled for Friday.

The Indo-China talks Tuesday suddenly moved clear of their long procedural snarl and, for the first time, the delegates faced specific conditions for a possible cease-fire. The Communist left today open to iron out disagreements over Eden's proposals. The conference source said there had been "agreement on some parts of the plan and discussions on others."

It was hoped that any differences could be resolved in the private talks. Most delegates agreed such bargaining could only be carried on in secrecy.

220 Others Reported Injured On Board 'Bennington' Off United States East Coast

Helicopters Have Removed Some of Burned Sailors

QUONSET, R.I. (AP) — The navy announced today that 79 were killed and 220 injured in a fire aboard the aircraft carrier Bennington.

The toll is the highest in peacetime suffered by the navy since 48 men died aboard the battleship Mississippi off the California coast in 1924.

The Bennington was on a routine cruise along the eastern seaboard.

As the 32,000-ton craft came into this naval air base helicopters conducted a shuttle service carrying injured to the navy hospital in nearby Newport.

First reports said high-octane gas was involved in the fire.

The Bennington carried a crew of 2,800.

FLOWN TO HOSPITAL

Helicopter flights bearing injured men landed in a private field alongside the Newport naval hospital.

A Newport Daily News reporter saw one patient, with head and arms badly burned, lifted and rushed in a naval hospital ambulance to the hospital 150 yards away.

—Two entire wards at the hospital were cleared to receive the injured.

Both the Newport, R.I., hospital and the Truesdale hospital at Fall River, Mass., offered their services and blood supplies.

McCarthy Calls Testimony Drivel, Leaves Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Joseph McCarthy stalked out of the McCarthy-Army hearings today, saying testimony about Pfc. G. David Schine's army life was "drivel." He said he would return when the "drivel" was finished.

Army Changes From British To U.S. Weapon

OTTAWA (CP)—The army has discarded the British 5.5-inch gun in favor of the United States 155 millimeter howitzer as the standard medium artillery piece.

But the army refuses to give any particulars of the U.S. howitzer on the grounds of security.

However, it can be stated authoritatively that the howitzer has a maximum range of 18,000 yards, a weight of 2,825 pounds, an overall length of 150 inches, a rate of fire of two rounds per minute, a maximum powder pressure of 52,000 pounds per square inch and the volume of the chambers is 725 cubic inches; that the weight of the projectile is 96 pounds and that the gun carriage alone weighs 8,000 pounds.

These are some of the specifications given in a book entitled "Weapons of World War II," published in 1947 by the U.S. Army Ordnance Association and the Franklin Institute of the State of Pennsylvania and available in almost any library or book store.

The 155-millimeter gun was designed in 1939 and was used extensively during the Second World War. The Germans captured a few of them. The Allies shipped some to Russia under lend-lease.

The Canadian Army began using the U.S. howitzer about three years ago. Pictures of it have appeared in army publications.

The howitzer also has been on public display in several places in Canada at various times, recently outside the University armories in Toronto and at Peterborough, Ont., where the reserve army there took delivery of a couple. Canadian newspapers from time to time have carried stories of the gun and given at least some of its specifications.

The 155-millimeter gun is considered the successor to the 5.5-inch gun though the maximum effective range is about the same. It weighs 1,200 pounds less than the 5.5.

Two Canadians Win Golf Matches

Joe easily disposed of Scotland's Robin Gudgeon 4 and 4. McElroy eliminated Sid Ball of England 4 and 3 and Taylor edged Charles Le Carlow of Scotland one up.

Avro Flying Saucer May Hover, Then Dash Away at 2,000 M.P.H.

NEW YORK (CP) — Time magazine says today that the United States Air Force is interested in a Canadian "flying saucer" and hopes within three years to have a prototype that can take off straight up, hover in mid-air and also fly at nearly 2,000 miles an hour.

Time's magazine, in its Canadian section, says a mock-up (non-working model) of a flying saucer has been built under top-secret conditions at the A. V. Roe aircraft plant. The saucer is the design of John C. M. Frost, 35-year-old Briton.

"This model, quickly nicknamed the 'praying mantis,' was designed to take off at 45-degrees angle after a short run.

"Once aloft, it would a vertical take-off—which is quite a trick. Even such a powerful jet engine as Pratt and Whitney J-57, with about 10,000 pounds of thrust, could not lift it. It has to be helped magically. After countless wind-tunnel tests, Frost finally found what he thinks is a solution in an aerodynamic principle known as the 'Coanda effect'."

The magazine says the Coanda effect, named for Romanian inventor Henri Coanda, involves the principle he discovered that curving one side of a nozzle will deflect a jet blast to follow the curved side. The story goes on:

"Around the Coanda effect, Avro's Frost created a startling design shaped like a saucer, 40 feet in diameter, with one jet set in the middle and a bubble cockpit perched above. From the engine's 35 burner tubes blasts would radiate at 180 exhaust ports all around the saucer's edge. To apply the Coanda effect the pilot needs some kind of movable control surface on the rim of each exhaust.

"If he rises as he is supposed to, the pilot would then reset the exhaust controls for normal jet flight. He could fly in any direction by choosing the appropriate set of burners in his circular power plant. But there would always be a lag facing forward, the cockpit would have to swivel quickly as the craft changed direction."

The magazine adds that "Canada as Frost's saucer sounds," it may not be the first, as there is a growing belief in the U. S. that the Russians may be ahead in this field.

There have long been rumors in Canada that a flying-saucer project was under way at Malton, but Avro officials have declined any comment.

Attlee, Bevan To Visit China This Summer

The visit, in August and September, will be in response to an invitation from the Communist Chinese people's institute of foreign affairs, the Labor party said.

Rangoon Again Without Water

RANGOON, Burma (Reuters)—Karen rebels blew up Rangoon's main water supply pipe about 30 miles north of the city Tuesday night.

It marks the 13th time the pipe has been dynamited in the last three years.

TENT CATERPILLARS EVIDENT THROUGHOUT QUINTE DISTRICT

Another epidemic of tent caterpillars which in a few days' time will commence to strip leaves from wild fruit and cherry trees is evident throughout the Bay of Quinte district.

Motorists passing through Centre Hastings say that trees are literally covered with the caterpillar tents. However, the young "crawlers" had not yet begun to feed on the leaves of the trees.

In the south, particularly in Prince Edward county, the caterpillars seem a bit more progressed and they have already begun to attack the leaves.

LIMBS TOPPLE ON HYDRO LINES

9-Point Plan For Happiness Given Club

A nine-point plan for happiness in a rust-proof world was propounded here last night by Ted Cornell, general secretary, Kitchener-Waterloo YMCA. They are: (1) Health; (2) Recreation; (3) Education; (4) Ambition; (5) Making good on the job; (6) Goodness and Godliness; (7) Friends, love and family; (8) Service to others and (9) A sense of humor.

In a witty speech laced with anecdote, to the Quinte District Personnel Officers' YMCA last night, Mr. Connell criticized those who are rushing through life and don't know what they are rushing for; rushing through their leisure hours, intent on "making a good time at any cost; rushing through their leisure hours to make more and more money.

"If you tie yourself to the dollar, you can never apparently get enough of it to make you happy," he said.

Everybody wants happiness but everybody goes everywhere else looking for it.

"Happiness is actually in your own background," he told the club.

Giving a rundown on his nine pointers Mr. Connell said people don't pay any attention to their bodies and that doctors get do nothing for a man, who closes his eyes to his health.

Percentagewise in Canada, there are more boys and girls than cattle not tested for TB, he said.

He also criticized the attitude of turning recreation into "wreck-reaction". "People who sit at an office desk all week-long in the city go out and play 18 holes of golf are making fools of themselves," he said.

PRESCRIBED READING

"You can absorb anything you want if you pay enough attention to education," he said, and prescribed reading the daily press's paper headlines from cover to cover. "It is necessary to have some education and be interested in education," he said.

Stressing the need for ambition, Mr. Connell said too many people want everything but they have no ambition.

"If you have no sense of ambition, what do you know what you want," he asked.

Making good on the job extends further than factory and office.

"It means," he said, "every kind of job—on the job, at home, on the yard, father and friend."

Stressing the need for belief in God, he said "goodness without Godliness is nothing."

"If you try to live your life alone without your hand in the hand of God, you are alone," he said.

"Too many of us won't draw our friends into us," said the speaker, while they are waiting for us to break down the barrier of aloofness.

"The lowest, worst-acting characters you have working for you, are the ones who want friendliness and respect."

TELL HIM WHAT IS GOOD

Instead of telling a trouble-maker or a problem-maker he's no good, tell him what's good about him, Mr. Connell said.

To be of service to others, you shouldn't stay wrapped up in yourself, he said. Be concerned about other people and they'll be concerned about you.

"Sense of humor means to learn how to laugh at yourself as well as at others," he said. Complexes, self-pity, despair, "all these things will drop away from you if you learn to laugh at yourself."

"You can only count on the heart beat you have just had. You cannot be sure of any other," he concluded.

The speaker was introduced by Lloyd Skeaff and thanked by Don Bacon. President Jim Daigleish extended thanks to the ladies who catered for the dinner.

The post-dinner songspiel was led by Lloyd Skeaff.

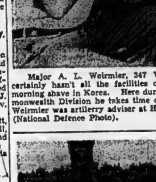
Wiring Blamed For $1,500 Fire On Dundas St.

Defective wiring was blamed Tuesday afternoon for a fire at the home of W. C. Springer, 103 Dundas Street east, which caused approximately $1,500 damage.

City firemen confined the blaze to a utility room at the rear of the large brick residence, but smoke damage throughout other parts of the house was heavy.



Mr. Springer, who a short time ago observed his 80th birthday, was reading in a downstairs room when fire broke and then another of his reading lamps went out. Just then a neighbor ran in and told him the house was afire.

Firemen said the blaze originated in partitions, but electric wiring in running through the basement and to the street transformer was charred, apparently as result of a short circuit.

City Solicitor Gives Opinion On Store Awnings

Downtown merchants with store awnings should either be forced to take down awnings or comply with the city by-law with respect to sidewalk clearance.

This is the opinion of City Solicitor R. A. Pringle, who in a letter read in council last night, said if the city was not prepared to take action it could not expect the inspector to enforce the by-law.

For several years there has been agitation in council to enforce the by-law calling for awnings to have a sidewalk clearance of seven feet. Some weeks ago a recommendation to enforce the by-law was referred to the city solicitor, who last night gave his report.

Again the matter was referred back to the public works committee for a recommendation on whether the by-law should be enforced.

Driver Escapes Injury As Tree Limb Hits Car

A Toronto motorist, Aubrey McMaster, 15 East Rd., Scarborough, escaped serious death or serious injury Tuesday afternoon when a large limb crashed down on top of his car while he was driving on No. 2 highway near the Ontario School for the Deaf.

The large limb, more than a foot across at its base, made a V-shaped lengthwise dent in the roof of the car, shaving it down almost to the level of the seats.

Traffic along the highway was held up for over half an hour until hydro wires were cleared away and the big limb was moved to the ditch by a wrecking truck. Hydro power in the area was off for about an hour until hydro crews made temporary repairs.

The limb, reaching 15 inches per hour in gusts were responsible for the limb falling. The broken limb fell across hydro wires carrying the wires to make a hydro pole to the pavement.

McMaster escaped injury in the freak accident, but the fact that he ducked his head a fraction of a second before the weight of the limb struck the car possibly saved his life.

"I saw a small branch strike my right front fender and instinctively ducked my head," McMaster said.

Parkwood Heights Lots Sale Again Causes Lively Debate

The sale of Parkwood Heights "swamp" lots to Mr. Sidney Spiegel was again brought up in city council last night as councillors met to finish business of two weeks ago when council was adjourned before completion of the nights business.

Two weeks ago a "rhubarb" cropped up in council when it was learned that Mayor Both had not signed the by-law covering the sale of lots. Council approved of the sale had been given at the previous meeting.

Last night Mayor Both said he had signed the by-law "with reluctance", one of the reasons being that there had been no correspondence received by council to the effect that Mr. Arthur Black, original partner with Mr. Spiegel, was no longer interested and that Mr. Spiegel would himself complete the deal.

MAYOR ASKS QUESTION

He said the only knowledge council had that Mr. Black was withdrawing was from Alderman Countryman, who recommended the amendment to the by-law, striking out Mr. Black's name.

"I'd like to know if Alderman Countryman is a paid agent of Mr. Spiegel," the mayor asked.

"That is a personal question," retorted Alderman Countryman. "It is none of your business."

"I'll have to apologize for that kind of language," demanded the mayor.

"All right, I apologize," Alderman Countryman replied, "but it is not a fair question. I will ask the city solicitor to decide."

EXPECTED TO REPLY

Mayor Both said it was a fair question in council and was one to which he expected a reply.

Alderman Reid interrupted the verbal exchange, noting that it was a "personal matter" but that it didn't add much to the prestige of council. "Let's get along with the business of council," he urged.

MAYOR NOT SATISFIED

Mayor Both still maintained, however, that there should have been correspondence submitted from Mr. Spiegel's intention to purchase the lots in question before any by-law was signed.

"I had a letter from Mr. Black and sent it down to council," the city solicitor noted.

"But I asked the city clerk and he said there was no correspondence," returned the mayor.

The city clerk was directed to find the solicitor's letter. He left the chambers and later returned with the solicitor's letter in reference to the purchase of the lots by Mr. Spiegel. The letter noted that Mr. Black's communication seeking release from his offer to purchase the lots as partner with Mr. Spiegel, was attached.

ADMITTED LETTER IN HALL

On a question by the mayor, the clerk admitted the letter had been in the city hall but added there had been no reason for its being brought to council. He added, however, that there had been no direct correspondence from either Mr. Black or Mr. Spiegel.

City Solicitor Pringle then told council the whole trouble was that it was trying to shortcut regular procedure by bringing by-laws into council without recommendation from committees concerned.

He said that he often wrote by-laws at the request of a committee chairman to speed up council business. This had happened in this case.

Alderman Tice as chairman of city property said he had asked the solicitor to write the by-law covering the sale of lots to Mr. Spiegel "after council had approved of the sale."

BY-LAW SIGNED

It was eventually brought out that the by-law in question had been signed but that the deed covering the sale had not been signed by the mayor. The clerk said, he had phoned Mr. Spiegel asking him to come in and pick up his deed but this had not yet been done.

Alderman Hyde wanted to know if any action had been taken by the special committee appointed to re-write the council procedure by-law.

He referred specifically to the request for deeds by certain builders. Deeds asked for by builders seven weeks ago had still not been received, Mr. Hyde said it was all very discouraging for the builder, who needed the deeds to complete borrowing arrangements and urged that something should be done to speed up matters.

REASONS GIVEN

Alderman William Argue maintained that if the present procedure by-law was followed instead of committees getting items tracked, council business could be speeded up.

One of the reasons that council business was slowed was the "confusion" referring to the session order of business to allow the hearing of delegations.

"Then you suggest that we not hear delegations!" asked Mayor Both.

"I suggest that we hear them at the proper time," returned Alderman Argue. "One of the reasons we changed the time of meetings to the evening instead of four o'clock in the afternoon was to give people the opportunity of attending the sessions. Anyone who wants to be here to address council can be here at 7:30. If not let them wait until the next meeting."

George DeVuyst, local restaurant owner, asked permission to address council at the close of the session. Instead council voted to adjourn.

Women Working At Factory Jobs Wrecking Homes

Romuald Bourque, M.P., mayor of Outremont, Que., said here yesterday that women in industry are giving Canada a heritage of miserable broken homes and a generation of neglected offspring heading for juvenile delinquency."

Speaking at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club, Mr. Bourque said:

"This past winter we heard much about unemployment in Canada. How much of it was due to the fact that a woman was holding down a man's job? The introduction of simplified machinery has undoubtedly brought many women into industry.

"I am certain that it is not helping our economy".

Mr. Bourque warned of the reversal in the Canadian way of life with women working in industries, supporting unemployed husbands and neglecting the role of housewives.

"With all due respect to women, I say this. They may easily become as expert as any man at running a machine, but will any man ever become as expert as they in the kitchen?

Exception, he said, are the "career woman," who compete with men on the basis of equality.

To prevent them from practising their profession would be a great loss to society.

Today we have made it seem that to be in the home is a mark of inferiority and place the housewife in a lower position and slightly respected among a wide circle of friends. He was a member of his faith.

Works Committee Wants To Widen Coleman Street Six Feet

Council approval for a proposal to widen Coleman Street by six feet, and set sidewalk back six feet, will be sought by the public works committee at the next meeting of council.

Alderman Bruce Smith as chairman of public works, introduced the matter to council at the close of last night's session, noting that increased traffic on Coleman Street would eventually demand its being widened.

The alderman went on to point out that council last year had appropriated $8,500 for changing the street contour to eliminate surface water. In view of the fact the street would eventually have to be widened, he suggested it stop at merely changing the street crown, and be wasting money.

He said the proposal was to move the east sidewalk back six feet and move the curb back the same distance. The sidewalk could be moved six feet and still be on city property. The street widening program and its cost could be extended over four years, $6,000 to be paid this year and $6,000 next year.

Alderman Arthur Keegan, planning committee chairman thought it might be a good thing if his committee sat in on public works committee meetings and referred to a request for a survey to be made of Bonneau Street in order for a possible added artery leading from No. 14 highway into the city.

ALDERMAN REPLIES TO QUESTION

To this Alderman Smith reminded that city council had jurisdiction over Bonneau Street. Before any plans for an artery leading out of the city would undertaken Thurlow township officials should be contacted to see if they would favor the diversion of traffic off North Front Street.

Public works should not pass judgment on this proposal at this time," returned Alderman Keegan. The proposal would be a recommendation from the planning board, not merely from council.

"Whether or not Boswell Street is extended Coleman Street is too narrow," replied Alderman Smith.

Alderman Temple also introduced a matter which he said would be discussed more fully at the next meeting of council. He stressed the need for better street light at the intersection of Bridge and Bleecker; and said the cost would be somewhere between $800 and $1,000.

Alderman Bradford asked that council give consideration to the

INTERVIEW RATHER BRIEF

J. D. Woods and Gordon Ltd., management consultants, have been instructed to make a survey of the provincial position in Ontario.

Surprisingly enough, all the politicians seem happy about this decision. It is, of course, obvious that Premier Leslie Frost and members of his Cabinet think the move is a good one; otherwise they would never have authorized it.

Farquhar Oliver, Ontario Liberal leader, concurs. The firm, he says, "is a qualified one and should be able to present a complete analysis."

There is no dissenting murmur from the CCF. On the other hand Donald MacDonald, the recently appointed leader, says that "nothing but good" can come from this investigation.

It is not often that such sweet harmony prevails among the three

Costello Abandoned Substantial Legal Practice to Serve Ireland

By TOM O'NEILL'REE

DUBLIN (AP)—John A. Costello, wearing the wig and robes of his profession, concluded the last pages of his legal life as he sat before Dublin's High Court and walked slowly back to his office.

As he sat down someone whispered to him that he would again become prime minister of the Irish public of Ireland, replacing the almost legendary Eamon de Valera.

Costello merely nodded. He had expected that moment of triumph.

Now he faces the task of completing the organization of a coalition government to present to the new Dail that convenes June 2 after the May 18 general election.

Costello abandoned one of Ireland's most successful legal practices to serve as prime minister from 1948 to 1951. Now he still has to do the same thing again.

It means considerable financial sacrifice. Costello, as Irish prime minister gets a salary of £2,500 a year. Costello is part time at times as much as a barrister.

DAIL THEORIES DIFFER

But any alternative government to de Valera means a coalition government. And Costello, 63, is about the only man with the political skill to hold the diverse parties in the coalition together.

Costello and de Valera differ in many ways on the theories of government. De Valera does not believe in coalitions. He stepped aside when his Fianna Fail party failed to win a majority in the 1948 election. The Fianna Fail 64 Dail candidates, including de Valera, who now will serve as Opposition leader.

The coalition got 73 seats, divided up fairly well: Labor 16, Fine Gael 49, Labor 18, Clann na Talmhan (farmers) 9 and Clann na Poblachta (republicans) 3. In addition some of the five independents may decide to join the Costello camp. Three more seats will be decided at special elections.

Costello will command a not enough votes to undertake an active program, including the modernization of Irish agriculture.

The prime minister-to-be is a warm, friendly man who likes the companionship of a good round of golf and the sociability of a dinner party. He is a powerful debater in the Dail.

DEVOTED FAMILY MEN

Costello and de Valera are devoted family men and each has a son in the Dail.

De Valera, 71, and now nearly blind, engages in few social functions. He gives an impression of great dignity and reserve warmed only by occasional flashes of wry wit.

Costello, a native of Dublin, graduated with honors from University College here and quickly established a legal reputation. He was attorney-general in the provisional Irish government from 1922 to 1923. Later Costello participated in the London talks that resulted in the Statute of Westminster.

Costello and de Valera, the latest New York's born, share a friendly respect for each other. The parliamentary correspondent of a Dublin newspaper described their attitude this way:

They are rivals. They have often clashed in debates in the Dail and the boxers are about even. De Valera regards Costello as the only really able man in the other camp, and Costello has much the same opinion about de Valera.

Y's Men Are Told About Methods Of Traffic Control

Mr. James Ritchie of the sales department of Northern Electric was the speaker at last week's Y's Men's meeting. He discussed the methods used to control traffic movements, now that so many automobiles, trucks and buses are in use.

Modern highways allow for rapid moving of traffic between cities but the greatest problems arise where highways or busy streets intersect. Attention is upon the need at a given location various methods, from the simple caution sign to the complex clover leaf, are employed to assist traffic movement. Experts give much thought and study to these traffic problems in order to find the maximum traffic to pass safely through an intersection each hour.

Working in conjunction with the "yesky" red light are a wealth of automatic timing devices, in addition to the red, amber and green changes, other automatic devices affect the light changes during peak traffic periods, thus allowing more traffic to pass in the direction it is known to be heaviest. For example, if east-west traffic is very heavy at certain hours, the lights are timed to give more time to traffic in this direction. At other periods, often a caution light alone will be sufficient.

Where an intersection is such that only the occasional car is approaching a busy highway, a simpler system can be used. A magnetic device is buried in the road so that when the auto passes over it, it sets the signals in operation, thus stopping traffic while the auto has a chance to pass. This system allows for a minimum of delays where traffic is heavy.

Mr. Ritchie's talk was very informative and much appreciated by club members and visitors. The speaker was introduced by Ed. Littlefield and thanked by Bill Holway.

Besides the local visitors a number of Y's Men from Peterborough spent the evening as guests of the Belleville Club.

Henry Campion Reaches His 80th Milestone

MARMORA — Henry German Campion, better known to his many friends and acquaintances as Harry Campion, reached the 80th milestone of his life on Wednesday. He was born in the old log dwelling which was his father's home in the 6th concession of Marmora township, on May 19th, 1874.

This home had been erected from timbers hewn from woodlots on the property and, when later on, his father chose to replace it with a goodly sized stone residence, abundant stone was near at hand of serviceable size without any quarrying having to be done to acquire it.

Harry, as a youth, took his part in the erection of the new home and was not to leave it until he retired from farming ten years ago to take up residence in Marmora.

The farm has ever been considered as one of the best for fertility in the northern section of Marmora township.

Harry received his education in the original Beaver Creek school, which was then situated at Lennons Bridge, close to the present home of Reeve Lennon. Later in Magnora and Lake township. His last teacher was Mrs. T. L. Hickle, who resides today for a portion of her time in Marmora.

ASSISTED FATHER

Leaving school, Harry remained home to assist his father and later came into occupancy of the homestead. In course of time, he added to the acreage of his homestead, finally purchasing the three adjoining farms — the one formerly occupied by his older brother, Daniel, the Jacobs farm and also the Samuel McMillen farm.

He was married at Madoc on June 7th, 1899, to Alice Melissa Kerr, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Alexander Kerr, of Madoc.

His wife died on Christmas Day, 1951.

Harry is the last surviving member of the Campion family of his generation. Seven children, all living, were born to Mr. and Mrs. Campion, and are herewith listed according to age: Gordon, Marmora; Mrs. Wallace Lawrence (Leila), Marmora; Mrs. Goldie McInroy (Estelle), West Huntingdon; Albert (on the old homestead), Macmora-township; Mrs. Douglas Jones (Myrtle), township; Arthur, Deloro; and Charles, Marmora.

There are also nine grandchildren. All children and grandchildren were able to be present for the birthday celebration, which took the form of an evening dinner at Mr. Campion's home on Wednesday.

A pleasant evening was spent by all.

Included in congratulatory messages from a distance were, a telegram from his niece Mrs. Cora Westerstrand, Kabri, Sask., and felicitations from his nephew, Clarence Campion, of Peterborough.

He was also the recipient of a number of useful gifts.

H&S Central Committee Plans Training School

At a recent meeting of the central committee of the Belleville Home and School Associations, plans were laid for a training school, similar to the one so successfully held last year. Scheduled for June 8th, in Prince Charles School, and preceded by a pot-luck supper at 6 p.m., the training school will feature Mrs. C. V. Coons, chairman of District Number 10, who is bringing with her a special film dealing with the duties of the various members of H. and S. executive committees, which promises to be most interesting and instructive. All H. and S. members are welcome to attend the school, which will occupy the one evening only. Those attending the supper are asked to bring their own knife, fork and spoon.

The central committee also made the following slate of officers for the 1954-55 season: president, Mr. R. H. Tanner; vice-president, Mrs. J. D. Godwin; recording secretary, Mrs. C. Powell; corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. Foliwell; and treasurer, Mrs. B. Smith. Warm tributes were paid to Mrs. W. Gander, retiring president and to Miss B. Wallbridge who has served for the past three years as treasurer.

Members Object To Housing Corp. Holding Liens

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition members Tuesday objected to Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. handling mortgages for new veterans' housing on small lots.

They contended in the Commons veterans affairs committee that administration of the Veterans Land Act should look after collections on houses built under the VLA "Build Your Own Home program."

The subject came up as the committee began detailed study of legislation which would assist veterans to build on city lots and provide additional loans for improvements on small holdings.

Under VLA, veterans can obtain conditional grants and loans to acquire farms, small holdings or to set up as commercial fishermen. The loans are made at 3½ per cent interest.

RESOLUTIONS PRESENTED

Four resolutions, presented by the Federation representative, Mrs. W. N. Hurst, were all endorsed by the Belleville Club. The resolutions of the Ottawa Club advocated, that further implementations should be made to the government regarding changes in the succession duties act to reduce the tax burden of the widow; the extension of the pension system by federal penitentiaries with cases to be reviewed every three years; the resolution of the London U.W.C. was that a standing committee be formed in the C.F.U.W. to form a league of women voters; and that of the Victoria U.W.C. that the CBC continue in its present status in control of radio and TV in Canada.

ANNUAL MEETING

For the annual meeting Mrs. W. Hurst reported the membership for the year to be 60, with 21 new members, 20 discontinuing members and four returning members.

Interesting reports from each of the executive and the conveners revealed that a great deal had been accomplished during the year. . . excellent programs and good attendance at the meetings; an increase of interest in the business of the C.F.U.W.; local assistance to the Red Cross and the W.A.W.A. and to the John Howard Society and to needy members of the I.F.U.W.

This slate of officers was passed by acclamation.

Miss Josephine Tickell introduced Miss Madeline Young, M.A., a former teacher in B.C.I. who left Belleville, to teach at the Normal School in Toronto, and who now returned here to live. Her topic, "Humor", proved an apt subject to give a gay finish to the year. "Humor," she said, "is not to be interpreted, it must be sampled." It is common in English literature which provides a healthy crew of exponents of humor.

HUMOR IS INTERNATIONAL

Humor is International. With the English it is rebellious, constant and compassionate, coming from the heart; with the French it is apt to be a bit malicious and fond of the "double entente"; with the Germans, it is always aimed at others, never at themselves.

English humor is at its best in times of trouble. "It would take a lot," said Miss Young, "to beat a people who could call V bombs 'Doodlebugs'." The English take their humor seriously, and are in charge of the slant aimed by the magazines supposed to be funny.

"One wonders," she said, "if the sense of humor is dying out in this age of apprehension and uncertainty. Humor lacks persons to be an unexplored field with literary students lacking the sense of what is laughable. Teaching humor means teaching people to understand life's situations and to have a joyous acceptance of life."

LONG WAY IT THRIVE

To the delight of her audience, Miss Young gave many laughprovoking excerpts from English, Canadian and American humorous writings as samplers to be enjoyed. All present heartily agreed with the speaker as she closed her talk on humor with these words, "Long may it thrive."

Mrs. A. P. May voiced the appreciation of the club to Miss Young for her courtesy in presenting this delightful paper on "humor" to give a gay "fillip" to the closing meeting.

A social hour followed with refreshments served by the Wellington ladies Miss W. Kincaid, Miss G. Martineau, Miss R. Nash, and Miss Mary McMahon.

The treasurer's report and membership conveners reports were read by Mrs. Huffman and Mrs. Schreider respectively. Mrs. Schreider reported one new member.

MONTHLY MAGAZINES

Mrs. Brown, magazine convener, advised that the monthly magazines were being received by the members. Correspondence was read by Mrs. D. Windsor and dealt with.

No social welfare was needed in the past month and hospital visits will be made in June.

The rummage sale netted $280. A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Donovan and her helpers. Final preparations were made for Father Michael's anniversary.

Further discussion on the "Lilac Tea" took place and it was decided to include the quilt and rug for draws at the tea. Plans were also made to have a nursery that day.

Mrs. Brown was appointed ticket convener for the "Strawberry Social". Tickets on the raffle were distributed to those present.

A tag day was discussed but postponed until more information could be obtained on same.

CLAW FRINGE

Newest thing in London and Paris hair fashions is a stylishly careless coiffure presenting a youthful and chic look. For the sophisticate there is this sea-dream style by Steiner of Mayfair, decorated by a crew-style cap of satin, glittering pearls for evening wear. The hair is cut close to the head and styled in a claw fringe. It twirls back from the temples in claw curls that give a cap-shaped, sea-shell effect. (CP Photo).

'Somersault Cut' Latest Thing in Hair Styling

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—The latest thing in London and Paris hair fashion is a stylingly - careless coiffure whose symmetry remains unblemished come what may.

Thus the "somersault cut," styling whose designer claims it will withstand even a head-over-heels gyration. It illustrates the current theory that the clever wielding of scissors matters more than the grooming.

The "somersault cut," by Rene, has the hair clinging close to the head, covering all but the tips. The sides are brushed to devil's horn curls that form a perfect V with the chin. Two deep waves curve over each eyebrow, one falling carelessly forward in two casual kiss curls.

FLATTERING FRINGE

Raymond, television stylist, shows several styles that are little more than a close cap of hair fringing the face. The "pruning cut" starts from the crown of the head and the hair is made to swirl from the crown in a flattering fringe that half-covers the forehead and ears. It's cut short at back and finished in a point at the nape of the neck.

The "angel bob" by Biche is three-dimensional. Using a plastic halo as a guide, the stylist snips three layers of hair, brushes it down from the crown and then back from the face. This easy arrangement gives a soft halo sweeping up and back from the forehead and temples.

Steiner, who wies with Raymond in achieving the best and most popular cuts for each season, gives a "lace posy" style for this season's debutante with a classic profile. Cut in a shaped bob, the hair curves forward to curl on the temple. Al Clark Gable lock falls over the forehead in what is called a "bolster" fringe.

The style gets it name from the stiff lace and pearl posy that can be pinned to the nape of the neck —youthful and chic for debutante balls and summer dances.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SHE WANTS TO MARRY NOW—HER PARENTS SAY NO

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 20, and have been engaged for a year. My boy friend went into service just after we became engaged, and he wants me to marry him now, but my parents will not consent. They say they will not consent to my marrying him while he is in the army. He wants to stay in a couple of years more.

I love this boy, and want to marry him and go with him wherever he is. Do you think I should marry him, or do as my parents say? — A.M.

Dear A.M.:

You have asked a question that is very difficult to answer.

You don't say definitely how long it will be before this young man is out of service, but I gather that it will probably be at least three years. That, unquestionably, is a long time to wait.

On the other hand, it's quite understandable that your parents might feel it would be a rather unsatisfactory life for a girl to live as unsettled a way as a wife must do when she moves around from one army camp to another, following her husband.

What I would suggest is that, instead of defying your parents and going ahead with the marriage immediately in direct opposition to their wishes, you wait a little and see if you can't gradually bring them around. It wouldn't hurt you to wait at least a year, until you are 21, to get married, and in the meantime, if you don't argue and quarrel with your parents about the matter, in time you may win your point. Perhaps when your young man comes to see you on leave, he might bring the subject up in a diplomatic way, especially if he can give your parents some definite idea of how he would propose to take care of you while he is in service.

It doesn't seem to me that you necessarily should have to wait until this chap is out of the army, but what you can do in a year's time to gain your parents' consent. If you show them that you're not going to rush into this marriage, but are content to wait until you are a little older, they may gradually get used to the idea and, in time, be willing to go along with you.

SHE'S 16, AND IN DANGER OF MAKING HERSELF LOOK FOOLISH

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 16 years old, and for three years have been acquainted with a boy from another town who is a singer. I used to hear from him often and we were supposed to be going steady.

Someone told him I was just going with him for his money, but I really like him very much and I believe he likes me, too. Now it has been two weeks since I have heard from him, and I want to know if you think I should write to him and try to explain that it is him I like, not his money, or should I wait until he writes?

— C.L.

Dear C.L.:

If this chap is a professional singer, he is probably much older than you are, and so, much too old for a 16-year old girl. It would only make you look foolish if you wrote him the kind of letter you suggest, and my advice is that you stop daydreaming and pick your boy friends from those in your own age group who live in your town.

And remember that you're quite a bit too young, for any "going steady." The more fun you have with the boys you know at school without thinking about "going steady" with any of them, the happier you'll be and the better able you'll be to choose the right "steady" when the proper time comes.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

RELATIVES AND FRIENDS ASKED NOT TO "TELL" ABOUT THE ENGAGEMENT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When, as you suggested in your column the other day, a girl writes to her relatives and friends telling them of her engagement (which has not yet been publicly announced) is it proper for her to ask them to keep the news of the engagement a secret until the date set for the announcement? Or should she take this "discretion" for granted? — Janet

It's proper, and necessary too, for her to ask that the news be kept a secret until the date (which she should definitely give in her note) set for the public announcement.

SHOULD CONTINUE TO WEAR WEDDING RING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a young widow, and the mother of four children. I would like to know if it is proper to continue to wear my wedding ring. And I should think that, with four young children, you would not even think of discontinuing wearing it.

Mother and Daughter Banquet

By Mary Moore

There are an increasing number of requests for menus and amounts for serving large groups.

You all know that I shy away from showing the slightest trace of impatience with any of our readers, but would you mind if I asked you to clip those large amount topics?—that is especially if you are a social convener or president of a group or mother of a bride-to-be?

To be fair to the majority of readers I should not feature quantity recipes too often and would be grateful for your cooperation in clipping the columns that you just might need for reference in the future.

LETTER:

Could you give me any good suggestions for a Mother and Daughter banquet, menu suggestions? our (middle-age group) Sunday School class has been asked to cater for the banquet, price $1.00 per plate . . . would like to serve a delightful meal that would appeal to the eye as well as the palate. . . about 80 people. . . I am puzzled about what to serve for dessert. Would appreciate suggestions for a wedding (to be served to 100 guests' at $1.25 per plate. We have been serving hot chicken patties, scalloped potatoes, mixed, relishes, rolls, angel cake and ice cream, fancy cookies, wedding cake, punch, tea. . . what is proper order? Where could I get the information necessary.—Mrs. G. E. P.

ANSWER:

My chief concern is over the cost of the meal. At $1.00 per plate you will have to be careful or you will have very little profit. With that preliminary idea in mind I have chosen this menu:

Escalloped Salmon (or tuna)
Tomato Jelly Salads
Southern Cornbread
Carrot and Celery Sticks
Chocolate Cake with Ice Cream or Whipped Cream Topping
Tea

ESCALLOPED SALMON (OR TUNA) (amounts serve 50)

Ten 1-lb. cans salmon, 12 cups broken fresh or day-old bread, 16 cups whole milk, 4 bay leaves, 1 1-2 cups margarine, 2 3-4 cups flour, 1-2 teaspoon paprika, 2 tablespoons salt, 1 cup buttered crumbs. Mix salmon with broken bread. Add bay leaves to milk and scald in double boiler. Remove bay leaves. Melt margarine, stir in flour, and stir in scalded milk until thick. Add salt and paprika and cook over boiling water, stirring occasionally, for 15 minutes. Combine sauce with salmon and pour into greased pans. Sprinkle top with buttered crumbs. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 30 minutes or until nicely browned.

TOMATO JELLY SALAD (Amounts serve 50)

Five cups canned condensed tomato soup, 2 cups cold water, 6 tablespoons plain gelatin, 1 tablespoon salt, 2 cups lemon juice, lettuce, mayonnaise. Heat tomato soup to boiling. Soak gelatin in cold water five minutes. Mix softened gelatin with hot soup, stirring until dissolved. Add salt and lemon juice. Pour into shallow oblong pans. Chill until firm (overnight preferably). Cut into 30 squares or diamonds, serve on crisp lettuce cups with mayonnaise. (This could be garnished with the celery and carrot sticks.)

SOUTHERN CORNBREAD (Amounts serve 50)

Stir flour and measure 8 cups and sift it with 1-3 cup sugar, 3-4 cup baking powder, 4 tablespoons salt. Stir in six beaten eggs. Dissolve 1 1-3 tablespoons soda in 6 cups buttermilk, and stir it and 1 cup melted shortening in, then 2 1-2 cups cornmeal. Beat thoroughly. Bake in hot greased shallow pans at 425 deg for 35 minutes. Cut into squares and serve hot.

CHOCOLATE CAKE (Amounts serve 50)

Cream 1 cup shortening with 6 cups sugar, then beat in 8 eggs yolks well. Stir flour and measure 3 cups and sift it with 3 1-2 teaspoons salt and 4 tablespoons baking powder and add alternately with 2 cups milk to first mixture. Add 9 ounces unsweetened melted chocolate and 1 tablespoon vanilla. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry and fold in. Pour into greased shallow pans and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 30 or 40 minutes.

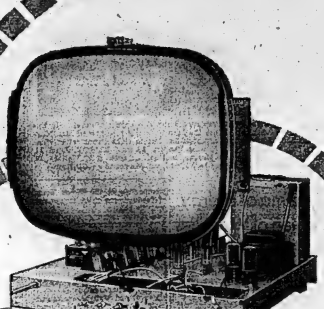
Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

COMPLEXION PACKS OR MASKS

Conscientious women who cream their faces every night can go still further in their pursuit of beauty by applying masks or packs occasionally. Both are excellent pick-up treatments that are really worth trying.

These masks give the epidermal surface a thorough cleaning, and whip up the circulation of the blood The most popular one will remove blackheads that stubbornly resist face washing. To make it, manufacture a package of kaolin from your druggist If the skin is oily, combine witch hazel with the kaolin until you have a mixture the consistency of whipped cream. Prepare a clean skin surface, starting at the collar bones, sweeping upward over the neck.



Spread it along the jaw lines with flattened fingers, then over the cheeks and the rest of the facial area. Press it in firmly along the wings of the nose, where blackheads may appear

If the skin is dry, olive or mineral oil should be used in place of witch hazel While the pack dries, you will have the opportunity to rest for a half hour. Lie down, relax every muscle, close your eyes and the door of your mind. When the pack starts to flake it is time to remove it with tepid water. Dry gently, get out the massage cream and anoint the flesh using light tapping movements. Tissue away the cream before applying make-up.

Masks of beaten egg white have an astringent effect upon enlarged pores. Apply with a silver table knife. When the flesh feels tight and drawn remove the pack with tepid water.'

Nora Murray, Dynamo of Energy, To Be Named Woman of Weeklies

By RAE CORELLI
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PICTOU, N.S. (CP)—A striking 43-year-old brunette with the passive qualities of a Kansas tornado will become the first lady of Canada's weekly newspaper family later this year.

The Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association hopes to separate Mrs. George Murray from a marathon home-making and business merry-go-round long enough to name her officially 1954 Mrs. Canadian Weekly Newspaper. The award will be made during the association's August convention at Toronto.

Nora Murray, known to her friends as Nonie, married husband George, 46, back in 1933 when he was an editor in the Canadian Press bureau at Halifax. He now owns and publishes the 12-page weekly Pictou Advocate which has won two national awards of its own for editorial content.

"I loved George," Nonie reflected, "besides, he always kept quiet while I talked."

HECTIC SCHEDULE

The two made a free-wheeling team which in the last 21 years has brought forth nine irrepressible children and landed Nonie Murray into a year-round schedule that would shatter the composure of most women bigger than her five feet, two inches.

Nonie's contributions to the politically independent Advocate are two breezy columns.

"Aunt Betty" benevolently leads children through a delightful world of animals, books and travel in faraway places.

A column or so to the left, "Aunt Betty" becomes "Ann Advocate" who scatters her topics like bird shot: from sympathetic mention of the deaths of stalwart old-timers in the Pictou county area to discourses on the merits of daylight saving time.

Sample opening: "As I was peeling the potatoes today, I glanced at the paper into which the peelings were dropping and what did I see but . . ."

BUSY HOUSEWIFE

Nonie Murray peels her own spuds, too. She whistles through single-handed and daily the housework in the Murray's rambling, old-style home on High street and not a day passes that some if not all of her four clotheslines are not groaning under the weight of a gigantic wash.

"I love housework," she said. "If I haven't got three days of work ahead of me, I'll start inventing something."

George cut his teeth in the news business in the hard-working days of the late '20s, but even he stands secretly in awe of the azure-eyed woman he married.

The Murrays fire off upwards of 300 personal Christmas cards each year and their original design and novelty has become something to watch for when the season rolls around.

Nonie is an active member of the Catholic Women's League, the Victorian Order of Nurses lay organization and two home and school associations.

"I have to belong to two of them," she said, "because the kids are spread over three schools."

ON BOARD OF TRADE

She recently was voted into membership of the Pictou Board of Trade as one of the few women ever to belong.

"But it's funny, you know," Nonie said, "I've never been able to drive a car; I'm psychologically incapable, I guess."

The nine children are Ian, 2; Wendy, 5; Maida, 8; Ross, 10; Janet, 11; Bruce, 13; Jock 15; "he's really Thomas John but nobody ever calls him that"), 15; Margot, 18; and Wallace, 19.

Margot and Wallace are attending St. Francis Xavier University at Antigonish, N.S., she working towards a teachers' diploma and he in second-year arts. The nine altogether manage to put forward better-than-average talents for music, painting, basketball, baseball, swimming and hockey.

Jan's role so far is small. "He's not quite house-broken," Nonie explained.

She has a weakness for getting up to her ears in projects that 24 hours before had never entered her mind.

George once detoured through New York en route home from an Ontario trip. Nonie was knee-deep in a child study conference before their visit was a day old.

FAMILY AFFAIR

All the children take a turn at the Advocate plant, a modest one-storey brick building around the corner from the home. There are stages; "janitor," delivery boy and so on.

Bruce currently does the sweeping up. Ross sells papers. They get "promoted" as they grow older.

Life through Nonie's eyes:

"I love fireplaces. I think they hold a family together. With central heating—mind, I'm not advocating we do without it—everybody scatters."

"I always read at night. It helps get me to sleep."

"I'm supposed to be vice-president of the Advocate but I don't do anything." The "anything" is 2,000 to 3,000 words of copy a week and all of it turned out of a town with only 4,500 inhabitants.

"I'm not, a 'joiner.' I can't see the point of some of these organizations where people just sit around and do nothing. If there's something I can do, I'm all for it."

"Our Christmases are a sort of ritual. I come from a family of 13 and George was one of 10 so the loot is terrific. But we only allow the kids to open one present at a time."

"You know, I just wish I could get everything done at once. Maybe an eight-day week would help."

Refreshments were served by the hostess and committee in charge.

Toronto Woman Hikes 63 Miles On Birthday

TORONTO (CP)—A 63-year-old Toronto woman finished her annual birthday hike on schedule Monday night—a mile for every year.

Mrs. Brandt Johnston started her walk to Toronto from near Hyattsville, Ont., Sunday morning, at a four-mile-an-hour clip.

She offered $25 to anyone who saw her show signs of quitting and challenged Toronto's entire female population to accompany her. There were no takers.

"I think the women of Toronto are just a bunch of sissies," she said. "I was puppy all the way. I hope to do it again next year if I can—it keeps my figure in good shape."

Two Years Have Not Erased Memories of Flight by Nun

By STAN WESTALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—A smiling nun stood in the doorway of a seat in the home in suburban Scarboro. Three years ago Sister Cecilia would have bidden, desperately hoped for, anything but a friend.

The two years since Sister Cecilia escaped from Communist Czechoslovakia, rounded by Communist police, have not erased the memories of that painful flight. She fled from a sentence of death or life imprisonment that would have been passed on her for aiding the escape of a condemned priest.

Now, on vacation with her sister here, she remembers the terror.

Sister Cecilia was born 42 years ago to a peasant farmer living near Bratislava.

"Against his wishes, I decided to go to a convent when I was 17 years old," she said. "I joined the order of the Daughters of the Most Sacred Saviour, whose mother convent was in Bratislava.

MAN ON TEACHING

"For 17 years I taught the children in kindergarten. Then came the year 1938 but did not bother us. Then the Communists came into power and after all those two years of rule ordered all nuns to stop teaching. I went to the Hospital for Sick Children in Bratislava. In April, 1951, I became an 'undergraduate' worker.

"Father Matthew, a priest from my convent, was arrested by the Communists. He escaped and I gave him clothes and shelter until he could be smuggled across the border.

"Soon, I told myself, the police will come for you.

"They came, two days after I had assisted another priest to escape.

FLED IN DISGUISE

"I was asleep at the hospital when a Sister shook me in terror. There were policemen outside who had come to arrest me. Disguised in a dark blue dress with white polka dots and a blue kerchief around round my head I walked past the waiting patrol cars. I walked into four months of hiding."

For Sister Cecilia, accustomed to the quiet of convent life, the next few weeks were a nightmare as she travelled the escape route in a circle of fear.

At one shelter her eldest sister visited her. "For that, I now learn, she was sentenced to three and a half years' imprisonment. My youngest sister was given three years—and she had done nothing." Later, they were taken from their cells and put to work on the prison farm.

In the cold November of 1951 she moved to another isolated farm and for five weeks worked at every kind of back-breaking farm labor. Then a Catholic priest, disguised as a policeman, came to see her. He was Father Jelen, a man whose name has become a byword among refugees from communism.

CHANGE IN DESTINY

He told her she could not continue to live in a shed, moving into a succession of holes.

"I had not even thought of leaving my country. I was willing to wait until good sense came to Czechoslovakia, where the people have known tyrannies throughout history. Even now I cry often when I think of the old country. I would go back tomorrow if life could be as it was before 1939.

"But I realized the truth of his argument. Once more I could enter a convent and live my life as I had chosen. So the escape was arranged.

"First I went to say farewell to my parents. My mother was very ill—only this month I learned she has died and my father was very upset.

"The next day another priest in police uniform came to see me and the plans were laid. I caught a train the following day with two priests, dressed as working men." They left the train a few stations before their border destination and went into the woods. There they joined a party of escapees and stayed the night in a small house on the edge of a town. There were 19 of them, including two small children.

The frontier between Austria and Czechoslovakia at this point is actually the river Morva. But this is a mile beyond a tall dike about 20 miles long, patrolled by frontier guards and dogs.

MERCIFUL FOG

All one night they walked through flooded fields and icy marsh land. The night was too bright for safety and Sister Cecilia prayed for aid.

"A heavy fog came up as we approached the dike. I say today as I said then—it was a miracle.

"We crawled over the dike and down to the river bank. A rubber boat, carried by some men in the party, was inflated and we were carried across the Morava.

"It was January, 1953. At last I knew freedom."

For two years Sister Cecilia stayed in a convent of her order at Obernzell, Bavaria, recovering from the ordeal.

Irregular, flattened letters and her own experience have pieced together what has happened in Czechoslovakia since the fall.

HARSH OPPRESSION

"My father, youngest sister and one of my brothers are running the farm. If they produce enough, they receive coupons for sugar and cotton. If they do not the farm is taken into a collective system and they have to work on it for a wage that barely enables them to live."

The Sisters of her order who remained, are working in concentration camps, hospitals and collective farms. Their convents have been broken, the Crosses thrown away and their books and paintings destroyed.

Now she forms a new life on this continent where two of her sisters are living as new Canadians. Sister Cecilia will go to Holy Redeemer College in California where she will help look after the students.

Marie Dionne Becomes Novice In Convent

By BERTRAND THIBAULT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—Marie Dionne of the famed quintuplets has resumed her life behind the closed doors of a Quebec convent as Sister Marie Rachel, a novice in the Roman Catholic order of the Servants of the Blessed Sacrament.

The 19-year-old girl from Callander, Ont., Monday accepted her new name and donned the white garb of a novice in the cloistered order during a solemn, two-hour service. This further step to complete separation from her four quintuplet sisters — Yvonne, Annette, Cecile and Emilie—came four days before the quints 20th birthday.

In two years, if Sister Marie Rachel so decides, she will take her first vows of poverty, chastity and obedience.

Meantime, she resumes her work sewing of sacerdotal vestments for priests with her parents, meditation and adoration of the Blessed Sacrament. She left her family Nov. 3 last to become a postulant in the order and consecrate herself to silent work and meditation.

DAY WITH PARENTS

After Monday's ceremony, which some 250 persons attended, Sister Marie Rachel spent most of the day with her parents, exchanging hours which, as on other days, she passed in prayer. Her quintuplet sisters also attended the ceremony.

Questioned by newspaper men, Olivo Dionne, sister Marie Rachel's father, said only: "I found the ceremony very touching and I am very happy." Her mother ignored the queries of reporters.

At the request of convent authorities whose rules forbid photographing of a religious before she has taken her perpetual vows, police stopped photographers from entering the order's new Thabor chapel—where the ceremony took place—with flashbulb attachments on their cameras.

A ban against photographers in the garden of the new brick convent where Sister Marie Rachel met her parents after the ceremony was also strictly enforced.

Two other sisters made their first vows during the same ceremony which consisted of a low mass, sermon and adoration of the Blessed Sacrament.

BLESSED BASKET

Following the mass and sermon, Msgr. G. E. Grandmia, diocesan vicar-general, blessed a basket containing the tunic and cassock of white wool and white cotton veil for Sister Marie Rachel. While nuns chanted the "Te Deum," a song of praise, Sister Marie Rachel knelt at the foot of the flower-banked altar until the end of the blessing and then followed two nuns into the sacristy where she put on her new garb for the first time.

Later, she joined her family in the convent parlor where they presented her with an oil painting depicting Jesus with Martha and Mary in the home of Lazarus, Title of the painting was "La Maillleure Part" (The Best Choice).

Also present at the ceremony was Rev. Wilfrid D. Lachance, pastor of the parish at Corbeil, Ont., where the quints attended church as children.

Woman Opens Antique Shop In Hen House

By DOROTHY HOUR
NEW YORK (AP) — Note to bored women: want to see the world, meet interesting people and have a whale of a good time?

Then open an antique or gift shop, advises Ros duBord of Harbor Springs, Mich., who does business in a hen house.

Mrs. duBord is the picture of a happy woman. Summers she sells English silver, French porcelains, modern crystal and knicknacks from all over the world in her hen house (that's the name of it) 12 miles out in the country from the resort town of Harbor Springs. Winters she and her husband, Andre, do the same thing in Bel Air, Fla. In between times she roams the world, in search of the rare and the beautiful.

FUN MADE PROFITABLE

All this is not only fun—it's financially profitable, says Mrs. duBord. She says:

"There's no excuse for people to have drab, ugly things in their houses, because beautiful things are available at any price. The simple modern porcelains have real beauty because they're functional. The same is true of some contemporary furniture and crystal.

Mrs. duBord started a shop of her own in Toledo during the depression, found that people appreciated beauty when they found it, and prospered. Then followed a branch shop at Harbor Springs, and another at Bel Air.

Then last year they duBords closed up the Toledo shop and the swank resort shop and moved 13 miles out to a farmhouse on a country road. The farm had a hen house, and since they did not plan to raise chickens, Ros decided this would make a wonderful shop.

Government Agency Forecasts Decline in Farm Income Before Any Upward Swing

ANGLICAN BISHOP

Ven. E. S. Reed, Archdeacon of Quebec, has been elected Anglican bishop of Ottawa diocese. (CP Photo).

OTTAWA (CP) — A government agency says a current decline in average net income from farm operations could continue for some time before an upward swing.

The observation is contained in a 28-page report presented Tuesday to the Commons veterans affairs committee by T. J. Rutherford, director of the Veterans' Land Act.

Up to the end of last year, VLA had helped establish 43,018 veterans on the land, 39,281 as full-time farmers. VLA has a financial interest in one out of every 13 agricultural units in Canada, Average size of VLA farms is 198 acres.

Mr. Rutherford's brief said:

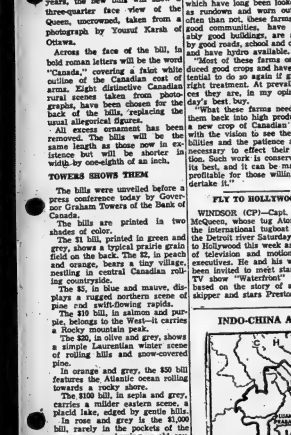
"The next few years could easily be a real testing time for the small family farm, of which we have so many . . .

"The demand for farm settlement continues steady, although retarded for some years by the increasing cost of the land, livestock and equipment necessary to set up an economic farm unit. With more stable prices now prevailing, we may very well see an increase in farm settlement during the years just ahead.

"However, capital considerably in excess of $6,000 will be necessary to effect a sound establishment even on the cheaper type of farm.

NOT SO POPULAR

"While frontier settlement on provincial (crown) land has not been nearly so popular as was originally anticipated, a very large number of our farm settlers now are engaged in the development of what we believe is a more productive, and even more important, agricultural frontier.



"Limited capital has forced many settlers, particularly the older provinces, to take farms which have long looked upon as rundown and worn out. More often than not, these farms are in good condition and have reasonably sturdy good buildings, are serviced by good roads, school and churches and have hydro available.

"Most of these farms once productive and crops and grass the potential to do so again if given the right treatment. At prevailing prices they are, in my opinion, today's best buy.

"What these farms need to put them back into high production is a new crop of Canadian pioneers with the vision to see their possibilities and the patience and skill necessary to effect their renovation. Such work is conservation at its best, and it can be made very profitable for those willing to undertake it."

WINDSOR (CP)—Capt. J. Earl McQueen, whose tug Atomiq won the international tugboat race on the Detroit river Saturday, will fly to Hollywood this week as a guest of television and motion picture executives. He and his wife have been invited to meet stars of the "Waterfront" which is based on the story of a tugboat skipper and stars Preston Foster.

New Canadian Banknotes To Be Different

OTTAWA (CP)—The traditional portrait of the reigning monarch is moved from the centre to the right-hand side of the new Canadian banknote issue to be distributed early next September.

First change in design in 17 years, the new notes show a three-quarter face view of the Queen, uncrowned, taken from a photograph by Yousuf Karsh of Ottawa.

Across the face of the bill, in bold roman letters will be the word "Canada," covering a fair while outline of the Canadian coat of arms. Eight distinctive Canadian rural scenes, from photographs, have been chosen for the back of the bills, replacing the usual allegorical figures.

All excess ornament has been removed. The bills will be the same length as those now in existence but will be shorter in width by one-eighth of an inch.

TOWERS SHOWS THEM

The bills were unveiled before a press conference today by Graham Towers of the Bank of Canada.

The bills are printed in two shades of color.

The $1 bill, printed in green and grey, shows a typical prairie grain field on the back. The $2, in green and orange, bears a tiny village nestling in central Canadian rolling countryside.

The $5, in blue and mauve, displays a rugged northern scene of pine and swift-flowing rapids.

The $10 bill, in salmon and purple, belongs to the West—to cattle or Rocky mountain peak.

The $20, in olive and grey, shows a simple Laurentian winter scene of rolling hills and snow-covered pine.

In orange and grey, the $50 bill features the Atlantic ocean rolling towards a rocky shore.

The $100 bill in sepia and grey, carries a milder eastern scene, a placid lake, edged by gentle hills.

In rose and grey is the $1,000 bill, rarely in the pockets of the average man, showing an old covered bridge, leading to farmhouses, with a lake in the background.

NO PHOTOS FOR PRESS

The Bank of Canada ruled that no photos of the new bills can be released for publication, fearing that forgers may be given a head start in printing fake bills.

However, bank officials will take the new bills on a country-wide tour, so that local newspapers and other organs may have a first-hand glimpse of them before distribution takes place.

The bills will tour Montreal, Quebec City and Toronto within the next few days.

The new issue will not mean that all bills now in circulation will be withdrawn. Mr. Towers made clear the new bills only will be issued to replace worn banknotes turned in to the banks.

Will Restore Pensions

OTTAWA (CP)—Seven members of the RCMP discharged since 1949 for inefficiency or misconduct will have their pensions restored in part under retroactive legislation introduced Tuesday in the Commons.

The bill changes an RCMP pension plan, in effect since 1949, to allow a partial pension to be paid to members of the force discharged for inefficiency or misconduct.

The struggle in Indo-China is not just a colonial war involving one people taking sides with one foreign army or another in a big-power pawn play, but a complicated issue involving three kingdoms and a dozen different cultural and religious sects. Though Viet Nam is now the battlefield and its 20,000,000 inhabitants are the ones principally involved in the war, the neighboring provinces of Cambodia and Laos know that they would be next on the list for conquest if the Communist forces of Ho Chi Minh conquered all of Viet Nam. Whether the divergent groups in Cambodia and Laos would unite to repel aggression is open to question. (Central Press Canadian).

Labor Requests Change in Sections Of Riot Act

OTTAWA (CP)—The possibility of more specific Written of Ottawa breaking in on a group of senators doing it the Charles Lauzier, reading them the Riot Act and ordering them to disperse was suggested in a Senate committee Tuesday.

Legal counsel for the Canadian Congress of Labor admitted that his illustration of the operations of the Riot Act sections in the proposed new Criminal Code was a bit overdrawn. But it wasn't impossible.

M. W. Wright, counsel for the 375,000-member labor body, described the situation in a brief outlining the congress' attitude towards the riot and other sections of the code which now is being studied in detail by the Senate banking committee.

The wording of the riot sections, he said, makes it imperative for a justice, mayor or sheriff to read the Riot Act if given notice that 12 or more persons are "unlawfully and riotously assembled." A malicious individual had only to hand the mayor a notice to that effect to set off a chain reaction, Mr. Wright said it was possible that this machinery would be started in operation during a strike while union members were meeting at the union hall.

The congress suggested that the wording of the section be changed to state that the Riot Act does not have to be read unless the mayor or sheriff "is satisfied that such persons are riotously and tumultuously assembled."

The congress also repeated the submission it has made several times in the last two years—that conspiracy be struck from proposed code on breach of contract. Its brief said this is a civil matter and ought not to be a part of criminal law.

However, several senators said they could not agree that depriving a city of essential public services such as water, light and transportation by a strike should be entirely a civil matter.

Canadian Forces May Be Out Of Korea in Year

OTTAWA (CP) — The army dropped a hint Tuesday that it believes Canadian forces will be in Korea for a year, or at least.

An army announcement said: "Canada's 25th Infantry Brigade in the Far East has assumed a peacetime makeup that is unlikely to change for the remainder of the year. Canadian troops are committed in the Korean theatre."

MAKES JUBILEE

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger will be celebrated pontifical mass at the Seminary of Montreal to mark the silver jubilee of his ordination.

MAN-EATING BEAR KILLED WITH AXE

Two swings of this axe by Ernie Muldamski, 22, were enough to kill a 600-pound bear as it clawed and chewed his father, Nick Muldamski, 55. "I was being eaten alive," the father said after he had been picked up by a lands and forests department plane and taken to the hospital in Hearst, Ont. The bear had attacked suddenly as they were walking through the bush, 75 miles from Hearst. The animal knocked the older man down and pinned him to the ground, giving Ernie, above, a chance to use the axe. Ernie walked 30 miles to get help. (Central Press Canadian).

Mexican Indians at Birth Of Christ Growing Tobacco, Smoking Filtered Tip Cigarets

OTTAWA (CP)—About the time of the birth of Christ Indians in the northern Mexican state of Tamaulipas were growing tobacco and smoking cigarets with filter tips.

This is one of the conclusions of an Ottawa husband-and-wife team who recently returned from Mexico with what is believed to be the most extensive mass of material ever found relating to the history of smoking on this continent.

Dr. R. S. MacNeish, a Victoria-Montreal museum anthropologist, and his wife, June, who is an M.A. of the University of Toronto, and lecturers at Carleton College here on anthropology, made fruitful excavations.

SEVEN CULTURES

Their main discoveries were made in a cave in which were the remains of seven cultures, going as far back as 9,000 years, one another in chronological sequence and who lived in different ways.

Vegetable specimens were found mingled with pottery fragments, pieces of baskets, mats, rules of dwellings and skeletons. By studying such fragments, anthropologists can form fairly complete pictures of how the people who left them lived.

Dr. MacNeish, also a graduate of the University of Chicago, said the most group which lived in the cave gathered wild plants.

The second group brought beans and squash under cultivation and the third group, a sort of wild grass which, "could be" an ancestor of our present-day corn. The fourth cross-bred the corn and produced two varieties not dissimilar to types now grown in Mexico, said.

FILTER FILTERS

One of the later groups grew tobacco and smoked it in tubes made of cut cane. Into some of the canes they introduced vegetable fibres, apparently to act as filters.

Dr. MacNeish, for the present, is hesitant about dating the cultures, because further investigation is needed before anything definite is known.

He said they would be similar to those revealed by excavations he made in 1948 and 1949 about 200 miles from the spot. One cave discovered at that time contained traces of eight cultures dating back about 10,000 years.

Man Chewed, Clawed by Big Black Bear in Wilderness

HEARST, Ont. (CP)—Nick Muldamski, 55, claims he was chewed, caught, chewed and clawed by a black bear during a wilderness battle 75 miles northeast of here.

Muldamski, recovering in hospital in this community 150 miles northwest of Timmins, said he owed his life to his son, Ernie, 22, who grabbed an axe and killed the 600-pound bear to death while it pinned his father to the ground.

"That's about the way it was there," the father said. "I was helpless and the bear was eating me alive."

The scene said the attack occurred so quickly last Friday afternoon that he still can hardly believe it happened.

"One minute we were walking over a hill and the next minute the bear was attacking. Dad fired four shots but they didn't do any good. It was the biggest bear I've ever seen. He just kept coming."

After killing the bear, Ernie said Muldamski bandaged his father's head, chest and legs with flour bags. He lifted him reach a canoe 500 yards away and then covered his wounds by portage and paddle to the men's main camp.

The ex-patient lay a week help at Hornepayne, 30 miles away. He travelled four miles by canoe, then walked the rest of the way, using jackpine country with patches of dense undergrowth. He saw another bear. It was burying food in the forest and he gave it a wide berth.

He tumbled into Bayfield lake. There was no time to dry his clothes; so he kept walking.

Thirty-one hours after he set out for Hornepayne he reached his goal. He arranged for a plane to bring his father to hospital and flew in it during the rescue mission.

Muldamski and his son started their trapping expedition from Hearst April 7. They went by train to Otu, then changed by skis. They got 28 beavers and 15 muskrats and were preparing to start home when they encountered the bear.

Three Women Are Evicted From Flat

MONTREAL (CP) — Three women who hadn't left their flat in months were evicted Tuesday after forcibly resisting a police invasion for more than an hour. They were taken to police headquarters for their own protection.

Police said two bailiffs had a court order to evict the three sisters—Miss Georgette Robillard, 52, Miss Blanche Robillard, 46, and Miss Roland Proulx, 42.

The bailiffs said the eviction was obtained by the landlord, Philippe Dandurand, who wanted the women out because of complaints received from neighbors.

Nearby residents said the women had been outside the flat for 11 months. They received food and other necessities by means of a basket lowered on a rope from the rear balcony.

TREASURES ON SHOW

LONDON (Reuters) — The late Queen Mary's legendary collection of art treasures went on show to the public for the first time Tuesday. The exhibition included about 4,000 items, including fourteen paintings, porcelain pieces, jewels and trinkets of every kind.

Bitter Union Fight Reaches Election Stage

NEW YORK (AP) — A bitter union fight for the right to represent 25,000 dock workers in the port of New York reached a vote today in a National Labor Relations Board election.

Heavy police details patrolled the waterfront to prevent repetition of the intimidation and strong - arm tactics which caused the results of a pre-Christmas election to be scrapped.

Last-minute claims of victory were made by spokesmen for both the International Longshoremen's Association (Ind.) and the rival AFL union of the same name.

Varied voting hours, between 7 a.m. and 8 p.m. EDT were set for three polling places in New York City and three across the Hudson river in New Jersey. The council will start at as armory here at 9:30 p.m. and the NLRB regional director, Charles T. Douds, may be able to announce the result soon after midnight.

The NLRB assembled a staff of 100 officials to supervise the election.

With feelings running high between adherents of the rival unions, police commissioner Francis W. H. Adams put 2,500 New York policemen on waterfront patrol. Over the last several days, hundreds of police were detailed on the waterfront.

PLACED IN RECEIVERSHIP

The ILA, which ruled waterfront labor for decades before it was ousted from the AFL for racketeering racketeers, received another body blow on the eve of the election. Federal judge David N. Edelstein placed it in receivership Tuesday.

Edelstein appointed Raymond J. Scully, an attorney, to head the ILA's State Bar Association, as receiver. Scully's responsibilities will be to collect fines levied on the ILA for a strike in defiance of a federal injunction.

Patrick J. (Packy) Connolly, ILA executive vice - president, testified Monday that individual members of the union have voluntarily contributed their homes to pay the fine. The ILA's cash has shrunk to $1,000,000 during the past year, he said.

Scully will be empowered by Edelstein to assure payment of the fine.

All Forest Fires in Ontario Are Brought Under Control; Check Big Haileybury Blaze

TORONTO (CP) — All forest fires in Ontario are under control, the lands and forests department announced today.

A big blaze near Haileybury was brought under control after an all-night battle. A few hours earlier a serious outbreak in the Sudbury area was checked.

Altogether, 43 fires were being fought in northern sections today.

More than 150 men were thrown into the fight against the Haileybury fire Tuesday night. The fire is being fought on all fronts, and planes and two helicopters are still being used in an attempt to extinguish the blaze.

More than 2,000 acres of woodland have been destroyed by this fire, believed started by careless fishermen.

Firefighters were enlisted from Cobalt, Haileybury, New Liskeard, Timagami, Latchford and Elk Lake. A specially trained crew of Indians from the Burwash Industrial Farm, that had been battling the blaze near Sudbury, was sent to Haileybury last night.

About 200 acres was burned over by Sudbury fire.

Hydro Hopes For A-Power In Three Years

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario Hydro Chairman Robert H. Saunders said Tuesday atomic-generated electric power is "three years away for Ontario—"if we need it."

Mr. Saunders, on return from a European tour of European countries, said he "doubts if any country is very advanced" in this field as Britain.

While overseas he visited an atomic electrical power installation now being assembled in England.

He said Ontario Hydro through Canada, has established close liaison to obtain information for constructing similar plants in this province when needed.

Asked about other electrical power is about two and one-half years away in Great Britain, he said:

Mr. Saunders said he is confident the first unit on the St. Lawrence power project will be turned on this summer, possibly as early as July.

Cohn Will Prove Schine Did Much Committee Work

By JACK KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Roy M. Cohn said today that he and Senator McCarthy will offer "documentary proof" that Pvt. G. David Schine did a large amount of work for the Senate investigations subcommittee during time off from the army.

Cohn made the comment in advance of the third day of public hearings into the dispute between the United States Army and the Wisconsin Republican senator.

The investigating senators have heard testimony that Schine received ill favors, at the request of Cohn, for himself his aides who said he was needed for sub-committee business, during eight weeks of basic training after he was drafted last November, compared with no more than four for the average trainee.

An army effort to portray that graphically by means of charts brought vigorous protests from McCarthy and Cohn Tuesday. The senator said the charts were "completely dishonest, phony" as the army had prepared them, and that the obvious purpose was to deceive the public. Army officers disputed that.

McCarthy and Cohn, his subcommittee's chief counsel, have been charged by army officials with improper pressure to bear to get favored army treatment for Schine, who was an unpaid sub-committee consultant before being drafted.

SENSATIONAL INVESTIGATION

In turn, they have accused Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens and army counsel John G. Adams of treating Schine with favors to sidetrack the sub-committee's investigation of alleged espionage in the army. McCarthy has stepped off the sub-committee for this inquiry.

Cohn told reporters that he does not know if Schine will take the stand to describe under oath his activities while assigned to Fort Dix, N.J., after he was inducted Nov. 3.

"But we have documents — notes in his own handwriting — that will show the tremendous work on committee reports in that period," Cohn said. "We are prepared to prove that he was active on committee business while he was out on KP."

Maj.-Gen. Cornelius E. Ryan, Fort Dix commander, testified Tuesday that his inspector-general had failed to find any evidence to back up charges reports that Schine visited night clubs while on a pass.

DENIED ADMITTANCE

In other army testimony, Col. Kenneth R. Bergquist, executive officer in Stevens' office, testified Cohn "blew his top" when he was denied admittance to a secret laboratory on a visit to Fort Monmouth, N.J., with Stevens and McCarthy and others Oct. 20.

Bergquist testified Cohn said in effect:

"This is it. This is war with the army. I'll show everybody why you let Communists work in here and you won't tell me in. I have been cleared for classified information. I have access to FBI files when I want them. You are doing this just to embarrass me. We will investigate the heck out of you."

McCarthy contended it was "a waste of time" to go into the matter because "it has nothing to do with the charges brought against it."

STIRLING

St. Paul's, Stirling, Concludes Centennial With Two Services

By MRS. PERCY MacMULLEN

Rev. Harold B. Neal, D.D., minister of Christian Church, Stirling, in Lindsay, gave two special messages on Sunday at St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, in connection with the closing of their Centennial year.

Those who have followed the Centennial services know what a momentous task it has been with many outstanding ministers presenting messages on various subjects and all were a great spiritual help to those who availed themselves of the opportunity to be in attendance.

The church was decorated with bouquets of mauve lilacs, woody pine and white apple blossoms, a memorial basket from Mr. E. Bailey and red and white carnations from "the family of the late Delbert Fleming."

WELCOME TENDERED

The pastor, Rev. A. E. Baker, presided and extended a gracious welcome to Rev. Harold B. Neal, and spoke of their past associations on other pastorates.

Mr. Baker spoke of the hallowed memories at Centennial year and voiced thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Walter T. Elliott and Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Patterson, who had been ready to assist in any way to promote the project.

Mrs. A. E. Baker, A.R.C.T., presided at the organ and rendered "A Netherlands Melody," "A Silesian Crusader's Hymn" and Martin Luther's "Feste Burg."

The Royal Junior Choir sang "Soldiers of Christ Arise," and the senior choir rendered Kirgar's "Land of Hope and Glory," while Mr. Thomas Wills contributed a festival number.

The processional hymn, a Scottish psalter of 1650, was an appropriate choice for closing Centennial day in May 1954.

The old Methodist collection boxes, on loan from Bwitzerville for the past year, were used for the last time on Sunday. Messrs. Cecil Macklin, Claude Tucker, Hector Eggleton, Harry Hesman and Harold Hagerman gathered the offering.

A number of visitors were in the audience and this included Mayor Naylor, of Oshawa, with his wife and family. The large congregation joined in the rendition of that well known selection "The Church of God."

ESSENTIALS OF RELIGION

Rev. H. B. Neal brought greetings from his church in Lindsay and expressed congratulations. He based his message on "The Essentials of Religion," and aptly pictured what the Lord requires of each individual if they are to be His followers. He compared Bible lessons in the Old and New Testaments and said justice and kindness is what is needed most in today's world.

He graphically pictured all the sacrifices that people brought to God in Bible days, their observance of feasts and pilgrimages and yet all this availed them nothing. Great religious leaders, such as Isaiah and Micah, on down through New Testament days all have pleaded for justice. This was one of God's supreme commands and it is needed today in order to create a better human relationship. If individuals would only treat others as they would like to be treated and so observe "The Golden Rule."

Great men of today working in various organizations are trying mannerly, courteous, not forgetting to say thank you, in office, shop, business, municipal life and above all to be kindly and sympathetic in the home and to walk humbly with thy God. The greatest thing in the world today is justice and this old world would take on a new glow of happiness if everyone in it practise kindliness."

Mr. Neal felt that Mr. Baker and his Centennial committee were most courageous to plan the last two services on a long holiday week-end when so many people were travelling on the highways and camping at summer resorts.

SURPRISE PRESENTATION

At this time, Mr. Harold Hagerman, recording steward, spoke of the historic centennial services and paid tribute to the vision and ability of the pastor in the year's program and said the Centennial committee wished to place his name on the endowment directory.

He then eulogized the work of Mrs. A. E. Baker, organist and director of both senior and junior choirs and this group had arranged to have Mrs. Baker's name on the endowment directory. At this time Mr. Neal dedicated the two oak plates which were handcarved and handed them to Mr. George Carlisle, clerk of session, who installed them on the directory.

Mr. Baker, although taken by surprise, graciously expressed thanks on behalf of himself and Mrs. Baker and paid tribute to Mr. and Mrs. Bert Hanna, who were the donors of this directory board in 1948. This endowment gift plan opens a door in which the gifts are deposited as a capital fund and the interest can be used yearly as desired. This is the second time within a month that Mr. Baker has been so honored as his former charge at Old Davenport Road recently placed his name permanently in their church.

The service closed with that ringing hymn of fellowship and service, to give heart and soul and mind and strength to serve the King of Kings.

Following the benediction, the large audience sang the Centennial theme song, "Near to the Heart of God."

Mr. Neal and Mr. Baker then greeted the church audience in the hall and the first part of this great closing centennial was another link in the history of St. Paul's.

Sea-going trailers
A WESTERN shipper thought this one up. He handles freight to and from Alaska by means of aluminum vans which are loaded, driven to the dock, and there lifted by cranes from their chassis into the ship's hold. Saves a lot of cargo handling, damage and pilfering. The vans can be individually heated or refrigerated to protect special cargoes, too.
More than a thousand different Canadian companies keep busy turning Canadian-made aluminum into everything from ash trays to minesweepers. And it keeps us busy wondering how next they will use this modern metal to save weight, or time, or trouble, or dollars for somebody.

FOR TRAINING PARATROOPERS

This is a 257-foot jump tower at Camp Shilo near Rivers, Man., where prospective Canadian Army paratroopers take their initial training. The army has trained 7,300 paratroopers at Camp Shilo and Rivers since the Second World War—enough to form the fighting component of an airborne division. It takes four weeks to train a paratrooper, including six jumps from aircraft during the last week. The men are hoisted up to the top of this jump tower and the machine lets them drop. 7,300 Paratroopers Trained For Mobile Striking Force

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

RIVERS, Man. (CP)—Out of the sky they tumble—one by one or by "sticks"—to the broad prairie.

These are the men who would be called on to repulse any attack by airborne troops on Canada. They are known officially as the "mobile striking force."

The army has trained 7,300 paratroops here and at nearby Camp Shilo since the Second World War —enough to form the jumping component of an airborne division. The United States Army has only two airborne divisions.

STRONG STRIKING FORCE

Three battalions comprise the striking force—1st Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry at Calgary, 1st Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment at London, Ont., and 1st Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment, at Valcartier, Que.

Defence Minister Claxton said recently that any airborne attack on Canada probably would be on a small scale and that the mobile striking force would be able to mop it up.

Besides the jumpers in the three battalions, there are thousands of other trained paratroops stationed with various units throughout Canada and abroad. In event of emergency, they would join the mobile striking force immediately.

Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, chief of the general staff, has said the army's key role at home in case of war would be defence of air force ground installations, including radar stations.

He said: "No invasion of this continent is possible unless the enemy is able to gain control of air and sea communications. The major threat of invasion is in the air. Therefore, it is necessary to give protection to the air force's early-warning stations with the mobile striking force."

FINE RECORD

It takes four weeks to train a paratrooper, including six jumps from aircraft during the last week. There has been no fatal casualty among trainees here or at Shilo, where all of the army's paratroops are trained.

"Every jump is an ordeal, no matter how many times you've gone through it," says paratrooper Lieut. John Davis of Birchill, Sask. personnel selection officer here. He weeds out the men he thinks are not suited to jumping.

The soldiers who never start training are those who would be misfits in almost any job, who are maladjusted and neurotic and show their anxiety, or who are afraid of height.

A paratrooper's training extends all the way from heights of four inches to 1,200 feet.

After two weeks of rigid physical training at their parent units, would-be paratroopers come here for three weeks of intensive ground training before they hit the silk from aircraft.

STEPS IN TRAINING

First, they jump off platforms only four inches high and practice going through doors. A little later come the "torture racks." The men are swung above mats and learn to land like cats.

A paratrooper learns to roll as he hits. Five-point landings, they are called: Ball of the foot, calf of the leg, thigh, rump and rounded shoulder.

A jumper keeps his arms as high as possible on the suspension lines to prevent injury and to cushion the fall as much as possible.

Next come the 35-foot towers, where a soldier steps off into space and is caught eight feet down by steel cables. The last stage of the ground training is the 256-foot towers at Shilo where a man drops on a previously-opened parachute. A trainee makes seven to 10 drops from the towers.

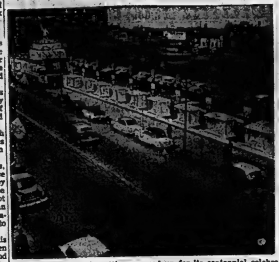
The soldier now is ready for his first air drop. He goes to the open door of the C-119 flying packet and the instructor taps him on the shoulder—never shoves. Very few refuse to jump.

MOMENT OF DOUBT

"It gets so that a man is more afraid that he won't jump than of the jump itself," Lieut. Davis says.

"It's an effort each and every time. You can always get hurt. But once the 'chute is open above you, there's a big sigh of relief. Then a short and joke with each other on the way down. You're happy as long as you can see that canopy above you."

The first air drop is made singly. After that the paratroopers jump by "sticks." Their packs hook onto a cable running the length of the aircraft and the parachutes open automatically at the right moment after they jump. Forty-two men can go almost at once from the C-119, 21 from each side.



"You can see the tension build up as the plane nears the DZ (dropping zone)," says Lieut. Davis. "You always see that tension, no matter how many times a man has jumped and we've got some that have jumped 150 or more times. And back at their battalions, the men keep jumping just to keep in trim.

"Any well adjusted man can become a jumper—and in only four weeks."

Biggest danger in marriage!

Is it money problems or personality clashes? Famous marriage counselor, Dr. Paul Popenoe, shows the astonishing way they are related in the case of a young doctor and his pretty wife. WINDSOR CELEBRATION

Windsor, Ont., is getting spruced up for its centennial celebrations. Ouellette Avenue, the city's main street, is lined with booths which will be sold to merchants for display purposes. Illuminated with neon a birthday cake, 28 feet high and with 100 candles, is at left. A loud speaker in the cake blares music all day. (CP Photo).

Chicago White Sox Nip Cleveland Indians' Winning Streak At 11 Games

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

"DEEP FROM THE HEART"

We have yet to see a wrestling referee do his ring stuff on stilts, but unless the powers-that-be import an official that is much longer in his underpinning than either Sammy Godder or Joe Golloh, there might be a little difficulty in Memorial Arena on Friday night.

For headlining the card is a Texas buckaroo that stretches upward to some six feet nine inches, we are informed, who at times wears a steel helmet to protect his noggin' from rather bumps. His name is Tex McKenzie and it is said he is the largest hunk of humanity, or one of them ever to emanate from the Lone Star State.

Breathing the lower stratosphere with Tex will be Big Ike Eakins, who isn't exactly a midget when it comes to physique and height. These two Carmichaels of the ring will clash in the main bout and it is likely the referee will sprinkle from astride a central rafter, or a steam shovel.

Back again are those four half-pints of the ring, the midgets, Little Beaver, Little Cupid, he of the flowing locks and scowling countenance, Mac Rae and Ski-Lo-Lo. These jumping jacks have a new bag of tricks that should be good for a mouth laughter and wrestling entertainment as last Friday's show. Don Lewin and Pat Flanagan will open the hostilities.

BASEBALL!

Manager Jack Carson and Coach Vern Goyer were satisfied with the performance of the Bata senior baseball club in Peterborough on Monday.

"There are quite a few wrinkles to iron out yet," said Carson, "and our pitching staff has not quite rounded into shape. I feel the team will be as good as any when they get a few more games under their collective belts, and will turn in a lot of creditable performances."

"We will surprise a lot of them yet," said big Vern.

"The boys did all right, but they're going to work a lot harder now than they did before. We are going to practice every night this week and I am trying to get the whole shebang ready and rarin' to go for Saturday's game against Toronto. The Batas are strictly a homebrew squad and we are going to keep it that way. There is nothing wrong with the team that a little practice and lots of work won't cure."

SOFTBALLS

While the approved schedule of the Belleville District Softball League has not been officially released as yet, Secretary Bill Seymour has announced the games slated for this week. Tonight the Madoc team plays at Stewart-Warner, while Paul Mercier's Bluebirds trek to Frankford. Tomorrow night the Bobcats take on the Northerns at the CNR Field at 6:30, while Point Anne goes to Madoc to play at eight o'clock. On Friday night the Bluebirds and Stewart-Warner clash at the CNR Field at 6:30 and on Saturday night the Bobcats entertain the Frankford team at the Alemite Field at 6.30.

THREE TORONTO GALS!

Talking with a sports pal in Peterborough prior to the Batas-Petes game last Monday, we learned that the Toronto Nortown Ladies' Softball team, slated to play a Belleville male all-star contest on June 5, are no small "punkins" with the evergrown baseball.

"These gals can really handle that ball, not to mention the war-clubs. They can run bases like seared deer and can pull down flies like a veteran major-leaguer," he said.

"I have seen them play in Toronto on numerous occasions and you can tell your Belleville folks they are in for a real softball treat when these little ladies turn on the diamond heat."

The Nortowns, which include a former Belleville softball great, Marie Kirkpatrick, formerly Genereaux, are sending their strongest line-up here, and the mere males of the species will have to do their best if they expect to win. These gals really play for keeps and there is no skullduggery when they go into action. Fandom should not miss this attraction. The game starts at 6.30 June 5.

• • • •

THAT MAN AGAIN!

Some lucky lady or gentleman is going to wear a handsome "Bluebird" diamond ring worth $100 after the curtain falls on the last home game of Paul Mercier's "Bluebirds" junior softball team. That is what the man says.

And Paul is not fooling. After each home game of the "Bluebirds" a ticket will be drawn and placed in a drum. At the end of the home schedule the lucky ticket will be extracted and somebody will boast a free "sparkler." The moral of this is: hang on to your admission tickets when you attend a "Bluebirds" home game.

And that is not all. The "Bluebirds" open their home stand against the Stewart-Warner team at the CNR Recreation Park on Friday night starting at 6.30. The first fifty ladies to enter the gate will receive a piece of handsome costume jewellery, compliments of Paul. Don't say you weren't told.

Hand Bob Lemon First Loss As Yankees Edge Nearer Top; Giants Topple Pirates 21-4

By BEN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

Cleveland Indians might have known that when their winning streak was broken the villains would be Chicago White Sox.

The Indians put an 11-game string on the line in Chicago Tuesday night and the White Sox promptly snapped it with a 4-3 decision. If the streak had been the other way around, Cleveland probably would have won.

That's the way these perennial runners-up in the American League have been going each other regularly during the last three seasons.

Cleveland leads the league by a game and a half over the Sox, with the thrice-beaten New York Yankees uncomfortably close, only two games out.

The Yanks took advantage of the Indians' misfortune to close the gap, beating Washington 8-2. Detroit shaded Baltimore 5-4 in 12 innings. Boston left Philadelphia Athletics in last place all alone by winning 5-2.

In the National League, Milwaukee Braves won their eighth in a row, Cincinnati Redlegs, New York Giants slammed 22-hits in beating Pittsburgh 21-4, Brooklyn defeated Chicago Cubs 9-4, Philadelphia at Brooklyn was postponed.

LEMON'S FIRST

In beating Cleveland, the White Sox not only broke the team's winning streak but they pinned the first loss of the season on Bob Lemon, who had won six. Two of their runs off Lemon came without a hit.

Whitey Ford went the distance for the first time this season as the Yankees ruined Bucky Harris' night in Washington with a 12-hit assault. Mickey Mantle led the Yankee attack with a home run and two singles.

Detroit's long-ball attack ruined Ted Wilks' pitching debut. Wilks, of a losing streak which now runs to five games. Trailing 3-2, the Tigers hit the ball out in the last of the ninth on a home run by Jim Delsing. The Orioles scored in the 11th only to have Johnny Pesky get his first hit of the season a two-run homer, in the last of the 11th, in the 12th, Al Kaline singled home Delsing with the run which came with a triple.

Catcher Sammy White turned from goat to star with a ninth-inning home run for Boston over Philadelphia. He had hit into three double plays earlier in the game.

HONORS FEATURE

Two home runs sewed up Milwaukee's victory at Cincinnati. Joe Adcock doubled in the 10th and Hank Aaron homered. Then pitcher Warren Spahn, who allowed only six hits, followed with a home run to sew up his fifth victory.

The Giants' assault on the hapless Pirates was the second heaviest of the season, topped only by Chicago's 23-13 victory over St. Louis late in April. The Giants scored 11 runs in the eighth inning, tops in either league so far. In the meantime, Giant pitcher Ray Monzant Lockman hit a grand-slam home run.

The Cardinals' victory over the Cubs was a runaway for rookie Wally Moon, who stole four bases. The modern National League record of five in a game was set 30 years ago this week by Dan McGann of the Giants.

Chuck Davey Underdog In Martinez Fight

CHICAGO (AP)—Chuck Davey, who was given a boxing lesson by welterweight champion Kid Gavilan in his last Chicago Stadium appearance, steps into the same ring tonight against slugging Vince Martinez as a 7-to-5 underdog.

Martinez, 25-year-old Paterson, N.J., fighter, is ranked sixth in the welterweight bracket and has 20 knockouts among his 33 victories in 36 fights. It is his first Chicago start.

Davey, 28-year-old former Michigan State collegiate champion with a master's degree in education, returns to the scene of his most dismal astrous bout.

On Feb. 11, 1953, Gavilan stopped the one-time television glamor boy in the 10th, handing the southpaw swingstyle first defeat in a rapid build-up to the championship shot.

Gavilan did his job with such thoroughness and comparative ease that Davey was reduced in ratings to just another welterweight.

But instead of forsaking the ring, as some expected, the quick-fisted Detroiter started his campaign all over again. Since that time he has had six bouts, winning half of them.

Belleville Pair Places Second In Bowls Tourney

Barbara and "Slub" Armstrong, Belleville's "Mr. and Mrs. Bowling" by virtue of their win here last Friday, came very close to winning the regional title in Kingston.

The Armstrongs rolled a pinfall aggregate of 1958, just 27 pins short of the 1985 compiled by Vi and Dick Barnett of Kingston who won the regional crown.

The teams played four games including handicap.

The runners received the Moe Berman Trophy competed for annually and a picnic "cake" cooler. The Armstrongs were the recipients of a handsome silver serving tray.

The regional tournament will be played in Deseronto next year.

Harness Racing Is Expanding At Rapid Rate in Canada

By MEL MORRIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Harness racing is expanding at a fast clip. Betting figures are rolling up across the country with the biggest development in this city where two renovated tracks are offering rich purses.

Residents of all 10 provinces have an opportunity to follow the sport—scene at country fairs and others at tracks open from late April to mid-November. Attendance highs are expected in Quebec and the Maritimes.

Montreal ranks as the capital of the sport following a decision by Blue Bonnets track to discontinue its thoroughbred meet and concentrate on the sulky drivers, leaving the city without a Sunday track for the second time in 30 years. The owners opened the renovated track April 25 and originally planned for a midsummer recess, with the possibility of a shorter one third meet during that time if they could confine the Labor purse dispute with horse owners.

SAVE UP IDEA

They quickly abandoned the plan however, with gustatory receipts of $1,200,000 the first 16 days of the spring meeting. Now they are rearranging their schedule to have the trotters and pacers go six days a week until June 19.

Across town, on the eastern outskirts, the new Blue Bonnets track is planning a $15,000 event but no date has been announced. Sept. 19 has been set for the Trot for $7,500 and the National Derby Pace for a like amount. Both dates are expected to attract top horses from across the continent.

The track opened May 13 with a 126-wicket pari-mutuel. Officials report attendance up about 30 per cent over the same period last year, despite poor weather.

The Quebec City track, with 120 programs scheduled, will run for three days short of $5,000. The biggest attraction will be the five-mile trot for all comers June 30, an event filled as the world championship. Other $5,000 runs are the Canadian Trotting Derby Sept. 26.

The only place in Canada where the harness sport seems on the way out is at Connaught track at Aylmer, near Ottawa.

ONTARIO SCHEDULE

Ontario has 22 tracks preparing for the summer schedules, topped by Toronto's Woodbine lay-out. The biggest purse—$8,200—is the Canadian Cup Pace, part of Woodbine's 56-day meet which opens July 8. The $5,000 Canadian Racing Derby at New Hamburg Aug. 11 will highlight the season at that track.

Hamilton drivers had planned to open in Edmonton on August 23 but inadequate weather forced cancellation of the meet. Few horses have trained and the Canadian circuit, scheduled to open after Edmonton, may also be postponed.

Prospects are good for the July 1 meeting at High River, centre of a harness-racing activity in the province. Purses range from $125 to $500.

George McPherson, president of the Saskatchewan Standard Bred Horse Association, says the situation in the province "looks pretty prosperous right now." Fifteen meetings are scheduled. The first at Fort Qu'Appelle opened May 24. The top race will be at North Battleford in August, with a $1,000 purse.

There is no major harness racing in Manitoba. Most activity is confined to summer fairs for small purses.

LADNER B.C. MEET

Harness racing in B.C. faces a nine-day meet at Ladner, 20 miles south of Vancouver, scheduled to end early in June. An average of $2,000 a day in purses is distributed among approximately 70 horses.

Interest in the sport is booming throughout the Maritimes. New Brunswick promoters expect a banner season and the Saint John track has filled all dates open to two programs a week. Tracks at Woodstock, St. Stephen, Fredericton, Chatham, Buctouche, Moncton and Shediac have improved their lighting plants and expect heavy betting.

The Nova Scotia season opened May 24 in Truro and Sydney with daytime cards, switching to night in mid-June. Owners of the Sackville Bridgewater track have decided to re-open that track and many of the province's top horses are being moved to Quebec and Ontario to bid for purse well above the average $225 offered at home tracks.

A new night racing plant will be opened at Summerside, P.E.I., this year. The season started at both Summerside and Charlottetown May 24 with purses ranging from $100 to a top of $1,000.

In Newfoundland the owners run their horses for fun alone. There are no cash prizes, no betting and no admission charge for the fortnightly events. From 10 to 12 harness compete, with the top trotter getting a trophy at the end of the season.

Talbot Doubts Nationals Would Favor Playing American Teams in Schedule

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Hank Greenberg has picked a poor time to propose that the two major leagues whip up a sperk interest by playing a number of games against each other as part of their regular 154-game schedules.

Cleveland's general manager would have each of the 16 big-league clubs play two games in its home park against each of the eight teams in the rival circuit. The results would show, on an even footing the league standings the same as any others. Hank figures that the fans of one-team cities, in particular, would break down the fences to see the stars of the opposite league in action.

It would be extremely difficult but not so all the National League on the scheme. The older league, for one reason, considers itself not in need of any back-door handouts, having won the last four all-star games and expecting to make it five this summer at Cleveland. The Nationals have not begun to forget those bitter days when rivals were depositing 8 on them 12 times in the first 18 games, including one string of seven out of eight.

NATIONAL 'NAME' LEAGUE

Additionally, the Nationals feel that the pendulum finally has swung strongly in their favor both in the matter of colorful, home run hitting "name" players and in the over-all quality of their eight-member teams. With only one club, Pittsburgh, obviously out of the race, the National League expects to put on a thriller right through the summer and to outdraw the American League by a wide margin.

With respect to individual gate attractions, the American League, with the exception of Mickey Mantle, cannot be said to have produced a really exciting figure in recent years, and the Yankee phenom has not yet lived up to his billing.

The disparity between the leagues in that respect was pointed up sharply by the spectacular return of Ted Williams to the lineup of the Boston Red Sox. Since Joe DiMaggio left the Yankees, the junior league has no other attraction to compare with Williams.

HOMERS TITLE MONOPOLY

The last American leaguer to win the home run sweepstakes was Greenberg, himself, and that was back in 1946 when Ralph Kiner smote 44 of them for Detroit. Since then it has been a National League monopoly, Ralph Kiner sharing honors with Johnny Mize twice, and went it outright four times. Last year young Ed Mathews of Milwaukee took over with 47 big shots.

Then there is Willie Mays of the Giants, the great Stan Musial of the Cardinals, Roy Campanella of the Dodgers, Hank Sauer of the Cubs, Ted Kluszewski of Cincinnati, Robin Roberts of the Phillies, and doubtless others who become quickly to mind. It seems here that, as a group, they surpass any similar set the American League can offer at the box office.

Leafs Nip Bisons In 11th Inning; Chiefs Snap String

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Syracuse nightmare is over—the 18-game losing streak which dropped them from first place in the International League to a tie for sixth in two weeks.

The Chiefs trailed Rochester Red Wings 7-0 Tuesday night before the club pitching of 20-year-old righthander Jim Owens. Manager Skeeter Newsome's club are seven games behind the pace-setting Toronto Maple Leafs. Meanwhile the Leafs nipped Buffalo Bisons 6-5 in an 11-inning game.

Havana Cuban Sugar Kings moved into third place by edging Montreal Royals 6-5. In the other game, Ottawa outslugged Richmond Virginians 12-11.

Bobby Wilcox's 11th-inning single gave the Leafs their seventh straight victory and 13 of their last 14 games. Ray Shore received credit for the win while Frank Lary took the defeat.

Darrell Johnson's passed ball enabled Ottawa to shade the Virginians. After Bob Bruce held the score with a four-run ninth Tuesday, Ottawa got them in four runs for Ottawa, with a single and a home run. Jim Dyck hit a homer for Richmond.

The Sugar Kings drove Bob Lasko out of work in a six-run first barrage in the second inning and held off a late drive by the Royals.

Lucky 'Bucky' Gets New 'Caddy' On Harris Night

WASHINGTON (AP) — They wheeled out a new Cadillac for Bucky Harris Tuesday night and Clark Griffith, owner of the Senators, saluted Bucky as "one of baseball's finest fellows who ever played baseball."

The occasion was "Bucky Harris Night," honoring the onetime boy wonder who led Washington Senators to a world championship in his first year as a manager. That was in 1924 when Bucky was a 27-year-old stripling.

Tuesday night's festivities preceded the game between the Senators and the New York Yankees, 1947 champions under Harris in 1947.

The Yanks then proceeded to beat Washington 8-3.

Tigers Whip Mounties 10-7

MIMICO, Ont. (CP) — Hamilton Tigers defeated Mimico Mounties here 10-7 here Tuesday night in their Ontario Lacrosse Association senior game. It was Tigers' first win of the season.

Bob Dobie, Jim McNulty and Tony Dandalo led Tigers with two goals each. Jack Hill, Jack Walton and Bill Rankin scored the others.

Will Girard paced Mounties with three goals. Don McPhail tallied twice. Jack Dunphy and Ken Dixon got the others.

With The Minors

By GARRY ALEXANDER

The bantam and juvenile soccer teams held their first workouts last Thursday eve with top man Les Digby quite happy about the turnout. Twenty-three hopefuls were out hooting the sphere around while several others who have intentions of playing were absent because of the fast approaching exams.

There is no zoning of players at this outfit with boys from all over the city invited for a place on one of the teams. They will practice every Thursday night at the Cricket Field, 6.30 is the time. Don't forget fellows, there's lots of room for more players and if we're going to have a team in the provincial playoffs it might as well be a good one.

Branch 80 of the Canadian Legion will be footing the bill for the bantam entry under the management of Bob Blair, winner of the Legion real go-getter. As yet the juveniles have no sponsor.

The softballers are all set for the three-way games which happen to be Tuesday, June 1st for the bantams with 7.30 as the time going at it next night. Checker Taxi and Honee Orange pop bottles of the bantams while Scott's TV's and Eland's clashing in the juvenile series. All games will start at 6.30 and will be played at the number two fireball.

In case any of the fellows don't know who they are playing for they can find out by phoning or going to the fireball.

Some of the managers have been assigned as here goes for: Les Culhane will handle his same old squad, Jim Scott says he'll be out here with for three years now. From all reports most of the old boys have gone on to bigger and we'll see a lot of new faces there. Eddie Saverlo, none other than Jerry Mahoney will mastermind the Maund's Cleaners gang while his refereeing sidekick Gus Gregory will work with another team. Fred Hill will be the Checker gang. Al Sills will work the Honee Orange crew. Ray Reid the Checker Taxi team and Joe Adams the Tip Top Tailors. We haven't received a list of the other coaches yet.

Minor baseballers will have to wait a little longer for their opening dates bet in the meantime a lot of organizing can be done. Three leagues have been mooted with the juvenile team playing their games in the midget schedule during the regular season. It seems that the cost of operating a team in the Belleville and District Juvenile League proved too much last summer, Most of the players of juvenile age work, at least after school, thus preventing another problem. His pretty hard to finish work at six, have supper and then get twenty lively teenagers all together on a bus or cars and have them out to Picton or Wellington, ready for play at 7 o'clock.

We have some sad news for the under ten "Williams and Mantels", due to the large grounds of the soccer players it was decided to drop the kids under ten. If these boys were kept it would mean that the teams would be loaded up with about 36 players and even good eye there is always something new to learn.

NOTE TO THE COACHES

It seems that last year there were only about two or three teams that received coverage in the newspaper from the various games and that no one bothered to send in the scores or information. A form has been made out by Jerry and also this problem, which when filled out will give all the necessary facts for a small story on each game played. Red Doran has a good memory and can't be questioned too much after the stories, only if these forms are sent in promptly.

The dates of practices will also be run in the Sports Calendar if they are sent in several days in advance.

If 'Beer and Baseball' Do Not Mix Boss Will Sell St. Louis Cardinals

WASHINGTON (AP) — August A. Busch Jr., said Tuesday that he would gladly sell the Cardinal baseball team if he could get his investment back and the team stayed in St. Louis.

It was, in effect, Busch's reply in a suggestion from Sen. Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo.) that baseball and beer don't mix. The Colorado senator had exhorted Busch to forget beer and concentrate on baseball.

Busch is president of Anheuser-Busch, Inc., which...makes Budweiser beer, and president also of the St. Louis baseball team. The National League club the brewery bought a year ago.

Johnson is president of the class A Western League. He and Busch appeared before the Senate judiciary subcommittee considering Johnson's proposal to bring within the anti-trust laws any organized baseball activity controlled by a commercial enterprise.

Johnson opened Tuesday's hearing, presided over by Sen. Langer (R-ND), with a statement in which he declared baseball has been "prostituted" into "the adjunct of the brewing business."

Busch said he had no desire to monopolize beer-making or baseball, or to take Congress' duties to promote Budweiser.

"If anybody wants to buy the Cardinals, they're open," he said. "All I ask is that they be kept in St. Louis."

When Johnson asked how much, he replied:

"Exactly what we paid for them Aides for Busch said the brewery paid $1,750,000 for the Cardinal organization in March 1953 and spent about $1,750,000 in development since then.

Mrs. McWilliams team won the consolation prize with Mrs. Roper's squad finishing second.

The three top teams received cash prizes.

Mrs. Lynch led the high single with handicap with a 340. Mrs. Smith was next with 314, then came Mrs. Maines with 308 and Mrs. Roper with 306. The high triple with handicap was won by Mrs. Maikes with a 786, Mrs. Lynch had a 786, and Mrs. Hackett, 731.

Umpire Abuse Cost Him $100

MONTREAL (CP)—President Albert Molini of the Provincial Baseball league announced today he has fined manager Al Barillari of Trois-Rivieres Phillies $100 for his conduct in games at Trois-Rivieres and St. Johns May 17 and 18.

Molini said Barillari used bad language, spat in the face of umpire Sig Krzyzak and stamped on the umpire's toes.

Trouble Looms Between Tigers, CBC Over Television Big Four Football

HAMILTON (CP) — Jake Gaudaur, president of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, disclosed Tuesday that there is a disagreement between the club and the CBC over plans to televise the Big Four Football Union games this season.

Gaudaur said "the CBC has imposed certain conditions making it impossible for this club" to consider the proposed TV deal as finalized."

Two weeks ago it was announced that the league had reached agreement with the CBC and NBC to televise Big Four games both in Canada and the United States.

Gaudaur emphasized the Tiger-Cats have no disagreement with NBC, which plans to telecast Canadian football for the first time in the U.S. over its coast-to-coast network. He said the dispute is "just with the CBC" and that from the beginning the deal was accepted by the club "in principle only." He declined further comment.

At Montreal, Lew Hayman, general manager of Montreal Alouettes, said the reported disagreement "is only a local problem" and Montreal is not involved.

Hayman was chairman of the Big Four TV committee which negotiated the agreement.

Commenting on Gaudaur's statement on the disagreement, Hayman said "it is only a detailed problem which will be ironed out."

He said he believes the disagreement involves the blacking-out of certain Hamilton areas during the pre-Grey bowl games. No other clubs are involved.

Canadiens Jrs. Sign Northern Juvenile Star

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens juniors announced Tuesday they have signed a youngster said to be one of the most soughtafter juvenile hockey players in Ontario.

He is Ralph G. Backstrom, 18, who played last season in Kirkland Lake and in addition to being leading scorer was named as the most valuable player in northern Ontario.

Kenny Reardon, in charge of the parent National Hockey League club's farm club, signed the young centre ice star. Backstrom will report to manager Sammy Pollock's junior Canadiens when the training season opens. The youngster stole the show at Canadiens' junior school during the Easter season. He is rated a playmaker type similar to Bill Cowley, onetime Boston Bruin.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

What usually helps will often hurt. So is it with the bids you use in a bridge game. Giving information to partner is necessary. But opponents are likely to take advantage of it.

Therefore, beginners often ask: Is it wise to make bids which will give information to an opponent? The answer is: Inform partner even if it also gives advice to opponent.

Why is this so? Co-operation of a pair is the key to success in bridge. To withhold information from opponents at the expense of keeping partner in the dark is usually a losing policy.

There was the deal you see here:

♥A 9 5 3
♦K Q J 10 7 5 3
♣A 6

WEST
♠A Q 8 6 4
♥10 8 2
♦6 4 2
♣J 8 7 3

EAST
♠10 9 2
♥K Q 7 6
♦K J 9
♣K Q 9

SOUTH
♠K J 5 3
♥Q J 6 4
♣10 5 4 3

South was in four hearts doubled by east and redoubled by north. East had doubled a north rebid in diamonds, indicating ability to defend against it. Declarer considered all this when west led a diamond.

The double should have warned south where to look for trouble in the end suits. He should trump the first trick up with the diamond ace to grab the first trick. A spade return left him with south's jack with queen.

West came back with another diamond that south ruffed. Three more trumps came in with a spade ruff in dummy, a diamond ruff in south, and another spade ruff in dummy. Then the seven in dummy was then led.

East decided his best defense right there was to ruff high with his trump king and return a trump. Declarer, however, took the south jack-of trump-and north returned another diamond.

Rather than give south a slaff, east ruffed and south used up his trump queen on the overruff. A club to the ace entered dummy. The four clubs were ruffed with three and the last diamond was good.

Three aces, six alternate trumps, and a last diamond were the ten needed tricks, as actually played. Different defence and declarer play might be tried. But this was good enough for old Joe.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Day by day the television tube pours forth its unending stream of humdrum entertainment. But there are moments — all too rare, I'm afraid— when the screen comes alive with unforgettable scenes. Recently I was meandering through my favorite TV memories, and these came to mind:

The fist on the floor of the 1952 Democratic national convention, a startling climax to an already dramatic scene. The "loyalty oath" issue was being debated hotly when the incident occurred. A quick-witted delegate grabbed a mike and prevented panic.

The first guest appearance of Martin and Lewis with Milton Berle. "Mr. Television" found his match in the brand-new young comics. It was love at first audacity.

Lucille Ball's battle with the assembly line in a candy factory. It was one of the first in the "I Love Lucy" series, and hasn't been equalled.

THOMSON'S PENNANT HUMER

Bobby Thomson's homer in the ninth inning, using the 1951 pennant for the Giants over the Dodgers. A real Frank Merriwell finish.

The exchange between Dean Acheson and the Russian delegate at the Japanese peace conference in San Francisco. There was added drama in the realization that history was being watched from coast to coast for the first time. It was the first transcontinental telecast.

The funeral train procession of the Abraham Lincoln series on "Omnibus." It captured the era and the people who mourned the martyred president.

The Jack Benny-Ethel-Mary Martin duet on the Ford 50th anniversary show. Such spontaneous and joyful singing could make anybody a "best" list

KATHY FISCUS TRAGEDY

The attempted rescue of Kathy Fiscus, the little girl who fell down a pipe. In the early days of local telecasting, it electrified everyone who sat before their sets for hours until the tragic ending.

The Eddie Cantor-Frank Sinatra duet in "Anything goes". The show topped any previous effort in TV musical comedy.

Rocky Marciano's defeat of Joe Louis, 1951, in which Jersey Brown Bomber's ring career and marked the beginning of the end for boxing.

Bing Crosby's ingratiating manner on the Olympic Games television with Bob Hope.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — For the first time in 17 years, Jean Hersholt is parting company with Dr. Christian.

The great Dane is playing one of the finishing scenes of "Run For Cover" with James Cagney, Viveca Lindfors and John Derek. It will be the first time since 1937 that the public has seen or heard him in any movie except as that kindly doctor.

"I want to see if I can get away with doing something else," 1937 Hersholt. "After all, Dr. Christian is such a one-dimensional role, low. I'd hate to be stuck with playing only him for the rest of my life.

"Two whole generations have grown up knowing me as nothing else but Dr. Christian. Yet I have played in over 100 pictures and done every kind of a role, including many heavies."

PLAYS FRONTIERSMAN

He'll be no heavy in this one. He plays Miss Linda Darnell's father, a stubborn Swede who is a frontier farmer.

I visited him at his Beverly Hills home, where he has lived for almost 30 years. He looked the same as ever, except that he had grown sideburns and a brush moustache for his film role. He relaxed in his upstairs study, a room laden with souvenirs and trophies, including three honorary Oscars and awards from foreign countries.

"I have no beef with Dr. Christian," he said, puffing on a pipe. "He has been very good to me. I was on radio every week, summer and winter, 18 years with the same sponsor; I don't believe any other show can say that record."

TO PROVE HE'S HIMSELF

I asked him if Jean Hersholt and Paul Christian are the same person.

"I don't like to think so," he replied thoughtfully. "I like to think I have an identity of my own. That's one of the reasons I am doing this picture. I want to prove that I can do something else."

That doesn't mean he is abandoning the doc. The show has gone into the fifth year, and Hersholt has made a pilot film for a TV series and may get active in that medium.

Curt Simmons Could Be Phils Next ERA Star

NEW YORK (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies haven't produced a National League pitching leader since 1917, but if Curt Simmons continues his ERA excellence he could become the Phils' first since Grover Cleveland Alexander.

Simmons has allowed 13 earned runs in 63 innings to lead the National League earned run listings with a 1.86 average. The 25-year-old southpaw has a 4-1 won-lost record and two of his victories have been shutouts.

Figures compiled by The Associated Press also reveal Allie Reynolds of the New York Yankees has the lowest ERA in the American League — an imposing 1.90 mark. Averages include Sunday's games.

Runnerup to Simmons in the National is Brooklyn's Carl Meyer with a 2.19 average. Robin Roberts of the Phils ranks third at 2.22.

Reynolds has been virtually untouchable. The 36-year-old right-hander, who was the 1952 leader with a 2.07 average, has given up but five earned runs in 46 innings. The Super Chief has won five—including a pair of shutouts—and has lost one.

Ned Garver of the Detroit Tigers trails Reynolds with a 2.43 ERA. Bob Keegan of the Chicago White Sox holds down third place with 1.50.

Panthers Sign Two Players

KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener Panthers, defending senior Waterloo county Baseball League champions, Tuesday announced the release of two players and the signing of two others.

The Panthers, defeated in their first four league games, released Carl Miller, an infielder from the United States, and outfielder Neil McDonald of Mt.

Dick Curran, a former local York catcher, and outfielder Dick Walker of Toronto were the two players signed. Curran has been with the club since the start of training. Walker was with the Panthers last season.

ARGYLES WIN

CHICAGO (AP) — The touring Plymouth Argyle soccer team of the English League defeated an all-star team of the National League 5-1 Tuesday night. The win gave Argyle a record of five victories and two losses on its United States tour.

American League Will Stage All-Star Benefit

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — The American Hockey League has decided to conduct an annual all-star game with the proceeds going into new players' disability fund.

The first game, between the Calder Cup championship Cleveland Barons and the 1953-54 all star team chosen last month was scheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 27 at Hershey. The league was formed in 1936 and an all-star team has been chosen for every year but so all-star game has never been played.

The decision to stage an all-star game was made Tuesday at a meeting of club directors. Murray Henderson, coach of the Calder Cup winning team, the Cleveland Bears, will coach the all-star aggregation.

The all-star game will be conducted in different cities yearly but no exact schedule has been established yet. Workings of the new disability fund have not been detailed yet but it will benefit league players.

At the same time the AHL cut the 1954-55 schedule to 64 games for each team and elected John Digby Chick, Windsor, Ont., as president.

Last season's schedule was for 35 home games for each of the league's six member clubs or a total of 70 games. Opening date for the current season was fixed as Saturday, Oct. 9.

Eight Teams In Intermediate ORFU Group

TORONTO (CP)—A clear picture of the ORFU intermediate group's contribution to Canadian professional football will be given at a scheduled meeting here June 5.

Eight teams are expected to make up the intermediate league this year. They are Peterborough Orions, Cobourg Galloping Ghosts, Oshawa Red Feather Football Panthers, East York Blue Devils, Welland Tigers, Lachine A.A.A. Black Knights and Stratford Rams.

"We expect intermediate football to be stronger than ever because of the top coaching being received" said chairman Jim Proctor of Toronto.

"Each club is determined to bring back the national title won the past two years by Winnipeg and Montreal, to Ontario."

AT THE McCARTHY THEATRE "THE KIDNAPPERS".

There's a new star on the horizon, a five-year-old Scottish lad called Vincent Winter, whose performance in "The Kidnappers", now playing at the McCarthy Theatre, is guaranteed to melt the most hardened heart. There's another fine little actor, Jon Whiteley, in this J. Arthur Rank movie, and he, too, expects a few melting smile, or sends his chubby legs pounding through mudpuddles. And when he speaks, that Scottish burr and unspoiled charm ooze out from the screen in dazzling waves.

Vincent and Jon play brothers, orphaned by the Boer War and on the way to live with their grandfather, grandmother and aunt in a Nova Scotia settlement of Scots. Grandfather (Duncan Macrae) turns out to be sb ver-stern, religious patriarch who prowls "his" hill with a rifle to keep off his Boer neighbor. His daughter (Adrienne Corri) works like a man on the small farm, though she yearns to be loved by a Dutch doctor (Theodore Bikel). Grandmother (Jean Anderson) has grown fond of hard work and her difficult role as peacemaker in the family.

Grandpa doesn't know how to deal with children. What the boys want most is a dog, but they'll settle for any kind of a pet. Boys are deprived of all fun by a school, whose master also is a God-fearing, strict taskmaster. Jon picks up some of his grandfather's hatred for the neighbor he calls "Bobba" as he learns to hate his innocent boylishness throughout.

Vincent, a baby in the woods one day and letting Vincent in on the secret, decides to keep the "Bibba" as a pet, raise it in a hidden shelter, and when it's old enough, it likely will go its way, they reason. But the child is that flying Boer neighbor and the hunt is on. Jon eventually is charged with kidnapping and feud between grandfather and neighbor is resolved in a courtroom trial.

The film was shot in Scotland where the glens resemble early Nova Scotia country and the entire picture has a sombre beauty about it to match the mood of the plot, adapted from a Neil Paterson short story.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars.

FOR THURSDAY, MAY 27, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Don't act without thought, especially in business or money matters, or the results will show on the wrong side of the ledger. You can produce if you concentrate on the essential.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Curtail useless words, actions; time is precious in this fast-moving period. You are clever, have a fine mind which, used properly, can overcome many obstacles and produce fine gains.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — It is not only important that we do our duty toward country and home but that occasionally we give extra consideration to the less fortunate.

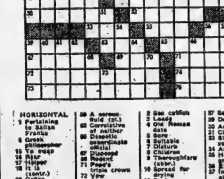
June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Keep abreast of things, forget the personal and generally broaden your horizons. Don't wait until circumstances change; help make your own opportunities.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — The configurations promise some fresh advantages now. Lesser matters should wait their turn. Your keen sense of what is saleable or attractive could be a turning point in your favor now.

August 24 to September 22 (Virgo) — News of keen interest. Some pleasant outside assistance could further progress if you cooperate. The vibrations keep bettering as the day progresses, so keep trying.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Your general outlook is a healthy one but you must earn the rewards you seek. Be reasonable, too. Make sensible changes where needed. Opportunities are better than average; take advantage of them.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Today's indications are encouraging. There may be unexpected favors from surprising sources to cheer you along. Aim to better your contacts. Look sharp always.



November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Work done without thought of compensation will bring a pleasant surprise. Very good returns can be had from consistent effort at a good job. Watch property, investments.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Continue good work and you will be well repaid. Some conflicting matters may disturb if you don't keep calm and maintain your sense of equilibrium. Be consistent, wide awake.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Though things may not be what you expected, they can be bettered by effort and a keen conception of what is appropriate. Be receptive to friendly suggestions, constructive criticism.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — You won't have to wait long for good returns if you get started early and maintain a sensible pace throughout the day. Don't ignore small advantages or suggestions.

YOU BORN TODAY are tireless, active, interesting, anxious to learn; fond of public life, investigations, travel. If rid of your better qualities you can make friends easily, be a good entertainer. Often you become fine orators, actors, reporters, promoters, advertisers; have the knack of sensing what the public wants. Cultivate patience and poise. This will help nerves, health generally. Birthdate: Jay Gold, Cornelius Vanderbilt, financiers; Arnold Bennett, Rex [illegible], authors.

Two Heavy Frosts In Last Week Hurt Hay Crops

TORONTO (CP) — Farmers in central Ontario may suffer a 10 to 15 per cent loss in hay crops as a result of two heavy frosts during the last week, the provincial department of agriculture said Tuesday.

A. H. Martin, director of the crops section, said in a weekly field reports coming to his department indicate a reduced yield be cause of hard frost.

Loss may mount to $12,000,000, said Mr. Martin. "We hope it will be less."

The frost damage extended to Middlesex, Perth, Huron, Wellington and Grey counties and the Bruce peninsula.

Industry Objects To Cut-Rate Prices on Butter

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's dairy industry has urged Prime Minister St. Laurent to ban the export of government-held butter at cut-rate prices.

At the same time it has warned that the trade may step out of step if of summer-and-pound butter unless the government announces soon its proposed selling price and quantity for the season.

The trade usually buys some of the summer butter for storage and sale in winter months. If it steps out of buying, it will mean the government will have to take up all of the production surplus under its current support program.

J. J. Creighton, president of the National Dairy Council of Canada, said in a letter to Mr. St. Laurent that butter production this year is expected to be greater than the 302,000,000 pounds produced last year. The letter, dated May 19, was made public today.

On May 1 Canada had a stockpile of 42,400,000 pounds, 30,000,000 to 35,000,000 more than was necessary, Mr. Creighton said. This included the government's 23,000,000-pound holdings.

Burned Man Alive

ELOIR, France, (Reuter) — Henri Pichard, Tuesday was sentenced to life imprisonment at hard labor for murdering his aged father-in-law by burning him alive in the kitchen fire place. Pichard, 33, and his wife, Simone, quarrelled with her 73-year-old father over the keys to the wine cellar.

Spanish Tourists Not Allowed To Visit Gibraltar

MADRID (AP) — Spain has ordered her frontier with Gibraltar closed to keep all Spanish tourists from going to the naval base, it was officially stated today.

An American travel agency representative had erroneously said the order applied to "all travellers" going to Gibraltar from Spain.

An official Spanish government spokesman said the American had misunderstood the order given out during a meeting Tuesday of representative of the Spanish ministry of information and tourism and members of all travel agencies.

He said the 15,000 Spanish workers who cross the frontier each day to work in Gibraltar are not affected by the measure.

The move is part of the Spanish government's campaign to secure the return of Gibraltar which the Spanish maintain was "stolen" by Britain in the 18th century.

The recent visit of Queen Elizabeth to Gibraltar touched off the campaign because it was officially charged that it was an "insult" to all Spaniards.

May Review Activities Of Research Council

OTTAWA (CP) — A government spokesman indicated Tuesday night a special committee may be set up at the next session of Parliament to review the activities of the National Research Council.

John Dickey, parliamentary assistant to Trade Minister Howe, said in the Commons it would not be practical to establish a committee this session.

Mr. Dickey was replying to a suggestion made May 11 by J. W. Murphy (PC—Lambton West) for a select committee this session to study methods to accelerate research in Canada.

Mr. Murphy submitted his proposal during study of a government bill involving "technical" amendments to the National Research Council Act. His motion that the bill should not receive second reading—approval in principle—but should go to a select committee was ruled out of order.

After extended debate the bill received second reading and class-by-clause study.

W. M. Howe (PC — Wellington Huron) urged increased application of research to improve the economic conditions of farmers and industries. He suggested particular emphasis on the development of typically Canadian textiles.

Armies of Tent Caterpillars Are Attacking Foliage

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—Armies of tent caterpillars are attacking foliage on millions of acreage through 13 counties in northern and eastern New York, the U. S. conservation department reported Thursday.

William Masterson, forest pest control district supervisor, said forest tent caterpillars were crawling through an estimated 7,500,000 acres in 1953, with a crop value of about $60,000,000.

CANADIAN TOBACCO

Canada harvested 128,000,000 pounds of tobacco in 1953, with a crop value of about $60,000,000.

Midges Are Back

LEAMINGTON (CP) — The midges are back. And, officials say, there are more of them than usual. Residents of this district about 30 miles southeast of Windsor said millions of the midges were seen during the week-end.

Bus drivers said they had to scrub their windshields free of the dead flies before continuing their trips to Windsor and Buffalo.

H. R. Hamer, entomologist of the department of agriculture here, said the midges are harmless except for being a nuisance to motorists. They seek shelter in the trees during the day and come out at dusk.

Princess Wins Puzzle Contest

LONDON (Reuters) — Princess Margaret has won a prize of three guineas worth of books in a magazine crossword puzzle competition here.

She solved such tricky clues as "He may make us rush in the army," "Bell ringer sounds an awkward call" and "Fawn in the company of returning not well received."

But the answers will not be known until the society magazine Country Life, comes out Thursday with the correct solution and the formal announcement that "HRH Princess Margaret, Clarence House" is the winner.

When the Princess' entry was received, the editor in charge of the contest suspected a practical joke. He checked with officials of the royal household, who assured him that the Queen's 23-year-old sister had sent in the entry.

Russian Chess Team Will Play In United States

By GEOFFREY GOULD

NEW YORK (AP) — The best chess players in Russia are coming to the United States for the first time to lock wits with a hand-picked U.S. team in an international match opening June 16.

The Russians, who almost exactly here last year but changed their minds at the last minute, will be led by world champion Mikhail Botvinnik.

In many ways the eight - day tournament will be remarkable. It will be the most definitive meeting thus far between Russian and U.S. teams, although the Americans lost to the Russians in Moscow eight years ago. Also, it will be the first time the Soviets have met America's best on their home grounds.

Botvinnik, who has dominated the champeer echelons of chess world for many years, will be pitted against Samuel Reshevsky of the U.S. Other pairings have not been announced.

Both Botvinnik-Reshevsky match is a natural, as Reshevsky, 43, is generally acclaimed by his colleagues as the chess champion of the Western world.

Friendship of Great Western Allies Reaches Lowest Ebb

By DON WHITEHEAD

LONDON (AP)—The friendship of the United States and Britain —the great Western allies of the Second World War—has reached an alarmingly low ebb.

All the official assurances of amity and singleness of purpose from Washington and London cannot gloss over these facts:

1. The British people generally have no confidence in American leadership.

2. The British people fear that the United States—not Russia—will push them into another war.

3. Britons are in no mood to follow the United States in a "get tough" policy toward communism that might mean a third world war.

The state of Anglo-American friendship 10 years after the unity achieved for the invasion of France is a shock to me on my first trip back since war days.

Time and time again the same story is heard from the man on the street. The story comes from taxi drivers, barbers, shop keepers, waiters, reporters, RAF fliers, housewives and pub keepers.

The attitude makes it appear the United States has a long pull ahead to win the Briton's firm support in foreign affairs. Apparently it is the basic reason Britain pulled away from the American lead in Indo-China.

Why does the Britton feel as he does? Here's what some of them have to say:

A shopkeeper: "The quarrelling is between you and Russia. All you want with us is to make Europe land the jumping off place for an atomic attack."

A chauffeur and ex-merchant mariner: "We think you may be pushing Russia into a corner—you won't even trade with her. You can't live with half the world not trading with the other half. We don't think Russia will start a war —she never has won a war on her own. I say if the Russians and Chinese want communism, it's their business."

Ex-RAF flier: "We're afraid you chaps are going to get fed up with the Communists and say 'All right, let's have it out.' And then it starts all over again—and we can't stand another war. I wasted five years of my life in the last war and I want no more of it."

"TIRED OF FIGHTING"

A reporter: "Geography makes a big difference in politics and the way people feel. Our people say: 'It's easy for the Americans to say let's have it out and send troops to Indo-China. But they haven't had their homes bombed as we have. We're tired of fighting and arguing and all we want is to live at peace again!"

The British feeling seems to spring basically from a deep revulsion against anything that will lead to another war.

It isn't difficult to understand. Britain took an awful beating from Nazi bombers. The physical and spiritual endurance of the people was strained almost to the breaking point.

Then came victory in Europe. But what was victory? It was dark days of rationing, self-denial and more and more sacrifices for survival while the United States soared to new heights of prosperity.

Britons agree generally that the turn in their fortunes came two years ago. And now they have achieved a well-king and peace of mind—along with a sounder economy—which they want to enjoy.

To the British people, the United States seems to be engulfed in a vast fear of communism—and that this fear is dominating the thoughts and actions of the Eisenhower administration. The name heard most here is not President Eisenhower or Secretary of State Dulles—it is the name of the Wisconsin Red-hunter, Senator Joseph McCarthy.

The Briton's attitude toward communism seems to run along these lines: Communism is a dangerous and Communists can't be trusted — but let's try to find a solution to this thing without a war and, meantime, let's get about our business without any fuss or feathers. They do not understand why Eisenhower 'doesn't do something about McCarthy."

They even laugh at Communists here. There is a story of the lobby in Hyde Park listening to a Communist urge his audience to move on Buckingham Palace and burn the place down.

At this point the lobby stepped out and said: "All right, chaps. All who want to burn down the palace line up on this side—all who disagree line up over here."

And another story has the Englishman saying: "Well, if we have a Communist government there's one thing certain—it will be 'His Majesty's Communist government.'"

SUITOR CHARGED IN AXE-MURDER

Three hours after the body of 24-year-old Mary Siudut, a preity Polish immigrant, was discovered in his Toronto rooming house her suitor, Mike Bajerowski, 26, was arrested at Bradford, Ont., and charged with murder. Miss Siudut had died from wounds inflicted by an axe. Brought to Toronto, police said Bajerowski led them to a spot where a bloodstained axe was found. (Central Press Canadian).

Morocco Blast Kills Two Men

MARRAKESH, Morocco (Reuters)—A French sergeant-major, wounded when an explosion blasted a column of troops in Marrakesh Tuesday, died during the night, bringing the casualty toll to two dead and 40 injured.

The explosion killed one other soldier, and five other injured were reported to be in a serious condition.

The explosion was believed to have been caused by a delayed-action bomb planted by Moroccan nato-alists outside a building in the centre of the town where Gen. Augustin Guillaume, the French resident-general, was attending a ceremony.

Fire Rangers Hope Haileybury Blaze Soon Controlled

Fire Revived Wednesday After It Was First Checked

TORONTO (CP)—Thirty years behind schedule, James Leslie (Les) Percy receives his bachelor of arts degree today from University College, University of Toronto.

He started the BA course 34 years ago and after two years gave it up.

Three years ago, Mr. Percy, now assistant secretary of Canadian Breweries Limited and subsidiary companies, decided to complete the course, attending night classes.

Four Men Trying To Reach Man On Alaska Mount

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — Four men inched their way up Mount McKinley's treacherous southern buttress today in a desperate attempt to save a mountain climber who was left gravely injured in a test Sunday.

The man is the lanfi is George Argus, one of three survivors of a 1,000-foot fall which killed the fourth member of their party May 15.

The rescue party is led by Dr. John McCall, 31-year-old University of Alaska glaciersexpert. With him are three mountain climbers from the United States Army indoctrination center at Fort Wainwright, Alaska.

They were carried to the 5,000-foot level by a U.S. Air Force helicopter early Wednesday. Strong winds and blowing snow blocked attempts to add more men to the party, so the chief scientist lowered the two-mile high spot where Argus was left.

FOUND IN PARK

Left 46 tell the story of the great bull were Richard Wood and Leslie Viereck, who were found in McKinley Park Tuesday last after a search was about to be started for them.

They told of conquering the southern buttress for the first time, the start back which was tragically interrupted at the 13,000-foot level.

"It was just a silly little accident," Wood said. "One of Thayer's feet slipped and he pressed back his clamped-on spikes lost their grip. He fell over the pre-cut ice pice and all of us (roped together) went with him.

"I recall falling and falling. Thayer died because he struck a ledge sticking out of the cliff. Argus broke the fall by tumbling into deep snow which stopped him and pulled us all to a stop."

U.S. Might Talk With China If Captives Freed

GENEVA (AP)—Sources close to the American delegation indicated today that the United States might be willing to enter into direct negotiations with the Chinese Communists at Geneva on the release of the American fliers imprisoned in China.

These sources said there appears no reason to bar such talks, since the U. S. talked directly with the Chinese Reds at Panmunjom on the release of Korean war prisoners.

The U. S. has not recognized the Peiping regime and has refused to talk directly with Red China's representatives at Geneva.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Fine weather prevails this morning over most of eastern Canada as cold air continues to push down from the north. The broad band of cloud and showers that has been moving slowly east from the upper Mississippi valley has reached southwestern Ontario and will mar the rest of the province tonight.

Receives B.A. 34 Years After Starting Course

TORONTO (CP)—Fire rangers are hopeful that a breakaway blaze on the southern end of the big Haileybury forest fire will be checked today.

That was the word today from officials of the Ontario lands and forests department here. The fire revived late Wednesday after the main Haileybury fire was declared under control early with 39 others.

The officials said fog in parts of the section of northern Ontario midway between North Bay and Kirkland Lake this morning delayed an aerial inspection of the fire.

CHIEF OPTIMISTIC

T. E. Mackey, chief of the department's forest protection division, said:

"We think this breakaway fire will be pretty well corralled this morning."

He said the men on the line hoped to get to feed the new blaze is not particularly dangerous, since it is a considerable distance from town. The fire broke out and burned trough between 500 and 600 acres of green timber, spruce, poplar, balsam, pine and fir in a district where the fire ban has been in general rain for 10 days.

Extra firefighters were moved in from Sudbury during the night. About 100 men arrived at Monteith Landing were isolated when the blaze jumped the road connecting the Montreal river bank with Haileybury, but the fire was expected to bypass the settlement by several miles.

Before it was checked the first fire, the Haileybury fire had burned across 1,500 acres of land. Wednesday afternoon it advanced four miles through second growth timber.

SEEN 18 MILES AWAY

Smoke from the fire rose to 2,000 feet and was visible from Englehart 30 miles to the north, and Temagami, about 25 miles to the south. Forestry officials had thought the blaze out before a hot sun, plus a 20-mile north wind, revived it in the southern corner.

Firefighters were forced to abandon the fire line along the road to Mowat's Landing when flying embers ignited the bush. Helicopters brought men and equipment, but they could not control the blaze.

The fire is reported to be threatening to the north, where 250 cottages on Twin Lake are being guarded by a fire line.

Fire-fighting used by the helicopters was cut off from the areas by the fire. But the helicopters continued to operate because the clearing in which they are based was fog-passed by the flames.

The lands and forests department said 1,000 forest fighters are being fought in the province this morning in addition to the Haileybury blaze are under control. Another 32 small fires were controlled Wednesday in 24 hours but the department said the fire hazard remains high to extreme across the province.

EXPLOSION KILLS TWO

AACHEN, Germany (Reuters)— Two soldiers were killed and 11 and 12, were killed Wednesday and a farm worker and three other children injured when a two-tonne shell exploded in a field at Kirchberg, near the German-Dutch frontier.

Former Mental Patient Admits Slaying Man for No Reason at All

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—An unemployed male nurse was charged Wednesday with stabbing a 23-year-old Lyons, Co., woman to death and shooting and wounding another woman. The first man is apparently unrelated attacks.

Slain on the desert near here was Phyllis Mae Thompson, whose nude body was mutilated by 18 knife wounds.

James Clark, 33, Phoenix, was shot three times in another section of the desert, miles from where the girl's body was found.

Richard L. Jordan, 30, who said he was a former mental patient, was charged with murder and assault with a deadly weapon.

Sheriff Pete Eyman said Jordan apparently had never seen either of his victims until a few hours before the attacks.

Eyman said Jordan signed a confession admitting the slaying and wounding Clark "for no reason at all."

Investigators said Jordan told them he met Miss Thompson Monday night at a cook her to the desert that night and doesn't recall what happened next.

"I don't admit killing the girl but I don't deny it," Eyman quoted Jordan as saying. "I must have blacked out."

Jordan's wife said they were married in February, 1953, and have a three-month-old daughter.

Miss Thompson had stopped in Tucson while travelling by bus from San Diego, Calif., to her home. Her slashed, sun-blistered body was found in the desert.

CANADA, SPAIN ENTER INTO FIRST TRADE TREATY

Agreement Will Come Into Effect on July 1

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada and Spain have entered into their first trade agreement. It calls for more imports of Canadian dry salted codfish and reduced tariffs on Spanish olive oil, almonds and paprika.

Announcement of the bilateral trade pact signed Wednesday in Madrid, highlighted the half-day Wednesday sitting in the Commons.

Under the trade pact, announced by External Affairs Minister Pearson, Canada and Spain agreed to most-favored-nation tariff rates. They also agreed to the issuance discriminatory import and exchange cards except for balance of payment reasons.

The pact, signed by Works Minister Winters for Canada and the Spanish Foreign Affairs Minister Martin Artajo, will come into force provisionally July 1.

Spain agreed to a minimum imports of 2,000 metric tons annually of dry salted codfish, most of it from Canada's Atlantic provinces.

Meanwhile, Canada will cut the duty on edible olive oil to five per cent from 7½; reduce slightly the duty on paprika; and eliminate the preferential tariff on figs, dates and corks.

A temporary agreement allowing olives into Canada duty free will become permanent. The tariff preference will also apply to wines, beer countries of the general agreement on tariffs and trade. Canada has been wheat. Exports to Spain last year totalled $12,000,000 worth of wheat, from $3,500,000 in 1952.

Government Will Not Intervene In Strike Threat

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government will not intervene in the railway strike threat unless union members have completed a strike vote that was announced Wednesday.

An informant said no government action on him has been decided and the cabinet intends, at the least, to stay out of the railway-labor dispute until the normal union procedure has been carried out.

This means there will be no government intervention in the ballot-taking period, when results of the strike vote will have been tabulated.

Meanwhile, government labor officials were working on the $2,000-member rank and file of the 14 unions locked in a fight with the major railroads to vote next year to give their top officials power to call a strike if their proportions are tied up the country's railway system in 1954.

Labor Minister Gregg said Wednesday in an interview that the government is using all efforts to reach a settlement have been given up. The government will help out in conciliation.

FIRST AIDERS REWARDED

TORONTO (CP) — First aid teams from Toronto, Hamilton, Barrie, Peterborough, Niagara Falls, London, Kitchener, Chatham and Fort William-Port Arthur received awards from the Bell Telephone Co., here Friday when awards were awarded on the basis of competition among teams of Bell personnel.

Sales of Oil and Gas Leases Bring Alberta $11,000,000

EDMONTON (CP) — Premier Manning conducted a Scarce civil servants through a maze of partisan colored papers and certified cheques in three hours Wednesday, ending with an $11,629,488 bulge in Alberta's treasury from the sale of oil and gas leases and reservation rights on some 380,000 acres of potential oil land.

The figure brought to about $45,000,000 the amount received from such "cash-bonus" sales this year and is approximately $280,000,000 the total revenue from the development ushered in by the Leduc oil discovery of 1947.

The fiscal-year figure, about $12,000,000, now is only $6,000,000 short of the province's estimated 1954-55 revenue from such sales.

45,000 ACRES LEASED

There now are some 45,000,000 acres of land under petroleum lease in Alberta—almost a quarter of the total area of the province and more than twice the area of New Brunswick.

Highest price in the latest sale, which continues today with bids on 56 crown reserve parcels, was $1,843,500 paid by Shell Provincial Exploration, Ltd., for reservation rights on 26,180 acres in the forested Swan hills about 100 miles northeast of Edmonton.

Vietminh Step Up Pressure On Indo-Chinese 'Rice Bowl'

HANOI, Indo-China (AP)—The Vietminh rebels stepped up their pressure today on the broad arc forming the southern defences of the Red river delta rice bowl from a point 15 miles south and southeast of Hanoi.

The fight is anchored to the east by the big textile manufacturing centre of Nam Dinh, 45 miles southeast of Hanoi, to the west by the important road junction centre of Phu Ly, 25 miles southwest of the northern Indo-China metropolis. In the centre of the arc is Nam Dinh, another textile centre.

The buildup appears to be aiming toward eventual assault on Phu Ly, which lies on the main highway connecting Hanoi with the Haiphong port of Haiphong through which passes the bulk of weapons and other war material.

Lightly assaults with mortars and machine-gun fire have hit Vietminh units in the sector, particularly Yen Phu, which was evacuated by Communist-led Vietminh until French mobile units from Hanoi drove through to relieve the fort.

Prisoners Stage Violent Mutiny In British Prison

LONDON (Reuters) — Prisoners armed with knives and hammers staged a violent mutiny in Britain's toughest prison here Wednesday causing a toll of 10 casualties before the outbreak was stamped out.

Five prison guards and five prisoners were injured in the fighting which flared up at Wandsworth prison. No further details of the injuries were employed.

A government report said the disturbance began when a guard was attacked by a prisoner. Other prisoners joined in the attack. The report said jail populations joined in as guards came up to help their companion.

Leaders of the riot barricaded themselves in the prison chapel but the alarm bell brought guard reinforcements but were forced to give up soon afterward. The rest of the workshop was quickly brought under control.

North Hastings Resident Killed At Malton

TORONTO (CP)—A Fort Stewart man was killed and a companion injured today when a giveaway crashed on the runway at suburban Malton airport. They were employees of the McFarland Construction Co.

Neil Spikes of Picton suffered a broken leg and is in Malton hospital.

Another workman, Tom Karzay, 72, of nearby Nashville, was pulled clear by other workers as the 50-foot high crane toppled. He was not hurt.

Mr. Inswood had worked for the McFarland Construction Company for the past ten years as a machine operator. He was unmarried. Fort Stewart is in North Hastings, about 85 miles north of Belleville.

Mau Mau Burn Tree Tops Hotel

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters) — Tree Tops Hotel, where Queen Elizabeth was staying in February, 1952, when she became Queen on the death of her father, King George, VI, was burnt down Wednesday night, presumably by Mau Mau terrorists.

No casualties were immediately reported.

The hotel was a tourist hostelry perched high above the ground in the branches of a huge fig tree in the Aberdare forest near Nyeri, it overlooked a natural waterhole which attracted game and salt-

Mau Mau terrorists are known to be in the area. In a raid on the hotel last July they stole blankets, food, cigarettes and drink.

Four armed parties have left Nyeri for the site of the hotel, 18 miles away.

TV EXTRACTION FAINLESS

LONDON (Reuters)—Millions of British television viewers Wednesday night saw a pretty 19-year-old girl have a tooth pulled after she was hypnotized in a dentist's chair. It was the first time television has shown dental hypnosis in use. The girl said she felt no pain and would have another extraction, if necessary, the same way.

Disarmament Talks Resumed

LONDON (Reuters) — Disarmament talks among the five major powers began in London just over two weeks ago, continued today and ended in a one-day break.

Russia's Jakob Malik, ambassador to Britain, was the chief spokesman for the Soviet bloc. The United States, British, France and Canada are also represented.

The conference, meeting in private, is believed to have before it a draft treaty for international disarmament put forward by both East and West.

There was so far opposed the Western view that any agreed reduction in arms must be supervised by control and inspection machinery.

NAMED CHURCH MODERATOR

AKRON, O. (AP)—Dr. Albert Kelly of Pittsburgh was unanimously elected Wednesday night as moderator of the United Presbyterian Church of North America, holding its 96th general assembly here. His choice as moderator is seen as virtual assurance that the assembly will vote for unification with two other Presbyterian branches—the Presbyterian Church in the United States (southern) and the Southern Presbyterians. The unification proposal comes to a vote Saturday.

'THE BIG TRAIN,' LIONEL CONACHER, DIES SUDDENLY

Voted Greatest Athlete Of Last Half Century

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — The Big Train has reached the end of the line.

Lionel Conacher, an unmatched hero in the Canadian sports world, collapsed Wednesday night on the floor during the annual softball game between members of Parliament and the Parliamentary Press Gallery. He died en route to hospital.

The 53-year-old Liberal member for Toronto Trinity had just smashed out a triple to left field in the top half of the sixth inning, scoring Bucko McDonald, former hockey star and Liberal MP for Parry Sound-Muskoka, with the run that put the MPs ahead 13-12.

As the game broke up he prepared to throw to the next batter, Conacher crumpled soundlessly to the grass on the lawn in front of the Parliament Buildings. He was dead on arrival at hospital 20 minutes later.

TO HOLD POST-MORTEM

The hospital said he apparently died of a heart attack but that a post-mortem will be held because death occurred in a public place.

A crowd of 1,000 persons had watched the game. The post-mortem results will determine whether the body will be flown to Toronto.

"When I went to bat, I left a lighted cigar on the bench," Mr. Donald said. "By the time I got over home plate and got back on deck up he was, dead. There was no fix face. It was as quick as that."

Rev. Lloyd Jones, Conservative Liberal MP for Fort William and coach of the Big Train, said he had decided that last year's game should be the last.

"This year I was pressured by several persons to keep the game going and one of them was Lionel Conacher," he said.

Wednesday night's game was the annual match between MPs and newspaper men. It was the fifth and the Big Train's last.

When Conacher, Canada's greatest athlete of the half-century, collapsed forward to the grass, bloodstreaming from his nose, everyone assumed he had been knocked to bat for the last time.

Mr. J. R. McMillan, Liberal MP for Weirton, Harold E. Winch, CCF member for Vancouver East, and Frank Nesbitt, Liberal member for Waterloo North, tried to help as he lay there. But there was nothing much anybody could do except wait for the ambulance.

Only a few spectators pressed around the fallen athlete. Mostly, they stood in small groups, talking in hushed tones. Then, the talking of the annual errorfilled game, played mostly for laughs, was resumed.

Vanguard of Huge Throng of Faithful Pouring Into Rome for Canonization

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The vanguard of hundreds of thousands of Roman Catholic clergy and faithful poured into Rome today for the canonization of Gabriel Possenti Pantaleone of Giuseppe Sarto, the humble man who became Pope Pius X.

Pius, who died in World War I and is best remembered for his campaign against modernism in the church's 261 pontiffs is to be declared a saint. He will be the 78th pope canonized.

Cardinals, archbishops, bishops, priests, nuns and lay people arriving in Rome for two weeks to honor Pius were welcomed as a little boy of being a priest.

Some 500 bishops and about 50 archbishops and cardinals of the church are expected to attend. From Europe, nearly all the cardinals well enough to travel have come to Rome. Notable exceptions are the cardinals in Communist countries—imprisoned Josef Mindszenty of Hungary, Stefan Wyszynski of Poland, who also is confined; and Aloysius Stepinac of Yugoslavia, restricted to his native

Geneva Parley Will Consider Eden's Plan

GENEVA (AP) — The Indo-China peace conference was expected in act today on a plan for high-level military talks to end the crisis lines in Southeast Asia.

The plan was submitted by British Foreign Secretary Eden at Tuesday's closed session of the nine-power conference. It was the subject of private talks during Wednesday's one-day breather in the prolonged negotiations.

An unidentified French general today was reported rushing here from Indo - China to represent French Union forces if such talks are scheduled. He would sit down with an opposite number from the Communist-led Vietminh regime.

The urgency of the situation was stressed once more as France's foreign minister Bidault returned from Paris with orders to break off discussions if the Geneva conference fails to produce results soon.

PARKS BOARD will NOT ASSUME CUTTING OF TREES IN CITY

The city parks board is not ready to assume the responsibilities of cutting trees in the city.

This was indicated in a letter from the parks board which was read in city council this week.

Some weeks ago Alderman R. G. Clarke complained that trees in the city in some instances were being cut when they showed no signs of disease. He suggested that the parks board be responsible for cutting of trees instead of the public works department as at present.

Eighty Per Cent Of Spring Seeding Now Completed

Although adverse weather conditions held up work on the land for at least two weeks, approximately 80 per cent of the spring seeding has now been completed in the Bay of Quinte area and farmers with the seeding done would welcome rain and warmer weather.

The weekly crop report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture predicted that seeding had progressed rapidly during the past week and the planting of corn on well drained land has commenced.

Farmers would welcome rain when their seeding was completed and pastures and hay crops are in need of rain and warmth.

In Prince Edward county the wet fall now has been increasing as the cows have gone out on the grass.

Some tomato planting has been done and other farmers are busy preparing their land for tomatoes.

U.S. Inspectors Search French Vessel for Arms

PANAMA (AP) — Tensions increased today in Central America as United States customs inspectors at the Atlantic mouth of the Panama canal ordered the cargo of a French freighter—presumably loaded with armed arms.

An agent of the French line at Cristobal said a search of its 8,663-ton freighter Antinoe began Wednesday night "in connection with the business in Guatemala." He obviously referred to U. S. charges that leftist Guatemala recently received a large arms shipment from behind the Iron Curtain.

The agent declined, however, that "there are no arms or contraband aboard."

The Wyoming had been due to clear through the canal today on route to the Atlantic Guatemala, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Vancouver.

FIND "SPORTING ARMS"

The U. S. state department said the cargo included "five boxes of sporting arms." But it also announced that no question is being raised about these."

One Washington source, however, said U. S. authorities had received information that the Wyoming might be more than five boxes of "sporting arms" on the Wyoming.

Reports reached Washington late last week that two more shipments of Red arms were en route to Guatemala. The Red-tinged republic allegedly had already received a $10,000,000 cargo from the Polish port of Stettin.

Elsewhere along the Central American cold war front, reports from Guatemala said a mystery plane Wednesday night had scattered pamphlets which called on Guatemalans to fight "Communist oppression." Witnesses described the plane as an American-built C-47.

U.S. ARMS LANDED

From Honduras came word that several planes had arrived with arms sent that country under terms of the U. S. defence agreements. The U. S. is rushing military equipment to both Honduras and neighboring Nicaragua.

Nicaragua recently broke off diplomatic relations with Guatemala, climaxing nearly 10 years of troubled relations.

Atomic-Generated Electric Power In Five Years

CHALK RIVER, Ont. (CP)—Dr. David A. Keyes, chairman of the project co-ordinating entities of Atomic Energy of Canada, Ltd., said Wednesday the Canada Chalk River will generate electricity economically with atomic power in fewer than five years.

Dr. Keyes commented in an interview on a statement in Toronto Tuesday by Robert H. Saunders, chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, that atomic-generated electric power is about three years away for Ontario—"if we need it."

Dr. Keyes said it would be feasible to build an atomic reactor which would generate electricity in about three years. However, this would not be possible under the present program at Chalk River's federal atomic energy project.

If this were to be done, more money and more men and materials would have to be poured into the program. There also was no assurance that such a power plant would produce electricity economically.

Dr. Keyes said his estimate of five to 10 years is based on the present atomic program and the expectation that the power plant would be able to compete with the production of electrical energy by coal - burning plants or water power.

McCarthy-Army Probe Dismisses Two Charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Roy M. Cohn, aide to Senator McCarthy, prepared to take the witness chair today in the McCarthy-Army hearings after two of the accused principals were dropped in a blaze of controversy Wednesday.

Amid cries of "whitewash" raised by Senator Symington (Dem., Mo.) and over objections by the Democratic members of the special army counsel, Joseph N. Welch, the Senate investigations subcommittee voted by a party-line majority to dismiss the charges against McCarthy aide Francis P. Carr.

Coupled with this was dismissal of the charges filed by the Wisconsin Republican senator against the assistant secretary of defence, H. Struve Hensel. Neither McCarthy nor Welch objected to that but the Democrats argued that McCarthy had no opportunity to prosecute his case against Hensel.

PLANS TO APPEAL

Symington announced he plans to appeal to the full Senate from the vote of the group to get a chance to testify.

As he was recalled on this 22nd day of the hearings, there was a possibility that he might be followed by only one witness, McCarthy, and that the hearings might end next week.

Direct Cargo Saves Shillings In Wheat Cost

SILLOTH, Cumberland, Eng. (CP)—The first cargo of Canadian wheat brought direct to the Great Lakes for Britain saved "several shillings a ton," one of the importing firm officials said today.

The 1,150 tons of wheat from Lakehead elevators arrived in this little port Tuesday aboard the 765-ton German motorship Rudolf Suebel. Capt. Erich Schmidt, who was greeted by quayside crowds, said the 18-day voyage was not a record one, but that he hadn't seen much of Fort William because of the two-foot blanket of snow over it when he sailed.

The cargo was imported by a flour mill. An official said the voyage, which involved only the St. Lawrence seaway route and eliminates trans-shipping via Canadian coastal ports, was so successful that another cargo will be brought later this year.

Steel Industry Strike Threat Increases Buying

NEW YORK (AP)—Steel consumers in the United States are "whistling in the dark to the possibility of a strike," Iron Age, national metal - working weekly, says today.

"Chances still favor a peaceful settlement," the publication says, "but union demands, which would cost about as much as total present wage costs, have shortened the odds."

The threat of a strike would "certainly become a stronger factor" in the steel market in the next 30 days. Business was picking up already and "any darkening of the labor picture would be quickly reflected in a strong burst of new orders. There will probably be more protective buying anyway, as the June 30 contracts approximate."

The weekly predicts that final settlement of the current wage dispute will provide a "package" costing around five to eight cents an hour, but says chances of a peaceful settlement will "dim rapidly" if union leaders hold out for more.

"Don't be fooled by the pie-in-the-sky demands of the united steelworkers; final settlement will scarcely resemble them," it says. "Both sides are standing by to size up their negotiations peacefully, so they will soon worship going after the real issues hammer and tongs."

Civil Servants' Death Benefits Provoke Debate

OTTAWA (CP) — The Opposition Wednesday accused the government of entering the field of private business under a proposed plan for compulsory death benefits for civil servants and members of the armed forces.

Progressive Conservative speakers criticized the bill on the ground that the plan should be established and administered by private enterprise, instead of by the government itself.

They were defeated by a vote of 125 to 36 in an attempt to send the bill to the Commons' banking committee for study before receiving second reading—approval in principle.

Later, on a vote called by the government, the bill was given second reading by the same vote of 125 to 36, and then referred to the banking committee.

BILL AMENDS ACT

The bill, an amendment to the Civil Service Superannuation Act, provides that all civil servants, members of the armed forces and employees of crown corporation must pay $100 a year for each $1,000 of insurance.

Payments to the widow or estate would be $5,000 or a year's salary, whichever is the smaller. Mr. Mutchmor said that civil servants are looking after their own life insurance and do not welcome the interference of the government plan into their own lives. The plan, he said, would cost money, affect hundreds of thousands of government employees.

New York Central Fate Now Rests On Proxy Count

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—Control of the mighty New York Central Railroad rested today in four hours' safes and nine steel filing cabinets.

Their contents—stock proxies for the present management headed by President William White or for the opposition forces headed by financier Robert R. Young—will decide who will run the railroad.

Young's proxies are in the safes and filing cabinets in the Albany offices of the New York Central. After Wednesday's zip-roaring annual meeting in an armory, at least 2,000 stockholders' proxies were taken to the 12th floor of the hotel Ten Eyck.

PROFESSORS DO COUNTING

There three law professors today began the arduous task of counting pieces of tabulating the proxies, separating the valid from the invalid ones, and judging challenges. After four hours and 40 minutes of deliberation at times disorder and confusion—the stockholders' meeting was recessed until next Tuesday, when the inspectors will report on the vote. Some sources say it might be only the first of several reports, and that the count might last many days or even weeks longer.

The Central's management made a crucial challenge of 800,000 shares—largest block of Central stock—held by Young. Young's millionaire friends, Clint W. Murchison and Sid Richardson, who did not attend the meeting.

Member Protests Noisy Scene As Man Hanged

OTTAWA (CP)—The noisy scene outside the United Counties jail in Cornwall, at the time Peter E. H. Balcombe was hanged Tuesday will be brought to the attention of the Ontario government by the justice department.

Harold E. Winch (CCF — Vancouver East) Wednesday in the Commons protested the disturbance and asked Justice Minister Garson whether action was planned to prevent such incidents in the future. Mr. Winch said from 500 to 1,000 persons gathered outside the jail yard within sight of the covering over the gallows. A number of "teen-agers set off firecrackers and shrilled ribald jibes.

Mr. Garson said he is aware of the demonstration, but noted that arrangements for executions are the responsibility of provincial officials.

Balcombe was hanged for the wife slaying last Oct. 15 of Marie Ann Carrier of Bienville, Que.

No Arrangements Made to Export Surplus Butter

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Gardiner said Wednesday that the government has not made any arrangements to export surplus butter.

However, he added in the Commons that "if an offer from outside is made for the butter, that offer will be considered on its merits."

J. J. Creighton, president of the National Dairy Council of Canada, said Tuesday in a letter to Prime Minister St. Laurent that the government should ban the export of butter at subsidy prices.

Hon. Earl Rowe (PC—Dufferin-Simcoe) asked Mr. Gardiner whether the government intends to export surplus butter at less than the peripheral price "because if it is the same price as it is being sold to the Canadian consumer it is selling surplus butter to the trade at 35½c cents a pound.

Mr. Rowe described the government's butter surplus as enormous, but Mr. Gardiner disagreed. He said Mr. Rowe's figure of 33,000,000 is not enormous and that the butter surplus is about 4,000,000 pounds less.

The trade offered some of it for sale day-by-day at 35½ cents to the trade within Canada, but there has been no arrangement made to sell any of it outside of Canada up to the present, Gardiner said.

In reply to a question by J. H. Ferguson (PC—Simcoe North) Mr. Gardiner said stored butter will remain practically the same as fresh butter for 18 months. Butter had been kept in the past for longer periods.

Mr. Ferguson suggested that butter kept for 18 months could be shipped as a gift to South Korea.

France to Delay Requesting U.S. Intervention

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — French diplomats today said France will delay asking United States intervention in the Indo-China war as long as cease-fire talks are under way at Geneva.

Meanwhile, Britain is reported to have proposed that prospective military talks on Southeast Asia among the Big Three Western allies, along with Australia and New Zealand, should be held at the highest military level, that is, among the chiefs of staff of the five countries.

Military representatives of Britain, France, the U.S. and the two Southwest Pacific powers are expected to meet here within the next two weeks. What they can accomplish in the absence of overall political decisions, however, is not clear.

One key to such a decision, perhaps now the most important one, is a proposed visit from the French government for U.S. intervention. The U.S. government has told the French governments in talks at Paris that such a proposal would be necessary as a basis for future American decisions, bearing in mind that the U.S. would act only as one member of a coalition.

State Secretary Dulles told a press conference today that no such bid had yet come from the French. French diplomats here say no bid is to be expected until events at Geneva take a decisive turn one way or another.

U.S. authorities privately point out that Communist negotiators now are in a position to drag out the negotiations as new moves from time to time if that is their purpose.

MECHANIZED VOTING

TORONTO (CP) — Voters here may become mechanized. The board of control Wednesday approved a tryout of three or four voting machines at the next municipal election. If vote tabulation is speeded up they will be installed in all polling booths for the following elections.

Longshoremen Favor Old Union By Small Margin

NEW YORK (AP)—The old longshoremen's union—bloodied but unbowed — has won an indecisive margin over its AFL rival in the port of New York in a national labor relations board election. The final result hinges on challenged ballots.

The situation today is about the same as it was five months ago when the racket-tainted International Longshoremen's Association had a vote edge over the newly-formed AFL union of the same name.

That NLRB election was scrapped because, it was charged, ILA adherents employed strong-arm tactics and intimidation at the polls, with brawls and bloodshed generating terror on the waterfront.

ORDERLY ELECTION

In the new election Wednesday, almost everyone was a perfect gentleman. Heavy details of police—2,500 on special duty in New York City and about 500 others on the New Jersey side of the port—had little to do.

The NLRB announced Wednesday night that the independent ILA had a lead of 319 votes over the AFL-ILA in the big struggle for certification as bargaining agent for the ports' dock workers.

Out of 23,000 eligible, 19,798 dock workers cast ballots.

But there were 1,797 challenged ballots, and it may take from six weeks to two months to investigate and tally them and decide the winner.

Spokesmen for each union today predicted victory after the challenged ballots are counted.

Collegiate Burns

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man. (CP)—The 50-year-old 12-room Portage La Prairie collegiate was destroyed this morning in a spectacular $110,000 fire.

Alarm for the blaze was turned in just before midnight and in approximately two hours the brick-wood two-storey building was rubble.

School principal P. R. Stewart will meet with the school board today to determine what will be done about the 350 students, who lost most of their books.

It is thought the school, which normally disbands shortly after June 1, might have honor students on their year's work and give them "extra summer holidays." The collegiate was the only secondary school in the city.

One Canadian Is in 'Sixteens' In British Golf

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (CP) — Bob Fleming of Victoria scored a fifth-round victory today in the British amateur golf tournament to become the last Canadian survivor, but Vancouver's Walt McElroy fought a thriller right down to the wire before losing a 19th-hole playoff.

Fleming was matched in the sixth round this afternoon with W. A. Slark of England. The field was reduced to 16 for the round.

McElroy lost a heartbreaker to Richard Davies of the United States. Don Doe of Granby, Que., bowed 7 and 6 to England's J. K. Tate and Slark defeated Gordon Taylor of Montreal, captain of the Canadian team, 3 and 1.

The two co-favorites—Americans Frank Stranahan and Billy Campbell and defending champion Joe Carr of Ireland—won their way to the sixth round.

Bishop Renison To Retire After 57 Years' Service

SCHUMACHER, Ont. (CP)—Archbishop Robert John Renison of Moosonee, whose name has become part of the history of Ontario's northland for more than half a century, announced Wednesday he will retire this year.

He told a meeting of the executive committee of the Anglican diocese of Moosonee at his nearby residence that he is resigning Sept. 1 on his 78th birthday.

He has been in the service of the church since the age of 21 when he started as a missionary along the shores of James bay among the Ojibway and Cree Indians.

His later served in Hamilton, in Vancouver as dean of the Anglican Cathedral, and as bishop of Athabaska in the Peace river country. He was rector of St. Paul's in Toronto for 11 years.

He returned to the north in 1943 as bishop of Moosonee and covered his 55,000-mile diocese by bush plane. He remained there after being elected metropolitan of Toronto nine years later.

SHARK SCARES VILLAGERS

CUTTACK, India (Reuters)—A man-eating "sea tiger" shark is terrorizing a tiny village near here on the muddy Baitarani river The shark has already attacked a man and his son. Now mothers in the village refuse to let their children play near the river banks. They fear the shark is a "devil" which will gobble up anyone else venturing into the river.

MANUFACTURING PROFITS

People are always interested in profits—whether they are putting them in their own pockets or paying them out to somebody else.

For the reason the results of a recent survey by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association will be of interest to many who do not ordinarily consider statistics entertaining reading.

The Association, getting data from over 1,000 firms, large and small, ascertained that during 1953 the average profit was just 5.2 cents out of every dollar of sales. To those who have studied the reports of similar surveys conducted by the Association in the past the result was not surprising. The profit figure has known little variation in the last five years. The profit figure was a shade higher last year than in 1952, a shade lower than in 1951.

The Financial Post, commenting on these figures, suggests that if Canadian manufacturers as a group made a profit of 5.2 cents on the dollar of sales in the average year, a comparable investment of $5.8 billions and a total payroll of 457,000 workers.

"That is only part of the profit story.

"Not, by any means, did the meagre 5.2 cents go into the pockets of shareholders as dividends. Less than half, or 2.3 cents was disbursed in that way. The biggest chunk, 2.9 cents was plowed back into the business, to increase and cheapen production and to create new jobs.

"To those who want to see this country continue to grow and prosper, and to provide the employment needed for our growing population, the survey's main concern is not that manufacturing profits are too large but that they may well be too small."

A couple of points in the editorial by the Financial Post are worthy of additional comment. In the list of the reasons for "popular confusion" about profits it mentions the tendency to mistake markups for profits. This factor probably applies to others and it is also a fact to remember that an advertisement by a large food chain store this past week had a bearing on this point. Most of us are aware that the retail trade normally operates on markups on their goods. But markups are not profits. They provide for profits— but they provide for a host of other things, too, such as overhead and taxes. The chain store's advertisement graphically made the point, for, in showing the distribution of every $10 spent by its customers, it revealed that the shareholders received only a few cents —considerably less than the average manufacturing profit of 5.2 cents out of every dollar of sales, even less than the 2.3 cents distributed to shareholders in manufacturing concerns.

Perhaps some readers will see this as an indication that the 5.2 cents manufacturers receive from every dollar of sales is excessive. But manufacturing and retailing are two entirely different functions and we do not fail to overlook this fact in comparing their profit ratio per dollar of sales. Indeed, this system of figuring profit is one that must be used by retailers if it is to give rise to as many misunderstandings as it eliminates.

For those who prefer the more customary figure of profit on the capital invested, financial statement provides figures from which this can be calculated. The firms from which the Canadian Manufacturers' Association obtained its figures had a total sales volume of $7.25 billions, says the Post. An average profit of 5.2 cents out of every sales dollar would give an aggregate profit of $377,000,000. "Total investment is given by the Post as $5.8 billions, so the profit would be at the rate of 6.5 per cent. But shareholders received only 2.3 cents per sales dollar, a total of $166,750,000, or 3.3 per cent.

OFTEN BAIL IS NOT ADEQUATE

Is the bail fixed in criminal cases always adequate? The answer is in the negative.

Proof of this was furnished by the announcement that John Mallock, one of Canada's most-wanted fugitives, died last month in Mexico as the result of injuries received in a car accident.

Mallock and his brother, George, were arrested in Vancouver in 1950 on narcotics charges. They were released on $50,000 each. They failed to turn up for their trial in February, 1951.

George Mallock was captured in New York last December and in February of this year was sentenced to two years in prison and assessed fines totalling $10,000.

The difference between the fines levied and the bail set for him was thus $10,000. Are 21 years of a man's life worth $10,000? Obviously yes—considerably more than that figure.

Indeed, from the court's own figures it is obvious that the bail should have been at least $40,000 each. For the court fixed an extra year's imprisonment as the alternative for the $10,000 in fines. That makes the 21-year prison sentence, for which there was no alternative to fines, worth $30,000.

FRIEND TO THE LIVING

I'd rather say "how good you are"
Than have you be sad to be.
I'd rather pin a rose upon your coat
For all to see
Than send a wreath of roses with
A card of sympathy.

I'd rather share your burden now
And walk a mile with you
Than come upon a solemn day
Your lifeless clay to view
And say a fateful prayer if there
Is something I can do.

I'd rather prove my friendship to my friend while he lives
Than be the one who rushes round when death has called for flowers
As proof of true devotion to his dead friend's relatives.

Of course, if you should cross the stream before I'm called to go,
I shall be one who'll mourn for you, for I shall miss you so
But that is not the way your friend today is what I'd have you know.

The French: A Close-Up

(By Marion Webb in the Christian Science Monitor)

A recent letter to this newspaper urged that "the next time you look toward France, think not just of the perfumes and cafés and boulevards of Paris but of the people of France themselves —their hopes and problems and aspirations." This is sound advice. The historic charms of France, its art treasures, mellow provinces, gourmet cuisine, the matchless beauty of Paris as a city, majestic avenues of its landscaped gardens and avenues—all such are well known. They are plainly visible signs of French civilization.

To discern the "hopes and problems and aspirations" of the French people requires more. For they lead more or less closed lives. A heavy curtain of national conservatism seems to shut out from outsiders the life of their principal qualities. The ability of the French to carry on their best for hard work, to solve acute problems and wars, their artistic and creative power, intense devotion to family life, practical common sense (so soon seen) and even ordinary everyday kindness are only dimly apprehended.

An important prerequisite to understanding the French is that although France is a democracy, class distinctions of the ancient regime are still prevalent. That is why the French divide themselves as primarily a nation of bourgeoisie, artisans, and peasants. The rise in power of French opinion springs from these three groups.

French bourgeoisie in feudal times included the lower, middle, and small. They were the intermediary class in France's cities and the buffer between the nobles and common people. The bourgeoisie grew in importance, though enjoying the benefits of French democracy, still more in the world power of French opinion since the days of the revolution. Its ideals are very exclusive, being composed mainly of top government officials, the army, the intellectuals, bankers and such who are on the same level as these. Outsiders—or what is left of them. These are ultraconservative high bourgeois form an influential social class which wields a powerful influence in the nation's affairs.

Frenchmen carrying on the middle and specially small bourgeois tradition are numerous and the backbone of their country's prosperity. They are the owners of a prosperous small industry, business, or profession often inherited through family ties. They cling to old traditions, are very thrifty, are cautious in their dealings and generally live on a strictly cash basis.

Incidentally, even large French department stores do not use credit. And though these bourgeoisie feel the pinch of high prices, they are loath to change their ways and will doubtlessly shower they will be the gainers.

They jealously guard their individual independence and are not satisfied should always remain within their family circumstances. Their family foyer or home, like that of all French people, represents the center of their existence. The foyer is reversed as an inviolable sanctuary in which foreigners are seldom admitted.

Finally, your bourgeois, like all his fellow citizens, is highly patriotic. His concern is the cause of his country and he rises to the exclusion of all others.

France's artisans are still plentiful. Many are grouped into trade associations. Their work patterns are largely imbued with the spirit of medieval guilds. Any guild master was then barred from producing any article other than the one for which his guild was the inception of the tradition and French craftsmen were famous among today's artisans. Their products should bear the stamp of skillful craftsmanship that puts most of them in the de luxe category.

France's artisan is naturally a pronounced individualist; who believes his slower, painstaking methods are superior to clumsier, mass-production techniques. The French artisanry, incidentally, deserves strong praise for being the country's being a world leader in art. All French people love and appreciate art. They feel that cultural "must" to counter the lighter side of life. France and t'ings French are more or less the founds of the French artisan's outlook.

France's peasant or farmer is credited with laying the foundations of his nation's ancient civilization. The French Revolution freed him from feudalism by decreeing him owner of the land which he worked. Yet even today his agrarian existence stays steeped in his well-known methods, medieval modes, fetes, folg congs and cerebral customs.

The French peasant stubbornly refuses to adopt the manner of life unless unavoidable or for his well-being. To many outsiders his way of living seems primitive. But this does not trouble him in the least. On the contrary his sympathetic individualism warns critics to leave him in peace to carve out his destiny of life. Hence his interests are usually restricted to those of his family and his parochial primmy whose soil to him is sacred.

The shrewness and reticence of France's peasant are typified by the Frenchman's reply to a query as to his age: "For a good Frenchman I am 40 years this year. But for a bad apple year I'm a good apple year" The French peasant is usually a realist, independent element of the nation.

The French middle class conservative people of the major Western powers. Life for them is a struggle to maintain a way of life to be lived as agreeably as circumstances allow.

France, as everyone knows, is a rural nation, a member of the Big Three which stands with the free world in opposition to the Soviet Union. Nevertheless, French people are now in a period of flux. Many of the traditional, political economic and other policies are "on the spot" as a result of the impact of the realignment of nations in progress throughout the world.

Frenchmen may be overreaching themselves in estimating their power. But the fact that France should be considered that a nation which has practically put off the old for the new in a life.

The French picture may look distressing to some. Yet, looking at it, one notes that the French during their over twenty centuries of growth have remained successfully from one stage of growth to another. True, wars, revolutions, and strife have striffe accompanied this growth. But these phenomena up to now have usually been signs that the nation was moving forward to bigger and better achievements. In view of this, therefore, may not present day French events foreshadow better times for the people of France?

How 'Mama' Originated

(Manchester Guardian).

An ingenious theory of the origin of "mamma" and "daddy" has recently been put forward by Dr. Arthur Parmelee, of the University of California. Many words for the parents are phonetically the same across the continents, and Dr. Parmelee suggests that they are coined by the baby. They are clearly the first sounds it can sound, the nasal m-ma-ma-ma and the plosive d-da-da-da indication of distress, and the lingual l-la-la-la nature sound produced by a contented baby.

The mother learns to respond to these sounds, sometimes because she is the only one able to cope with the situation, whereas Dad usually absents himself at such times and only lingers with the sounds, they come to associate themselves with these two "words".

Keep Some Old Roads

(Summerside, P.E.I., Journal and Pioneer)

Speaking for ourselves we heartily concur in a remark made in the legislature on Monday by the Premier when he said that some roads on which there is very little traffic should be kept as they are. He said: "Let us keep some of them as we know them years ago. We can have our paved roads and our gravelled secondary roads but a few of those old roads will be of great benefit to the tourist trade."

One thing we can say of ourselves in the summer and fall is to drive along some of those narrow, tree lined roads. It is a pleasure that we never tire of. Some of the roads are beautiful while there are several that we know on which you can drive for a mile or more with the trees meeting overhead. They are so peaceful and serene that one loves to take them to emerge again into the busy traffic of the main roads.

Bannister's Heart Slow

(UK Information)

A 25-year-old medical student and Mary's Hospital, London, Roger Bannister, the first man to break the four-minute time for a mile, will fully qualify for his doctor's degree within a matter of weeks. He stands well over six feet and weighs only 154 pounds. His long legs give him a stride which has enabled him to become the fastest miler of the century.

Medical training has given Bannister a knowledge of how to best use his resources. He has also an exceptionally slow heart which beats only 40 times each minute in comparison with a normal persons' 72 beats. At the end of the race in which he broke the record, his heart was racing at 185 per minute.

Deadpan Subway Riders

(Ottawa Citizen)

The glad mood in which Torontonians first rode the new subway has passed, according to a Toronto newspaper columnist, to be replaced by the deadpan, staring-straight-ahead mask usually associated with street-car riders. Possibly the mode of transportation doesn't matter so much as the time and destination. Early morning sleepiness, with a day's work at the end of it, hardly are conducive to a dazed expression.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

CALCIUM AND THE BONES

Let me remind you physicians, dentists and laymen that the calcium shortage is not just one of my pipe dreams as some of you Yankee Wisecrackers like to think, but the dictum of Sherman Chemistry of Food and Nutrition that "the ordinary mixed diet of Americans and Europeans . . . is probably more often deficient in calcium than in any other chemical element."

Dr. Brady

To this authoritative statement Dr Sherman added another which you Yankee Wisecrax would dismiss as a pipe dream if I cited it here without quotes: "In adults there may be a long-continued loss of calcium without the appearance of symptoms because the losses from the blood and other tissues may be replaced by calcium withdrawn from the bones."

Yahbut teeth and bones are not the same organs. Nineteenth century dentist, backed by the American Dental Association, which apes all the slick tricks of the American Medical Association, including "councils" on this and that to "accept" nostrums or gadgets that advertise.

These nineteenth century doctors, medical and dental, acknowledge that calcium is "laid down" and enters into the composition of the teeth in the first 18 to 25 years of life—when the teeth are developing—that is, until such of the third permanent molars (wisdom teeth as the individual is going to have are cut. But nothing of this sort is conceivable in full grown adults, in the mind of an old timer.

Notice that Sherman speaks of "a long-continued loss of calcium from the body tissues. Dean (Treatment of the Patient Past Fifty) speaks of "a steady, long-continued loss of calcium through the years". Calcium deficiency diseases take months to become manifest, and prevention or correction of the manifestations takes months of high calcium diet and Vs and D feeding. Remember, then, you don't "get" calcium and vitamin D. It is food, not medicine. Do you take meat and potatoes for the sake of the meat and then discontinue taking them?

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The more shocking is its withering and decay. Tulips, having a lovely country wench type of beauty, never suffer. They open on the day and close on the dusk, their freshness surviving day after day until, without any apparent decay or failure, their petals fall off, lightly, and the world blows them out. But an orchid suffers a ghastly and humiliating decline. When the flower becomes aware of the sense of something sinister slowly happening to its beauty it converted into a slow creeping squalor. It becomes a cadavre of beauty. Perhaps no flower is more quickly flung away than an orchid. Many ladies suffer this indignity in decline. Roses fare not much better. In bud, nothing is more tenderly beautiful than a rose in full blown, it is radiant. But when it begins to go it goes in a flood of shame.

A day or two ago, I saw on the street a woman who, twenty years ago, was one of the half dozen most beautiful girls of her generation. She was breathtaking. Today, not a vestige of her old beauty remains. And what is worse, those who recall it have had their minds taken away again by its shocking absence. In her youth, she had a girl chum with whom she was always seen, a rather plain tailored type of girl with heavy hair and square jaw, bright cheekbones, a hearty type as different from those in bloom as any beauty as could be. We used to say, in our youthful cynicism, that the beauty chum was there only one for a companion only to accentuate her own beauty.

On a recent trip to Victoria, BC, I saw the rusty bungo one, after all these years, in the rusty hair blithe in the wind, her ruddy color becoming to her age, a long-legged, vital woman undamaged by time.

At what stage, I wonder, did these girlhood chums put a conscious distance between them; and for what reason?

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS.

BEGINNINGS

Beginnings are always interesting. This applies to the lives of men and women, to inventions, to their writings, for authors who later become famous, are always interesting in the life. I often stop in my city and stand with a crowd who watch the progress of which a great building is constructed.

I once visited the reconstructed Edison work laboratory at Greenfield, Village, Dearborn, Michigan. The last surviving assistant to Edison spent hours in showing me pieces of inventions by that great inventor, especially the work of their first states. I was amazed by the great number of beginnings that were added to the constructive use of all mankind.

Imagine, for example, all that has been developed since the first wheel was introduced. Henry Ford in his great Museum at Dearborn has exhibited thousands of beginnings as well as of the wheel which can so much be seen. Mr. Ford apparently was fascinated with beginnings, for he spent millions to gather them and put them into his museum for anyone to see and study.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THAT GOOD OLD SUNDAY

Some time ago an article in this column was entitled "The Passing of Sunday". I often think of it when I see children. My wonderful father was a carpenter, a musician, and a farmer. In the eyes of the world we were poor. But since I have grown older, I realize we had so many things that money could not buy. We had so much love and laughter. Never heard an unkindness. We could all play some musical instrument. Sang in our church choir.

Looking back I realize more than ever, one does not need a lot of money in order to be happy. My father each morning would read from the Bible, then we would all get down on our knees and pray. We started each day right in our home with a prayerful thank about. May God bless and watch over you. I hope you live for at least one hundred years.

Now your last good wish, my dear lady, is just too much. I have been reading about the hydrogen bomb, and I do not care to live that long myself. I would like to live as long as one can be useful and to pass on with as little fuss and discomfort as possible. Only

Carrying Place Fire Victims Laid to Rest

TRENTON (Special) — The four Carrying Place fire victims Mr. and Mrs. John Earl Elliott, Pte. Cleon Elliott and David Allan Taft, were laid to rest in Carrying Place cemetery yesterday following services at the Weaver Funeral Home in Trenton.

At 1.30 p.m. the Rev. H. V. Muxworthy, of Trenton, said prayers for the three members of the Elliott family. Members of the Trenton Branch of the Canadian Legion acted as honorary pallbearers for Private Cleon E. Elliott on leave from the army, when fire claimed the lives of his parents and a friend, a neighbor's son.

Mrs. John Earl Elliott was formerly Ella Pearl Forshee, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Forshee. She was born in Halloweil township. She was 47. She had resided in the Carrying Place district for nine years. She is survived by one daughter, Darlene Elliott; two sisters, Mrs. Cecil (Clara) Rylatt, of Picton; Mrs. Sherman (Effie) Thompson, of Wellington, and two brothers, Roy Forshee of Picton, Ont., and Eugene Forshee, of Hamilton.

John Earl Elliott was 50 years old. His birthplace was Hungerford township. He was an employee of the Trent Cotton Co. Ltd., in Trenton. He is survived by his daughter, Darlene, and a brother, Percy Elliott, of Wellington.

Private Cleon Elliott, age 27, had served two tours of duty with the Canadian Army in Korea. He belonged to the Princess Pats Regiment. He was home for a visit when he lost his life. He leaves his sister, Darlene.

Bearers for the Elliott family were: Vernon Westfall, Ernest Westlake, Gerald Genereux, Everett Weller, Grover Hanna and William McDougall.

The funeral service for David Allan Taft, 27, took place at 3 p.m. with the Rev. E. V. Cook, of Consecon United Church, officiating. Interment was in Carrying Place cemetery.

A resident of the district all his life, Mr. Taft was born in Ameliasburg township. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Taft of Carrying Place.

A carpenter by trade, he was well liked by the men he worked with. He had decided to spend the tragic week-end with his soldier friend, home on leave from the army. He is survived by his parents and four brothers, Ray and Floyd, of Detroit, and Howard and Clarence of Carrying Place.

Bearers were: William McDougall, William Hanthorne, Oliver Frost, Jr., Vernon Westfall, Norman Baker and Gerard Finlan.

New Hockey Rink To Cost $106,000 Being Advocated

TRENTON (Special) — A group of Trenton businessmen have started campaigning for a new hockey arena. Estimated cost of the project is $106,000. Proposed location has not been decided upon but the planners have their eyes on a piece of land in the downtown area.

An artificial ice rink has been badly needed for the best part of 25 years. The arena, the planners say, would create new interest in organized hockey and provide facilities for the youngsters at Trenton and Middleton Park.

It is a known fact that the RCAF would welcome and take advantage of a new arena in Trenton.

TRENTON (Special) — It was announced yesterday that Hon. William A. Goodfellow, Minister of Health of Ontario would officiate at the opening of the new Trenton Public Library this coming Wednesday. The Minister has planned to arrive in the harbor here by amphibious airplane in time for the official ceremony starting at 2.30 p.m. Afterwards he will return to the waiting aircraft for a return flight to Toronto and another engagement. The new library building, located in beautifully landscaped surroundings, adds to the attractiveness of the Sunday Fraser Park and waterfront area.

Pleads Guilty To Arson Charge

TRENTON (Special) — William Edgar Snider, 64, of Trenton, charged with arson, pleaded guilty in Magistrate R. F. Bazeley's court at Brighton yesterday. He was remanded until May 31 for sentence. The charge arose from a fire that burned James Seymour's car in Murray Township early Sunday. Snider was arrested after Provincial Police investigation.

William Andrews of Toronto was found guilty of dangerous driving and fined $35 including costs. He was the driver of a car involved in a collision with a car in which Mr. and Mrs. George Cox of Redneresville were riding. The Redneresville couple were hospitalized for some days with injuries received in the crash. The accident occurred at 11.45 p.m. April 24 a mile east of Brighton on highway No. 2.

Metro Expressway Given Approval By Roads Committee

TORONTO (CP)—Plans for Toronto's proposed $51,000,000 lakeshore expressway received unanimous approval from the Metropolitan roads committee Wednesday, indicating a probable quick passage by the Metropolitan executive next week and the full council the following week.

The plans will then go to the provincial government, which has promised to pay half the cost of arterial road construction which it approves in Metropolitan Toronto.

If the government approves the project, construction is expected to start by September, if not, Metropolitan chairman Fred Gardiner has said the council will have to take "a serious second look."

Nurse Terraube Expresses Thanks For 'Clemency'

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Nurse Genevieve de Galard Terraube wrote a letter thanking the Indo-China Vietminh leader, Ho Chi-minh, for his "clemency" and the "selfless devotion" of the Communist-led rebels' medical service before she left Dien Bien Phu, the Vietminh radio said yesterday.

According to the radio, the French nurse, who was released Monday after 57 days as the only woman in the Dien Bien Phu area, wrote "Thanks to you, Mr. President, and to the Viet Namese women who made a request to you in my favor, I will soon go back to my family and motherland.

"I therefore whole - heartedly wish that peace will soon be established in Viet Nam so that all men, women and children in your country may also feel the same joy and live a happy and peaceful life."

RAILWAY UNIONS TAKE STRIKE VOTE

A strike vote among 145,000 members of the non-operating railway employees has been announced by Frank Hall, Canadian chief of the Brotherhood of Railway clerks. The vote will be held in June and may result in a repetition of the strike of 1950 which lasted nine days.

Donald Gordon, president of the CNR, has repeatedly stated that increases in operating expenses would result in increased fares and freight rates, but has not made public his specific views on the unions' present demands.

Like Donald Gordon, W. A. Mather, president of the CPR, has made no public statement on the present threat of a strike. The unions are concentrating on demands for "fringe" benefits.

The report of Mr. Justice Kellock who acted as neutral conciliation officer in the rail dispute was not accepted by the unions involved. (Central Press Canadian Photos.)

Eight Members Of Labor Party To Visit China

*LONDON (Reuters) — Former Prime Minister Attlee and Aneurin Bevan, chief of the Labor party's left-wing faction, will lead a delegation of eight party members on a visit to Communist China this summer.

This was announced Wednesday by the party's national executive committee after it decided to accept an invitation extended by the "Chinese People's Institute of Foreign Affairs."

The Chinese organization said in its recent invitation the Labor party could send as many as 30 or 40 delegates on a goodwill visit to Peiping.

Others going are: Wilfred Burke, party chairman and member of parliament; general-secretary Morgan Phillips; Dr. Edith Summerskill, Harry Earnshaw, Henry Franklin and Sam Watson. All except Phillips are members of the 28-member executive.

The Labor party at its annual conference at Margate last fall accepted a proposal that its leaders should organize goodwill visits to Russia and China. Approaches were subsequently made and the Peiping invitation is a result.

VISIT CRITICIZED

A government spokesman said Wednesday night the foreign office was not consulted on the Labor delegation.

The proposed visit was attacked by Lord Beaverbrook's London Evening Standard as being bound to cause bitterness both in the United States and in France.

Certainly it seems ill-timed to accept an invitation at a moment when the forces of Vietminh are using Chinese tanks and guns to batter the French in Indo-China," the Standard said editorially.

It added that the Labor party's decision would be interpreted in Peiping as a suggestion that no matter what the outcome of the Geneva conference, China would still retain the goodwill of the British Labor party. . . .

Jury Asks Leniency

WINNIPEG (CP)—A 41-year-old Winnipeg woman was acquitted Wednesday on a charge of murder in the knife slaying last Jan. 20 of her husband, but a 12-man jaszie court jury found her guilty of manslaughter.

The jury recommended leniency for the woman, Mrs. Agnes Mary Yasinski.

Mr. Justice E. K. Williams said he would consider the recommendation before passing sentence today.

Her husband, Joseph, 51, died after a quarrel in the family dwelling in suburban St. James.

German Sub Heading For Great Lakes

MONTREAL (CP)—The U-505, former German Atlantic fleet submarine captured by the United States Navy off the coast of Africa during the Second World War, headed for the Great Lakes and a Chicago Museum Wednesday, after being guided through the last locks of the Lachine canal.

Its commander, Capt Earl Troxino, United States Navy, took on board members of the Seafarers International Union (AFL-TLC) to help navigate the vessel to Chicago.

The U-505 will be placed in a museum as a memorial to Americans who lost their lives at sea during the war.

Now under tow by the Moran Towing and Transportation tug Pauline L. Moran, from Portsmouth, NH., she will be taken over by a second tug when she reaches Prescott, Ont.

A party of American sea scouts, here from Chicago to meet the ship, are expected to join her between here and Prescott.

Charged With Murder

VANCOUVER (CP) — The fatal stabbing of 21-year-old Donald Messer followed a quarrel with his 18-year-old girl friend, Mary Victoria Mellish, a court heard Wednesday. Miss Mellish, a mail clerk, was charged with murder.

She told police she had been living with Messer, and following a quarrel she prepared to leave and was gathering up her clothes when he struck her.

F. J. Messer, father of the dead youth, said his son had known Miss Mellish for the last 4½ years and that they planned to get married in June.

Graduating Nurses Receive Congratulations from Civic, Medical, Society Officials

Twenty-one nurses of the Belleville General Hospital's School of Nursing graduated on Wednesday evening in simple but impressive ceremony in the Belleville Collegiate auditorium before a capacity audience of parents, relatives and friends.

Congratulations to the graduates were forthcoming from civic, medical and nursing society officials.

Climax of the evening and the culmination of three years of arduous training was the presentation of pins and diplomas and the awarding of medals and prizes.

The principal speaker was Mrs. Robert McQueen, endowment officer of Queen's University. The valedictory address was delivered by Miss Joan Green of Stirling.

Members of the graduating class were preceded to the platform by a procession of the nurses' choir, which sang several pleasing songs during the ceremonies. The nurses, dressed in immaculate, white uniforms, and carrying bouquets of red roses, presented an inspiring tableau as they seated themselves across the front of the collegiate stage.

Rev. L. K. Daniel, minister of Victoria Ave. Baptist Church, pronounced the invocation.

J. N. Yanover, chairman of the Board of Governors, and chairman of graduation exercises, welcomed visitors.

"We of the hospital family are equally as proud tonight of these 21 beautiful graduates as are their mothers and fathers."

Mr. Yanover noted that in the early 19th century nurses had compassion for their patients but were untrained. Today nurses have their training to make their compassion effective.

"We are proud of our school of nursing and of the kind of training being given in it," said Mr. Yanover.

"We are sure that these young ladies will bring honor to their profession. The Board of Governors wishes them the height of fortune in the years to come."

GREETINGS BY MAYOR

His Worship, Mayor J. Roth, in bringing greetings from the citizens of Belleville, said that the graduates were "setting out on the term of a life that cannot go wrong."

"You are acting forth on a life of opportunity," said Mayor Roth "and your actions as a profession dedicated to the service of others, opportunity never stops knocking. You have chosen a profession held in honor and esteem in the minds of the people."

Dr. Austin Walters, president of the medical staff of the hospital, said that graduation, the culmination of three years of long, hard work, was elation with falling in love and being married, one of the most memorable moments of a nurse's life.

"Nursing is not only a theoretical and academic profession, it is an arduous profession with the distinction of having the purest paid apprenticeship in the world," said Dr. Walters.

"I would like you to remember only one thing about graduation," he said, "and that is that you should not feel your period of study of the ill people is over. You will learn more from every ill patient."

He concluded by congratulating the nurses on behalf of the medical staff and wished each of them "a peaceful and happy future wherever it may take you."

Miss H. Dalley, chairman of Chapter A, District No. 6 of the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario brought greetings from her association and stated that the new graduates would be welcomed into the association.

Miss H. Wood, director of Nursing, read a comprehensive report on the activities of the school of nursing and on her own behalf and that of her staff thanked the Board of Governors, medical and administrative staff of the hospital, the Women's Hospital Auxiliary, Nurses' Alumnae Association, the Department of Health, V.O.N., C.A.S., O.S.D., the Home for the Aged, and the citizens of Belleville, for their interest and co-operation during the past year.

CLERGY PRAISED

She also thanked the clergy of the Protestant and Catholic churches for their advice and spiritual guidance "which plays so important a part in nursing science."

Miss Peart had a special word of thanks and praise for their co-operation and stimulating interest during the year."

In her address to the graduates Miss Peart said that they had "acquired knowledge intelligently and diligently. You have learned to live together and to share together," said Miss Peart, "and in doing this you have laid the foundation of a happy and secure life. Congratulations and best wishes for the future."

F. C. Mitchell, warden of the County of Hastings, brought greetings and congratulations from the county council.

He introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Robert McQueen, endowment officer of Queen's University, who was born in Belleville, and educated in England. Mrs. McQueen, who served as a nurse in World War I, obtained a degree in social welfare from the University of London, England, after World War I. She married Professor McQueen, who is now head and professor of economics at the University of Manitoba and a director of the Bank of Canada.

"You will remember tonight as the night you joined the nursing profession," said Mrs. McQueen. "It is the beginning of exciting careers.

"We don't mark the miles we travel with stones, any more," she said, "We used to mark the miles with aquarium stones. They were a good place to stop, and rest, and look back at the road travelled and the road that lies ahead."

"Tonight let us pause to look at the opportunity of each who have joined, the duties and obligations that you must assume. The part you are to play in the days that lie ahead."

Mrs. McQueen reminded graduates that nursing as a profession was a product of the women's rebellion, by example, and agitation for training schools, brought knowledge and skill to the woman's natural compassion for the relief of the sick and ill.

EXERTED GREAT INFLUENCE

"Her work in the Crimean War focused attention on the "Lady With the Lamp" and her work in military camps gave her the great influence she exerted in England. In nursing is strong and calm, controlled in the face of suffering, and superior to the considerations of class and sex.

"Tonight you, as graduates, enter the sect of the Nightingales," she said the speaker. "This sect of the Good Samaritans is made up of certain doctors, certain social workers, certain Catholic orders and priests, and certain nursing who do something about people without consideration for themselves."

"Remember those people who preceded you and those who will be at your side when it is late at night, and you are tired and your feet hurt," she said.

"We don't get emotional about nurses today. We take them for granted. Their status is unquestioned. And how people rely on them and on the quality of their cool and efficient!"

"You are joining a profession that has been placed on a firm foundation," said Mrs. McQueen. "You owe a debt to those who preceded you. We cannot always pay our debts but I think you can pay your debt to them by following in their footsteps, and living up to their standards."

"You owe a debt to your supervisors, the doctors, the hospital staff, the people of Belleville and to the provincial and federal governments, who have built a tax free people to make hospital grants available."

"How can you pay back these people who helped you get that bench on your car?"

"You can repay them by being the sort of person they worked to make you."

PART OF COMMUNITY.

"Remember each day, staff taught you. Much of the character and skill you have you have learned from them. I hope you will repay the doctors by following the standards of medical education and technique they have taught you which they learned at great length and cost to themselves."

"Your debt to the people of Belleville may be paid for from here on out in your part in the community — a person the community turns to in times of crisis whether it be a flood in Winnipeg or a heart attack in an airliner over the Atlantic."

"Remember too that your education is just beginning. No profession has changed as much or progressed as rapidly as the medical profession in the last 100 years."

"Your foundation has been well and truly laid. Keep building on it. May you have happy and successful lives."

Mrs. McQueen was thanked by the chairman, J. N. Yanover.

The presentation of pins and diplomas was made by Mrs. J. M. Forrester, president of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary, assisted by Miss M. L. Peart, supervisor of nurses.

Alderman J. F. Bradford, a member of the Board of Governors, presented Dr. Austin Walters for general efficiency awarded by the Board of Governors, in memory of Iona Marie Goodman of Belleville.

The medal awarded by the medical staff for general proficiency was presented to Miss Joanne Crocker, Belleville, by Dr. Austin Walters, president of the medical staff.

Dr. R. S. Gibson awarded the prizes for highest standing in medical, operative room and obstetrical nursing to Miss Donna Lynn Edmundson, Wilkie, Sask.; Miss Donilla Jessie Graham, Stayner; and Miss Gloria Dawn Johnston, Madoc, respectively.

The Head Nurse Award, given by the supervising head nurses and instructors to the student nurse who most progresses during her course was presented to Miss Margaret Isobel Clarke, Corbyville, by Miss Mary Warden.

BELLEVILLE GIRL WINNER.

The Canadian Nurse Award, donated by the Canadian Nurses' Journal, to the nurse indicating the greatest promise of professional fitness, interest in advanced nursing course, was presented to Miss Shirley Louise Smale of Belleville by Miss L. Sine.

An unscheduled event on the platform was presentation of a gift to Miss M. L. Peart, supervisor of nursing, by Lois Margaret Anderson on behalf of the graduates.

In her valedictory address Miss Joan Green compared the nurses' training to the road of life.

"Tonight is the end of a long, difficult but fruitful journey," said Miss Green. "We will look back upon it as the happiest period of our lives."

"The way has been rough at times but there have been many downhill and level stretches."

Miss Green said the first started the course "unable to visualize what lay before us. Work that seemed impossible, facilities were unaccustomed to the rigid routine, the new world of nursing was not an exciting, glamorous profession. But we were bound to don our uniforms."

"Nothing was too hard for us with skilful assistance and encouragement we continued along the road until graduation. We begin now that we have not reached the end of the road but the crossroads. The most difficult part of the road has been covered. Now we begin the branch off leading to different fields all over the country."

"In our training to aid the sick and needy we have learned not only from text but also from contacts with others. Our affiliation with other nurses has increased our knowledge and allowed us to give better service to the patients in Belleville."

Miss Green thanked the parents, instructors, staff, doctors and the directress of the nursing school for their aid and training.

"And now we must say farewell. We have had wonderful times together. We have helped one another over the rough spots."

"Good-bye, good luck, and God bless you."

During the evening's program, the nurses' choir, under the direction of Mrs. Clifford Templar, sang, "We Give Thee But Thine Own," "All Through the Night" and "Our Lord's Prayer."

Mr. Yanover thanked Mary Deacon, organist.

Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary Sponsors 'Empire Day' Tea

Red, white and blue was the color motif yesterday afternoon for the delightful "Empire Day" tea sponsored by the Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary, at the Kiwanis Centre, Dundas Street east. Every where the eye turned there were Union Jacks and Canadian Ensigns; clusters of little flags topped the bunting entwined pillars, while a large Union Jack occupied the middle of the west wall, and little ones graced the posts of the white, picket fence which made an alluring entrance to the lovely tea room. Even the long serving table at the rear of the tea room had its quota, in clusters of three's.

Receiving the many guests into this colorful and fragrant atmosphere were Mrs. H. Emerson, president of the Auxiliary, and Mrs. L. A. Kells, wife of the Kiwanis president.

LOVELY TEA TABLE.

The tea table with its snow-white damask cloth was centred with a lovely arrangement of sweet smelling, double-white, lilacs and red tulips, flanked by tri-branched silver candelabra holding slight tall, blue tapers, adding accent to the color scheme.

Those pouring were: Mrs. W. G. Slade and Mrs. H. H. Murray; Mrs. J. Z. Marsh and Mrs. C. Mott; Mrs. G. Savage, and Mrs. V. J. White. The tea room hostesses: Mrs. E. J. Palmer, Mrs. W. J. White, Mrs. H. H. Murray, and Mrs. G. Slade.

Those assisting at the tea table were Mrs. R. Irvine, Mrs. J. L. Black, Mrs. H. L. Bolton, Mrs. Lloyd and Mrs. S. L. Joss; also the home of Mrs. Carl Thompson, Cassano Cavers, Tony Miller, Barbara Keel, Betty Rose and Anne Lundy.

DISHY TABLE.

The little guest tables, which were placed round about in pleasing positions, were all well-in-sweet with fragrant purple lilacs and yellow tulips. Here one purchased home cooking, such as creams, chocolate fudge, divinity fudge; rock creamed and other varied kinds. These were obtainable in cellophane bags; and bags of pastel-colored popcorn. Mrs. H. L. Carruthers and Mrs. McKenzie were the convenors, assisted by Mesdames A. S. Robb, H. C. Brown, S. E. Hamilton, W. J. Wilson, H. J. Vanner, L. Y. Reid, J. M. Wood and Mr. Gilday.

Mrs. J. Allan was in charge of tickets, while Mrs. W. J. Cook and Mrs. W. C. Fox acted as treasurers for the afternoon. Convening in the kitchen were Mrs. D. H. Widdifield, Mrs. W. N. Pinder and Mrs. A. J. Wolfenden.

An outstanding "Empire Day" tea, pleasing to the eye and highly successful, bringing success to the convenors, Mrs. H. L. Carruthers and A. O. Drysdale.

PRIZE WINNERS

The winner of the queen of cakes, Mrs. Ron Palmer, Madoc, George Street, city; of the door prizes, Mrs. Finkle, 334 Pinnacle Street; Mrs. R. H. Widdifield, 270 Bleecker Avenue; Mrs. E. QUEEN OF CAKES

A delightful queen of angel cakes, sat in state at the entrance to the tea room, under the watchful gaze of Mrs. N. E. Edwards and Mrs. C. L. Hyde. This cake was given to the holder of the lucky ticket, and was a dream with its pale pink, jutting, silver-tipped icing, and decoration of pinky-mauve sweetpeas, topping and surrounding its base.

The homebaking table carried out the Empire Day decorations in red, white and blue, and had a most delightful array of lemon, cherry and apple pies; square cakes topped with shredded cocoanut; white cakes; chocolate cakes; pink, angel and white cakes; loaf cakes with white icing; nut-studded tea loaves and nut loaves; nut-sprinkled cherry-custard tarts; tiny pineapple tarts; fruit biscuits; home-made bread; taffy tarts; jelly tarts; special shortbread; cucumber; chili sauce and marmalade and jars of canned vegetables. Convening these delicious morsels were: Mrs. G. V. Hosang and Mrs. H. Yake, assisted by Mesdames D. Stanton, W. Woonacott, Harry McKenzie, Wellington; F. Logan, W. E. Sandercock and K. W. Fox.

FOR ART

The candy table was a work of art with its pale green trellis work and tiny lattice fence, adorned with fragrant purple lilacs and yellow tulips. Here one purchased home candy, such as creams, chocolate fudge, divinity fudge; rock creamed and other varied kinds. These were obtainable in cellophane bags; and bags of pastel-colored popcorn. Mrs. H. L. Carruthers and Mrs. McKenzie were the convenors, assisted by Mesdames A. S. Robb, H. C. Brown, S. E. Hamilton, W. J. Wilson, H. J. Vanner, L. Y. Reid, J. M. Wood and Mr. Gilday.

Mrs. J. Allan was in charge of tickets, while Mrs. W. J. Cook and Mrs. W. C. Fox acted as treasurers for the afternoon. Convening in the kitchen were Mrs. D. H. Widdifield, Mrs. W. N. Pinder and Mrs. A. J. Wolfenden.

An outstanding "Empire Day" tea, pleasing to the eye and highly successful, bringing success to the convenors, Mrs. H. L. Carruthers and A. O. Drysdale.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

FLOWERS DON'T FULFILL OBLIGATION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I have lived in this medium-size town for only a little over a year, and now that we are settled in our own house I am beginning to give luncheons for some of the women who have been so kind to me. A few days ago I gave a buffet luncheon for eight guests. The following day I received a box of beautiful Spring flowers from one of the guests, with a charming note of appreciation for the hospitality. I would think that this means simply a gracious way to express thank-you. So I was very much surprised when my cousin told me that this "flower gift" is sent in place of a return invitation, the idea being that, for some reason, the guest is not able to make any other return. Is that true, Miss or Mrs. Hostess?— Elsa W.

I am quite sure that what your guest meant by her charming gesture is just what you think she meant. There are so many easy and simple and inexpensive ways to "return" hospitality, as a matter of fact, your new friend might invite you to have a cup of tea with her at some delightful place, and the cost of this (to be realistic) might even be less than the cost of the flowers.

WHEN ENGAGEMENT IS BROKEN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Should the girl return the engagement ring when the engagement is broken? Even in the circumstance when the young man breaks the engagement?— M.H.

Yes. . .when the engagement is broken, the girl should return the engagement ring. Period! Any right-thinking girl wouldn't think of doing anything else. Why in the world would she be willing to lower herself to keeping a ring which is a symbol of an engagement that no longer exists? And when she must suffer the chagrin and humiliation of having the young man break the engagement, she should think she wouldn't be able to get that ill-fated ring back to the ex-fiance fast enough!

A smart girl wouldn't give her ex-fiance the chance to think I'm not surprised that she doesn't return the ring. . .she just doesn't know what's what in the way of etiquette. And that's just why we are no longer engaged!

TO MENTION HER LATE FATHER IN ANNOUNCEMENTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My father, whom I loved most dearly, passed on last year, and I definitely want to mention his name in the newspaper announcements of my engagement and, later of my marriage, if I may. Would this be permissible?— Frances

This is not only permissible, but, dear Bride-to-be, correct and customary. For example: "The engagement of Frances Thompson, daughter of Mrs. Grace Thompson, of 23 Eastern Place, and the late Mr. Thompson."

WHEN TO USE INFORMALS FOR THANK-YOU NOTES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have read in your column your mention of some of the uses for informals, those "handy" folded cards with the person's name on the first page. Do you also approve of using them to write thank-you notes on the inside pages, such as thanking notes for shower presents (this is my friend's question). . .note to thank for funeral flowers (this is my mother's question). . .notes thanking a person some special courtesy or favor, such as permission to give the name as a reference (this is the sister's question). . . and bread-and-butter letters (this is my question). We all thank you for your kind advice about these questions. — Vera

What a smart and compact way to set forth the various questions! Yes, I do approve of writing thank-you notes on the inside pages of informals, provided they are short notes that really have the right to be short. But if writing a thank-you note in such a restricted space as is afforded by these pages, gives the hostess the impression that you will write just so much and not a word more (to "fit" the restricted space), then I most certainly don't approve.

For example, a shower present (your friend's question) might be thanked for by a somewhat short note, since it has already been thanked for, in general, at the shower. Also it is usually taken for granted that a thank-you note for funeral flowers or for similar notes, cards, or other messages, may be a brief note, and properly written on an informal (your mother's question). Notes of appreciation for favors and courtesies are usually, and properly, short notes, and so appropriately written on informals (your sister's question). But for bread-and-butter letters (your question) I'd say that this space is (and should be) regarded as inadequate. In giving of hospitality should be thanked for with a really generous expression of appreciation that shouldn't ever be "limited". . .so for these important letters one should use letter-paper or note-paper.

Beauty

TEEN-AGE BEAUTY PROBLEMS

Girls of fourteen act like young ladies these days, wearing high heels and formals! And, generally speaking, mothers are having a good deal of difficulty in making girls-kids act their age. Many family flights center about the teen-ager and her use of lipstick. The young ladies themselves have proclaimed a law to the effect that when they graduate from grade school at the age of fourteen they may play with makeup to their heart's content. But there is no sense in making too great an issue over the matter. Nothing must strain the loving bonds between mother and daughter. Better to let the child display tinted lips than to lose her affection.

Very young girls in long formals seem strange to women who have old-fashioned ideas. Why do they want to appear grown up when youth is so natural and lovely? they wonder. "All the girls wear them," is about the only answer. That is what the girls themselves say, and there is no answer.

The youthful viewpoint is often far from the viewpoint of a mother. But the two must get together in some way, have a pleasant understanding — and that is up to the lady-parent!

Wedding Reception

(Fourth - and Last - Instalment)

By Mary Moore

One thoughtful bride-to-be writes: "I . . . I don't know who to invite. Bob and I are both only children, and I say good-bye to our mothers and daddy after the wedding reception? I don't want to be watched by all the guests. . ."

Bless you Beth—I don't blame you for it is a sacred moment.

When you are in your traveling costume send a bridesmaid to fetch your husband's parents—a considerate gesture on the bride's part; then send for your own parents. After that signal the bridesmaids and your other girl friends and make your appearance and toss your bouquet.

In the past three weeks I have given you recipes in 50-servings batches, for wedding reception punch, chicken a la king, pressed chicken, jellied veal, assorted sandwiches, asparagus rolls.

Now I have requests on my desk for wedding cake recipes and large quantities of coffee. This seems to be the logical place to answer those letters, for many mothers of bride-to-be will be wrestling with the same problems. Please remember to clip.

WEDDING CAKE- (13 lbs.)

One lb. butter, 1 lb. granulated sugar, 1 lb. flour, 1 8-oz. glass grape jelly, 2 tablespoons melted chocolate, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 18 eggs, yolks and whites beaten separately, 1 lb. blanched almonds, 1 lb. pecans, 1 cup pineapple juice, juice of 1 orange, 4 lbs. raisins, 1 lb. candied pineapple or mixed crystallized fruits, 1 lb. candied cherries, 1 lb. dates, soak in almonds overnight in the orange juice, and soak the fruits in the pine juice. Sprinkle a little of the weighed flour over the fruits. Cream the butter and sugar together well, then add the beaten egg yolks and beat, then the jelly and chocolate and beat. Sift together the baking powder and flour and add. Add fruit, putting in small quantities at a time as you beat. Add the nuts. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites last. Turn into greased square pans which have been lined with a double thicknesses of buttered brown paper. Bake at 275 deg. Fahr. in oven containing waterpan, with water in throughout. Large cake will require four hours, smaller cakes about 3 1-2 and 3 hours.

ORNAMENTAL FROSTING FOR WEDDING CAKE

One lb. sifted icing sugar, 1-2 teaspoon cream of tartar, 2 unbeaten egg whites, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla. Sift sugar with cream of tartar and add egg whites and mix well, using slotted spoon or wire whip. Mix for 3 minutes. Add flavoring. Spread a thin layer over the top and sides of the cakes to set the coating. Continue beating the remainder of the icing for 3 minutes if by hand or 3 minutes if electrically beaten at high speed. Spread some over cake, smoothing surface with spatula. Best remainder until it is so stiff that a knife drawn through leaves a clean-cut line. Pipe this on in border design or roses through pastry tube.

COFFEE (50 servings)

The 4 cups finely ground coffee to thick cheesecloth bag, leaving plenty of room for coffee to swell. Let stand in 7 quarts plus 1 cup cold water for at least 2 hours. Bring slowly to boiling point and boil gently exactly 5 minutes. Remove the coffee bag and keep hot, but not boiling, for serving. Be sure to use imperial measure (such as a milk bottle) for measuring the water.

Women's Institute

BETHEL - ZION W.I.

BETHEL - ZION — The regular meeting of Bethel - Zion Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Harold Beatty with a large attendance. The president, Mrs. Morden Brough, presided. . . Mrs. R. Cranston, Mrs. Harry Ketcheson, Mrs. H. Beatty and Mrs. M. Brough were appointed as delegates to the district annual which is being held at Plainfield on June 1st. It was decided that $10 be sent to "Care."

Mrs. B. Casey, convener for Citizenship and Education, was in charge of the program for the afternoon. A reading, "Women's Institute," was given by Mrs. Harry Ketcheson then showed pictures and described all the places of interest of her recent trip to Florida. These were most interesting.

The hostess and her assistants served refreshments.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SHE SAYS "A MAN DOESN'T LOVE A DECENT WIFE"

A wife whose husband has been repeatedly unfaithful to her writes me bitterly that "man doesn't love a decent wife. Men seem to love you better if you step out on them." Having said this, she adds: "I would like you to ask for opinions from your readers on this."

Personally, I doubt very much if any reader is going to agree with her. In fact, I don't believe she would really agree with herself, if she were not in such a state of upheaval, and were able to think about what she has said in a really objective way.

I admit, though, that it would be pretty hard to be objective under the circumstances, for: "I have been married 25 years," she writes, "and the last four of them have been the most unhappy ones I have ever lived through. Every so often I hear that my husband is having affairs with other women, which he always denies. I think I could stand it better if he didn't sneak and lie so much about it. Outside of this, he's good to me and to our children, but he is a two-timer every chance he gets, and I can't stand any more. My nerves are wrecked till I am sick all the time, and every time he comes around me, I want to say something about what he has done.

"Wouldn't it be best just to leave my husband, because I am sure I could never get over what he has done and I am not happy living with a man who has proved he can't be trusted or believed. If I did leave him, I would have to leave the children, too, because I am not able to work to support them."

How since, as I've already said, I am quite certain this wife does not really believe that a man "doesn't love a decent wife," we can skip that point and come to the one which seems the most important at this immediate moment. That is, the question of whether or not she should walk out and leave her husband and her children, since she says she can't. It must be all or nothing.

However, I appreciate she may feel the situation right now, I am sure that she will never make herself feel any better by abandoning her children. In fact, I think the grief and remorse she would suffer later on, if she were to do this, would quickly put her into a worse state than she is in already. Only an unnatural mother could walk off and desert her children, especially when they would be left at the mercy of a father who is the type of man she describes. For even though she says he is good to the children, what sort of life would they have in a home where the only parent that is there is so chasing women all the time? Added to that, what kind of personality would they grow up to be under the influence of such a man?

Unless this woman can find a way by which she could take her children with her and support them herself, I think that she will be better off to leave them with him, which would be to stay where she is, for the time being, at least. Perhaps, if she went and talked over her problem with some family doctor, she might be helped to see how she might bear up better under her present burden. Expert advice from someone not enough at hand to give her con-visit to her doctor might also be very beneficial.

Have, then, are some specific steps to take. If she will begin here, she may find her life taking a turn for the better.

Church Needs More Workers W.M.S. Is Told

TORONTO (CP)—More workers are needed for church activities, the 28th annual meeting of the Dominion board of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada was told today.

The presidential address of Mrs. John McKillop was read by Mrs. A. A. Ostram. She said additional workers are needed in areas of Canada not served by churches, as well as in hospitals, Indian work and in activities to help the lonely and elderly.

She added that in Korea, Africa, India and Japan, residents are yearning for a better life but are exposed more to Western materialism than to Christianity.

NEW PROOF THAT MILLIONS CAN END THE NEED FOR LAXATIVES

—find relief from constipation this safe, natural way—without the injurious effects of repeated laxative use.

With all the progress of medical science over the past 30 years, authorities say there is no good reason why irregularity should be our most widespread human malady.

Nor is there any reason for developing the habitual use of harsh laxatives—of dosing with cost preparations after another in the vain hope of finding, in some potion or pill, the "secret" of lasting relief.

Long-continued study of the problem has shown that one of the most common causes of irregularity is lack of bulk in the diet. And when this is the case, the common-sense correction is to be found not in the drug store but in your food store!

IT HAS LONG BEEN A MEDICALLY RECOGNIZED FACT THAT NATURE HAS PROVIDED, IN THE NATURAL FOODS MEN WERE INTENDED TO EAT, ALL THE ELEMENTS NECESSARY FOR THE LIFE-LONG AVOIDANCE OF COMMON CONSTIPATION.

One of these elements is natural fibrous bulk, or vegetable cellulose, which normally and naturally aids the rhythmic process of elimination.

In no natural food is this natural bulk so ideally found as in the outer layers, or bran, of the whole wheat kernel which, as you know, is lost in modern milling.

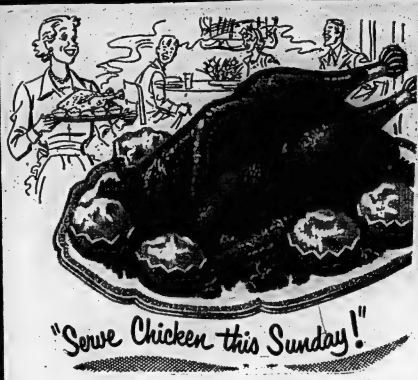
Because of the known value of bran in promoting regularity the Kellogg Company has perfected a delicious whole bran—with nothing taken away to lessen its effectiveness—sold under the name of Kellogg's All-Bran, the natural laxative cereal. How effective is All-Bran? This has been demonstrated in a series of systematic clinical studies reported in leading medical journals.

In one study, 135 people with known delayed bowel function were given one ounce of All-Bran daily for one week. They were studied clinically and with X-ray with tests taken before, during and after they ate the All-Bran.

OF THE 135 PEOPLE, 107 SHOWED DEFINITE CLINICAL IMPROVEMENT IN JUST 7 DAYS.

IN A FOLLOW-UP STUDY, BETTER THAN 8 OUT OF EVERY 9 PATIENTS WHO WERE GIVEN ALL-BRAN IMPROVED.

The greatest advantage of All-Bran is that it corrects the cause of irregularity due to deficient bulk. Chemical or drug-type laxatives, on the other hand, are intended only for overnight relief of a temporary stoppage.



When people use these products habitually—in a way that laxative makers urge—instead of they establish their digestive systems in a way that many never intended. Instead of correcting the cause, they often actually make their condition worse.

If you think you must take a laxative preparation occasionally, do so. But do it wisely. Read the instructions completely. AVOID EXCESSIVE USAGE. But for natural and lasting relief put your trust in nature. Just eat daily a generous serving of All-Bran for breakfast and drink plenty of water.

This All-Bran plan has helped millions to re-establish and to maintain healthful regularity. Why not you?

STIRLING

St. Paul's Centennial Year Closes With Address on 'Loyalty'

By MRS. PERCY MacMULLEN

St. Paul's United Church, under the leadership of the pastor, Rev. A. E. Baker held its closing centennial service on Sunday evening with a good attendance despite the holiday week-end. A number of visitors were also present for this last observance which closed a full year of historic services. Among the guests were Rev. and Mrs. W. V. Walker of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. A. E. Baker A.R.C.T., presided at the organ and rendered "A Medley of National Airs" and "England, My England". The full choir sang, "The Festival Te Deum". Master Francis Rose, of Belleville, sang a festival number, "All Beautiful the March of Days."

The male quartet, Messrs. Harry C. Brown, Jack Bush, Grant Richardson and William Aylsworth sang "The Wayside Cross."

PRESENTATION

The pupils of Ridge Road school section No. 1 sat in a body and during the service they chanted in unison, "The Books of the Old and New Testament."

Mr. Ernest Sarles, of Salem United Church, and a Rawdon councillor, presented the teacher, Mrs. John Wallace with a nicely engraved pennant.

This school has won the award for the third consecutive year. The examiner, Rev. W. E. G. Dorey, of Sidney circuit, awarded the group on May 14th with 89 marks on old Testament and 85 marks on New Testament.

In this religious education series the Glen Ross U.S.S. No. 22 were only a few points behind the winners.

The service opened with "Jesus Thou Joy of Loving Hearts". The offering was gathered for the last time in the historic collection boxes by Messrs. Hector Eggleton, Cecil Macklin, Walter Elliott, Fred Bateman and Harold Hagerman.

GLOWING TRIBUTE

Rev. H. B. Neal paid a glowing tribute to the work of Rev. Earle Baker, and gave a brief picture of his outstanding contribution to church life throughout the years. He also gave a few of his own treasured memories and sentiments in connection with the Presbytery.

He chose as his evening message "Loyalty".

Mr. Neal pictured David of olden times with all the discouragements and difficulties which surrounded him, but through it all, he was loyal to the sacred memories of home associations.

The speaker felt that good home associations were most necessary as this would be a stadfast help to young people who are growing up in the world of today. Their memories of home and Sunday School will give them courage in difficult situations.

Mr. Neal pictured the heroic loyalty that we give to leaders, to friends and to good causes, giving several interesting narratives along these lines.

HEROIC PIONEERS

He then paid tribute to those heroic pioneers who settled this district with schools, churches, schools and were strong followers of the Christian way of life. Now 100 years later, the youth of today are challenged to carry on those great traits.

He then paid tribute to Victoria Day in Canada with the great herd lage handed down from the days of Confederation and quoted Psalm 72 and 8th verse, "He shall have Dominion from Sea to Sea".

The speaker also gave a series of illustrations on the theme "Loyalty", and closed his message with a prayer of "Rededication and Reconsecration", of gifts and talents that St. Paul's United Church might go forward to even better achievements in the coming years.

Mr. George Carlisle, clerk of session, graciously expressed the appreciation of St. Paul's centennial committee and members to Mr. Neal and also thanked the choir and organist.

Rev. W. H. V. Walker brought greetings from St. Andrew's and paid tribute to St. Paul's historic year. He announced the hymn of consecration and pronounced the benediction.

Mrs. Baker then gave an organ interlude "Faith of Our Fathers", while the choir took their places in the pews.

HOLY COMMUNION

Mr. Baker and Mr. Neal assisted by Mr. Walker and Mr. Baker's father-in-law, Mr. W. S. Irwin were in charge of the "Sacrament of the Lord's Supper" which opened with "In Memory of the Saviour's Love." Messrs. Cecil Macklin, George Carlisle, Robert

'THE BIG TRAIN,'

PRAYER FOR RECOVERY

After the ambulance came, Mr. Melvor said a brief prayer to "the great healer" for Conacher's recovery.

Maurice Jeffries of the Windsor Star, playing third base for the gallery team, said:

"He looked pretty gray when he came into third.

"I said to him, 'that was quite a clout.'

"He didn't answer. A second or two later, he fell."

Foster Barclay of The Canadian Press, coach of the gallery team, said:

"From previous games, I thought Conacher was pulling a fast one. He used to dance off the bases and get us all confused. Last year he scored a home run that way on a single.

"He seemed to be stretching out to draw a pitch and cause an error at third so he could get home."

Conacher complained of a slight pain in his chest before he came to bat in the top of the sixth inning. He said he thought it might be indigestion because he had eaten dinner just before the game at 7 p.m.

When he stepped to the plate, Conacher was cleanup hitter for the MPs, George Hees, Progressive Conservative member for Toronto Broadview and catcher for the MPs team, called out:

"C'mon, Lionel, we're not getting as many homers as we used to."

"GETTING OLDER"

"I guess we're getting older," Conacher replied.

It was his last sentence.

He swung hard at two pitches and missed. He scowled.

"Smile a little, said Mr. Mc-Ivor.

But Conacher did not smile. He was playing as though this one were no less important than a world series. It was with the laberand drive, the determination to win just a little farther than required that he took his last cut at the ball.

He belted the next pitch high into left field. The ball dropped behind some spectators crowding the playing field. As it was thrown in Conacher went into third standing up.

His hit probably should have been no more than a double. But even in a pickup softball game, he was playing it for all he was worth.

The crowd cheered the triple and guffawed as the gallery leftfielder bobbled the ball. Then the spectators turned their attention to the pitcher.

Suddenly, silently, Conacher collapsed, his knees buckling slightly as he slid forward onto the cool grass.

FELT FINE BEFORE GAME

Before the game, in the railway committee room where the players were putting on their sweaters, Barclay said to Conacher:

"You're not going to play this year, are you?"

"Sure, I feel fine," the Big Train said.

After the players, headed by Senator Thomas Reid and his bagpipes, marched to the field on the southwest corner of the lawn, Conacher immediately began batting out grounders to his fellow-Liberals, McDonald at first, Donald Fleming, PC member for Toronto Eglington, at short, and External Affairs Minister Pearson, at third.

The game was going down as the game started and it was chilly.

Conacher, first elected to the Commons in 1945 and returned last year, leaves a widow, Dorothy, and two children, Gretchen Jane, Lionel, David and Brian.

His death leaves the standing in the Commons: Liberals 171; Progressive Conservatives 50; CCF 23; Social Credit 15; Independent Liberal; vacant two; total 265.

The other vacancy, York West, was caused by the death of Rodney Adamson, Progressive Conservative, in the worst collision in Trans-Canada Air Lines North Star and RCAF Harvard training plane over Moose Jaw, Sask.

Heavily-Forested Reserve Locale For Search Party

WINNIPEG (CP) — The search continued today in the lake-infested heavily-forested Whiteshell forest reserve for two men who were in a fishing party of four reported missing by Tuesday when they failed to return from their fishing trip.

Missing are 23-year-old Alex W. Kay of Winnipeg, and Guy Ridgeway, 34, of suburban St. James. Kay's wife Lorna, 31, and Mrs. Tillie Armstrong of suburban Brooklands were found Wednesday floating in the Winnipeg river near Pointe du Bo ia about 100 miles northeast of here.

They were wearing life preservers and it is believed they died of exposure. How long the bodies had been floating could not be determined.

Two airplanes and numerous motor boats joined in the search for the men and the 14-foot motorboat they were using.

The party were unreported after reaching Eaglenest lake, near the Ontario boundary Saturday.

Six people have drowned in this area since Saturday. One previously lost angler was discovered Tuesday.

SUFFERED SHOCK, BRUISES

Forty-two-year-old William Mandock is in "fair condition" in Winnipeg General Hospital. He was found in the Whiteshell area Tuesday suffering from shock and bruises after he was lost for nearly four days.

Other drownings in widely separated parts of the district include: George McAuley, 27, of Sioux Lookout, Ont.; Gerald Selman, 19, of Sleeman, Ont.; Orval Cleary, 13, of Stratton, Ont.; John Wipf, 34, Poplar Point.

The search for Kay and Ridgeway was the second in four days for RCMP. They had previously led forestry men and civilians in the discovery of Mandock.

The unusual high drowning total is attributed to unseasonal weather in the area that brought rain, snow and high winds.

Atomic Bombers To Make Flight Over Nicaragua

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Air Force announced Wednesday that three of its big B-36 intercontinental atomic bombers will make a demonstration flight today over Nicaragua at the request of the Nicaraguan government.

Nicaragua is a neighbor of leftwing Guatemala, which has been furnished arms by Communists behind the Iron Curtain. The United States is sending military equipment to both Nicaragua and Honduras.

The air force said the formal reason for the flight of the B-36s was a Nicaraguan request that they take part in Army Day ceremonies today.

Madoc Defeats Stewart Warner; Jeffs Breaks Leg

(By GARET ALEXANDER).

In a two-hour marathon played at the Alemite Field last night, Madoc crushed the Stewart Warner nine by a 17-6 score in an eight and one half inning game. The game was called because of darkness.

Madoc went two runs ahead in the first inning, watched the opposition tie it in their half, and then went on to pour runs across the plate in every frame except the fifth and ninth.

K. Pigden hurled the route for the winners, allowing eight hits while sending three down via the strike out route. He walked six. Frank Baldwin started on the hill for the city crew and gave up 15 runs of 13 hits in seven innings. He fanned one and handed out a trio of walks. Dracup came on to pitch the last two frames with one base hit against him while a pair of runs scored. He fanned two and issued five free passes.

Singles by Sherry and Harry Brown, a double by Semmelhack, two passed balls and a Warner error paved the way for Madoc's first two runs with Hill Hurst's gang coming back for their two to pitch the last two frames with one base hit against him while a pair of runs scored. He fanned two and issued five free passes.

Singles by Sherry and Harry Brown, a double by Semmelhack, two passed balls and a Warner error paved the way for Madoc's first two runs with Hill Hurst's gang coming back for their two runs in the next frame with five runs on three singles, a walk and a trio of misplays by Stewart Infielders. They added three more in the third, another in the fourth and two in each of the sixth, seventh and eighth innings.

Stewart Warner got one back in the second, a singleton in the fifth and had their best offensive display in the eighth when they claimed a pair on a double by Dracup, a walk and singles by Creegan and LeFort.

The game was held up in the eighth when Charlie Jeffs, young leftfielder for Warners caught his ankle sliding into third. It was later revealed the leg was broken. He was rushed to the hospital.

Semmelhack paced the winners at bat with a pair of doubles and a single while Sherry claimed a double and two singles. Stewart met the ball for a trio of one-baggers while "Weiner" Brown had two singles. Harry Brown, John Hatch Jr., and Bill Brown touched the ball for one hit apiece.

Ashley and Dracup hit doubles for the losers while Ed DNovan, Baldwin, Chapman, Creegan, Burrowes and LeFort had singles.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

"OFF WITH A BANG"

According to the Batas senior baseball club's powers- that-be there is going to a be a rip-roaring hot time in the old town prior to the Viaduct Ontario Baseball League opening game with the Toronto Dependables on Saturday afternoon.

There will be an aerial "invasion" and the city will be "bombed" with balloons and pamphlets. There will be trumpet and drum and brass bands. There will be a colorful parade of floats. There will be proud, prancing palomino horses. There will be snooty, rakish "convertibles" loaded with smartly-uniformed baseball players. "V.I.P's" of the city district will be on hand to take part in the game-opening ceremonies.

The Batas' management is going all-out to give senior baseball the most colorful send-off in years. And it will be just that if all plans materialize and the weather-man is in a sunshiny, amiable mood.

The general parade will form up on the Collegiate campus about 1.15 and will move off shortly afterwards so the game can get under way at approximately 2.30.

The smart Trenton RCAF Trumpet and Drum Band will be on hand, as will the gally-appareled Kinsmen's Boys' Band.

Prior to the parade an aircraft will swoop low over the city dropping multi-colored balloons and pamphlets boosting the "big game".

The parade will move off to Bridge Street, thence to Highland Avenue and to the Exhibition Grounds.

High-ranking civic and municipal officials will be on hand to take part in colorful opening ceremonies which will be held in front of the brand new grandstand.

Then there is the game itself.

Coach Vernon Geyer has been putting the Batas through stiff, lengthy drills all week preparing for the opener. The team players are full of possibilities after their win over Peterborough last Monday and Geyer hopes to have a lot of the wrinkles, apparent in that clash, ironed out by Saturday. The boys are with him with plenty of the old spirit, fire and dash, and they have every hope of turning back the Toronto club for their first victory.

The Dependables are rated one of the better Toronto teams and have won two of their three league starts. They, too, have every intention of grabbing off their third victory at the expense of the Batas, so all indications point to a bang-up ball game. The Toronto club plays a night game with the Peterborough Petes that evening.

Coach Geyer will not name his starting hurler until shortly before game time, but in all likelihood Art Whitehead will get the nod. The young right-hander is in good shape and has his flinging arm in good condition. And if he is in form, the Dependables batters had better be on their toes.

REGENTS "IN"

The last obstacle to the operation of the Belleville District Baseball League was removed yesterday with Bryan Kidd's announcement that he would enter his intermediate "Regents" in the loop. That, it is believed, will round out a four-team set-up comprised of Belleville, Deseronto, Trenton RCAF and Picton.

With reference ot the league, secretary "Red" Doran said today the loop will get under way approximately June 15. The schedule will be drawn up and released within a day or so.

The alderman-sportsman said he had about twenty players out to practice last week-end, and with a few more reinforcements hopes to field a team that should compare favorably with the rest of the squads. Due to the fact the Bata seniors have the Exhibition Grounds diamond the rest of the week, where Coach Vern Geyer is drilling his charges hard for the big opening game against Toronto on Saturday, the Regents will not go into serious practice until next week.

"Chuck" Barriage will coach the new squad, with former coach "Red" Carnew hovering in the offing, giving a helping hand when needed. "Chuck" has plenty of baseball under his peaked cap, likewise plenty of experience. He has been associated with baseball from away back when sad in his Junior days was one of the best young pitchers to step on a mound. Likewise "Chuck" was no slouch around second and third base when he played with the COBL. He also had experience with the South Hastings League.

SOFTBALL

Tonight the Bobcats entertain Northerns at the CNR Recreation Park starting 6.30, while Point Anne opens the season at Madoc.

Fifty ladies will be made happy at the CNR Recreation Park tomorrow night when Paul Mercier's Bluebirds open their home season against the Stewart-Warner squad. M'sieu Paul will distribute a piece of costume jewellery to the first fifty ladies entering the admission gate.

Saturday night the Bobcats are hosts to Frankford at the Alemite Field at 8.30.

WRESTLING

"Tex" McKenzie, the popular, six-foot-nine, 265-lb. Texas rancher, will be in the main wrestling bout at the Memorial Arena on Friday night. His opponent will be "Big Ike" Eakins, 270-lb. rugged Kentuckian.

Young, towering McKenzie has been one of the most sensational wrestlers to come to these parts in some time. A powerful athlete in his early twenties, his specialty is a combination airplane scissors and reverse shoulder stand. He's been packing the arenas wherever he's appeared. His handsome, youthful appearance is no sign of weakness, as the burly Eakins is liable to discover.

The scooting scatting midgets will be back in a return jag team match by popular demand. This time the duo of Little Beaver and Tuffy McCree will scamper against the packing of Sky Low Low and Fuzzy Cupid.

Succumbs to Heart Seizure Playing in Softball Game; Household Figure in Sports

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Big Train is dead. And sports fans across Canada agreed today with Art Chapman who said: "We lost quite a guy."

Lionel Conacher died of a heart attack in Ottawa Wednesday night. He did as he had lived much of his life, playing a game—a friendly game of softball on the green lawn of Parliament Hill.

Tributes to the noted athlete and parliamentarian came immediately from men prominent in sports and politics across the country. They were summed up in the simple words of Chapman, who played against Conacher when he was with Chicago and Montreal in the National Hockey League: "We lost quite a guy."

Conacher, 52, excelled in football and hockey but he made a name in many other sports and was voted Canadian football player and athlete of the half-century in a 1950 Canadian Press poll. He retired from professional sport 17 years ago.

Prime Minister St. Laurent said: "The sorrow of his family will be met with the deepest sorrow by his colleagues in Parliament, by those who knew him throughout Ottawa and by all sports-loving Canadians.

DEVOTED TOTAL ENERGY

"No matter what task he undertook, whether in sports or in services to his community, it was typical of Lionel Conacher that he devoted his full energy to it."

George Drew, national Progressive Conservative leader, called him "a great sportsman who always played the game to win."

Conacher also believed in playing a hard game, whether he was plunging for the Toronto Argonauts in the 1920s or making Montreal fans howl with his dazzling rink-length rushes for the Maroons of the 30s.

He set a scoring mark in his first year of senior football in 1921 which has been equalled only twice. He racked up 15 points on two touchdowns, a field goal and two singles as Argos defeated Edmonton Eskimos 23-0 in the eastwest final.

Only Buster (Red) Storey of the 1938 Argonauts and the late Ross Craig of the 1913 Hamilton Tigers scored that many points in a single contest in the big final.

His endurance was phenomenal. He was known to play lacrosse and baseball games or football and hockey games on the same day and star in them all.

Conacher learned his baseball in his home town of Toronto and by 1926 he was with Toronto Maple Leafs, winners of the little world series.

WRESTLER AND BOXER

He was also a wrestler, a better-than-average sculler and swimmer and a former Canadian light-heavyweight champion boxer.

He didn't learn to skate until he was 16, but by 1926 he was a pro hockey player and stayed a big time star for 11 years with Chicago Black Hawks, New York Rangers and the Maroons.

He continued his interest in sports after his retirement as chairman of the Ontario athletic commission and as director of recreation with the RCAF during the Second World War. He was elected to the Ontario legislature for for Toronto-Bracondale in 1937 and to the House of Commons as Liberal member for Toronto Trinity in 1940. He was re-elected in 1953.

His colleagues in the Commons praised him as a sportsman and as a friend.

Wilfrid (Bucko) McDonald, another National Hockey League star turned parliamentarian, said:

"He was a driving, fighting courage but he had one quality—he never did retaliate even though he was the target for many attacks. He always played fair."

Vince Martinez' Flashing Fists Write Finish to Chuck Davey's Fight Career

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO (AP)—To all intents and purposes, Chuck Davey appears through as a professional boxer, ending one of televising's first births of a national sports hero.

Davey was more than self-made. he was televisionmade. He advanced undefeated through a series of screenings by the International Boxing Club, until he reached the top—a title fight with welterweight champion Kid Gavilan 15 months ago.

His bubble, inchoated with painstaking care with an eye on a national following born from television, was then burst by Gavilan, who stopped kids in the 10th.

Vince Martinez Wednesday night in the same Chicago Stadium ring showed less mercy than Gavilan. He kept Davey, the ex-Michigan State collegiate champion off balance with strong left jabs—something unheard of by a righthander against a southpaw like Chuck.

And when he threw his right, Davey was shaken down to his dancing feet. Davey went down four times—in the first round from a stunning right to the jaw; twice in the third from stiff left hooks, although referee Frank Sikora ruled a slip on one of them; and again for an eight-count in the sixth from a series of rights.

Martinez was credited with a technical knockout in the seventh round. An Illinois Athletic Commission doctor examined Davey after the sixth and ruled that the bout, scheduled for 10 rounds, should be stopped.

The nationally - televised bout drew a ringside crowd of 3,585 who contributed to a gross gate of $10,667. Davey weighed 149 and Martinez, the 8-to-5 favorite, 146½.

"It's a rough statement to make that Davey is through," said his manager, Hec Knowles, after the heartbroken boxer with a masters' degree in education had been led to his dressing room. "But I will recommend that he quit the ring now."

And as the curtain dropped on Davey, in the wings stood his wife, sobbing quietly; "Chuck has to quit now."

Handkerchief in hand, she waited out the end of the fight in the corridor of the stadium. She couldn't bear to watch the slaughter.

Chicago White Sox Nudging Cleveland Indians; Giants Win Five In Row

Defeat Tribe 5-4 in Ninth As Senators Edge Yanks 2-1; Durocher Crew in 2nd Place

By BEN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York Giant fans, still basking in the fading glories of 1951, bragged today about a five-game winning streak in the National League, then cautiously crossed their fingers. Brooklyn's coming.

The Dodgers invade the Polo Grounds for a three-game series starting tomorrow night against a Giant club that has been showing more signs of life than most experts expected.

By whipping Pittsburgh Pirates 3-1 Wednesday the Giants took over second place, a game and a half behind Milwaukee Braves.

The Brooklyn series won't make or break the Giants. But if they happen to sweep three games, or even gain a 2-1 edge in decisive fashion, they'll find themselves in the midst of the hottest pennant talk since they knocked off Brooklyn three years ago.

New York got only four hits against the Pirates Wednesday, a single and a home run by weak-hitting Davey Williams and two doubles by Willie Mays. Williams' single figured in the first run, his homer provided the winning margin.

MILWAUKEE WINS AGAIN

Brooklyn fell to third, half a game behind the Giants, by bowing to Philadelphia Phillies 8-6. Milwaukee won its ninth straight, 7-6 over Cincinnati. Chicago Cubs crushed St. Louis 13-5.

In the American League, Chicago White Sox closed to within half a game of league-leading Cleveland by beating the Indians 5-4. Washington shaded New York Yankees 2-1. Detroit Baltimore its fifth loss in succession, 6-3 and Philadelphia A's shaded Boston 6-5 in 10 innings.

Ted Kazanski drove in five runs in support of pitcher Robin Roberts and Willie Jones added to the Philadelphia total with a bases-loaded triple and a home run. Duke Snider and Gil Hodges homered for Brooklyn.

Eddie Lopat of the Yankees lost in the last of the ninth inning when with two out he gave up successive singles to Pete Runnels, Ed Fitzgerald and pinch-hitter Jim Lemon. The victory was the fifth straight for Bob Porterfield.

Cincinnati fell one run short of catching up with Milwaukee with a four-run rally in the eighth. The run that made the difference came in the top of the eighth on Danny O'Connell's double, an infield single and a single by Andy Pafko, his fourth hit of the night.

SAUER'S 10TH HOMER

Hank Sauer and Dee Fondy led the Cubs' wrecking crew against the Cardinals. Sauer hit his 10th homer and drove in four runs. Fondy collected four hits including a home run.

The White Sox' second straight victory over Cleveland came in the last of the ninth when Cass Michaels slammed a Hal Newhouser pitch over Larry Doby's head in centrefield with the bases loaded. The Indians had tied the score in the top of the ninth on a pinch triple by Joe Ginsberg, his first hit of the season.

Gus Zernial hit a grand-slam home run for the Athletics, who finally edged Boston in the 10th on a pinch single by Bill Renna.

George Zuverink got his first starting assignment of his major league career from Detroit and went the distance to victory over the slumping Orioles despite home runs by Vic Wertz and Sam Mele. The Tigers rammed Don Larsen for 11 hits in handing him his fifth loss.

Ike Will See Micky Vernon Get Tribute

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower says he'll be out at Griffith Stadium today to watch Mickey Vernon honored as the 1953 batting champion of the American League.

It's a rather special occasion all around, for the American Red Cross is going to collect a big chunk of the cash shelled out by today's spectators. Even the Washington ball players will pay their way into the park for the game against New York Yankees.

The 35-year-old Vernon, who twice has won the league batting title, will be presented with a silver bat in special pre-game ceremonies, emblematic of his batting championship last year when he nosed out Al Rosen of Cleveland with a mark of .337. Rosen had .336.

Vernon also won the batting title in 1946, when he hit .363.

Rogovin Pacing Havana Kings; Bisons Nip Leafs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pitcher Saul Rogovin can claim much of the credit for the success of Havana Cuban Sugar Kings in the International League.

The 31-year-old righthander, optioned by Cincinnati Redlegs before the opening of the National League season, chalked up his fourth straight victory without a loss Wednesday night as the Kings defeated Montreal Royals 4-2 in 10 innings.

Rogovin limited the Royals to five hits, striking out four and walking one as the Kings moved to within three games of the pacesetting Toronto Maple Leafs. Meanwhile, the Leafs dropped a 8-4 decision to Buffalo Bisons.

Paul Smith, former Pittsburgh Pirate first-baseman, walloped a homer for Havana's winning run. Luis Garcia singled home Julio Becquer, who doubled, with an insurance run in the top of the 10th for the Kings.

Pat Aiullen, player-coach of the Bisons, drove out a home run and a triple, while the pitching of Ken Johnson snapped Toronto's seven-game winning streak.

In the other games, rookie right-hander Jim Owens made his first league start a winning one as he hurled Rochester Red Wings to a 4-3 victory over Syracuse Chiefs. Lynn Lovenguth, Syracuse relief pitcher, pitched six-innings of one-hit ball, but the lone hit was Bill Verdon's homer in the seventh, and it proved to be the winning run.

Hector Lopez' single in the bottom of the ninth drove in Luke Easter with the winning run as Ottawa Athletics nipped Richmond Virginians 6-5.

HUNGER STRIKE CONTINUES

TEL AVIV (Reuters) — Forty-five hunger strikers, lying on cots in the wedding hall of the great synagogue here, Tuesday night rejected appeals by call-off their protest against the detention of Jewish leaders in Communist Rumania. The aged Israeli strikers, all former leaders of Rumanian Jewery, said originally they would go without food for 100 hours. The fast started Sunday night.

Trainer Dick Townrow Thinks Pancho Has Chance in Plate

TORONTO (CP)—Trainer Dick Townrow, an unassuming little fellow whose opinions are regarded highly by Canadian racing critics, has served notice that an unsung maiden named Pancho may win the 96th running of the Queen's Plate at Woodbine park on Saturday, June 12.

Such a suggestion would be ignored if it came from a less knowledgeable horseman than Townrow. Hoewver, maidens have triumphed in past renewals of the plate. Misternal Pride did it in 1924 and Willie the Kid never made an official appearance on a race track until he won Canada's richest turf prize in 1940.

DEVELOPED "REACTION"

Townrow, a former jockey, served as assistant trainer for the powerful E. P. McLaughlin stable of Oshawa, and then joined the Conn Smythe establishment at Oshawa, and then joined the Conn Smythe establishment as conditioner of the horses owned by Mrs. Joseph Tomlinson of Oakville and Winnipeg. He has the unprepossessing colt named Chain Reaction and developed him into one of the three top canadian horses of the season.

Last winter, Townrow moved over to train the Bur-Fit stable here, succeeding Pete Burton and Walter Fitzgerald of Hamilton. The Bur-Fit stable is nominated two colts, Collistee and Pancho, for the plate.

Townrow said last week that "Collistee is the best horse we comprised if Pancho chews him to pieces when they go further than six furlongs."

His remarks caused considerable eye-popping since Collistee is regarded as one of the outstanding choices for the guineas.

Collistee lived up to expectations by beating the good western colt, O'Leade, in the third division of the plate trials last Saturday. However, Pancho had finished second to Queen's Own in an earlier trial and caught the fancy of many turf students.

PANCHO RAN STRONGLY

Pancho ran an exceedingly powerful race. He broke slowly and had only one horse beaten as they went into the big turn for the six furlongs, but it was only when the field turned for home that he showed his real worth on the track.

Pancho was too far back to challenge Queen's Own but he passed all the others in that wild run through the stretch. He was speeding over Queen's Own as they passed under the winning wire and Townrow is sure he can another two furlongs so that, actually, he went a full mile.

Queen's Own won by 2-5.

The railbirds will take a closer look at Pancho next Saturday when he starts in the second plate trials at one mile and 70 yards.

Panthers Yet To Show Titular Form

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener Panthers, 1953 senior Intercounty Baseball League champions, have not yet displayed the form that won them the title last season and are not exactly now making the rounds is: "Will they; and if so, when?"

The Panthers, lodged in the cellar of the league standings, lost their first five starts so far.

Galt Terriers, who are tied for first place with Stratford, St. Catherines' defeat on the Panthers Wednesday night when they took a 6-1 decision in Galt. The Terriers now have a 4-1 won-and-lost record, the same as London Majors.

The Majors ferry tonight with the Terriers by defeating Brantford Red Sox 6-2 in Brantford. St. Thomas Elgins smashed out an 11-9 home victory over Guelph-Waterloo Royals in Wednesday night's other game.

Galt added insult to injury by sending Mel Duncan, former Panther, to the mound to face Kitchener. Duncan fanned a five-hitter and struck out six to win his first game of the season.

STEELE ROBERTS

Galt scored two runs in the second inning and another pair in the seventh. The Panthers tallied their single counter in the fifth.

Ed Steele, Terrier leftfielder who got two hits in three trips to the plate, banged out the only home run—a bases-empty clout in the second. Jim Hisner, Kitchener's ace pitcher, was tagged with the loss. He struck out seven but gave up nine walks and eight hits.

Pitcher Bob Brake was the star in London's victory over the Red Sox. He held Brantford batters to three hits, struck out three and walked only one to chalk up his second consecutive victory.

Max Schmeling Takes Hint; Returns Home

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP) — Following one of the controversial figures to get from the American boxing fraternity, Max Schmeling, the former heavyweight champion, is on his way back to Germany. The man held the big title for two years, from June 1930 to June 1932.

Schmeling's return to the scene of his flatic triumphs must have been a disheartening experience. Before he left Maxie realized the trip had been a mistake.

Schmeling received a fight in Milwaukee, and it drew next to nothing. He was to have stayed on and refereed a series of wrestling shows, but the promoters counted out Milwaukee house and thought better of it. Finally, the athlete who fraternized in Hitler's day was firmly advised not to visit the training camp of Rocky Marciano and Ezzard Charles in the Catskills.

Though he protested to the last that he never had been a member of the Nazi party, Max took the hint and said goodbye.

If, as is rumored, the ball players are planning to insist through their attorney, J. Norman Lewis, that the club owners cease employing private detectives to check upon their after-hours activities, you may look for them to get nowhere fast.

The owners feel that for the kind of salaries they pay they have every right to protect their investments. The only alternative, they say, is for the players themselves, to form an efficient police force within their own ranks.

USA, Australia Take Lead In French Doubles

PARIS (AP)—The United States and Australia gained a monopoly in the men's doubles semi-finals of the French International tennis championships Wednesday as the top teams—Tony Trabert and Vic Seixas of the U.S. and Lew Hoad and Ken Rosewell of Australia — scored straight set victories.

Australia's youthful defending champions, Hoad and Rosewall, swept to a lopsided victory over France's aging Jean Borotra and his younger teammate, Robert Abdesselam, 6-0, 6-4, 6-4.

Trabert and Seixas were impressive with their pinsharp set play as they crushed Sven Davidson of Sweden and Neil Fraser of Australia 6-2, 8-6, 6-4.

Australians Rex Hartwig and Mervyn Rose gained the semi-finals by ousting the Belgian team of Jacques Brichant and Philippe Washer in straight sets 8-6, 6-4, 6-2.

The second American team, 40-year-old Gardnar Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla., and Budge Patty of Los Angeles and Paris, rallied to defeat Art Larsen of San Leandro, Calif., and Enrique Morea of Argentina 5-7, 8-6, 6-3, 2-6, 6-3.

Canada's first Baptist churches were in Nova Scotia, where individual Baptists were known as early as 1752.

Four Canadians Among 32 Survivors In British Amateur Golf Tourney

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (CP)—Four Canadians were among the 32 survivors today as the British amateur golf championships entered the fifth round.

The four, who won their third and fourth-round matches Wednesday, are Walt McElroy of Vancouver, Bob Fleming of Victoria, Gordon Taylor of Montreal and Bob Doe of Granby, Que.

Doug Silverberg of Red Deer, Alta., the sixth of Canada's 10-man contingent to be eliminated, lost out at the 19th hole in Wednesday's third round. He was defeated by A. J. Cochran of Scotland.

Among today's fifth-round contenders were the tournament's top favorites: defending champion Joe Carr of Ireland, two-time champion Frank Stranahan of Toledo, O., and U.S. Walker Cup star Bill Campbell.

RATED PLAYERS OUT

Missing were Robert Sweeney of Palm Beach, Calif., the 1937 winner who lost a third-round match, and veteran Frank Stranahan of Garden City, N.Y., who lost to Peter Toogood of Australia after seven extra holes.

Sid Troy fifth-round opponent will be Dick Davies, U.S. Navy member and tournament dark horse. McElroy, who was a quarter-finalist in the 1952 U.S. Amateur, Wednesday downed Sir Ball of England 4 and 2 and S. G. Jones of New Zealand 1 up.

Fleming, 1953 B.C. open title-holder, had little difficulty ousting Malcolm McKenzie of Scotland 4 and 3 and J. M. Brown of Scotland 6 and 5.

Martinez Whips Chuck Davey

CHICAGO (AP)—Vicious-punching Vince Martinez floored Chuck Davey four times Wednesday and won by a technical knockout in the seventh round of their scheduled 10-round bout.

Davey, stopped cold by Kid Gavilan in his last Chicago Stadium appearance 15 months ago, was battered so severely in the sixth round by the sixth-ranked Martinez that the former Michigan State College student was not allowed to come out for the seventh round.

Martinez of Paterson, N.J., weighed 134½ and Davey 140.

AT THE CAPITOL—Jimmy Wakely and his guitar prove a fast-moving team in "Arrow in the Dust", powerful story of the western plains now playing at the Capitol Theatre. With the popular folk singer in the stellar cast are Starling Hayden, Coleen Gray, Tom Tully and Keith Larsen who when he is not acting is busy writing a song that he expects will be a big hit for "Crazy Stranger." He plays it at one of the camp fires while the great wagon train with which he is filming is fitted down for the night. On the same program "The Northern Patrol" starring Kirby Grant in Sun-hits are first showings.

AT THE BELLE.

Gregory Peck, Brod Crawford Cast in Toy Drama made in CinemaScope and Technicolor.

A taut, exciting melodrama about the intrigue that goes on almost every day between East and West Berlin and the powder-keg for danger it represents opened yesterday at the Belle Theatre. It is Twentieth Century-Fox's newest CinemaScope production, "Night People", which Nunnally Johnson wrote, produced and directed in Europe, to make him one of the few Hollywood film makers on the Hollywood scene. Gregory Peck, Broderick Crawford, Anita Ekberg and Rita Gam, the stars of this cloak-and-dagger thriller, a large supporting cast and a complete production unit went to Germany where the entire picture was filmed, being the first CinemaScope feature to be made on the continent.

The story starts in high with the kidnapping of an American G.I. by the East German Reds. Broderick Crawford, as the leader of the Reds gives another of his forthright performances and stirs up plenty of action when he arrives in Berlin to get his son back. The job falls to Gregory, who plays a colonel in the American Army C.I.C. in a stern and eagy manner, putting his ingratiating way with women to get information.

Anita Bjork, a star in Swedish movies, makes her debut in "Night People" and she is sufficiently beguiling to be able to lead Peck slightly astray, much to the dismay of Rita Gam, an American secretary in Peck's Berlin office. Rita is most attractive and displays her physical charms to good advantage. Walter Abel, Casey Adams and Buddy Ebsen, as a hard bitten Army sergeant, add to the overall excellence of "Night People", with capable playing of important supporting roles.

Charles Clarke's CinemaScope cameras with color by Technicolor, give the production a full impact and stereophonic sound helps to make it one of the most engrossing spy dramas we've seen in a long time.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

The Kibitzer

When expert bidding spreads all over the landscape don't get the idea that the players are using a pitchfork. Fact is that some very efficient signals are getting a good workout.

Skilful players are prolific users of a double for takeout. It is a weapon that answers a number of purposes. Most of all it helps to get information from a partner too weak to bid otherwise.

When is a double for takeout? If partner has not yet bid, if it is used at the first opportunity, a double of not more than three in a suit is for takeout; orders partner to bid if no bid intervenes.

If opponent intervenes with a bid, partner of double may pass if he lacks enough for a free bid. Consequently, even a 4♠ bid at such a time helps doubler. At least it tells doubler, partner is weak.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR FRIDAY, MAY 28, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — You should be mentally keen, vigilant now. Astuteness in advertising, business moves, sound investments ill count. You may have to be more patient with laborious tasks in household and family duties. Be considerate.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Neither too easy a day nor a too restricting one. It's really up to you how you feel physically and how you progress. Smart management urged.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — A fine Mercury aspect today boosts mental agility and hard work, teaching, study, research, writings; all endeavors that generally require creative and ingenious handling. Give proper time to home.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — The planetary vibrations are not wholly generous where personal wishes are concerned, but it is an opportune day for sound and intelligent thought and action. It's up to you, folks!

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Your Sun's configuration cautions against expecting too much today but all indications urge trying, studying and learning, especially in your own field. Family, heart affairs sponsored.

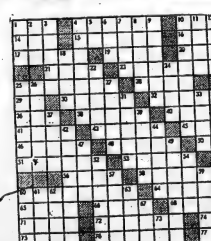
August 23 to September 22 (Virgo) — Similar to Gemini and aries now. This can be a profitable period for building for the future. You can go places now if you don't go to extremes or worry. Originality, cleverness will pay well.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — You, Taurus and Cancer are in similar positions now. Thought, analysis and careful planning can further your cause. Maintain an even balance and you will gain more.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Finances well invested, and matters managed and motivated unselfishly should do very well, as should purely mental work and other interests. Romance favored.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Benefic Jupiter rays. Wholesale activities, school and church interests, organizations to benefit mankind and to further spiritual development highly honored. Work to achieve high aims.

December 24 to January 22 (Capricorn) — Today's aspects are neither entirely friendly nor are they disagreeable. If progressive and conscientious, you can accomplish much. Do not be overoptimistic lest you misjudge, make costly errors. Think!



January 24 to February 22 (Aquarius) — Mildly favorable aspects now keep bettering until the end of month. A chance here to advance personal affairs, perhaps add to assets, surely to stabilize present holdings. Forward!

February 23 to March 22 (Pisces) — Hold emotions and any unruly desires in firm restraint. Carelessness and overenthusiasm can be harmful. You can be mentally progressive, gain fresh benefits through vigorous action.

YOU BORN TODAY are interesting, clever, talented and very puzzling at times. Restlessness, lack of steady concentration and quick temper could be handicaps; correct them. You have such fine God-given capabilities and talents you should let nothing prevent you from succeeding with them. You can improve upon others' ideas, inventions, also inaugurate the new; could do exceptionally well in mechanics.

You make splendid surgeons, dentists, actors, singers, orators.

Birthdate: Thos. Moore, Irish poet; Wm. Pitt, Eng. statesman; Louis Agassiz, Swiss naturalist, ↑ecologist.

Outside Union Offers Services To Settle Issue

TORONTO (CP)—A union professional Canadian radio and television actors and writers offered Wednesday to settle the Canadian National Exhibition grand stand show dispute by having performers involved retire to neutral ground while two other unions fight out their jurisdictional war.

Under the proposal sent to the Toronto Musicians Union, the American Guild of Variety Artists and the CNE, all Canadian variety artists would become members of the Association of Canadian Radio and TV Artists for six months on a caretaker basis.

Walter Murdoch, president of the Toronto Musicians' Union, rejected the proposal and claimed "everybody wants to get into the act."

Learned Societies Meet in Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (CP)—Topics ranging from atomic power to the practice of medicine in ancient Rome will come under study here during the next two weeks as 34 separate organizations assemble for the 1954 Conference of Learned Societies — Canada's greatest annual gathering of scholars and scientists. About 800 are expected.

The conference, which will see as many as five of the groups meeting simultaneously on the University of Manitoba campus, opens today with sessions of the Canadian Association of Physicists and the Canadian Association of Geographers.

Scheduled visitors include External Affairs Minister Pearson, Health Minister Martin, Dr. C. J. MacKenzie, president of Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., Dr. E.W.R. Steacie, president of the National Research Council, Jean Bruchesi, Quebec under-secretary of state, and Gil Douglas Copland, Australian high commissioner to Canada.

Last year the Learned Societies met at the University of Western Ontario.

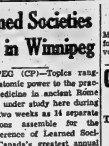
Gets Help From Syntona Second Time In 2 Years

This Man Was Troubled with Stomach Disorders: "Felt Tired, Wormout, Full of Aches and Pains." Tells His Experience.



"This being the second time in the past few years that I've had good results by taking Syntona, I am certainly convinced of its merits," said Mr. Peter Attaman, 54A Mary St., Woodstock, Ontario, in a recent report.

"I had recently become very run-down, wasn't able to get a good night's sleep at night and I felt tired-out most of the time. I got up in the morning like my days I was full of aches and pains. In addition my stomach was acting up and bothering me. I was gas and indigestion, gas pains, and sour acid risings. Constipation was a daily worry to me.

Knew What to Take

"About three years ago I had been in a similar condition and remembered the good results I got that time by taking Syntona so I decided to try it again. From the first bottle my food began to digest properly, I felt better, my stomach soon stopped bothering me.

"Constipation is relieved and the aches and pains have gone away. As a result I am getting much better sleep at night and I do not feel all fagged out as I did before.

MR. PETER ATTAMAN

"So, I honestly feel that I can recommend Syntona to other people troubled the same way."

Made from 12 of Nature's Herbs and Roots, Syntona acts on the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels; improves digestion, elimination, kidney and liver activity; and relieves constipation. At the same time it helps rid the system of excess acids and impurities and promotes better absorption of food for increased strength and energy.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville by Dolan The Druggist.

Election Is Conflict Between Two Men Bitterly Opposed Personally and Politically

By LOUIS L. LECK
Canadian Press Correspondent

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)—The campaign for election of a new House of Representatives Saturday has resolved itself into a conflict between two men bitterly opposed personally and politically.

The careers of Prime Minister Robert Gordon Menzies, leader of the Liberal-Country party coalition and Labor party leader, Dr. Herbert Vere Evatt, have been strikingly similar in many ways.

They are of roughly the same age. Dr. Evatt, 60, is a few months older than Mr. Menzies. Both come from lower middle class families. Both had astonishingly brilliant academic careers. Both were remarkably successful in law and both rose rapidly in federal politics.

PERSONAL ANTAGONISM

The personal antagonism between these two men may spring from the fact that their history has been so similar.

It is more likely, however, that the antagonism is the result of basically different philosophies.

Mr. Menzies is suave, well groomed, witty, a brilliant orator and a man of the world. Although he is impatient with people whose quickness of intellect falls below his own high standards he is an old-fashioned Liberal, believing in the sanctity of individual freedom and rights.

Dr. Evatt is an awkward speaker a tremendously hard worker with a passion for detail, not notable for the social graces in which Mr. Menzies excels. Evatt believes in controls and to him the welfare and liberty of the individual is less important than the well-being of the state.

Both are complex men. Because they are complex they can be inconsistent and their potential inconsistency is revealed in their attitude to communism.

LEGALITY OF BAN

For several years after the war, while his party was in opposition, Mr. Menzies refused to line up with the rest of his party in calling for the banning of the Communist party.

He took the view that the Communist party, however abhorrent its political beliefs, was entitled to a legal existence in a democratic state. But the evidence of Communist infiltration into key industries made him change his mind.

He was finally converted to the belief that communism could not be effectively countered except by methods which theoretically could not be reconciled with democratic principles.

Once his mind was made up he followed his new attitude to its logical conclusion. Almost the first act of the government he formed after the 1949 election was to introduce a bill to dissolve the Communist party.

Dr. Evatt strongly opposed the bill in Parliament although a powerful section of his party supported it, while another section believed it to be political suicide to oppose the bill.

After the election call in 1951, which was fought on the issue of the Communist party dissolution bill and which resulted in the return of the Menzies-Fadden government, the Labor party capitulated and allowed the bill to become law.

The Communist party then challenged the validity of the act in the High Court and Dr. Evatt accepted a brief from a number of Communist-dominated unions to appear in the case.

This action led to criticism from factions within the Labor party, of which Evatt had become leader on the death of J. B. Chifley. It presented his political opponents with a stick with which to bludgeon him.

The criticism became even more severe when, largely as a result of his brilliant advocacy, the High Court declared the act invalid.

Dr. Evatt then led the campaign for a "no" vote in the referendum to alter the Constitution to enable the Communist Party Dissolution Act to become valid law. Again he was successful and the referendum was lost.

Those who know Evatt best believe he was convinced that the Communist Party Dissolution Act was undemocratic, and that a democracy could not be justified in using undemocratic weapons even to fight the menace of communism.

Whatever the motives that swayed Dr. Evatt, the political consequences have been serious. Both he and the Labor party now are vulnerable to whatever disclosures may be made at the Petrov royal commission.

On the other hand, there is also some public distrust of Prime Minister Menzies. The average Australian finds him a little too suave. Mr. Menzies in recent years has done all he can to overcome this prejudice. The voting on May 29 will show whether he has been successful.

The third figure on the electoral stage is the leader of the Country party, Sir Arthur Fadden, deputy prime minister and treasurer. He was a successful accountant before he entered federal politics. He is a hard hitting, rough-and-tumble politician.

There is no love lost between him and Dr. Evatt. Nor have relations in the past between Sir Arthur and Mr. Menzies been very happy. The importance of the Country party in anti-Labor politics has always been resented by the Liberal party and there have been many internal squabbles.

The most notable occurred in 1943, when at the beginning of an election campaign Sir Arthur publicly accused Mr. Menzies (then leader of the Opposition) of having "stabbed me in the back."

Vietminh 'Moles' Burrowing Closer To French Outpost

Fort 30 Miles from Hanoi Is Awaiting Massive Assault

HANOI (AP) — Vietminh mole squads burrowed closer to the battered Red river delta post of Yen Phu today as Communist rebel mortars continued to pound the little French union garrison.

Following the tactics that won them Dien Bien Phu, the rebels kept the thick-walled stronghold down with mortar and machine-gun fire. Yen Phu is 30 miles south of Hanoi.

The French Union defenders lobbed mortar shells at the encircling rebels as fast as they could load and fire.

As at Dien Bien Phu, the Vietminh are expected to strike with overwhelming thousands when the rebel command believes the post sufficiently "softened up." Some 12 Vietminh battalions have razed Yen Phu for two weeks.

PLANES DISPERSED

But the Vietminh have their troubles too. French planes pounded the rebel forces in the tottering half ... ton delayed - action bombs among the approaches to Yen Phu. The bombs are timed to go off at night when the Vietminh usually attack.

Yen Phu is six miles south of Phu Ly, important French air defence ace stretching through the vital rice centre of Thai Binh.

If the rebels take Phu Ly, they will win vast rice supplies, gain control of a vital road system and move into a commanding position to attack Hanoi. They also will be in an excellent spot to cut off the vital railway-road link bringing American supplies from the port of Haiphong to Hanoi.

Churchill Hints That He Plans To Retire Soon

LONDON (AP) — Winston Churchill either admitted Thursday that he can't live forever or hinted that he plans to retire soon as prime minister.

Rumors that the 79-year-old Conservative party leader will step down were revived by a remark he made in a speech to 7,000 women Conservatives.

"I probably will not be asking you to do me many more favors," said Churchill.

Both The Daily Sketch, Conservative, and The Daily Mirror, Independent, interpreted this to mean Churchill is about ready to quit in favor of Foreign Secretary Eden.

Admiral Finds 'Unique' Effects In Carrier Fire

QUONSET POINT, R.I. (AP)— The chief of United States naval operations says he found "freakish and unique" effects from the blasts and fire that claimed the lives of 95 men of the big aircraft carrier Bennington.

Admiral Robert B. Carney, the navy's highest officer, flew in Thursday night and spent an hour checking the blistered and blackened compartments of the 32,000-ton vessel — victim of a series of explosions as she cruised in the calm Atlantic last Wednesday.

Carney said characteristics of blasts were "freakish and very unique — anything I have seen," but added there is "no basis" for assuming they may have been caused by sabotage.

He said he saw "fabrics and structural objects near one and other, some showing effects of heat and others no heat at all."

Carney declined to speculate on the cause of the tragedy. A host of technical experts from the bureau of ships is combing the ship for clues.

Four of the 201 injured men have died at Newport naval hospital. About 40 still are in critical condition.

Former Surgeon Says Hangings Are Inhuman

OTTAWA (CP)—A former jail surgeon who witnessed four hangings in Toronto's Don jail said today it is an inhuman and repulsive form of execution and should be replaced by some more humane lethal gas.

Dr. Malcolm S. MacLean said the spectacle of a convicted murderer going to the gallows is too much even for hard-bitten police officers. He said he himself could not get back to his normal work for three or four days after the death hangings of a man and wife.

Hangings have no place in an enlightened society, he told the Commons — Senate committee on capital or corporal punishment, although the believed capital punishment is the correct punishment for particularly violent murders.

Dr. MacLean, who served in 1933 after 18 years as Welland county jail surgeon, said he also acted as county coroner and had to give evidence at the trials of the accused killers.

Then he had to care for the convicted murderers in jail and witness their executions.

Hailey bury Fire Being Brought Under Control

TORONTO (CP)—Without help from rain, firefighters put out 89 Ontario bush fires during the last three days, officials of the Ontario department of lands and forests announced today.

"This is a very good record for any fortnight's operation," said a spokesman. "The crews on the fire lines deserve a lot of credit." Operations in parts of Northern Ontario today are expected to help by letting crews finish mopping up and discouraging the outbreak or spread of fires. Some sections of the province have had no rain since early in 29 days.

The Hailey bury fire which broke away Wednesday after being brought under control still is a concern but the department said "control measures are becoming effective." The fire is burning through spruce, balsam ,fir and pine.

MEMBERS TANGLE OVER FACILITIES AT AIR TERMINALS

Called Inadequate, Shameful

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition member William Hamilton and Transport Minister Chevrier don't see eye to eye on the adequacy of passenger facilities at Canada's terminal airports.

They differed Thursday in blunt terms during an all-day Commons discussion of transport department estimates.

At one point of the discussion Mr. Chevrier said the federal government would be able to help Canada's slumping shipping industry. Hamilton said he thought there was no change in the cabinet's policy against direct subsidies for deep-sea shipping.

Mr. Hamilton (PC — Montreal-Notre-Dame-de-Grace) said airport passenger facilities are "shameful and inadequate in almost every case."

Mr. Chevrier said Canada's airport facilities are "as good as any other country."

The Montreal member quoted the opinions of several experts which, he said, constituted "a damning indictment of what this government proposes to foist off on the people of Canada at the present time as adequate airport facilities."

CHARGES INACCURACIES

The minister charged Mr. Hamilton with "inaccurate observations, misstatements and unethical practices" in his speech, and said the Montreal member was praising Canada's airports to create false impressions.

Mr. Hamilton said the Uplands airport terminal at Canada's capital is "a disgrace, a shame, a shack" and lacks a restaurant.

At Dorval terminal in Montreal, the washroom had a free toilet, a second with the name facilities and five cents and a third for 10 cents.

"I could not believe that the government would be doing anything quite as inadequate as that," he said.

The same thing could be found in varying degrees at airports across Canada.

He tangled with Mr. Chevrier a few times during the discussion over some grapes phrase and later on Mr. Chevrier's charge of "misstatements and unethical practices."

Mr. Chevrier stood by his statements and was upheld by the House chairman who said the grapes phrase is unparliamentary.

Mr. Hamilton quoted from a letter by the head of the Montreal-area Canadian Aviation saying he had resigned because the department had done all that circumstances would permit.

Mr. Chevrier replied that this was unethical because the real cause of resignation, outlining those circumstances, had not been quoted. Mr. Hamilton's criticisms were a farce.

Group of Small Boys and Girls Give Geneva Cops Job to Keep Neutrality

By EDDY GILMORE

GENEVA (AP) — Switzerland's preoccupation with neutrality today had a curious effect on Geneva's small boys and girls at k-private school. ac-cused of "demonstrating" against the Red Chinese.

"It's hard to believe," said the American mother of one of the children, "but the Geneva cops almost threw my [illegible] in jail."

It happened this way:

The school is located next to a building in which a number of members of the Chinese Communist delegation are staying for the Geneva conference. Only a high wall separates the school grounds from the Red Chinese.

Things went well for a while, then the school headmistress received a column of the children marching back and forth beside the wall. They young Chinese boys apparently headed the marchers.

The next thing, the directors of the school had a case of cops on their hands.

"Those children," said a serious officer, "are demonstrating against the foreign visitors across the wall."

"What do you mean, they are demonstrating," asked one of the teachers.

"Soldering," said the policemen, considering such an answer adequate. "This cannot be. Switzerland is neutral."

The teachers questioned the pupils. Yes, they had been marching back and forth, they did know the Red Chinese were just across the wall. Insults? The children solemnly denied their truth.

The American girl spoke up.

"Those Chinese boys," she said, "are not Communists. They said the Communists have taken the land of their fathers. They just plain don't like Communists."

The policemen, the policeman, "it is not true that insults were buried across the wall"?

The American girl thought a moment.

"Did monsieur hear them?"

"Yes."

"Then monsieur speak or understand Chinese?" she asked.

The policeman admitted he did not. But the children won their point. But he threatened to bring back a cop who did understand Chinese if the demonstrations did not halt.

After school, the American mother pressed her young daughter for the facts on what the Chinese boys were saying. The daughter finally confided. The words hurled over the wall were "Peiping Chinese cat rats."

Chief RCAF Role to Protect U.S. Bases Says Claxton

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Claxton has been stressing that the chief aim of continental defence must be to protect the ability of the United States to deliver nuclear bombs.

This means protection of the U.S. strategic bomber force and its base, the industries which turn out the planes and their equipment and the plants which manufacture the atomic and hydrogen bombs.

It can also mean that the chief role of the RCAF in the event of serial attack on North America would be protection of U.S. bases, industries and cities.

Defence officials here say they don't believe Canadian targets would be among the primary objectives of a Russian bomber force. So protection by the RCAF of U.S. bases, factories and cities would, in the long run, be protection of Canadian target areas.

There are few RCAF fighter squadrons in this country, but the RCAF operates many radar stations which not only detect enemy aircraft but also steer interceptors to them.

AIR WAR DECISIVE

In the view of some defence officials, if the air war were lost, all would be lost.

They say that if the USAF and RAF bomber commands were knocked out, as well as the means to replace them, there would be no chance of retaliating against Russia and destroying her ability to wage war.

Mr. Claxton has made at least four references to this strategic concept in the last month.

In a speech at Edmonton April 22, Mr. Claxton said it is a matter of the most urgent priority that the capacity to deliver the H-bomb by the U.S. strategic bomber force—be protected.

Last week in the Commons he said:

". . . It becomes evident at once that the ability to deliver the bombs is something which is fundamental and essential to their deterrent character. Unless the U.S. can deliver the bombs they might just as well not exist."

SEES NEW SITUATION

In a radio address Tuesday night Mr. Claxton said:

"We are, therefore, confronted with a new situation in military affairs. This situation gives special emphasis to the whole question of continental defence which here is the reason why that is the case:

"If there was a war, the first objective of the enemy must be to knock out the ability of the U.S. Air Force to bomb bases and other important targets behind the Iron Curtain. Consequently, the American ability to deliver the bomb must itself be protected by air defences in North America."

Wednesday, before the Canadian Club here, Mr. Claxton expressed the same view.

It is for this reason that Canada and the U.S. are pushing ahead urgently with the radar early-warning system.

Toronto Man Is Arrested For Ax-Attack on Landlady

TORONTO (CP)—Kirli Vaklinov, 42, arrested near Bradford, 32 miles north of here, was charged Thursday night with attempted murder. The charge was laid following an ax-attack on Mrs. Mary Mihailides, 50, in her Toronto house.

Mrs. Mihailides, landlady of the house where Vaklinov lived, suffered severe head and other injuries. She is in hospital in critical condition.

Vaklinov was picked up by constable James Bradley of the Bradford provincial police who spotted the man after hearing a police description.

Mrs. Mihailides was found on a bloody bed in her home, covered with blood ;iron wounds inflicted with a kitchen knife with a six-inch blade and an axe. Her eight-month old daughter, Elizabeth, was lying on one side of the bed unharmed.

Christopher, her six-year-old son, was on the other side. Neither of the children was harmed.

Jets on a gas range were open and the kitchen was filled with fumes when George Papakokiov, 24, found the bodies of mother and sister, discovered Mrs. Mihailides.

Police said the woman apparently was attacked as she left the basement of the house and carried to the kitchen. A blood-covered ax was found in the basement.

CONSERVATION FUNDS

TORONTO (CP)—The annual Canadian National Sportsmen's Show has established a reserve fund of $100,000, and contributed $60,000 to conservation work, Frank H. Kortright, president, said in his annual report. Gross earnings for the 1954 show were up $49,520 over 1953 and net earnings increased by $8,057.

Fruit Lands Of Niagara Peninsula Under Discussion

HAMILTON (CP)—The problem of how productive fruit lands on the Niagara peninsula can be preserved was discussed before the Ontario municipal board here today.

Eric W. Baker, chairman of the regional planning committee of the Conservation Council of Ontario, urged the board to discourage the subdivision of fruit farms.

The board hearing on Hamilton's application for annexation of 2,650 acres was adjourned to June 7.

Mr. Baker said action is being taken to form a Niagara regional development, which would control land use. Until this authority is formed, he said, the board should use its powers to preserve the present fruit lands in the area, which he described as the best in Canada.

He said Hamilton would be better off by having both fruit land and urban land economically strong than if it must give up one in favor of another. He suggested the urban development take place at one end of Hamilton and fruit farms be retained at the other.

City engineer W. L. McFaul said Hamilton has spent or will spend when contracts are completed over $9,500,000 on the installation of sewers and water in all areas annexed since 1949.

FAR EAST CRISIS MAY SPOIL U.S. ECONOMY PLAN

Defence Budget Cuts May Be Impractical

By FRANK O'BRIEN

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Communist onslaught in Indo-China has not, thus far, caused the United States administration to plunge into planning for possible big boosts in defence spending during the next year.

But neither is the possibility ruled out that President Eisenhower's plans for big annual cutbacks in defence outlays, and a shift from a war to a peace economy may not in the near future be knocked into a cocked hat.

But again, according to present thinking among Eisenhower advisers, it will take something a good deal more significant, in their judgment, than what has happened up to now in the Far East to bounce the administration loose from its present spending plans.

These were the considerations to be drawn from a few carefully worded remarks in a speech which Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey gave Tuesday in New York. It was authoritatively learned today that Humphrey's views about the spending outlook were chosen with exceptional care as reports multiplied that the Far East crisis might add from $5,000,000,000 to $15,000,000,000 to next year's big defence budget.

Humphrey has in the past led in disclosing administration thought — but contrary when the impression was getting around that his "sound economy" program was about to be bumped aside by international developments.

SPEND WHAT NEEDED

This week he said nothing to indicate a high-level decision has been reached about Southeast Asia but he declared:

"We must, and always will, spend whatever is needed for our security. We will do our duty cheerfully. But the worth of our defence must be measured not by its cost but by its results."

"The cornerstone of our whole program is our firm belief that a sound economy is an absolute prerequisite to a strong defence over any extended period."

Britain, China Have Commenced Trade Talks

GENEVA (Reuters) — Communist China and Britain have begun trade talks, a spokesman for the Chinese delegation to the Far East conference said today. He said the talks had made no progress but declined to give specific details.

The talks are on two levels. The Chinese vice-minister for foreign trade, Lei Jen-min, is having talks with Humphrey Trevelyan, British foreign affairs minister. Meanwhile Lei is also conferring with Peter Tennant, director of the overseas section of the British Federation of Industries.

A British spokesman said Treveylan had explained the principles on which British trade with Communist China within the terms of the United Nations embargo.

Call Conscripts To Release Men For Indo-China

French Speed Fall Call-Up To Meet Manpower Crisis

PARIS (CP)—The French cabinet today decided on drastic measures to strengthen the military forces in Indo-China, and decided on the immediate call-up of men due to be conscripted in October and November, other soldiers now for combat in Indo-China.

Some 80,000 troops, forming the second and final group of the 1954 military conscription quota, are expected be on duty within 15 days, a cabinet spokesman said. All are men aged 20.

The cabinet acted on the recommendations of the national defence committee which has been holding day and night meetings since Gen. Paul Ely, chief of staff of the French forces, and two other generals returned with a special report on the deteriorating French position in Indo-China since the fall of Dien Bien Phu.

SEND PROS TO FIGHT

Political observers are still labelling as "pure rumor," however, any changes in policy by the government which would send conscripts to fight in Indo-China. This has been against the law since 1950.

The pros will be mainly will be sent to Indo-China to fight the Communist Vietminh rebels, the professional soldiers.

The heaviest call-up remnants of the 1954 class will be stationed in France or quiet areas in North Africa to replace professional soldiers sent to Indo-China.

The cabinet communique did not give any indication that the cabinet had discussed changing the 1950 law.

FEAR BIG ATTACK

Ely is said to have warned that an all-out rebel offensive is in the offing and unless large reinforcements are sent to Indo-China, the important Red river delta may be lost. But it is not expected that Premier Mendel Laniel government would risk its political life on a decision to send draftees.

In 1953, the French armed forces had some 956,000 in uniform, about 200,000 of them conscripts.

Until the defeat at Dien Bien Phu, the Indo-China manpower problem was not considered too critical. Although conscripts were practiced, as recruit, at rates of pay, to supply the forces France considered necessary to fight the Indo-China. Now that is changed.

Couple Tossed Gay Parties, Begged For Food, $200,000 Found in Home

HAMILTON (CP) — Once they tossed gay parties but later begged for food. Now police have turned off the furnace because oil was too expensive. They are living in the institution—having $200,000 scattered about their old home.

Just about everybody on East-bourne avenue, in the fashionable section of east-end Hamilton, thought Mr. and Mrs. Harry Teeter were "odd." They moved in their 70's, had lived there since 1900.

Investigators from the Ontario public trustee department Thursday uncovered a fortune in bills and bonds stuffed in cardboard boxes, in an old flower basket, under stacks of dusty newspapers everywhere from the cellar to the attic in the nine-room home. They found so much money they had to make two trips to deposit it in a bank.

There were indications the figure might go higher than $200,000. Relatives told police the Teeters owned considerable property in Toronto and Hamilton, including an apartment block and houses.

The Teeters' downfall was made after a committee was formed to take care of the couple's affairs when Mrs. Teeter was committed to the Ontario Mental Hospital Hamilton, in 1951. Her husband committed in 1952.

The pair had come used to be filled with the noise of people laughing and singing, neighbors said, but for the past 20th, 30 was, Joseph C.W.I.

Sons of Freedom Keeping Children Out of School

GRAND FORKS, B.C. (CP)—RCMP detachment here has been reinforced by eight men, it was learned today, as Sons of Freedom Doukhobors remained firm against orders to send their children to school.

The word of the strengthening of the force in this small rail-shipping town on the international border came following two flare-ups within two days.

Fifteen RCMP constables escorting a truant officer were attacked Thursday by 50 stone-throwing Sons of Freedom women and forced to use tear gas to drive them off.

Four of the women were arrested on assault charges, taken to Nelson, B.C., 60 miles northeast, and each sentenced to two months in jail.

They were Mrs. Mary Sherkoboff, Mrs. Mary Perepelkin, Mrs. Verna Nazaroff and Mrs. Tania Verigin.

The fracas occurred at Glpin, a Doukhobor settlement near here when the RCMP accompanied Ralph McIntosh into the town as he could read a proclamation,

UNEQUAL BATTLE

McIntosh lost an encounter with 20 male women who scratched and clawed him Wednesday when he attempted alone to read his proclamation ordering the villagers to send their children to school.

Ralph McIntosh also escorted to sending children to Canadian schools the descendants the school teach militarism.

It was not learned whether Mcintosh, over gov that proclamation read.

Air Force Ready To Rush Aid

NEW DELHI (AP)—The Indian Air Force is standing by to rush aid to mountaineer Sir Edmund Hillary, who is reported ill with pneumonia at a glacial Himalayas, a spokesman said today. But no request for help has yet been received.

Hillary a year ago reached the summit of Mount Everest, the world's tallest peak. The report of employers of Hillary's illness on Thursday in an eight-day-old dispatch relayed from Namche Bazar, Sirl, leader of an American expedition in the same region.

AGE LIMITS

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Swedish film censorship will be relaxed under a government bill submitted to Parliament. One innovation is the introduction of two age limits. Under the present system adult films are barred to those under 16. The new system sets age limits of 11 and 15, permitting the older children to see films not considered suitable for the younger.

A year of expanded services, increased funds, and the highest registration of blind persons in the history of the county marked the report given at the annual meeting of the Hastings County Blind Welfare Board held in the boro on Thursday evening when the members and guests enjoyed a dinner prepared by the women's Institute of Foxboro.

Chairman of the board, Mr. George Wishart, presided, the invocation was pronounced by Rev. Mr. Giffin, and greetings were brought by Warden of the county Fred G. Mitchell, and deputy-reeve Cecil Ketcheson of Thurlow. Mrs. William Barrie, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Reg. Skinner, contributed two vocal solos.

Secretary F. S. Fairman presented the minutes, and four new members were welcomed: Mrs. M. J. Waller, Foxboro; Mrs. B. Nicholson and Mrs. G. Hill, Tweed, and H. J. Madill, Frankford.

Reports of the local campaigns, Christmas cheer and Welfare activities were read from Bancroft, Mrs. Thomas Wilson; Campbellford, E. E. Maybee; Foxboro, Mrs. Walter Ketcheson; Madoc, H. J. Madill; Madoc, Mrs. Kernohan; Marmora, Mrs. F. R. Wells; Stirling, Mrs. F. Houston; Trenton, Mrs. Hollingsworth; Tweed, Mrs. J. LeSage; Belleville, Cliff and Wellman Hiscock, Belle Peck; tag day, Mrs. G. Wishart; Christmas party, Mrs. H. Stolline. The report of the campaign for operating funds, given by Mr. H. J. Funk, showed that the contributions were in excess of $1,031 over last year. Miss Ella Keyes reported on staff services and costs gave an encouraging statement for 1953 of $9,089.33, expenses $8,863.78, leaving a surplus of $425.55.

39 BLIND PERSONS INSTRUCTED

Miss Rose Munro, the home teacher, had given instruction to twenty blind people with the object put pupil about eighty years, learning moon type and leather work. Three were trained in Braille, three being taught to type and three learning moon type. The rest were taking lessons in handicrafts. Of the total of all eight blind people who sold leather work, etc., took in $306.30. So far this year was the way they had of disposing of their work.

President Albert Alexander of the White Cane Club, stated that they now had twenty-one members and nine associate members ranging in ages from seventeen to ninety. He described many of their activities including a picnic last summer and expressed appreciation to the Kinsmen club who had furnished refreshments at the meeting of the past few years.

Mr. P. I. Timmins, field secretary, reviewed the work done in each locality in the county in giving assistance. He stressed the need of visitation committees. He has been assisted by Mrs. Ivan Padden. There are 141 registered blind in the county with 51 in Belleville, 17 in Trenton and district, and 73 in the county. 26 new cases have been registered this year. The services included visits to discuss problems and arrange services. Instruction in adjustments, loans of books from the C.N.I.B. library of over 30,000 titles, loans of talking book machines, loans of radios, employment in shops, canteens, etc., use of concessions, free bus passes, and registration of Canadian gifts, and eye services which include examinations, eye care, glasses, treatment, artificial eyes.

COMPLETED IN JUNE

The new home for the blind in Kingston will be completed in June and will be ready for occupancy in early summer. The formal opening will take places in the fall.

Guest speaker for the occasion was Mr. A. N. Magill, superintendent of the Ontario Division of C.N.I.B., who was loaned by the institute to go to Egypt under the auspices of the United Nations to advise the Egyptian government on education and care of the blind.

"In Cairo, which is the crossroads of the Middle East, there is a strange mixture of the primitive and the modern," said the speaker. "There are narrow streets with their open-fronted doors, where people are carrying on their crafts and there are wide avenues with big air-conditioned theatres and department stores, and on the streets is a mixture of Cadillacs, camels, donkeys and taxis."

"The Nile river gives life and fertility to the city. Ninety percent of the people live on the land and they grow three crops a year. They are a friendly, hospitable people, but illiterate. The women play a very small part in the social, economic and political life of the country, although recently they are becoming more active and the question of the universal education act, which provides for education of boys and girls from six to sixteen.

"Those in authority have felt the need of seeking guidance and leadership from outside the country. Experts are helping to improve farming methods with better implements and seeds. The World Health Organization has one of the biggest jobs in the country and is striving desperately to bring a public health system to improve sanitation. It has set up control areas to combat diseases that reach epidemic proportions. The United Nations is working to prevent handicaps, and" where handicaps exist to provide rehabilitation facilities. They are teaching the philosophy that physically handicapped people have resources and rights and have a longing and desire to be economically self-supporting. When they have been rehabilitated they should be added to except responsibility in the community.

PRIMARY SCHOOL STARTED.

"A primary school was started for the blind children where they could have the advantage of primary education and learn a trade, and it is hoped to start a second city school in the fall where a pupil can earn a certificate that will let him enter the first year course for sighted schools. The home teaching started in Cairo by three girls who went into the rural districts to teach. The employment program was set up with a training centre where it was hoped to develop home industry employment.

"The job of the team of experts was to train nationals so they could help the government to develop programs for their own people."

Mr. Magill said that the Canadian way of life is much admired in Egypt and hopes that it can be transplanted to that soil will be a fair replica of the way of life its expects to return to Egypt in October.

The speaker was introduced by G. Wishart, and appreciation was expressed by Mr. Fairman.

The nominating committee, composed of Mr. F. S. Fairman, H. J. Fuke, and Mrs. Ray Kennox brought in the following slate of officers, who were duly elected: chairman, Geo. Wishart; 1st vice chairman, Mr. T. J. Flynn; 2nd vice chairman, Mr. Mark Tripp; 3rd vice chairman, Mrs. F. Houghton; secretary, Mr. F. S. Raise Maximum Sick Leave For Teachers

Teaching staff members at the Belleville collegiate will be allowed a maximum of 300 days accumulative sick leave, it has been decided by the Bay of Quinte district high school board.

At this week's meeting of the board, members voted to increase the maximum accumulative sick leave from the present 100 days to 200 days. No teacher on the staff can possibly be eligible for the maximum until 1962.

The sick leave program was started at the collegiate in 1943 with each teacher being allowed 20 days' sick leave each year. If the sick leave for the purchase of an aluminum upright scaffold for working in stairwells and other parts of the collegiate with high walls and ceilings. Purchase of a new type of extension mop will be considered.

Also under consideration is the purchase of a new V-8 motor. A letter of appreciation was directed to be sent to the company.

Teen-Age Damage Causing Concern To Contractors

Vandalism apparently caused by youths from the east end of the city is resulting in a lot of worry for housing contractors in Bayview Heights.

This morning a local contractor complained to police that eight large panes of glass had been broken out of a house under construction on Hastings Drive. Glass had been used to smash the windows, the mullins crashing against freshly plastered walls to dent and mar the plaster.

Also broken panes filled a quantity of plaster already mixed for application today.

The same contractor reported that on a previous occasion freshly mixed plaster had been spattered against freshly plastered walls in apartments.

A week or so ago park benches at Corby Park were carved away and deposited on a resident's lawn. At the same time the park fountain was damaged with result that the water had to be cut off. Other repairs at the park have also been necessary because of teen-age damage.

New Ireland's Appliance Store Nicest of Kind in E. Ontario

"Unquestionably the nicest store of its kind in Eastern Ontario" was the way the new Ireland's appliance store on Front Street was described yesterday by G. W. Blay, assistant to the president for Kelvinator of Canada Ltd.

And such was the stamp of approval placed on the new store by several thousand Belleville and district shoppers, who visited Ireland's yesterday morning during and after the official opening.

The store was visited by approximately one thousand persons during the first hour and throughout the day remained crowded as local residents came to admire.

"The first thing that struck me about Ireland's" was the newness of the store, said the representative of the Kelvinator representative, who was present for the official opening ceremonies headed by His Worship Mayor John Both.

"Also the spaciousness of the store, particularly appeals to me. It affords a wonderful opportunity to display merchandise, and the color shades of the store set off the white goods to their fullest advantage."

FRIENDLY ATMOSPHERE

He explained that the chartreuse, dawn blue and tile red color scheme of the walls presented a softer atmosphere.

"It all adds up to the fact that Ireland's is a pleasant store to shop in."

And the trueness of this is instantly evident to the shopper. The expanse of glass across the full width of the front store front, together with the "A" Co.-Controlled Rack Bradford of Industrial Acceptance Corp., officials of Beatty, R.C.A. Victor, Moffatt and others.

Jack Ireland Host at Dinner To Staff, Guests

Careful planning, volume selling and honest dealing coupled with close working co-operation among management, staff, and supplier, were stressed by Jack Ireland, in speaking at a complimentary dinner tendered by himself to members of his staff, and guests at the Shrine club on Thursday evening.

Mr. Ireland, who opened a new electrical appliance store at the Four Corners yesterday, stated that he was most happy about the large crowds that had visited his store on the opening day. He gave a brief outline of his experience in the appliance field since joining the Kelvinator company some 20 odd years ago. Opening his Belleville store on the south end of Front Street three years ago, he had moved to Victoria Avenue, and he was glad that business had grown to such a volume that their large new store was necessary.

Officials of major appliance companies who were present at the dinner spoke briefly. G. W. Blay, assistant to the President of Kelvinator addressed the remarks to the salesmen present as did O. Sewell, General Sales Manager of the Beatty Co. Both speakers stressed the necessity of knowing a product and really selling it. Others who spoke briefly were C. Cunningham, Sales Manager of Kelvinator; Bill Bell of the Big Brilliant Interior Showroom; A. Victor, Moffatt and others.

New Baseball Feature Starts On Monday

Starting Monday the Ontario Intelligencer will carry a new feature on its sports pages, especially designed for young baseball players. Called "Inside Baseball for Little Leaguers" the feature will run daily for six weeks.

Written by Mickey McConnell, director of the Brooklyn Dodgers Baseball School, the feature is brim full of facts for baseball's younger fry. And there are plenty of minor illustrations in the sketched feature.

Older players, too, will be well advised to study the series. Baseball players, like others, are never too old to learn.

Experts Study Rival Plans For Cease-Fire

GENEVA (AP) — A group of experts sought today to find how much common ground there is in Communist and non - Communist proposals for an Indo-China ceasefire.

The committee of constitutional and legal specialists, including one from each of the nine delegations in the Indo-China conference, was set up late Thursday after the main parley bogged down in a series of overlaping and conflicting plans.

The nine-party conference itself is in recess awaiting outcome of the study. Its next meeting is tentatively set for Saturday.

While the Indo-China parley took the afternoon off, the 15-country Korea talks were scheduled to be resumed at a private meeting.

Several delegates were expected to speak, including State Under-secretary Walter Bedell Smith of the United States, who was reported ready to throw his support behind South Korea's proposals for United Nations-supervised elections throughout Korea.

TACKLE MILITARY PROBLEMS

The Indo-China experts have before them records of 11 meetings, including all proposals made to date on all aspects of the proposed cease-fire. If they can find enough in common to draft a formula, a group of military specialists will try to work out the technical military problems involved.

The proposals include the seven-point discussion plans of France and the opposing Communist Vietminh cadre, the four-point plan of Britain on procedure, and the proposals by France, Communist China and the Vietminh on arrangements for assembling the opposing forces in special zones.

The Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association at its annual meeting at Montebello, P.Q., today elected A. Bruce Matthews, President of Excelsior Life Insurance Company, as President for the 1954-55 term.

Police Searching For Boy Missing From Madoc

A search party of police, civilians and boy scouts today is combing the area between Madoc and Moira Lake for eight-year-old Terry Bruyns, Madoc, missing from his home since early last night.

The boy, who lives with the Phinn family returned home from school about four yesterday and told the Phinns he was going out for a while before supper. He has not been seen since.

The boy's mother is a restaurant worker in Toronto area and one theory is that he may be hitchhiking to see her. Contacted by phone, however, Mrs. Bruyns told chief Rankin that the lad had not shown up with her.

Mrs. Bruyns' husband is working somewhere in Western Canada, police report.

Police describe the boy as slightly built, weighing 65 lbs., has light brown hair and is wearing khaki pants and a cream, striped shirt.

Quebec City's Garrison Club Damaged by Fire

QUEBEC (CP) — Firemen early today curbed a stubborn blaze that raged through Quebec's historic Garrison Club for several hours, causing extensive damage.

Some flames still licked at the grey walls of the two-storey structure at 4 a.m. EDT, however, nearly four hours after the fire broke out on the roof at the rear of the building.

The rear section of the club, a familiar landmark to thousands of visitors to this tourist city, was destroyed and firefighters struggled to save the front portion, also heavily damaged. Flames racing through the richly-panelled interior created intense heat and hampered fire-fighting operations.

More than 100 firemen from 11 city stations continued to pour water on the smouldering building as police pushed back spectators who had massed on the streets and climbed nearby stone walls, part of the city's old fortifications.

Only a few club attendants were on the premises, situated on Rue St. Louis near the city's west walls and the Citadel, when the fire broke out.

No injuries were reported except minor cuts and burns.

SOUVENIRS IRREPLACABLE

Maj. G. Guimond, keeper of the Quebec Citadel museum, said the Garrison Club contains many souvenirs which can not be replaced if they are destroyed.

The club is one of the city's most exclusive rendezvous. Prime Minister St. Laurent is one of its members.

WORKING WOMEN — AN INVOLVED PROBLEM

Canada's homes and Canada's economy are both suffering because women are working in industrial establishments.

Romouald Bourque, Mayor of Outremont, Que., and member of the House of Commons for Outremont-St. Jean, voiced that opinion when he addressed members of the Belleville Kiwanis Club this week.

The situation, as Mayor Bourque intimated, is not a simple one.

Fears groundless—but it is also true that arguments can be advanced to support a contrary view.

Actually the two phases of Mayor Bourque's statement need to be considered separately.

Is industry injured, are children neglected, because the housewife and mother is employed in industry?

In a great many cases, probably yes. But even here changed conditions should be recognized. Except in Mayor Bourque's home province of Quebec, families are often smaller than they were a few decades ago. Schools and organizations instruct and guide the children for a greater portion of their waking hours. The work-week has been shortened, modern appliances lighten housework, and husbands of working mothers usually lend a hand with the home chores, so that the working mother may, in many cases, have almost as much time to devote to her children as in past generations.

But most people still agree with Mayor Bourque that, from the standpoint of home life, he has made a point and an important one.

His contention that the employment of women in industry is injurious to the nation's economy is open to more serious question.

"This past winter we heard much about unemployment in Canada," he said. "How much of it was due to the fact that a woman was holding down a man's job?"

This sounds like an echo of one of the innumerable arguments on the subject which used to rage during the depression days of the thirties.

In effect, Mayor Bourque is saying that there is only so much work that has to be done and that, if women are hired to do it, then men will be made idle.

Perhaps he is right. But if he is, then what is one to say about statements regarding the all-out eight-hour day and the five-day week? To lengthen them would, according to this argument, produce more unemployment.

All wealth is the result of the application of labor to raw materials. We have an abundance of raw materials and now, when the nation's women as well as the men, are prepared to labor at the task of transforming them into useful articles, the path should be to increase the wealth of the country. That is the same argument which is advanced by the advocates of immigration.

But if the presence of women on factory pay-rolls does not cause unemployment, it may quite easily determine the identity of the persons who are unemployed and there may be a decided tendency to lay off male workers rather than women, because in many cases women are paid less than men.

Nor should industrialists be blamed for such a policy in many cases, for they may be faced with the necessity of either producing goods more cheaply or of ceasing to produce them at all, because of inability to find a market for higher-priced goods.

It is questionable whether this situation can be remedied by legislation requiring equal pay for equal work, regardless of sex. On the first phase, it is extremely difficult to determine what is equal work. In the second place, laws have a habit of producing effects other than those which have been drafted. During the depression, minimum wage laws for women resulted in many women finding it extremely difficult to obtain work, because a man could be employed for less than could a woman. The only remedy for the situation it may well be through union agreements—but most unions have been dominated for years by men workers and not a few of them are shrewd enough to think of demanding that a woman be paid as much as they are, they are protecting themselves as well as the women. Otherwise, men may find themselves forced into the role of housewives, while their wives work in the factories of the nation. And most of us, women as well as men, will agree with Mayor Bourque that this would be a most undesirable state of affairs.

QUORUM UNCHANGED

Stanley Howard Knowles, the C.C.F. member from Winnipeg North Centre, suffered another defeat in the House of Commons on Tuesday.

Mr. Knowles sponsored a bill to increase the Commons quorum—the minimum attendance required to transact parliamentary business. The vote was 154 to 31 against this measure.

It was, of course, a preposterous proposal. Mr. Knowles does not believe the present quorum of 20 members is sufficiently high. He wanted to increase it to thirty. How ridiculous! What right have we, the taxpayers, to expect that over ten per cent of the 265 members of the House of Commons will attend to the business for which we pay them $10,000 a year?

You will note that they always turn out in force, 154 strong, to defeat any really iniquitous measure, like this quorum bill.

TRUE GREATNESS

I know that he is truly great
Because he stooped to like a child
And dropped the heavy cares of state
That burdened him, and gently smiled.
And with the stranger on the way
He gladly passed the time of day.

I know that he is truly fine
Because a mother sought his store
And unto her he made no sign
That greater problems vexed him sore.
But listened, till her wants were told
As though that mother were his own.

I know that he is truly man
Because, despite his wealth and fame,
He lives unto the simple plan
That makes us one and all the same.
Though he has done, and given, much,
He has not lost the human touch.

Connecticut Tax Oddities

(Cleveland Plain Dealer)

Taxes are queer things. In Connecticut, we learn, you don't pay a sales tax on an ice cream soda, but you do on an ice cream soda! This is because sundaes are included with food and food products, and are therefore exempt; whereas sodas and milk shakes are classed with beverages and candy which are taxable.

There's no tax on milk, but mix it with ice cream (which is taxable in a sundae) in the concoction of a milk shake, and it becomes taxable.

Nuts are tax exempt, unless they are coated with chocolate; then they become taxable. Yet cooking chocolate is tax free! Slightly squirrelly, n'est ce pas?

THE PACKSACK
By GREGORY CLARK

A new Canadian of my acquaintance told me in considerable agitation that he had recently seen, down town, a man who was unquestionably the Nazi who had been one of the most brutal officers of a prison camp during the war.

"Did you attempt to follow him?" I enquired.

"Follow him!" cried my friend." I was so shocked and upset at the sight of him I almost ran, as I went the opposite direction. It is hard for you to understand how deep are the scars those people inflicted on those of us who have been so happy here, for eight years. Yet, because I know that man is in this city, I have not slept for a week, my whole life trembles . . ."

I told him whom to write to; and to give the name, record, description and any other detail he can about the Nazi, with the suggestion that he saw the person in this city. He scoffs; he could have been mistaken.

But I assured him the chances of Nazis, Communists or any other persons of note in such countries not being known to our Canadian security organizations were very slim. Such people indeed were known to be in Canada and their every move is being watched. In the best traditions of security, it is far better to maintain such suspects under observation and learn who their associates are, than merely to take them in and detain. They are the best bait possible. Under observation, the police can reveal ten or twenty of his former fellows who might otherwise escape notice.

"And not one of them," I assured my frightened friend, "is happy or easy in his mind, even in this beautiful country. Because he never knows which of his new-found friends is an informer, whose job is to report on him. Is this fellow look happy, when you saw him?"

"He looked the same as ever," said he. "He was never happy."

How Marx Saw Russia

(Hamilton Spectator)

It's from a controversial source all right, and hardly from an orthodox one, but here it is:

"The policy of Russia is changeless according to the admission of its official historian, the Moscow Kremlin. Its methods of tactics, its manoeuvres may change, but the polar star of its policy—world domination—is a fixed star. In our times only a civilized government ruling over barbarian masses can hatch out such a plan and execute it. As the great Russian diplomat of modern times . . . wrote, Poland is the great instrument for the execution of Russian designs on the world, but it is also an invincible obstacle to them, until such time as the Poles, worn out by the exhausting struggle, fall a prey to, become a whip in the hands of the Muscovite."

It's not a fulmination of John Foster Dulles, nor the words of some surviving "imperialist" in Churchill's Cabinet, nor the shibboleth of an embittered French monarchist; this emphatic diagnosis was written by Karl Marx in the nineteenth century by a noted German historian-economist, Karl Marx.

He had a vigorous colleague at that time, Engels, who thought the same way, and said it:

"The immediate objective of Panslavism is the complete and under Russian domination of a united Austria, the Balkan States and the Carpathians to the Black Aegean and Adriatic seas. They declare war and void the historical development of the last thousand years . . . the cut-off one-third of Germany and all of Hungary, and the dismemberment and Budapest into Slavic cities."

This is the voice of Friedrich Engels, who, when he wrote the famous "Workers of the World Unite" manifesto, knew probably a million have read for every one who has struggled through the Russian edition of the Kremlin really thinks now of Marx and Engels as the fathers of Soviet "democracy" is supposed to be framed (which is fair!) on the American matter plan.

More telling is a changelessness in the ardent plan of Russian foreign policy, which today has already gathered satellite-puppet governments in Poland and Eastern Europe and moves its satellite armies over Asia in world colonialism with an ancient—and familiar—feudal oppression.

Rocket Old Weapon

(New York Herald Tribune)

The rocket as a military weapon dates back five centuries at history behind it. But the Chinese who fired at the Tartars in 1232 probably would have seen on the rocket ships whose speed gave them control of the spangled banner over Fort McHenry in 1814, would doubtless have chuckled at Honest John and the Corporal, the most recent additions to the American arsenal of missiles.

The rocket sufficiently mobile to be used in field operations (Honest John is said to have "considerably greater range and flexibility" than conventional cannon); both have completely automatic guidance even if not equipped with atomic warheads, and while Honest John's 20-mile range is considerable in that of medium or heavy artillery, the Corporal can be fired electronically to targets which may be 100 miles or more away.

The Russians have been known to pete with artillery while the latter completely annihilate enemy—which meant inaccurate and short-range fire just about as late as 1944. But the rocket virtually disappeared from the battlefield in the face of rifled artillery. The simplicity of rocket mechanisms, however, may have permitted a heavy concentration of fire-power to be placed on a tank or a plane, or a group of planes, or infantry brought the rocket back in favor.

The bazooka, used by infantry against tanks or strong points; the rocket launcher used by PT boats, planes and trucks, allowed concentrated fire-power to be produced to be used tactically in the Second World War. The German V-2 was a long-range strategic missile, a ton of explosives roughly comparable to that of about 200 miles. It required very heavy fuel consumption and could only be used against very large, fixed targets, such as a big city, but it says much that the rocket is acquiring all the characteristics of the modern weapon. Under observation, it can reveal ten or twenty of his former fellows who might otherwise escape notice.

"And not one of them," I assured my frightened friend, "is happy or easy in his mind, even in this beautiful country. Because he never knows which of his new-found friends is an informer, whose job is to report on him. Is this fellow look happy, when you saw him?"

"He looked the same as ever," said he. "He was never happy."

Dandelions Good to Eat

(Ottawa Journal)

If is all right to talk enthusiastically about such things as fiddle-head ferns, or even lettuce that has been frightened into abject submission by pouring hot bacon fat over the green leaves. The conservation tries to be reasonably tolerant of the strange culinary tangents of his peers; but when he suggests that if all men ate healthy of dandelion greens, correctly boiled with a chunk of lean salt pork, the frustrating ages and humors of spring fever would be more efficiently kept under control.

A dandelion is a weed of considerable valor, unflagging persistance and great vigor. The seed was introduced from Europe in dirt used in ships' ballast; the North American Americans are in the year 1672. Technically it is a stemless plant with a flower head that may be as much as 2 feet in height. Home owners who stage an annual battle with their lawns until about July, do not need to be told it is a sturdy perennial.

We are informed that some citizens make a distinction among moderately potent drink by a certain process involving the leaves. However we are not so informed with dandelion greens served with a chicken or beef potpie, fried ham, home-made biscuits with grape jelly, and two pieces of room-temperature apple pie. The potatoes, of course, are boiled. The dandelion or other greens are cooked. That water, delectably flavored with a fatty tang, may hang bite of the green leaves, is the perfect medium for a hearty, nourishing spud.

Some there are who spend hours digging up the plants; much better cut the leaves and add a sestful dish to the diet.

Liquor Laws Not Sensible

(Fort Arthur, News, Chronicle)

Even the siren who apply for liquor licenses are impressed with what Mr. Bumble said about it.

Take last Monday's court budget as in this newspaper. It took off with what was the case of a fellow at Heron Bay, evidently a newcomer to Canada, because he needed an interpreter. He made the mistake of walking to the roadway where a police constable could see whisky bottles protruding from his coat pockets.

Brought to Port Arthur, the penalty assigned was a fine of costs or three months for illegal possession.

Next case: a district man pleaded guilty to impaired driving after having driven off the roadway and smashed into a hydro pole. Penalty $50 and costs or two months in jail.

In one instance a man had liquor in the district and was driving, which would mean that he was not in position to or likely to kill or injure anyone, particularly with an alert and capable constable on hand.

In the other instance a man had liquor in his stomach, while driving a motor car, because of his drinking habits, he was driving drunk), for he could quite as easily have run into a hydro pole, or a tree, and into a highway, ensuring that the latter was filled with a couple of whisky bottles in his pockets. It is not the case of a few alcohols of whisky under his belt.

Divas' Voices Fall at La Paz

(Madrid, Spain)

Because the city of La Paz, Bolivia, is high in the Andes, the best human voices often fail to reach their — and the usual cultural handicap to that music-minded metropolis. The reason for this is that the rarefied atmosphere causes nervousness, the short of winded, and divas gasp for air in the middle of an aria.

Now the authorities studiously avoid the Bolivian capital during their South American tours, for fear of a sudden fade out of their voice and of a damaging "flop" against their reputations.

SOAP AND WATER HYGIENE.

As many readers know, I appreciate every functional efficient tooth as worth not less than $1,000.

Dr. Brady

No matter whether it is one's own or a denture installed by the dentist. According to some reports of danger claims the courts recognize this as the minimum value of a tooth.

As many readers know, I have no more use for tooth brushes or dentrifices than have (or had in 1950) the inhabitants of Tristan da Cunha, who have (or had) the finest teeth in the world.

As everyone is not simple-minded knows or should know, the North Americans are the toothbrushingest people in the world, with the possible exception of the people of the British Isles.

Up until a year ago I still had 32 functionally efficient teeth, 14 of them originals, dirty, if that is your idea of unbrushed teeth, but sound, 8 restorations (fillings, crown, inlay and root canal filling) and 7 productions by my dentist. A few months ago the last remaining wisdom tooth, which had a middle-aged inlay, split in two when I bit on a metallic fragment and had to be extracted.

When I was a boy on Chapel Street in Canadaigua, (the home of, teacher in Chapel Street quire?

School, lived at our house and she saw to it that I brushed my teeth, washed behind my ears etc., when mother was too busy to police all four of us kids. Unquestionably Miss Berner, who merited sainthood, must exist. She really believed the bunk the dentists at that era taught and some are still teaching, namely, that "a clean tooth never decays."

This slogan has enabled the toothbrush and dentifrice bucketers to play a fabulous role in glorified soap and pretty, brushes, but apparently no one in America has clean teeth, for everyone has more or less tooth decay no matter how often or how thoroughly he or she brushes or what brand of cleaner he uses.

What? Why, yes, I clean my teeth occasionally — as it is for taking a mouthful of soapy water and swishing it around teeth and gums, repeatedly, usually right after water. For this I prefer plain toilet soap. And I'll put my teeth up alongside of the teeth of any one of my age who brushes his teeth regularly, and without bragging I am sure I am wrong about cave of the 32 teeth I have left are as clean as the other fellow's.

Come, now, Doctor (D.D.S. or even M.D.) you can't do it right time for you dentists to teach people the truth, namely that two things are essential to save the teeth, (1) good nutrition and (2) regular inspection by the dentist and whatever cleaning, polishing or treatment the teeth may re-

TODAY'S TALK
By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE POWER OF PRAYER

I recently read an article in a publication, telling of the different people who made it a habit to pray. In the number were writers, novelists and other writers, business men, legislators, editors, professors, and in fact almost every type of human being. They all testified to the power of prayer in their daily lives.

To the two United States postage stamps that carry the line "In God We Trust" I would like to see added this line to the stamps that are sent solely from the United Nations organization. They have elaborate bars in that building, and a small room where people go to be meditated and prayed, but no session is opened with a word of prayer for God's guidance in those sessions that are so important to the bringing about of universal peace and happiness in the world. I wonder why, for God, the Creator of the universe, is surely interested in the happiness of every race and nation, regardless of beliefs.

The power of prayer has been demonstrated so many times throughout the history of the world that there is no question of its efficiency. No great man has ever been a stranger to prayer. Charles Carrel. He is quoted by Charles Allen Tate in his most beautiful little book "The Voyage to Lourdes" as follows: "I pray that I may not grant me another ten years of work. With what power I would then write!" I have experienced, I believe I shall succeed in establishing scientifically, the objective relationships between the spiritual and the material, between God and how truth and the beneficence of Christianity."

He who does not fall to note "the sparrow's fall" surely will not fail to note the humblest petition to Him in prayer, and that prayer is sure to be answered in some form or other. As Stevenson has so well stated: "A generous prayer is never presented in vain; has so is never presented in vain; the petition may be refused, but the petitioner is always, I believe, rewarded by some gracious visitation."

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY
DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

MONEY-SICKNESS

Americans have always been known in some parts of the world as "dollar-chasers;" but according to a recent scientific report, the concern of many people for money goes almost beyond reason.

Marshall Hulbert, a Boston physician, told the American Association for the Advancement of Science that emotional upsets over money can cause all sorts of symptoms of physical illness. Headaches, stomach troubles, and back pains are among the effects which he has traced to "money-sickness."

Anyone who makes much of a study of human unhappiness and tragedy is sure to be impressed with the overwhelming tendency of men and women to bring disasters upon themselves by their own action. Here is just such a situation. And the dollar-chasers: but it is not quite to be more avoidable than those brought on by undue preoccupation with money.

Since the beginning of recorded history the world's greatest religious leaders and philosophers have preached the dangers of materialism. Their words are still true—truer and more significant than ever before. The love of money—mad post-war world. Money alone will not bring happiness. Financial, social, political success will not bring happiness. Happiness comes from spiritual, not material sources—from inside, not from outside.

Try it yourself! See if going to church won't do you more good than going to the bank.

Drew Calls Statement Made 'Extraordinary'

OTTAWA (CP) Opposition leader Drew Thursday described "extraordinary" a statement by Mr Albert Walsh, chief justice of Newfoundland, regarding publicity of the Alfred Valdmanis case.

Mr. Drew also asked Justice Minister Garson to consider defining the grounds on which contempt of court proceedings can be undertaken.

The Opposition leader said that Sir Albert had issued a direct threat of possible contempt of court proceedings against the St. John's, Nfld., Daily News for publishing a statement of claims and abstracts of affidavits in a civil case against Valdmanis.

Valdmanis, former director of economic development for Newfoundland, also faces a series of charges of fraud in the criminal courts.

Mr. Drew raised the issue of contempt of court during the question period at the start of the day's sitting, and later when the House was considering an interim supply bill to provide the government with funds during June.

QUOTES STATEMENT

He quoted from the statement of the Newfoundland Supreme Court, issued by Sir Albert, which warned lawyers, newspapers, radio stations and everyone that the court would be on the watch for anything said or done which might tend to prejudice fair trial.

Mr. Drew said there has been concern about the extent to which judges "have exercised the very loose authority in regard to contempt of court proceedings."

"In many cases this authority has been exercised in such a way that responsible members of the press must have a great difficulty in knowing exactly what should be or could be defined as contempt of court."

"I submit that this is an extraordinary statement. This is a direct threat in relation to the publication of civil proceedings because there happens to be at the same time a criminal action pending."

PUBLICITY IS "SAFEGUARD"

Publicity was an essential part of justice.

"Publicity is a safeguard to the accused, just as it is to those who institute proceedings, whether they be criminal or civil. Unless there is a very clear case of an attempt to distort the processes of justice, then I find that there must certainly should be no attempt to start contempt of court proceedings. . . ."

Justice Minister Garson said the subject matter of the Supreme Court's statement is a provincial responsibility.

ENDORSES STATEMENT

He said he would be glad to look into Mr. Drew's request for writing into the federal law a legal definition of the grounds on which contempt proceedings can be taken.

Mr. Garson said, however, that he endorses Sir Albert's statement that an accused is entitled to fair trial on evidence produced in court, and there only.

He referred to the fact that the revised Criminal Code, now before Parliament, provides for an appeal of both the conviction and sentence for contempt of court if leave is granted from the appeal court for an appeal judge. The present code provides no appeal from convictions for contempt of court.

Police Officer Acting on Hunch Recovers Car

PICTON — When a policeman has a hunch it bears no good for the ill doer. This week, Chief Constable Earl Marvin noted a car being driven through the village at Wellington at a rapid rate of 36 speed. He thought he knew the car's owner, and a stranger was driving. When the car struck a curb, his hunch that it was stolen was heightened. So he gave chase in his cruiser. After a four-mile chase, he overtook and apprehended Albert Hill of Toronto. As he entered his office the telephone rang and it was Sgt. George Hall of Picton reporting a car owned by Mrs. Bert McGee to have been stolen. Due to his hunch, Constable Marvin had both car and man before the theft was reported to him at Wellington.

Public Inspects Two Barracks Blocks, Mess

PICTON — Two barracks blocks and a mess, built at a cost of $1,250,000 by the Department of National Defence, in connection with the Royal Canadian School of Artillery (AA) here, were opened for public inspection when Gunners' day was observed by the camps.

One of the barracks will accommodate 250 men and the other 180 men. Built of re-inforced concrete, with white stucco, they are imposing structures. Featuring the lounge of the larger barracks is a huge stone fireplace, while that in the other building is panelled in birch with book cases as the sides.

Each bedroom accommodates four single beds with wall to ceiling cupboards. Tile and terrazzo is extensively used.

The mess is featured by a very modern kitchen with the latest equipment to facilitate the rapid feeding of personnel. A daily diet sheet assures variety.

The work was done by local contractors, the H. J. McFarland Construction Co. The barracks are located near the original camp which was built in 1939. The wooden barracks there are outmoded, and expansion of the camp is in the offing.

Canada Needs More Soy Bean Production

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's production of soy beans, used in making margarine, has increased fivefold in the last 10 years, yet the country is producing only half her requirements.

Dr. Fred Dimmock, assistant chief of the experimental farm's forage crop division, indicated to the Commons agricultural committee Thursday that Canada can double its soy bean acreage and in addition to Canadian requirements, Europe is showing lively interest in Canadian production. Canada shipped about 500,000 bushels to Britain last year.

Europe is dissatisfied with imports from the United States, complaining of too much foreign material, but there has been no complaint of Canadian exports, the department official said.

Most of Canada's soy beans are grown in southwestern Ontario. Production has jumped to 4,400,000 bushels in 1953 from 814,000 in 1943. The farm value of the crop has soared to $12,000,000 last year from $1,370,000 ten years ago.

A new seed variety called Acme, grown in eastern Ontario, has been shipped for planting in southern Manitoba.

Planting In Crown Land In Progress

Besides, the planting carried out by local men under the direction of the Department of Lands and Forests, 19,000 of the trees were planted by school children and Boy Scouts.

In the Lennox and Addington Forest near Flinton, planting included 60,000 trees.

Crown land planting is still in progress with two projects still to be completed. 50,000 White Pine are being planted in the Lake St. Peter area under the direction of Mr. Robert Barr, and 37,000 Red Pines will be planted near St. Ola.

Dairy Farmers Ask Continuance Of Price Support

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's dairy farmers urged the government Thursday to continue the butter price support at 58 cents a pound wholesale until at least May, 1956—a year beyond the date of expiry.

That support price, though not an incentive to encourage production, will nevertheless help to keep the industry strong, the Dairy Farmers of Canada said in a submission to Agriculture Minister Gardiner.

Conferring with Mr. Gardiner was association president Gilbert Macmillan of Huntingdon, Que., and his board of directors representing some 455,000 farmers across the country.

The farmers argued that price support are essential to maintain a fair relationship in dairy prices. They estimated that the cost of government price support on butter since 1949 was a mere "fraction of a cent a pound."

Liberace Will Gross Close To Million Dollars

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Liberace, the most popular pianist in the United States since Lanny Ross quit the White House, will gross close to $1,000,000 this year.

This week Liberace moved into New York's Madison Square Garden, the first pianist since Paderewski to hire the big hall for a concert appearance. For the opening performance, a crowd of 16,000 paid $60,000 in admission.

In the past years, Liberace has become the phenomenon of the music world, going from the TV screen to the drawing power of TV. Old timers compare his following to that heaped on him by the fair sex in the days of Valentino and Frank Sinatra. Women—from five to five-go for him. Men generally are not so enthusiastic.

Liberace has no network show, yet is on 174 television stations weekly. Six stations have censured.

"For some reason," says Seymour Heller, his personal manager "most of the sponsors are banks and biscuit companies. No matter where we turn, he's in the dough."

PLAYS FOR THE MASSES

Liberace was the only artist to fill Hollywood Bowl—capacity 20,000—two seasons in a row. He does it by playing for the mass. He unhesitatingly rewrites and edits the classics. He needs only four minutes for Tchaikovsky's piano concerto No. 1. Horowitz and Rubinstein can't get their fingers warmed up in that time.

Critics generally don't approve of this sort of meddling, and Liberace has had sharp words written about him from coast to coast.

Tht comedians have done no harm whatever to Liberace's career. Spike Jones used his clever mimicry, Billy Barty, to do a hilarious, slapstick takeoff.

The pianist professes to laugh off the gibes and such cracks as Red Skelton's: "Liberace cracked his head when he dived in his pool. Brother George forgot to lift the lid."

That pool is a fantastic thing, built in the shape of a piano with keyboard forming its edge. It's part of his $100,000 home in Sherman Oaks, where Liberace lives alone with his mother.

The master of this modernistic mansion is half-Italian, half Polish, combining the handsome features of both. He has had white hair prematurely grey since he was 21, a fact attested to by his barber all though there have been stories that it's all part of the act.

CO-OP FACTORIES

Co-operative associations owned 40 per cent of Canadian butter and cheese factories in 1952, as against 30 per cent in 1939.

Anglican Synod Toronto Diocese Approves Motion

TORONTO (CP)—The 1954 Anglican synod of the Toronto diocese Thursday approved a motion petitioning the Bishop of Toronto to appoint a commission "to study the position and scope of women in the full-time ministry—excluding the question of their ordination."

The motion opposed by the bishop, Rt. Rev. A. R. Beverley was presented by Rev. W. E. Mann at the closing session of the three-day synod sittings. It was a modified version of a proposal defeated Wednesday asking that women should be admitted to the priesthood.

Mr. Mann, in speaking for the resolution, said: "Nothing is different about women except the few things we all recognize."

"You are out of order discussing women and the church like this," said Bishop Beverley.

Strike Ties Up Oshawa's Buses

OSHAWA (CP)—Bus transportation in this city of 45,000 residents was tied up today when 100 men struck for fringe benefits in their contract dispute against the Oshawa Railway Company.

The men went out at 5:30 a.m. and stopped transportation for 12,000-odd persons who depend on the 25 buses to get them to industrial plants. The strikers—bus drivers, freight handlers, bus and electrical mechanics—are members of the Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees (AFL)-CLC.

Worth Remembering

A portion of Nova Scotia actually lies in Scotland! In 1621, James I granted Acadia to Sir William Alexander, and to make him a peer of the realm the King set aside a plot of earth within the grounds of Edinburgh Castle, naming it "Nova Scotia, a part of the New World!"

An interesting fact worth remembering!

Tulips, iris, daffodils, and ferns adorned the altar and chancel rail, and roses and gypsophelia the ring table in the Roman Catholic Church of St. Peter-in-Chains, Trenton, on Saturday, May 8, at 10:00 a.m., when Dorothy Gertrude Jamieson, of Belleville, daughter of Mrs. Muriel Jamieson, became the bride of Robert Richard Mitts, of Trenton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Mitts. GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

LET YOUR DATE TAKE OVER AS HOST

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Last evening when I was dining in a restaurant with my date, this question perplexed me: When the waiter brings the two orders for cocktails (for example, oysters-on-the-half-shell and a shrimp cocktail) and sets these down in the reverse order, should the girl always wait for her date to set the waiter straight, or, when she gets the wrong order, should she at once correct the waiter?

—Elaine

The girl who knows her way around, politely lets her date, who is her guest, take over the responsibilities of host-ship. So when this circumstance occurs (as it quite often does) she gives him the opportunity to say to the waiter, "The oysters are for my guest . . . the shrimp cocktail is for me.

HOW TO ANNOUNCE YOUR-SELF OVER THE TELEPHONE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When one calls a telephone call to her priest, is it correct to say, "This is Mary Robinson speaking," or "This is Mrs. Robinson?" When one knows the priest very well, it does seem much more friendly to say "This is Mary Robinson."

Also the same question, please, as to other members of our family who don't know the priest well. How should they announce themselves to him on the telephone?

—M.H.

A woman announces herself over the telephone to someone she knows . . . for example to a priest, whether she knows him well or not . . . as "This is Mary Robinson." . . . as "This is Mary Robinson." "Father Murray, this is Mary Robinson."

(The only times it is correct for her "This is Mrs. Robinson" is when she is making a business telephone call or is announcing herself over the telephone to a person she doesn't know, or to a child, or as a courtesy to a tradesperson. In some cases, when further identification is necessary, she says, this is Mrs. Martin Robinson.")

A man would announce himself over the telephone to the priest, "Father Murray, this is Martin Robinson."

WHAT AUNT AND COUSINS WEAR TO THE WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Here I come to you again for help! My question this time is one about dress. The wedding ceremony is to be in a Roman Catholic church at 6:30 P.M. The reception following the ceremony is to be at a hotel. What would the aunt and cousins of the groom wear to the church wedding and reception? And about wedding hats. We of course have to wear hats to the church. Would it be appropriate to wear a hat at the reception? If so, what type would you suggest?—C.

What a woman guest would appropriately wear on this occasion depends on the degree of formality (or informality) of the wedding and reception . . . and you didn't inform me about this. Such close relatives of the bridegroom would undoubtedly know about this. . . . also the form of the invitation, formal or informal, would be the indication. If really formal, an evening dress or dinner dress . . . neither need be floor-length these days, but may be ankle-length or even shorter: an evening wrap or surpliece, jacket or stole; and of the church a hat or head-covering of some suitable kind. If the reception is to be on the side of formality, the woman guest may, if she wishes, remove her hat, but she may wear one of today's so brief hats (or half-hats or handkerchief hats are smart and charming with even somewhat formal evening wear. If the wedding and reception are to be on the informal side, a woman guest would appropriately wear a late-afternoon type dress, street-length, of a becoming color or a dressmaker type suit, perhaps silk; a small, suitable hat; well-chosen accessories to make a harmonious . . .

YES, MA'AM . . . YOU PAY FOR THE GROOM'S RING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it up to the bride-to-be to buy the groom's wedding ring? I've always taken that for granted. Now my mother tells me that this isn't my responsibility—and that when she was married, my father bought his wedding ring. What's right—Bride-to-be

Fortunately the bride pays for her bridegroom's wedding ring. He and she may go together to the jeweler to choose the type and size of ring he wishes . . . they definitely should do this . . . but she pays for the ring.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

STREAMLINING THE FIGURE

Obesity is no beauty bargain. But that is not the worst of it. Overweight is definitely a health menace, as the unanimous opinion of the medical profession are constantly reminding us. It is a factor in diabetes, it overtaxes the lives vanish and awkward bulges appear. That should not happen when the calorie scales report even ten pounds above normal, the war against fat cells should be started.

Watery tonnage is caused by over-indulgence in food—and nothing else. Glandular disturbances are responsible only in rare cases. A woman may not be a heavy eater, but her tastes incline toward fat-building foods. If she will follow a few simple dietary rules she will not only stop feeding her fat cells but she will gradually lose them, restoring the graceful lines that she has lost through over-indulgence at the table.

The intake of fats, sweets and starches must be reduced. But she will not have to starve—foods because they are energy-builders. Lean meats and fish may be permitted, but fried potatoes never. All fried foods will increase the weight and are definitely avoided.

Tea and coffee should be taken clear as cream and sugar are her enemies. It is advisable to substitute fruits for sugary desserts. Cake, dearly beloved by the average overweight, comes under the thing she should not have—sweets, fats and starches.

Lean meat providing protein of which she is in need, will not be on an ounce of fat. Fish, poultry and eggs also supply protein. There is almost no limit to the variety of vegetables that can be consumed without danger of increasing avoirdupois.

A green salad once a day provides bulk, and combining mineral salts to the diet. Cereals, hot biscuits, wheat cakes are definitely out!

Once back to normal weight, our candidate for the streamlined figure must hang tight to the diet wagon. If she falls off, all her previous efforts will have been wasted.

Women Praised For Interest In Canadian Trade

OWEN SOUND (CP)—The Ontario Provincial Council of Women was praised Wednesday night by a business expert for knowledge and interest shown in matters affecting Canadian trade.

Brig. James A. Roberts, Toronto marketing consultant, congratulated the council for "efforts to encourage in this country a more realistic consideration of trade and trading policy." He urged continuation of the work.

He told dinner meeting at the annual convention of the council that Canada's tariffs and trade are based on out-moded thinking but said there is a growing realization that Canadian policy needs reviewing.

Brig. Roberts urged the women to "continue to show mature judgment in matters of national interest and to show the rest of the country how to bury small regional and personal prejudices under a common banner of Canada.

"As the people who spend 85 per cent of the consumer goods purchased in this country you can continue to support the Buy-Canadian movement and you can carry this further by insisting that industry recognize its interdependence and Buy Canadian too."

The president of the provincial council, Mrs. Gordon Kerr, presided for the business session during the morning and early afternoon when many reports from committee chairmen and various women's groups across Canada were heard. Sixteen cities are represented at the convention.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DECIDE WHERE YOU WANT TO GET MARRIED

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We would like to know in what state you can get married by the Justice of the Peace and how long you must wait after getting the license and the blood test. We are both in our middle thirties, have been going together over two years and neither of us has ever been married before. — Pauline and Ronnie

Dear Pauline and Ronnie:

So far as I know, it is possible to get married in any state by a Justice of the Peace. As for your other question, these requirements differ in different states. Some states require no waiting. Some states require no waiting after the blood test. While the wait required in others ranges from two to five days after the blood test. None is required in some states. One state requires a 10 day wait, the man only, and the majority require one from both the man and the woman.

You can see, therefore, that the best thing for you to do at present is to decide what state you wish to be married in and find out exactly what the legal requirements are, and then conform to them.

HERE'S A GIRL WHO MUST HELP HERSELF

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 19, and very much in love. I'll tell you why.

Last year we went steady for seven months. We were engaged to get married when he got out of school and the air force, which we thought was only weeks altogether. Then, a few months ago he broke it off. He said that while he still loved me he was tired of going steady. We went out a few times after that, but now I just see him once in while in passing. I have tried and tried to get him, but it's just impossible. I can't sleep nights, and when I get up I just sit and cry. I have tried going out with other fellows but it's useless.

Please help me, J.E.G.

Dear J.E.G.:

The only one who can help a girl who sits around crying and moping is herself. Nothing will self it's impossible to "forget" and that there are ever going out with another boy, is the girl herself. Unless you make up your mind that you're going to stop indulging in all this self-pity, and start concentrating on living normally, as a young woman your age is plenty old enough to do, you certainly have a world full of cry-babies who were as useless to them-selves as they are to anyone else.

Brace up now and put your disappointment behind you. A few years from now you'll be glad you acted one way instead of the other. Realize that and feel you were too old for him. If you give yourself a chance for a new start, a happy girl who enjoys good times and lots of friends, one of these days a chap will come along who is far more suited to you than this one.

Sisters Receive Medical Awards At Convocation

MONTREAL (CP) — Both married and single women were among 1,000 students, graduating at McGill University's annual convocation Wednesday.

Catriona MacLean, 26, and her 25-year-old sister, Mairi, of Alexandria, Ont., both accepted their medical degrees during the impressive outdoor ceremony.

Mrs. Mary Vuglesovich, wife of a McGill economics student and mother of an eight-year-old daughter, received her bachelor of science degree in agriculture while Mrs. Natalie Isaacs — who took time off from her studies 14 months ago to bear a son—graduated with second-class honors from the faculty of law.

The MacLean sisters came to Canada from the Isle of Tiree, off the coast of Scotland, because "we applied to McGill and Glasgow University at the same time, but McGill answered first." They live with their parents and an aunt on a farm near Alexandria.

"We both hope to get married," Catriona said, "but not just yet. Our education cost us a great deal and it would be a pity to waste it. Eventually, of course, we hope there will be nothing to stop us from combining both careers."

The pretty brunette doctors intend to set up practice in small towns in British Columbia. Mairi will be intern in Vancouver while Catriona said she will try Philadelphia "because I want to see the United States."

QUESTION:

Could you please tell me lingonberry is for making syrup for "Pancake Balls"—Mrs. G. E.

ANSWER:

POPCORN BALLS

Twelve cups freshly popped popcorn which has been slightly salted, 1 cup granulated sugar, 1-4 cup hot water, 1-2 cup brown sugar, firmly packed. In large saucepan or frying pan heat the granulated sugar, stirring constantly until it is melted and of a light golden brown color. Add the hot water very slowly and carefully, standing at arm's length to avoid spattering, and stirring until sugar is dissolved. Now add the brown sugar, and cook to 238 deg. Fahr., and add a little of the syrup when dropped in cold water forms a soft ball. Drizzle this over the popped corn in large container, stirring until all corn is coated. Press into balls with slightly moistened hands. Let dry and harden on waxed paper.

QUESTION:

I would like a recipe for Bran Muffins, also called Health Biscuits.—(Unsigned.)

ANSWER:

BRAN MUFFINS

Two tablespoons shortening, 1-4 cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 cup milk, 1 cup milk, 1 cup bran, 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt. Cream shortening until light then cream in the sugar until both are light. Beat in egg, then milk and bran. Add sifted dry ingredients and beat all well. Add more flour if mixture is too thin. Sift together the sifted flour, baking powder and salt and add to the first mixture when it has soaked. Spoon into buttered muffin tins filling 2-3 full. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for about 25 minutes.

QUESTION:

. . . you gave a recipe for gluten bread made with Bird's gluten flour. What I would like to know is where it may be obtained. . . . I make my husband's gluten bread . . . I have tried all the largest packages of gluten in the paper and he has enjoyed these very much . . . If you are using my recipe I will gladly send it.—Mrs. O. F.

ANSWER:

Parke & Parke, Druggists, Market Square, Hamilton, are acknowledged in the trade as having the largest range of so-called "diet" foods in Canada. However their gluten flour is "Direct" brand. It is $1.40 for a 5-lb. box. They have salt-free and low-calorie foods which include baking powder, cocoa, macaroni and cereal, oergeon rolls and flakes prepared with vegetable fats, maple syrup substitute and mayonnaise. They have assured me they will ship anything to you that you order.

TV NEWS TV

by Gene Hitchon
Radio had a tremendous impact on our living when it was first introduced into the home. Out of the radio industry grew television and now we are witnessing the next big father, electronics is now spread through the home in many guises.
Some stores are thinking of using television for exhibition purposes with which for shoplifters. One store detective posed the idea that a camera, the exact counter and in the front department to "keep an eye" on.
Television may be used by branch banks to keep in touch with the main head office, or for conferences between the head office and any line. TV can be used to show freight trains in railway yards, or in the home to keep an eye on the baby in the next room, or to see who is at the front door.
If you look at it, you can see that all these new uses for TV are possible because of the one great use for television. You can sit in comfort in one room and watch events, for instance the Coronation, which are taking place at the same time somewhere else, in a different room, in a different building, or at a dramatic American investigation.
All the great advances that have been made in TV are in the new, one-piece, tube-mount. There are no "add-ons" to buy. Get the full story on that at Hitchon Radio and Television, 4 Bridge St. East.

26 Sailing Ships Of Portuguese Fleet in Harbor

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Twenty ty gleaming, white-hulled sailing ips of the Portuguese fishing fleet were anchored in this land-locked harbor Wednesday and old-timers said it was the biggest fish-ing squadron ever to anchor here. The brightly painted vessels started coming through the narrow harbor entrance during the week-end and before several sailed out Wednesday the total reached 26. The fleet comes and goes with the wind during the summer months. It is making its first 1954 call to this oldest North American port.

The fleet of Portugal is the most colorful of any nation using this port and concentrates on social im-provements rather than mechani-zation. The three- and four-masted craft cross the Atlantic with the wind. In harbor the ships use auxi-liary motors.

It is not known when the first Portuguese fleet sailed into St. John's but there are records of its appearance as early as 1500 three years after Newfoundland was discovered by John Cabot.

Government Will Not Intervene In Strike Threat

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government will not intervene in the railway strike threat until union members have completed a strike vote that was announced Wednesday.

An informant said no govern ment action has been drafted an the cabinet intends, at the least to stay out of the railway-labo dispute directly until the norma union procedure has been carrie out.

This means there will be n government intervention before about mid-August, when results o the strike vote will have bee tabulated.

Meanwhile, government labo experts are of the view that th 125,000-member rank and file c the 18 unions locked in a fig with the major railways will vot to give their top officials power t call a strike of the proportions that tied up the country's railway sys tem in 1950.

Labor Minister Gregg said Wed-nesday in an interview that the strike vote does not mean efforts to reach a settlement have been given up. The government still could help out in conciliation.

Slipping St. Louis Cardinals Beginning To Resemble The Browns Of Old

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

ALL SET!

Looks like the stage is all set for the most colorful baseball opening seen in this village since the palmy days of the old Central Ontario Baseball League when the "Indian," the Mills brothers, Hoot Gibson, and other old Belleville immortals trekked to the Fair Grounds.

The big "parade" arrangements are complete, except for the fact that a few more "convertibles" would be welcome. Anyone owning this type car and who would care to get in the parade is asked to contact secretary Drury Denyes at the city hall.

The aerial invading force is all set, rarin' to fly and is loaded with plenty of "balloon and pamphlet" ammunition. The bands are ready, and so are the floats. Now all that is necessary is the whole-hearted co-operation of the weatherman. Full-ease, Mister, a hot sun and warmish zephyrs.

The parade will leave the collegiate campus at approximately 1.15 in order to start the game on schedule at 2.30. The Toronto Dependables have a night date in Peterborough.

A GREAT ATHLETE!

Lionel Conacher, "The Big Train," who passed away suddenly on Thursday while playing softball in Ottawa, was a perfectionist.

Canada's "Athlete of the Half Century," whose bone bore the marks of eight fractures, and who had more than 400 stitches in his 200-pound six-foot frame, did everything well. He learned to skate when he was 16 and six years later turned down an offer of $5,000 to play hockey with the Montreal Canadiens.

He galloped 180 yards in 10.4 seconds in full baseball regalia. He fought Jack Dempsey once in four rounds. He was one of the greatest defencemen in hockey in his day. He was the Canadian light heavyweight boxing champion. He starred in wrestling, boxing, lacrosse, baseball and football. It was most of his sports achievements as the "Big Train" of football.

Conacher never left anything half-done. He always finished what was started, unless circumstances altered the case.

Baseball fans of the early twenties hereabouts will recall the time "Train" played here with the Toronto Hillcrests against the Belleville Nationals in the Ontario senior semi-finals. Hillcrests won the first game by a 13-6 score and the Hillites brought plenty of Toronto money with them.

Came the ninth inning in the second game here with the Nationals leading 8-7. Two Hillcrests were out and two were on base. The "Train" was playing left field. Earlier in the game he had misjudged a fly and the ball struck the Conacher forehead, leaving thump before it caromed into the long grass of the old fair ground.

The batter drove a scorcher to Crocker Williams on third and the Crocker decided to make the play at first. It seemed a week either there but Harry Mills made the play. The runner was out—and the rhubarb was on.

Players melee'd in a jolly old free-for-all. The spectators poured on the field and a Donnybrook started. During the fray some Belleville player, or fan—it was later revealed it was a player—gently caressed the Conacher pate with a baseball bat.

The "Big Train" shook his head and looked for his assailant. He had disappeared. Later, Conacher was told, if he wished to settle the issue, his assailant would be waiting for him outside the Hotel Quinte at 7.30 that evening.

That evening a tall, rangy figure paced quietly up and down in front of the hotel waiting for the bat-wielder. He waited an hour. Thirty more minutes went by. But no flatic fox appeared on the horizon. The negtie-conker was said to be a member of a well-known Belleville athletic family, whose sons are playing softball and baseball today.

That was just another incident in the colorful sports career of the best athletic Canada has produced to date. It probably will be many a year before another will arrive to match the peerless Conacher's remarkable achievements in the realm of sport.

COACHES'-UMPIRES' SCHOOL

The Recreation Commissioned-sponsored softball-baseball umpiring and coaching school gets under way at Kinsmen Centre tonight for a two-day session. Heading the school is Maxie Scheff, well known Toronto umpire, who was umpire-in-chief of the World Softball Tournament last year. With Mr. Scheff will be Dave Appleton, also of Toronto, who will give the instruction in coaching. He has conducted coaching schools in Ontario for the past three years.

The school will hold three two-hour sessions starting at eight o'clock tonight at the Centre. The other two sessions will be held tomorrow, the first starting at 10 a.m. and the second at 1.30 p.m.

LOTSA FUN!

It looks like the long and short of it—the Brobdingnagians and the Lilliputians, that will furnish the fun, fury and fireworks at Memorial Arena tonight. Tex McKenzie, 6' 9 inches in his pinkies and Big Ike Eakins, brawny Oklahoman, will operate in the Empire State class in what should be a battle of the bigtops. Conducting the anti-antics, and they'll be many, are the four half-pints of pachydermata, Little Cupid, Tuffy McRae, Little Beaver and Ski-Lo-Lo. Sech goings on. But there will be solid action throughout regardless of what else bundle it is packaged in. Dan Lewin and Pat Flanagan open the festivities.

CALLS PRACTICE!

Bryson Reid announced today that his Regents intermediate baseball club will hold a practice over the "week-end" at the Exhibition Park starting at 2.30. All players are requested to turn out and all boys desirous of trying out with the team will be welcome. Coach Chuck Barriage will start to work in earnest and hopes a large number will turn out for the practice.

Redbirds Luckless at Home, Skid From 1st to 5th in Week; Yankees, 'Bums' Bite the Dust

By Ken Prildgar
Associated Free Sport Writer

The way St. Louis Cardinals have been playing at home this season you'd almost think they were trying to help the fans remember the old Browns.

The Cardinals obviously are a better ball team than the Browns were, but a quick glance at their home record raises doubts that the players share owner August Busch's determination that the club must remain in St. Louis.

In 22 games at home this season the Cardinals have won only 10, and twice they have been able to put a pair of victories back to back.

A week ago today they came home from their first long eastern trip in first place in the National League. Thursday night they bunched out of town in the second division. Between times they have dropped five out of seven decisions to Cincinnati Reds and Chicago Cubs—both lower-bracket clubs — and skidded from first to fifth.

The Cards dropped to fifth during Hoyle Kluttz's eighth-inning game, bowing 7-3 to Chicago. Philadelphia Phils trounced Brooklyn 13-3, Washington beat New York 4-1, Yankees 7-3 in the American League and Cincinnati handed Baltimore its seventh straight loss, 7-1. The other clubs weren't scheduled.

Hank Sauer hit a three-run homer in the National League first with a mate aboard and Ralph Kiner hit his seventh homer as the Chicago Cubs trounced the St. Louis Cardinals 7-3 at Chicago. Meanwhile Gerry Staley and Stu Miller, Musial went hitless in three appearances.

DODGERS BATTERED

The Phillies scored in every inning except the first and last at Brooklyn. Curt Simmons, who attacked against five Dodger pitchers included seven extra-base blows, three of them home runs by John Wyrostek, Willie Jones and Earl Torgeson, drove in seven, making his first start after missing two turns because of arm trouble. Hasted only 2 3-3 innings and was charged with his third loss. He's now 2-3.

In Washington the Yankees added insult to injury and, committing three errors that led in six unearned runs, Lefty Chuck Stobbs gave up nine hits to put the Bombers in serious trouble after Washington batted around for five runs in the fifth.

Detroit came up with four runs in the first inning against the slumping Orioles, and Ned Garver never gave the Baltimore lads a chance to catch up. An error by Bobby Young on a ground ball by Gookie Rabbitt opened the gates in the first. Young later homered for the only Baltimore run.

Yesterday's Stars

By The Associated Press

Pitching — Ned Garver, Tigers, scattered nine hits in winning his first game for Detroit in almost seven weeks, blanking Baltimore.

Batting — Richie Ashburn, Phils, collected four singles in five times at bat as Philadelphia beat Brooklyn 11-3.

Bisons Snap Wings Streak; Syracuse Wins

By The Associated Press

The fast-moving Rochester Red Wings had a seven-game winning streak slapped Thursday night and thereby lost an opportunity to pick up valuable ground on the idle league - leading Toronto Maple Leafs in the International baseball loop.

The Wings dropped a 6-5 decision to Buffalo Bisons in the first meeting of the teams this season. The game was won in the fourth inning when Buffalo's Harry Bright and Chick King connected for home runs to account for four runs.

Hal Erickson gained credit for his fourth victory of the season without a defeat.

Syracuse Chiefs moved into sixth place as they defeated last-place Ottawa 9-4 in Richmond, although Ottawa dropped to the seventh.

Montreal moved within a game and a half of second-place Havana as it defeated the Cuban Sugar Kings 8-2.

Marciano Over Charles By KO Says Louis

HALIFAX (CP)—Former world heavyweight boxing champion Joe Louis predicted Thursday that titleholder Rocky Marciano will stop challenger Ezzard Charles when the two tangle for the championship next month.

"Marciano will win; knock out Charles inside 10 rounds," Louis said in an interview. "He's too rough and punches too hard for Charles."

Louis is refereeing a series of wrestling matches in the Maritimes.

Western Canada Hopes Ride On Five Queen's Plate Colts

TORONTO (CP)—Western Canada racing fans have plenty of hope in five candidates for this year's running of the Queen's Plate. Five colts have western affiliations—Hi Laude, Mr. Speaker, Assiniboia, Hartney and Clandeboye.

Hi Laude, carrying the colors of Dr. L. H. Appleby, of Vancouver, is one of the leading contenders for this year's renewal of Canada's racing classic at Woodbine track June 12.

Mr. Speaker, rated No. 2 among the western challengers, was bred and is owned by Raymond General Lucien Maynard of Alberta. Mr. Speaker, a son of Gold Hour and Piroyal, didn't electrify the turf world in 1953 but, nevertheless, at Long Branch track near Toronto last autumn, he paid $39.30 and triumphed by five lengths.

Mr. Maynard has been pointing for the Queen's Plate since he went into the horse-breeding business. Accordingly, he left Mr. Speaker in Ontario for the winter, reasoning that the colt would be able to take advantage of a longer training season in comparatively mild southern Ontario. Trainer Jerry Meyer has brought Mr. Speaker along steadily and his prospects look impressive.

Assiniboia is owned by J. E. Brown of Saskatoon. Hartney, by the way, is not a true westerner. He was foaled at the Pine River ranch of H. James Speers, near Carberry, Man. He was shipped to Toronto and purchased by Seagram at the yearling sales conducted by the Canadian Thoroughbred Horse Society.

Thus, it is a western-bred colt which will carry Canada's most famous racing silks, the black-and-gold of the Seagram colors. The Seagrams have won the plate 19 times but they haven't had a victory in the race since Dunfermline turned the trick in 1933.

Assiniboia, a handsome bay, never hit his stride until the autumn of his two-year old season when he won two good races at Long Branch. He developed slowly and much improvement can be expected from him this year.

Hartney is another speers-bred colt which will carry flatteringlished colors in the plate. The colt also was sold at a yearling and was purchased by Col. K. R. Marshall, president of the Ontario Jockey Club. Hartney started eight times as a juvenile and won two of those races as well as finishing second twice. He had the potentialities of a stake-winner but was troubled by a recurrence of "bucked shins."

So can be said of Clandeboye as he hasn't yet seen official appearance on a race track. However, he is a son of the Speers-bred mare, Blondie Fair, and is owned by Eric Crodock of Toronto.

Clandeboye is being conditioned by veteran Willie Harner. Canada's leading trainer in 1953. Thurber seldom makes a mistake and he won't send Clandeboye to the post unless he feels that the colt has a good chance in the Plate.

House of Commons Pays Tribute To Late Member Lionel Conacher

OTTAWA (CP) — A downcast Commons Thursday heard eulogy speeches of sorrow over the death of Lionel Conacher, Canada's athlete of the half-century and Liberal MP from Toronto Trinity.

The Big Train died Wednesday night after collapsing on third base during the annual softball game between parliamentarians and the parliamentary press gallery. He was 52.

The House devoted the first half hour of its sitting to tributes to Conacher.

Prime Minister St. Laurent lauded him as "a great sportsman who had become one of the most versatile athletes in Canadian history.

"He will long be remembered affectionately as 'The Big Train,'" Mr. St. Laurent said.

PROFOUNDLY SHOCKED

The prime minister said the whole House was "profoundly and painfully shocked by the death of the member-athlete.

"He was not only a popular member but a very hard-working member," Mr. St. Laurent said. "He had keen insight and a sense of fair play. . . . He has made a significant contribution to our country. He will be remembered as an outstanding Canadian."

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said he learned of Mr. Conacher's death with a sense of shock.

"His was an example of great athletic prowess and good sportsmanship."

As Ontario athletic commissioner he had made a contribution to Canadian life that "extended beyond the Ontario boundaries."

BAY FAREWELL

"All of us say farewell to a good friend and a good sport," Mr. Drew said.

CCF leader Coldwell said the House knew and respected Mr. Conacher as a good sport and as a man of independent mind.

"He exercised his right to think and act as he pleased," Mr. Coldwell said.

Mr. Coldwell said one of the tragic features of the member's death was that he was looking forward to having one of his daughters—Diana — graduate Thursday from the University of Toronto.

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, said Mr. Conacher set a good example for Canada's young people.

Wilfred (Buck) McDonald (CCF, Parry Sound-Muskoka), who used to swap bodychecks with Conacher when they were opposing defencemen in the National Hockey League expressed deep sympathy with the dead MP's family on behalf of the sports-minded people of Canada.

ASKS TITLE BOUT

NEW YORK (AP)—Pierre Langlois, French middleweight contender, Thursday posted a $2,500 forfeit cheque and asked for a title shot with middleweight champion Carl (Bobo) Olson.

Soccer Gossip

One game was played in the Eastern Ontario League last week-end. On Saturday Belleville Northern Electric travelled to Kingston to play the postponed game against Kingston Concordia. This game was originally scheduled for May 8, but was rained out. Northern Electric, by beating the Kingston squad by three goals to nothing, are now tied for second spot with Ste. Batawa, both teams having four points each although the Northern have the better goal average. Gemmell with two and Runyan were the scorers.

On Saturday three games are scheduled. The feature attraction as far as local soccer fans are concerned will be the tussle for second place between Ste. Batawa and Northern Electric which takes place at Ste. Batawa Memorial Park on No. 2 highway with the kick-off called for 3 p.m. In the other two scheduled fixtures Kingston Concordia entertain Peterborough UEW in the Limestone city, whilst in Peterborough the Merchants play host to the Kingston United squad.

The cricket field is the mecca for most of the younger generation players in the city on Thursday evenings when the Canadian Legion Bantams and the local Juveniles hold their practice in preparation for entering the Ontario playdowns. A good crowd is turning out for both categories. All places on each team are open and any young player who wishes to try out for a spot should turn out to the practice at 6.30 p.m. on Thursday evenings. The age limits are under 18 for Juvenile and under 15 for Bantams.

Two games were played this week in the Bay of Quinte league, Tuesday evening at Bain Memorial Park. RCAF defeated Trenton 5-1 in a game that lost a lot of its lustre due to the high winds of that evening. Goal scorers for the Air Force, Dolan 1, Bunyan 4, for Trenton, Van Wesson.

At Batawa Wednesday evening in a keenly contested game Batawa and Northern fought to a 1-1 tie. Carter opened the scoring from penalty kick, and McNeil equalized when Roelfstrem in the N/E goal misjudged a high ball.

This week's play for the budding soccer star. "Soccer is not a game to make you fit—you have to be fit to play it.

CATS SIGN TAMBURO

HAMILTON (CP) — Dick Tamburo, 225-pound centre from Michigan State, has been signed by Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

The 24-year-old, 6-2 player gained all-American rating in 1952 when the Spartans were the No. 1 college team in the U.S. Last year he was assistant coach at Michigan State.

This year has seen the revival of one of the best sports in the world at B.C.I. For the first time in many a long year a B.C.I. contingent of track and field enthusiasts will take part in the province-wide secondary school track and field championships being held at the Ontario Athletic Training Camp on Lake Couchiching near Orillia, Ontario, tomorrow.

The B.C.I. track and field team recently journeyed to Toronto in the Central Ontario Secondary School meet held in Pretherbrough. They compiled a total of 32 points in the meet, seven more than their nearest competitor, to head the list of 21 schools represented at the meet.

The boys who have qualified for the meet Saturday are: Barry Ray, who will be running in the 100 and 220 yard dashes both of which he won in Peterborough. He will be up against stiff competition as everyone will be out at his best when the going is tough. Glen Maracle will be running in the one mile shuttle race of all, the 440 yard dash which he won in Peterborough in the time of 52.1 seconds. If he is anywhere near this mark in Orillia he should be up top honors. Sammy Gault is entered in the two mile open race. Last Wednesday he won the B.C.I. 5 1-2 mile cross country run and also the two miles open in Peterborough Saturday. Lin Cole will be competing in the senior pole vault which he took at the C.O.S.S.A. meet. An intermediate relay team will be competing in the 880 yard relay. The team composed of Ron Graham, Gord Beeby, Bob Galway and Glen Maracle captured this race in Peterborough last Saturday by quite a big margin over the other eight teams.

The only other entry from the Bay of Quinte district is Bob Burleigh of Trenton, who broke the Intermediate high jump record in the C.O.S.S.A. meet. He cleared 5 feet, 8 inches, which was an inch better than the Senior mark.

The bus will be leaving from the John Street entrance 7:30 Saturday morning and any student wishing to come along is requested to be there on time. The round trip price is $2.25.

The best of luck is wished to all these fellows and may they bring some high honors to B.C.I. and Belleville.

Relative Unknown Will Enter Finals British Amateur Golf Tournament

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (CP)—The last four Canadians bowed out of the British Amateur golf tournament Thursday, leaving the field to three Englishmen, two Americans, a Scot, an Australian and defending champion Joe Carr of Ireland.

At least one of Saturday's finalists will be a relative unknown. Carr and Dr. Walker Cup star Bill Campbell, who rate as co-favorites, are in the same half of the draw and will meet in the semi-finals today if they get that far.

One high-ranking entry who didn't get that far is Frank Strahan, the husky two-time champion from Toledo, O., who lost his sixth-round match to Ernest Millward of England 4 and 3. Millward drew Carr as his quarter-final opponent today.

The sixth round also saw the defeat of Bobby Fleming of Victoria, B.C., the last Canadian contender W. D. Stark of England outscrambled him on a shaky back nine to win 2 and 1 after scoring a 3-and-1 victory over Gordon B. Taylor of Montreal in the fifth round.

Canada's remaining fifth-round casualties were Walt McElroy of Vancouver, nipped at the 19th hole by Dick Davies, a U.S. Navy youngster, and Jack Cox, 52-year-old loser to England's J. K. Tate. Tate reached the quarter-finals with a 2-and-1 victory over British Walker Cupper Gerald Micklem, one of the few remaining name players.

Homers Give Electrics 5-4 Win Over Bobcats

By GARRY ALEXANDER.

Back-to-back home runs by John Shoebox and Dennie Whaling in the fifth inning gave Hercie Renn's Northern Electric team a 5-4 decision over the Bobcats in a scheduled Belleville and District softball league game played at the CNRAA Field last night.

Northern went out front 2-1 going into the bottom of the fifth and their first two men went down in order. Claude Carr started the ball rolling when he laid down a fine single and mighty "Jawn" Batchelor drove one deep to left that went between the fielders for a round-tripper. Dennie Whiting promptly lined a drive down the left-field line that also went all the way to put Northern four runs up.

The Bobcats struck back for one in the seventh on an error that Bill Ray, who was running in the 100 and 220 yard dashes both of which he won in Peterborough. He will be up against stiff competition as everyone will be out at his best when the going is tough. Glen Maracle will be running in the one mile shuttle race of all, the 440 yard dash which he won in Peterborough in the time of 52.1 seconds. If he is anywhere near this mark in Orillia he should be up top honors. Sammy Gault is entered in the two mile open race. Chuck Davey Swaps Gloves For Microphone

CHICAGO (AP)—Chuck Davey, the one-time glamor boy pugilist of the TV screen, quit the ring Thursday to seek a career as radio and TV sportscaster.

The 28-year-old southpaw who holds a master's degree made the decision after taking a lop-sided drubbing Wednesday night from Vince Martinez, up and coming Italian welterweight from New Jersey.

"I'm a fellow looses a fraction of a second, he's just one of the boys," Davey told a news conference in explaining his poor showing against Martinez.

It was the fourth loss in his last five matches for Davey, welterweight who scored a meteoric rise as a professional after a highly successful career as an amateur boxer at Michigan State College.

Davey has appeared on the down grade since Kid Gavilan stopped him in a title fight in Chicago in February, 1953.

Time: 1 hour, 30 minutes.

Colorful Parade Will Herald Opening of Baseball Season

Parade Marshal Orlitt "Boiler"

Lloyd (here Mel gets Joe'd) has announced the order of parade for the Belleville Senators-Toronto Dependables baseball opening tomorrow.

First of all, says "Boiler", "we need more convertibles. Anyone having one of these aristocrats of motordom, and will not object to driving it in the parade, please get in touch with me at 5946 or 1134."

"King William" Lloyd, who declares he is not riding a white horse, not this time anyway, announces the parade will form up on the collegiate campus at one o'clock sharp, and will move off at 1.30 right "on the dot."

In the parade will be seen the Trenton RCAF Trumpet Band, the Belleville Ainsmen Boys' Band, prancing palomino from the Jack Bunk stables, Belleville Baseball Association officials, the "Bats" baseball team; Toronto Dependables baseball team, all Belleville minor baseball players in uniform, who will be admitted free to the game, floats, decorated cars, etc.

Leading the parade will be Standard Bearer Henry Abbott, followed by the Bush palomines ridden by Messrs. Jack Bush and Cliff Fox, city officials in cars, the RCAF Trumpet Band, Belleville Bats, Belleville minor players, the Belleville Ainsmen Boys' Band, Toronto Dependables baseball team, and so on and so on, finally, the Bats.

The parade will proceed down Church Street from the campus to Bridge Street westerly across Front and thence to the Exhibition Grounds.

It will proceed around the track and come to a halt in front of the new grandstand. The bands will form up there after the parade has "dismissed" and play for the opening ceremonies.

Then "The Queen", and the baseball game.

A private aircraft piloted by owner Ray Irwin of Batawa, will fly over the city and district dropping balloons and pamphlets.

Earl Walls Rates Eighth

NEW YORK (AP)—As a result of recent setbacks, middleweight Joey Giardello and featherweight Percy Bassett, both of Philadelphia, Thursday were dropped from the positions as No. 1 challengers in the monthly Ring magazine rankings of boxers.

Giardello, beaten by France's Pierre Langlois, was dropped to third place among the challengers in the middleweight division.

Bobby Castellani of Cleveland, who will meet champion Bobo Olson in a title bout at San Francisco in August, became the No. 1 man and busy Holly Mims of Washington advanced to No. 2 from the sixth spot.

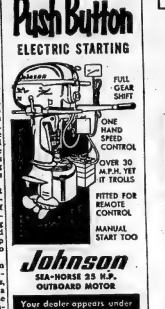
Tiberio Mitri of Italy, who recently won the European middleweight title with a sensational 2nd second knockout of former world champion Randy Turpin of England, is rated No. 3. Turpin yielded fifth place to Bobby Dawson and was dropped to ninth.

LANGLOIS IS BOUTY

Langlois, on the strength of his victory over Giardello, returned to sixth place after being dropped from the ratings last month. Ralph (Tiger) Jones was the one dropped this time, going from third place clear out of the picture after losses to Jacques Royer and Pedro Gonzales.

Bassett's defeat by lightweight Orlando Zulueta cost him the No. 1 spot in the featherweight division. He now is rated second behind Baby Ortiz of Mexico.

In the heavyweight class, Earl Walls of Edmonton was rated eighth for Rocky Marciano's title. Top challenger is Ezzard Charles, followed by Nino Valdes of Cuba, Don Cockell of England, Jimmy Bivins, Tommy Jackson and Roland Lastarza of New York and Dan Succerel of Philadelphia. Heinz Neuhaus of Germany is ninth and Tommy Harrison of Los Angeles, recently knocked out by Walls in Toronto, is 10th.



Harold Johnson of Philadelphia is listed No. 1 challenger for Archie Moore's light heavyweight title.

The bantamweight championship was listed as vacant, since Australia's Jimmy Carruthers announced his retirement after a successful defence against Chamrern Songkitrat of Thailand. Robert Cohen of France is rated No. 1 contender.

Two Espinosa of the Philippines moved from fourth to third among the flyweight challengers on the strength of his fine showing in a title bout with champion Yoshio Shirai of Japan.

Driving Tips from R. W. Bayers Director, Ontario Safety League.

HOW TO USE YOUR LIGHTS AT NIGHT

With good headlights, you can see only 200 feet ahead. You can't stop within this distance at speeds over 50 m.p.h.

- Dim your headlights as soon as those of approaching car begin to cause you discomfort. If he dims first, lower yours at once. Even if he doesn't dim his lights, keep yours low . . . don't glare back!
- Don't ever look directly at oncoming headlights. They can blind you for 3 seconds before you pass—and for 7 seconds afterward!
- Keep your eyes on the shoulder of the road, and use it as your guide when passing.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Xibliter

Even the most sophisticated can be stirred by some of the coups that may be pulled in bridge play. One of the most spectacular of the various coups' is that known as the grand coup.

A grand coup is not as difficult to understand as it is to do. It simply means a ruff of your own clinch trick to reduce your own trump surplus. Coupled with a giveaway a palooka gets goose pimples.

South was declarer at four hearts in this deal:

NORTH
♠A 3
♥A Q
♦K J 5
♣A Q 7 6 5

WEST
♠A K Q J 10
♥K 4
♦9 8 4 3
♣K 10

EAST
♠9 8 7
♥7 6 5
♦10 7 3
♣J 8 3

SOUTH
♠5 4 2
♥10 9 3 2
♦K 6
♣9 4 2

West cashed two spade tricks first and led a third spade. Look at the resources. If dummy' ruffs it may let opponents take a couple of trump tricks and the contract is surely sunk.

Of course, if opponents are permitted to take the third trick the contract may lose anyway with the loss of only one trump trick. But ruffing at once quite decidedly gives up at once.

So, declarer shifted a club and let west have a third trick. West then led a diamond, hoping east had the king. But south's king won and trump returns picked up the west trumps in two rounds.

East must be smothered out of his high card trick. So, dummy crashed two diamonds, south slu-fflng a club. On dummy last diamond, east shed a club. But south ruffed his own good trick, the ten of hearts.

A club through west let dummy take the queen and five. Each hand now has only two cards with dummy in the lead. A club must be ruffed by east, having only trumps. South overruffs and does not trump trick.

The grand coup enabled south to lead clubs through west. But its most important purpose was to reduce the number of trumps in south hand. Why? that dummy will be in the lead on the 11th trick.

When you (grand c0up) ruff your own good suit, somebody usually laughs. He is probably nothing but a pinochle player. Or worse, the only card game he knows is canasta.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The state department said Wednesday night the French freighter Wyoming is being searched by U.S. customs inspectors at Cristobal, Atlantic entrance to the Panama canal, to determine whether customs regulations have been violated — presumably by carrying arms not shown in the cargo list. The ship's manifest listed five boxes of sporting arms.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SATURDAY, MAY 29, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — An early start with astute follow-through will be the recipe for a productive day, and week follow-ing. Domestic affairs will play an important part in your life, though they may not be in broad evidence.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Be especially careful in financial and business activities during this period. Don't take things for granted, or be smug.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Your Mercury warns that there are pitfalls, unseen obstacles. Take due cognizance of each item on your agenda. Be careful not to overlook good opportunities through haste, overconfidence.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — You may have to contend with objectionable, distasteful circumstances, error through no fault of yours. Take it in stride. Be astute in handling labor. Investigate conditions thoroughly.

July 23 to August 22 (Leo) — Diplomacy, kindliness, especially with co-workers and those interested in you are important. Some personal desires may have to give place to more urgent matters. Take some time for relaxation.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Your strongest indications are in the more personal atmosphere, and you should be right-ly concerned with them. Business, banking, manufacturing need more thoughtful attention.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Planetary influences are more favorable for personal affairs than for other activities. But teaching, research, and handling groups have more chance of moving forward now. Control dispositions, desires.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Though the day may present some restrictions, there is opportunity for the wide-awake Scorpio natives. Rate your activities in accordance with possibilities, capabilities.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Be unselfish in thought and action and the day will bring you many unexpected ideas-fun, contentment. The best plan-tary period is from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.; business, finances can ad-vance.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Uncertainties may tend to frustrate, disturb clearness of thought. Be careful to avoid errors. Don't allow emotions, dis-likes to sway your better judgment and spoil chances of gain.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Promote matters you really understand; don't hopscotch around the mountain. Travel, in-vestigations, property and business undertakings could advance if pro-perly handled.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — In dealing with others bear in mind that you, too, seek favors, want success in work and other matters. Show your even bal-ance. your courteous manner and a cordial day will follow. Show patience, understanding.

YOU BORN TODAY have many fine ideas, are bright, but some-times do not practice what you preach or carry things through as well as you could. You can succeed especially well in work connecting the public, in the promotion, journalism; are often skilful with your hands; are quickly adaptable and have the ability to rise to emergencies. You can do well in politics, law. You seldom let set-backs stop you, will go on again, however quickly. Don't allow impat-ience or haste to spoil your better judgment. Birthdate: Patrick Henry, Amer. statesman, orator; G. K. Chesterton, Eng. —journalist, author.

RELIGION WAS DUMB

In the face of this terrible situation the average religion was silent for the very good reason that no one thought that religion had anything to do with the situation.

The altars were piled high with sacrifices and the markets were full of foreign goods. Did not that prove that God of Israel was pretty well satisfied with his people?

The ceremonies at the shrines were colorful and elaborate, and the temples and their high priest collections good. Did that not indicate that God was satisfied with the status quo?

The professional prophets and the priests were all singing the praises of the political administration of the land (from which they drew their support) and sanctioning the life of the land, including its wretchedness and woe.

ONE MAN STARTED IT

Against the gilt and the gold one man alone had his voice in a mighty protest. He was a humble shepherd from the little country who did not have a single friend at court. Sunday School Lesson:

Social and Economic Cancers

By ROY L. SMITH

The Old Testament prophets were an extremely unfortunate group of men. They preached in a language which had died. They preached to a nation that believed. They wrestled with problems modern men do not understand. They faced issues that have been forgotten. But worst of all they were misunderstood and misrepresented by their friends than by any other group of men who have ever lived.

GILDED AND GUILTY

The prophet Amos preached in the midst of the most difficult of circumstances. The nation to which he preached was enjoying an era of unprecedented prosperity. The customs that were being collected from the vast commerce that flowed across the borders of Israel stuffed the coffers of the king to overflowing. The rich enjoyed luxuries such as the humble people of Palestine had never known before. Elaborate estates, gorgeous homes, prosperous country houses, and gay displays—it was definitely boom time.

And there had never been a time when a poor man had less chance in the courts. The commercial business was riding roughshod over the common decencies. Widows were being plundered of their inheritances and the working people were rapidly sinking into something worse than serfdom. Not a voice of protest was being raised in any quarter!

RELIGION WAS DUMB

In the face of this terrible situation the average religion was silent for the very good reason that no one thought that religion had anything to do with the situation.

The altars were piled high with sacrifices and the markets were full of foreign goods. Did not that prove that God of Israel was pretty well satisfied with his people?

The ceremonies at the shrines were colorful and elaborate, and the temples and their high priest collections good. Did that not indicate that God was satisfied with the status quo?

The professional prophets and the priests were all singing the praises of the political administration of the land (from which they drew their support) and sanctioning the life of the land, including its wretchedness and woe.

ONE MAN STARTED IT

Against the gilt and the gold one man alone had his voice in a mighty protest. He was a humble shepherd from the little country who did not have a single friend at court. He had come to town with a few bags of wool and some sacks of figs, hoping to sell them in the bazaar and attend the services at the shrine meanwhile. But the sight of widows being robbed in the courts by judges who had been bribed, and the revelation of the callousness of the national heart, shook the country man until he could not keep silent.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for June 6: "Amos Condemns Social Injustice" II Kings 14:23-29; Amos 7—8.

At an opportune moment, when the ceremonies at the shrine were in full progress, he contrived to find a spot near the altar which blazed high with the burning sacrifices, and there he warned the nation against the social and economic cancers that were eating out its vitals. For the first time in the history of religion, a man raised his voice in the name of religion and in condemnation of social injustice.

Antiquarians who are interested in "first" things can well afford to go back and study the sermons of Amos at Bethel—the first linking of good religion with good citizenship in the history of religious thought.

Hundred Houses May Be Erected For Army Men

PICTON — Though definite announcement has not yet been made, it is learned that plans are being made to erect one hundred houses in Picton. Built by Central Mortgage, the houses will be located in town and not in the vicinity of the army camp. Primary use of the houses will be for army personnel, but should condition permit the houses not needed for those in the services, they will be available to civilians. With a growing population, there is need of additional houses here, and future developments are swalled with interest.

New Brigade Commander Good Soldier, Fine Sportsman

By GRAHAM TROTTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON (CP)—You can't be an efficient soldier if you're not fit and well trained. That's the philosophy of Brigadier Frederick A. Cliff, 45-year-old new commander of the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade in Korea.

A practical, experienced soldier and ardent sportsman, Brig. Cliff inspires efficiency and fitness in troops under his command. He does it by example.

"I like to do the things I require my soldiers to do," is the way the soft-spoken but deliberate career soldier puts it.

It is not unusual to see the clean-cut, strapping officer on a shooting range with his men, running foot races, keeping up with action by foot on track or training ground and generally in the thick of everything.

TRAINING SAVES LIVES

"I'm a hard trainer," the brigadier said in an interview, "but I've found that thorough training saves lives in battle."

He will become the fourth commander of the Canadian brigade in Korea since it went into action there in 1950. He is scheduled to take over the command in mid-June from Brig. Jean Victor Allard of Montreal.

Three infantry battalions, core of the brigade, were trained by Brig. Cliff at the army's big Wainwright camp, 135 miles southeast of Edmonton. The commander set the training pace. Throughout the first month alone, his day started at 5:30 a.m., and ended at midnight or later.

The former Saskatchewan school principal lost his heart to the army as a youngster when he joined a cadet corps in his hometown of Melfort, Sask. His father was a general merchant and farmer there.

While studying at the University of Saskatchewan and later teaching school, he spent 16 years in the reserve army before enlisting for active duty at the outbreak of the Second World War in 1939.

He doesn't allow his 2nd Canadian Infantry Brigade headquarters staff to get rusty and complacent at desks. Two days a week they engage in rifle and weapons practice.

Clerks, drivers and officers also join Brig. Cliff in brisk daily games of badminton, tennis, baseball, softball and other sports.

MARKSMANSHIP ESSENTIAL

In training, he stresses rifle shooting, believing that a man isn't a good soldier unless he can shoot well.

"A soldier's training must have variety and interest," he said. "It must not be allowed to become monotonous. It must be a continual challenge to a man's endurance, mind and interest."

This is where sport helps. Besides lifting wholesome variety and promoting unit spirit, it "produces fitness and alertness."

Brig. Cliff, who led the South Saskatchewan Regiment into Normandy and was severely wounded by a sniper's bullet while later commanding the 6th Infantry Brigade in northwest Europe, is outspoken in his opinion that Canadians make the best soldiers.

"Canadians are the best material in the world to start with, but then you've got to train them well" he said. "They are very adaptable and learn quickly. We are fortunate in our geography and weather, which tends to make for rugged individuals and provides a pioneering instinct."

WIDE EXPERIENCE

Besides training most of the troops now in Korea he has been director of military training at army headquarters in Ottawa and has attended the Canadian Army Staff College, Kingston, Ont., and the Imperial Defence College in England.

Brig. Cliff said his biggest jobs in Korea will be to keep the troops fit for battle and to maintain morale.

He doesn't anticipate any trouble in either task. He believes manpower material the army has received in recent years is "absolutely first-class and a good cross-section of the average Canadian."

"He constantly strives to keep his men well-informed on all aspects of training," a staff officer said. "If a man is out in the rain or cold he wants him to know why he has to do this. After he explains his concepts he has a great knack of then persuading men to his way of thinking."

POPULAR OFFICER

Brig. Cliff is popular with men and officers. He is credited with a phenomenal memory for first names of many of his men. He also gets to know all his staff intimately.

He likes to study and carries a brief case home every night. His favorite relaxation is reading, particularly biographies and informative subjects. He's a twice-a-week bridge player and is adding golf to his wide range of sports.

At home with his wife, two sons and a daughter he dons mufti and tries to "get out of character" for a little while.

A fourth-generation Canadian, he is a descendant of English, Scottish and Irish pioneers.

Brig. Cliff spreads 171 pounds over a muscular five-feet, 10-inch build. His receding hair is streaked with grey and he sports a trim military moustache.

900 Delegates Will Attend Church Congress

TORONTO (CP)—A congress of the Presbyterian Church in Canada will begin here this week-end, preceding its 80th general assembly of the church, which will open Wednesday.

Some 900 delegates representing the 180,000 members of the church will attend the congress.

General chairman will be Rev. Finlay G. Stewart of Kitchener.

A new moderator will be elected to succeed Righ. Rev. W. A. Cameron, whose term of office expires. Among those nominated is Mr. Stewart.

Besides hearing reports and conducting regular business of the church, the assembly will make an appointment to the chair of New Testament at the Presbyterian College, Montreal.

Rev. David Gowdy, minister of Central church, Galt, Ont., and Rev. James Barr of Edinburgh, who has lectured at the college for a year, have been nominated.

Indians Likely Will Be Given Drinking Rights

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario cabinet Thursday passed an order-in-council requesting the federal government to give the province's 34,000 Indians equal drinking rights effective July 1.

Provincial government officials said federal authorities are expected to grant the request, thus placing Ontario's Indians on the same footing as those in British Columbia, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland.

The right of Indians to drink was recommended to the last session of the Ontario legislature by the select committee on Indian affairs. Committee members said there was no medical evidence to suggest that Indians are less capable of using alcohol properly than other races.

wasn't good enough."

Taylor said the Canadians leave today for St. Andrews where the Commonwealth matches run June 1-4. Practice games for the Canadians are scheduled to be held over the Royal and Ancient Course Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

"That course takes a bit of knowing," said Taylor. "There are bunkers in the middle of the fairways and things like that. It isn't a course where you can spot the trouble just by looking from tee to green."

NON-STRIKING TERMS

EDMONTON (CP)—An official of the Alberta Hotel Association employees in 13 Edmonton hotels must begin work Monday with the "understanding that there is no agreement with (their) union and that they are not union members." About 500 beer waiters and service workers would be affected. Another 200 now are striking in 10 of the 23 hotels in the Edmonton area.

POLIO VACCINE

OTTAWA (CP)—The question of a new poliomyelitis vaccine is being discussed here by provincial health officials, Health Minister Martin said Thursday. He told the Commons that the new vaccine, being tested in the United States, is under discussion by the Dominion Council of Health, made up of the 10 provincial deputy health ministers, now meeting with federal officials.

Canada Approves Southeast Asia Pact in Principle

But Makes No Commitment Now to Join Such an Alliance

OTTAWA (CP) — The government believes in the principle of a military pact for Southeast Asia but will make no military commitment now to join such an alliance.

External Affairs Minister Pearson told the Commons Friday that Canada has no commitments to maintain world security other than those implicit in her membership in the United Nations and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. That included Indo-China.

He said that, desirable as it may be to have a Southeast Asia pact similar to NATO, Canada is not a party to any such plan and would not enter one or any similar additional commitment without consulting Parliament.

Mr. Pearson, recently returned from an Asian conference on Korea and Indo-China, also said:

"We cannot support the principle of collective security in one part of the world and reject it in another."

This brought from John Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative Opposition's foreign affairs critic, the declaration that Mr. Pearson has thus given to the commitment of Canada in its world responsibilities a new dimension "which has ever gone before."

Later, Opposition Leader Drew said Mr. Pearson had carried the government "further into acceptance of responsibilities than it has gone at any time before."

PEARSON REPLIES

Before the end of the one-day debate arising out of Mr. Pearson's report to the commons on the Geneva conference, the minister replied briefly to the declarations of Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Drew.

"I would not like it to be understood that in using those words I have added any commitment of any kind to anything the government has previously undertaken," he said. "I am talking about specific commitments on the part of this government—for action.

"What I had in mind was that we cannot accept the principle of collective security in relation to the Atlantic area and then deny its validity in regard to any other part of the world.

"But as I see it, that of course is not necessarily the same thing as saying that, having accepted specific commitments in NATO, we should accept similar commitments over the whole area of other countries of the world."

Earlier, Mr. Pearson said: "... While it is true that Canada is threatened by Communist aggression anywhere, it is threatened everywhere, it is also true that Canada cannot be expected to accept reciprocal defence commitments in every part of the world where reciprocal arrangements may be advisable."

SOLUTION STILL POSSIBLE

There is still hope, Mr. Pearson said, that solutions will be reached of the problems in Korea and Indo-China. It would be a mistake to break off the Geneva negotiations as long as there was any chance of some possibility of agreement. If the conference failed, it should not be terminated but merely suspended with the hope it might be reconvened after several months. Renewal of the Korean war would be much less likely after Geneva.

Mr. Pearson's report on Geneva and his criticism of the Communist bloc for "baseless allegations" and "abusive propaganda" was heard by packed galleries, including Russian diplomats.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Canada should give notice that it will join any Southeast Asia pact if the Geneva talks on Indo-China fail.

"Indo-China may be the turning point in our lives," he said. "What happened at Geneva might bring Britain and other Commonwealth countries closer to the U.S.

Solon Low Says Stenographers Better Rulers

OTTAWA (CP)—Solon Low, Social Credit leader, says the world situation has reached the point that statesmen should go fishing and let the office staffs take over.

Speaking in a Commons external affairs debate Friday, Mr. Low said the world situation is amazing and the way it has fallen apart suggests there is a lack of statesmanship and true diplomacy in world affairs.

He said anyone could be persuaded in view of the situation might not be improved by letting the office staffs in the world's chancelleries take over.

"The stenographers, I'm sure, would do a better job," Mr. Low said.

Hillary Carried Down Mountain, Has Pneumonia

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Sir Edmund Hillary, conqueror of Mount Everest, Friday was carried 14,000 feet down the slopes of the Himalayas in a stretcher on the eve of the first anniversary of his victory over the world's highest mountain.

Reports reaching here said Hillary, who contracted pneumonia at 22,000 feet up the eastern Himalays while leading a New Zealand mountain-climbing expedition, now will be able to receive expert medical aid.

Hillary contracted pneumonia while leading a reckless mission to aid James McFarlane, another member of his expedition, who suffered a broken leg when he fell down a glacier two days earlier.

McFarlane is en route to India from Nepal for treatment. In addition to his leg injury, he is suffering from frostbite.

The Himan expedition headed by Hillary is expected to return to India ahead of schedule. The casualties have broken their plans to reconnoiter the eastern Himalaya's Barun glacier.

Former Napanee Man Found Dead In Freight Car

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—A man found crushed to death in a railroad freight car has been identified as a Canadian-born fugitive from the Napanee, Ont., Mental Hospital.

Noah M. Wheeler, a former resident of Napanee, Ont., was identified Friday through fingerprints, state police said. His body was found Sunday by a brakeman switching cars in the New York Central yards at Menands.

Police said the man apparently had climbed aboard the train, en route from Buffalo, and was killed when the cargo of steel rails fell.

Police said the man had died May 1 from the hospital.

Twice Expelled From High School Father of Two Wins Scholarship

VANCOUVER (CP)—A 36-year-old father of two children who was twice expelled from high school has won a high school scholarship for top marks in political science at the University of British Columbia.

Douglas Allan Mitchell Friday was named winner of the $250 Vancouver Province scholarship in competition at the end of study at the university.

He is a third-year honors student in political science and psychology.

Mr. Mitchell said he was surprised at winning the scholarship.

"I didn't feel as if I'd jumped any fence in my exams," he said. "And my high school record wasn't very good—erratic in fact. They expelled me twice for minor radio callsigns, although I did win a couple of essay contests."

Born in Cleveland, Ohio, he came to Canada with his parents as a boy and completed school at Owen Sound, Ont. He was married at St. Catharines, shortly before enrolling at UBC three years ago.

EASTERN ONTARIO DEVELOPMENT PARLEY PLANNED

Three-Day Conference To Be Held in Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—The economic problems of eastern Ontario will be placed before Premier Frost and members of his provincial government at a three-day conference which starts here Monday.

The Eastern Ontario Development Conference, first of its kind ever held in the province, is sponsored by the Ontario government and an association of boards of trade in 42 eastern Ontario municipalities.

It was called at the suggestion of the government, and Premier Frost and five of his cabinet ministers are expected to attend.

Major topics of discussion will be the need for attracting new industries to the area, and the problems of relocating St. Lawrence river communities to be flooded out by the seaway and power project.

HIT BY SLUMP

Towns throughout eastern Ontario have been affected by the slump in the agricultural economy. woollen mills have been closed at Perth, Renfrew, Carleton Place, Almonte and Merrickville.

One result of the conference may be the appointment of a permanent association to represent Eastern Ontario in such fields as planning and development, municipal affairs, highways, education, farming and forestry.

Premier Frost will speak at a dinner Tuesday. At the close of the conference, M. Grattan O'Leary, associate editor of the Ottawa Journal, will present a brief summing up major issues raised by eastern Ontario business and civic spokesmen.

Seek to Settle Oshawa Strike

OSHAWA (CP)—City and union officials were meeting with a federal today in an effort to stop the strike of 100 men that has tied up bus service in this city of 45,000 residents.

Mayor John Naylor had arranged for the city's traffic and transportation committee to meet today to hear the Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees Union AFL-TLC to try to work out some settlement.

The 100 men — bus drivers, freight handlers, bus and electrical mechanics—struck Wednesday to back up demands in their new contract. They want higher fringe benefits and the inclusion of 18 union members in arbitration proceedings.

Wages are not being argued. Top salaries range up to $1.52 an hour.

Guatemala Communist Party Head Relieved of His Post

GUATEMALA (AP) — Jose Manuel Fortuny, head of Guatemala's Communist party and close adviser to President Jacobo Arbenz, has been relieved of his post, party headquarters announced today.

The announcement said Fortuny was relieved as secretary - general because of his health, but observers speculated that "it might indicate a split inside the party or that Arbenz was forced to remove him to remove the stigma of communism from the government.

Fortuny was rated high man in this Central American republic's Communist party. He was also a member of the important National Democratic Front, which some observers believe helps shape government policy.

His removal as party leader automatically removes him from the decision-making post.

Another announcement today said Defense Minister Jose Angel Sanchez has decided not to visit the United States as planned, until the present situation eases.

The move came as tension continued to grip the country in the wake of American accusations that Guatemala has received arms from behind the Iron Curtain, and reports from Washington that the U.S. is thinking of recalling its air and military missions to Guatemala.

In neighboring Panama, the office of the U.S. governor of the Canal Zone announced Friday night that the French line freighter Wyoming has been cleared for transit through the waterway after a search for any large contraband arms. It is bound for Vancouver after stops at several Pacific ports.

The announcement said the ship was carrying no undeclared arms and that the contraband in its manifest.

The cargo included three boxes of sporting arms and one box of Browning automatic rifles consigned to El Salvador; and three boxes of sporting arms for Guatemala.

Menzies' Coalition Appears To Have Won Australian Vote

SYDNEY, Australia (CP) — The Associated Press said tonight the Liberal - Country party coalition government of Prime Minister Robert Menzies appeared to have won a narrow victory , in Australia's general election.

With counting of ballots barely past the half-way mark, the AP said the government was likely to win 36 seats to 28 for Labor opposition. Eight seats were doubtful.

Menzies, Opposition leader Herbert V. Evatt and External Affairs Minister Richard Casey won personal victories.

Early returns had given the Socialist-minded Labor party its expected advantage in big city areas, influenced by Labor and Country party candidates were doing well in rural areas.

W. Anderson, president of the Liberal party, accused Evatt of deporters have said that "we shall continue in office."

Evatt, who won his suburban Sydney seat by a bare 243 votes in 1951, conceded to Vincent English, his opponent by a margin of nearly 4,000 in the final returns for the night, with 6,000 ballots still to be counted.

Menzies won his Kooyong seat in Victoria by a 5,000 majority.

Recently the government has held a margin of 68 to 53 in full voting seats in the House of Representatives. It had 74 to 47 when it swept Labor from office in 1949 by the most much of its wins in the 1951 elections.

Today's voting, which was compulsory for the electorate of 5,- 100,000 persons, was for 123 members of the House. The contest was among 291 candidates for 116 seats. Ballots for 7 seats remained unopposed.

Labor Leader Holden, leader of the small Country party which sided with Menzies, made headlines on the voting when he said he was hurt in a car crash. He suffered concussion and injuries to his head, face and back and legs when his car skidded and turned over on the Hume highway, 40 miles from Melbourne, on election day.

McCarthy Defies Brownell Over Right to Information

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — A headon constitutional conflict between Senator McCarthy and Attorney-General Brownell and the Eisenhower administration hung heavily today over the Senate Republican - led Wisconsin senator's dispute with the army.

The Senate probe Friday brought forth a roaring battle over the senator's contention that he is not "under oath" will stop him from seeking information from government employees about "corruption, graft or treason."

McCarthy took this stand after a statement by Attorney - General Herbert Brownell that the executive branch of the government has a "constitutional duty" for protecting American security."

Brownell, with President Eisenhower's approval, gave his reply to McCarthy's earlier call on the 2,000,000-member executive branch executive department to give him secret information despite presidential orders to the contrary.

"The obligations and duties of executive officials entail legislative privileges of the branches of government are entitled to the same respect.

"That (executive) responsibility can't be usurped by any individual who may seek to set himself above the laws of our land or to overthrow the constitutional system of the United States to federal employees of the executive branch of the government."

SENATOR FIRES BACK

Firing in all directions, McCarthy replied:

Eisenhower is: "an extremely busy man and I'm getting bad advice."

He stands on his position that federal employees are "duty-bound to give me information even though the President of the United States has issued a secret to protect himself."

The issues spewed out of the inquiry into army charges that McCarthy and his aides improperly sought favored army treatment for Pte. G. David Schine, a former committee staff member and consultant and the McCarthy camp's contention that top army officials ignored Schine's draft status in an effort to sidetrack an investigation into alleged Communist in army installations.

Roy M. Cohn, McCarthy's chief counsel, got in some under-oath digs Friday at these charges, but the sub-committee quit until Monday on cross-examination of him by special counsel Ray H. Jenkins still unfinished.

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Abbott Friday gave the Commons notice of legislation to authorize the CNR to make capital expenditures of $209,168,000 in 1954.

It is the customary bill brought in each year to empower the government to lend money to the national line, now in the midst of a big equipment-buying program.

BLASTS ROCK LENNOXVILLE, DAMAGE IS HIGH

Print Shop Is Wrecked, Two Fires Started

LENNOXVILLE, Que. (CP)—A mysterious series of explosions Friday night ripped apart the Lennoxville Printing Works and touched off fires in two other buildings in this eastern townships centre. Damage was put at $200,000.

Six persons were injured by flying glass, none of them seriously, but firemen said it was incredible that no one was killed. There was no one in the building when it blew up.

The initial blast, felt in Compton seven miles away, shattered windows in houses within a half-mile radius and sent stained-glass windows valued at $5,000 crashing into street at the United Church opposite the stricken buildings.

REDUCED TO RUBBLE

The two-storey wooden - frame building which housed the job printing firm was reduced to rubble by the explosion and the fire which followed it. Believed started by benzene stored at the rear for cleaning purposes, the blast hurled one wall of the building 40 feet and set fire to two cars parked in the yard.

When the fuel tanks in the cars blew, the explosion was heard in two brick buildings on Queen St. standing in front of the printing shop.

Fire in a three-storey premises combined as a butcher's store and six apartments was quickly brought under control. Most flames raged unchecked through the two-storey Royal Bank building next door for several hours.

The blast also damaged the town's automatic telephone exchange in the bank building and switchboard, with Sherbrooke three miles away, were cut off.

Greek Settles For U.S. Vessels He Got Illegally

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stavros Niarchos, the Greek shipping tycoon with headquarters in London, reached a tentative out-of-court settlement with the United States government Friday for the score of vessels he illegally obtained from the U.S. surplus fleet in the Second World War.

The settlement involved, among other things, an agreement to have Niarchos sell back to the United States, along with a $4,000,000 indemnity payment.

Deny Swede Airline Given Polar Hop O.K.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. civil aeronautics board decided Friday night that it has no objection to a plan given Scandinavian Airlines System to operate a trans-polar route to the United States.

The denial followed an SAS press release saying that the U.S. government had granted permission for the route.

LOVE TO TALK

VANCOUVER (CP) — Women want a sympathetic listener rather than an exchange of gossip when they attend their hairdresser. At least, that was the theme of prize-winning letters from hair stylists at a meeting of the B.C. Hairdressers' Association.

His Foes Watch Every Turn of Worm While Geiger Counters Betray Him

WINNIPEG (CP) — Detectives with Geiger counters are stripping dollars' damage annually to Canada's crops—is to tag the insect with a minute piece of radio-active cobalt.

The Geiger counter can detect where the worm is, even through five inches of soil," Dean Spinks said. "We can follow his activities under various conditions of moisture and temperature."

Every time a worm turns in experiments at the University of Saskatchewan, the scientists know about it.

Dr. J. W. T. Spinks, head of the university's chemistry department and dean of graduate studies, said in an interview Friday the first step is to make the insects radio-active.

Tanks And Troops Smash Rebel Ring Encircling Yen Phu

New U.S. Planes Will Aid French in Red River Delta

HANOI (AP) — The French announced today that French Union armour and infantry under heavy air cover have smashed through a Vietminh ring encircling the beleaguered post of Yen Phu, 30 miles south of Hanoi.

The command said tanks and armored units from Nam Dinh and the Phu Ly sector have driven through at Yen Phu and reinforced it with fresh troops and supplies.

Yen Phu — defended by one company of Algerian troops — had been under rebel fire for the last 18 days.

The rebels had kept the little outpost in the vital Red river delta area under steady mortar bombardment while Vietminh "mole squads" burrowed to within 300 feet of the barbed-wire barriers. Some 12 Vietminh battalions took part in the attack.

Following the tactics they used to take Dien Bien Phu, the rebels apparently aimed to pound the outpost until it was sufficiently softened up for a frontal assault.

REBELS ENCIRCLE POSTS

News of the French breakthrough came after a day of scattered action in which the rebels knocked off one Viet Namese-manned defence post, fired on another with mortars and encircled two others in the same sector.

The French have been supplying the embattled posts by air.

The French Union cause was bolstered somewhat Friday by the arrival in Indo-China of fighter planes and fresh troop reinforcements. Gen. Rene Cogny, French commander in north Indo-China, said the reinforcements made him "look to the future with optimism."

The 17 fighter planes—Grumman Seacats—arrived in Saigon aboard the American light aircraft carrier Windham Bay. The planes, with wings spread 40 feet six inches, can take off high speed on short runways, a valuable asset in Indo-China.

Russia Protests Activities Of Group in Britain

LONDON (Reuters) — Russia Friday night demanded the British government withdraw the licences to Britain of the NTS, the Soviet émigré organization led by George Okolovich, which is alleged to be a Russian cyanide pistol plot.

Moscow radio announced that Ambassador Jacob Malik called at the foreign office Friday to tell the British government a sharply worded note formally protesting the activities of the "Russian Fascist Party of Solidarists."

It asserted that the members of this organization were "traitors and war criminals" and had been "permitted by Britain to propagate diversionary and terrorist ideas."

The note said members of the group were being dispatched to the Soviet Union to carry out "espionage, diversionist and terrorist activities."

Britain is expected to reject the Soviet demands because the Soviet authorities can present evidence that the activities of the organization are illegal.

Nikolai Khokhlov, the Soviet secret service agent who surrendered recently to U.S. authorities in West Germany, told reporters he had been ordered to assassinate Okolovich, one of the leading NTS officials in West Germany.

Tornado Upsets Excursion Boat, Four Drowned

BAGNELL, Mo. (AP) — A tornado upset an excursion boat on the Lake of the Ozarks Friday and at least four persons—and probably more—drowned.

Six passengers and the pilot were rescued. Two of the passengers said the pilot saved their lives. Owners of the capsized craft said it is routine to send another boat to check on its excursions when a storm blows up, and that precaution put a rescue boat alongside the stricken craft quickly.

Three bodies were recovered within an hour. Darkness fell before a fourth person known to have been drowned could be recovered. Two others were reported missing, but it was not definitely known if they were aboard.

Immigrant Boy Drowns in Pit

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., (CP)— Rescue attempts by two 13-year-old boys failed Friday when Patrick Cuntino, fell from a raft into a sandpit and drowned.

The boy, an Italian immigrant, was on the raft with Leslin Maracco, 12, when he fell into the water. Maracco tried to keep the boy's head above water but failed.

Robert Rees, 12, saw the boys struggle into the water and couldn't get another raft to help them. He ran to Harold Dayes, nearby, for help.

Dayes plunged into the water, followed by a Stamford policeman and two Niagara Falls firemen.

Artificial respiration was applied for 1½ hours, but failed to revive the boy.

Just a few minutes before an organized search party was to set out to scour the fields and wooded country between Madoc and Moira Lake, an eight-year-old Madoc boy, missing since the evening before was found early Friday afternoon.

Terence Bruyns was found hiding under a partially built boat at the home of his uncle, Mr. Bruyns, who had suffered no ill effects and said he had stayed under the boat throughout the night.

"I can't understand why the boy did such a thing," Mr. Ed Phinn said a short time after the boy had been found.

Police said that the unknown motorist had apparently been attempting to pass a parked motor vehicle crashed into the mailbox. Blue paint from the car was found on the mail box.

The father of a four-year-old boy in the Bayview Heights area will have reason to frown on his son's more frightening activities in the future. Friday evening a district motorist was driving in the new housing area when a small boy struck his car with a rock causing about $20 damage. The boy's father said he would pay for the damage.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Ames Prepare To Observe Diamond Wedding

TRENTON, (Special.) — A typical Canadian farmhouse in the rolling country east of Codrington will be the scene of a diamond anniversary celebration on Sunday when Mr. and Mrs. John Ames, lifelong residents of the Orser neighborhood, mark 60 years of happy married life. Three grandsons have planned an appropriate party for such an auspicious occasion.

The Ames farm is located across the road from Hon. W. A. Goodfellow's farm in Brighton township. In fact part of Mr. Goodfellow's 200 acres belonged to the Ames until a few years ago. The Ames and Goodfellows have always been the closest neighbors. Mr. and Mrs. Ames were married before the Anglican Minister was born. They remember him as a babe in arms and watched him grow up. In their opinion there is no finer gentleman. He officiated at the funeral on Monday before leaving for his office in Toronto.

Already Mr. and Mrs. Ames have received countless cards and messages of congratulations. One message a certificate of congratulations from Queen Elizabeth. Arthur Welsh, the provincial secretary, reads: "May I extend to you on behalf of the government of the province of Ontario heartiest congratulations on your sixtieth wedding anniversary and the wish that you may both enjoy further anniversaries of good health and happiness." Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent sent his felicitations. Another letter of congratulations came from Dr. J. W. Robertson, M.P., a cable gram from Queen Elizabeth is expected.

MARRIED AT HILTON

Mattie McColl, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McColl, and John Ames, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Ames, were united in marriage on Wednesday, May 30, in 1894. The ceremony was performed at the Methodist parsonage at Hilton with the Rev. Mr. Cruickshanks officiating. Bessie McColl and Alden Robinson both of them still living, stood up for the couple.

The story of the Ames union started with a horse and buggy journey to Bonneyneuk. Bonneyneuk is a place where the newly-weds spent their honeymoon. Here in the ensuing chapters fit the life of a typical hard-working Canadian farm couple.

Tragedy hit hard once when their only daughter died at the result of burns suffered in a fire that destroyed the stove. Her husband had passed away earlier and she left three young sons. Her parents became foster parents to the boys. Two of them have since married and are out on their own while one still lives at home with them.

The Ames have no fear for the future. They have never seen television and apparently could not care less. Mrs. Ames likes sewing and fancy work. Mr. Ames favors his pipe and the radio.

Last night the Ames' began to get excited about receiving their relatives and many friends. And who do you think they credit for making the arrangements. You guessed it. Their three grandsons, Jack, Donald and Harold Cameron.

WO John Silver Retires From Air Force Service

TRENTON — Friday night Station Warrant Officer John Silver, MBE, CD, retired from the RCAF, was entertained by friends from all Air Force commands. Earlier in the day he had been officially discharged by Air Vice Marshal J. G. Kerr, Air Officer Commanding Training Command Headquarters at Trenton.

During the years he served at the Trenton airbase he became known as "Mr. Air Force." His closest associates knew him as "the greatest humanitarian in the Air Force." He was always ready to help out some bewildered recruit.

A man who has drilled thousands of airmen completed his career yesterday when he supervised the annual parade of the Trenton Air Cadet Squadron.

Mr. Silver will be remembered for his enthusiasm in staging bowling shows in the district. His capable handling of the announcing duties added a professional touch to the bouts.

Without Mr. Silver the Trenton Air Station will not seem the same. However he intends staying close by, and plans regular visits to the place and people time taught him to cherish.

W.O. Silver came to Canada from England at the turn of the century. His parents were pioneer settlers of Fort William.

The Average Man

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

We are so prone to admire persons of prominence that we are likely to underrate average men. When a gathering is reported in the press, the account often says, 'Among those present were' and follows this by a list of well-known names. Their presence is assumed to give the occasion importance.

We may overlook the "little fellow" as if he did not count, we may not notice that boy on the back seat "who is all ears and eyes," but who knows what that boy may do with what he hears? A big impression on the little fellow may be worth far more than a little impression on the big fellow.

Reviewers have pointed out that Shakespeare seemed to ignore the common man in his plays. His scenes are people with kings and courtiers, with queens and lovely ladies-in-wait-

Will Address Rally

The Rev. Ronald Ward, M.A., B.D., Ph.D., will be the speaker at an interdenominational rally in Bridge Street United Church, Sunday, at 8.30 p.m.

Dr. Ward is professor of New Testament at Wycliffe College and is not only an eminent biblical scholar but is widely acknowledged as one of the foremost preachers in the Canadian Church and a lecturer greatly in demand.

Before coming to Canada, Dr. Ward, who holds the degrees of Bachelor of Divinity, Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy, all from the University of London, England, was a professor at the London College of Divinity.

He came to Canada in 1951 and was on the staff of Upper Canada College before coming to Wycliffe.

Professor Ward's address will be timely—in commemoration of the British and Foreign Bible Society's 150th anniversary.

Stories of Famous Hymns

By HORACE S. POWELL

GOD BE WITH YOU TILL WE MEET AGAIN

God be with you till we meet again!
By His counsels guide, uphold you,
With His sheep securely fold you;
God be with you till we meet again!

God be with you till we meet again!
'Neath His wings securely hide you,
Daily manna still provide you;
God be with you till we meet again!

God be with you till we meet again!
When life's perils thick confound you,
Put His arms unfailing 'round you;
God be with you till we meet again!

God be with you till we meet again!
Keep love's banner floating o'er you,
Smite death's threatening wave before you;
God be with you till we meet again!

Till we meet! Till we meet!
Till we meet at Jesus' feet;
Till we meet! Till we meet!
God be with you till we meet again!

"GOD BE WITH YOU TILL WE MEET AGAIN"

Nearly everyone bids friends "goodbye" dozens of times every day, but many are unaware that the adieu is an abbreviation of a really means "God be with you."

Dr. Jeremiah Eames Rankin, a Congregational minister of Washington, D.C., was studying the etymology of "goodbye" one day in 1880.

"Why not make a hymn to emphasize the true significance of this expression of farewell?", he thought. Acting on this, he began to write and the popular hymn, "God Be with You Till We Meet Again", was born. William Gould Tomer, a school teacher and a close friend of the author, composed the music for the new verses which has become as precious as their message.

When Tomer finished his tune, Dr. Rankin handed words and music to his church organist and the hymn was played and sung for the first time as a Sunday night church service. The church members accepted it enthusiastically. It was just as popular at Methodist camp meetings held a little later at Ocean Grove, N.J. Then, Sun- day Schools and young people's religious groups took it up and soon it was echoing around the world as the favorite benediction hymn of Christendom.

The Christian Endeavor movement, born in a Congregational prayer service at Williston, Maine about the time that Dr. Rankin was writing his hymn, was largely responsible for carrying the new song into universal favor. Today, Christian Endeavorers from pole to pole still sing "God Be With You" as their official parting hymn, at weekly prayer-meetings and at conventions.

MANY ARENAS ARE TRUE MEMORIALS

The Gravenhurst branch of the Canadian Legion has gone on record as opposing the use of the word "memorial" on any part of the community centre there. The Gravenhurst Banner quotes Bert Hawker, secretary-treasurer of the branch, as declaring that the word "memorial" has been misused all over the country.

This leads the Banner first to comment that the only reason the word "memorial" has been used on arenas is "because some joker slipped a clause into the legislation, allowing an extra $5,000 for a community centre, if it was a 'memorial.' The net result has been to spread artificial ice plants across the province under the pretence that they are 'memorials.' It is the most widespread example of hypocrisy that has been seen in years, but the province encouraged it and branches of the Canadian Legion co-operated, often unwillingly."

In some cases this scathing criticism is almost certainly justified. But in many others it is something less than fair.

All of us will agree with the Hanover Post that to pretend to honor our war dead for the sole purpose of obtaining an additional $5,000 from the coffers of the province is despicable hypocrisy.

But the truth is that the first memorial arenas were not so named to obtain this grant from the province. On the other hand, the provincial government offered the additional grant as the result of widespread requests from groups of citizens which, by enterprise and hard work, had succeeded in raising large sums of monies for the erection of community centres and arenas as memorials to the war dead. Perhaps provincial authorities made a mistake in offering additional cash for "memorials." But it was certainly an honest mistake.

As for many branches of the Canadian Legion co-operating in the erection of memorial arenas and community centres, that is true. We do not believe that is to their discredit. The editor of the Hanover Post—who is a woman—may think that arenas are not fitting memorials to the war dead. She, and others who share her opinion, are entitled to it. But the members of the Canadian Legion are also entitled to their opinion—and many of them made it perfectly clear that they thought their fallen comrades would have considered such community centres the best possible type of memorial. Legion branches may have co-operated unwillingly in the designation of arenas as memorials—but in many other centres Legion members and other veterans took the lead in the campaign to raise funds for such buildings. In many cases, too, they gave generously not only of their money but of their time, laboring in the evenings, at week-ends and on holidays on the actual construction work, in order to bring the cost down to a point where it was in line with the donations received. The job was made by the province, in many instances, enabled these hard-working volunteers to finish their projects.

No, such a "memorial community centre" is a landmark to hypocrisy.

GOOD CITIZEN PENALIZED

The Peterborough Examiner is concerned about the plight of a Woodstock man whose car was commandeered by police. Ordered to follow another automobile he did so—at 101 miles an hour. He was blinded by dust, wrecked his car and is $1,300 poorer. The Attorney-General of Ontario says that the police are under no obligation to pay.

It is desirable that every citizen should give the police any help they need, when they are chasing a criminal," says the Examiner, "but it is hardly right to expect them to replace his ruined property, without any recourse at all if the outcome is serious."

This is true. The Crown ought to accept this responsibility. The citizen should co-operate with the police, but co-operation should be a two-way street.

Incidentally, if the Crown persists in refusing to recompense citizens who suffer loss in this manner, it would not be difficult for a quick-witted driver to devise a method of reducing the risk. The Woodstock man was in duty bound to follow the car, as ordered. But we very much doubt whether any person can discover a clause in the law which required him to drive 90 miles an hour, even if instructed to do so by the policeman. If he had firmly declined to break the speed limit his car would not have been wrecked.

But, of course, if citizens whose cars are commandeered by policemen followed this policy of not exceeding fifty miles per hour, fugitives would run little risk of being overtaken. That is the difficulty about citizens adopting a policy of non-co-operation with the Crown. They are merely harming their own best interests, which require that law-breakers be caught and punished. For the Crown and the citizenry are really identical—a fact which the car-driver who dashes off at 90 miles an hour at a policeman's command is recognizing, but which the Crown is ignoring when it refuses to compensate the citizen for loss.

UNIVERSAL BEAUTY

Beauty wanders here and there,
Scattering her treasure rare,
Finding room in hidden place
To enrich with tender grace.
Hill and valley, field and lane
Hear the rustling of her train.

Artists paint her now and then.
Sometimes lines which poets pen
Carry something of her voice,
That the wide world may rejoice.
But her magic is revealed
By the daisy in the field.

Now she lingers by a tree,
Lights a vessel far at sea,
Finds a hillside, pool at noon
Shimmering on a lake in June,
Spills her lovely tears at dawn
Just to glorify a lawn.

Never place so dim and far
But above it shines a star.
Never a man so sordid quite
But finds something of delight,
Something in this world which he
Thrills with happiness to see.

Years ago the Huffman House, the best hotel between Toronto and Montreal, stood on the site where Hotel Quinte now is. Here is an interesting item with reference to the hotel from our file copy at this time in 1894: Mr. A. Hoffman has purchased with Mr. John Lake to look after incoming and outgoing guests at the Huffman House and Mr. Lake put on a handsome new bus today.

He will meet all trains and boats. The bus, of course, was made here by the St. Charles Carriage Works. Similar work made by this firm are in use in many places from coast to coast.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A trout fisherman was walking quietly across a portage trail when he heard a sudden hissing sound and glanced up to see what he took to be a small black thunderbolt coming straight for his head. He ducked, and glanced back to see a gold-headed Scots come out of its dive, and sweep in a wide circle, gain full speed, and swoop and come, a compact bullet of bird, at a steep slaty angle, for the angler the second time.

The angler hurried out of there in a hurry. A cliff ran alongside the trail, and this suggests that the hawk was one of the falcon family, possibly a duck hawk or goshawk. It was doubtless defending its nest from intrusion, and may have had past experience of man and his birds-nesting proclivities.

Chief Ranger MacDonald of the White River district in northern Ontario, reports that great horded owls have recently attacked bush workers and dangerously wounded the Magpie river area.

Francois Dumont and another man were operating a diamond drill after dark had fallen. The owl dove on Dumont and snatched his cap off and flew away with it. A few minutes later, it returned and made another attack on Dumont, and had to be driven off with wild yells and much gesticulation, but only after it had scratched Dumont on the neck and head quite painfully. The nest was not found; but either the owl had a nest nearby, or it was just naturally expressing owlish resentment at the desecration of the peaceful night by the diamond drill. How could an owl get his supper with all that racket? You couldn't see a mouse squeak.

Such cases of attack by hawks and owls are not at all common. I have investigated many a hawk's and owl's nest within the adult birds circled around, protesting but never attacking. I have found their nests, these birds, like most wild creatures, rely on silence, stealth, immobility as their chief assets for survival.

Youthful Aberration

Frisco Loses Cable Cars

(New York Times)

A little mob in front of a car barn in San Francisco lowered into shouts of "Lynch the Mayor, lynch the Mayor!" An Eastern- ers might have been alarmed by these sons of the Golden West did not actually intend to lynch the mayor. Mayors are seldom lynched in San Francisco, if ever. No, what the crowd was doing was to express its grief and indignation at the passing of the last of the cable cars.

For several years San Francisco has been torn by bitter strife between the economically minded, materialistic, suspicious individuals who assert that cable cars cost too much to operate, and the romantic, who gaze starry-eyed across the decades and wouldn't change their beloved city in any respect whatever. The cable car came to San Francisco because it was the only thing on wheels that could easily climb its hills. It was intended to earn money and provide services, and it did.

It also gave the magnificent ride, originally for a nickel, it now costs fifteen cents, at street corners because, on the hills at least, it ran so slowly that its passengers could step on or off without danger.

Nevertheless, Franciscans sit on benches facing outward, from which they could view many miles of scenery, including sometimes the bright waters of the Bay. Riding Finnigan's car was wonderful to ride the cable cars, even when the riders clung to the outside in the rush hours.

The cable car did not go down in history as a failure. There are still human beings who will fight for the good, the true and the beautiful. Jane Addams succeeded fought to the last clang.

Now it is the Fifties years from now, perhaps, those who will ride love buses will fight against the substitution of moving sidewalks for those conveniences. The same stirring anything romantic. Let us wait and see.

Love Wrecks Reds' Plans

(Hamilton Spectator)

Almost we could feel sorry for the gallant wrecking crew serving the relations between the sexes Hereinafter, it said, there was to be none of the silly capitalo-imperialistic business of courtship and flirting. "Instead we must approach the opposite sex with care and get to know the other person ideologically. In our society, common studies, are the chief ties which unite lawful wedship into a lasting union."

Mr. Khrushchev, the bald-headed champion of ideological confidences has got out of hand and has committed some indiscretions that been quite the sort the government would like to forget. For instance farm hands, an official of the party complains, have been paying too much attention to the farmers' girls who drive tractors, and this has resulted in "inattentiveness and sometimes in damage to the tractors themselves."

Even worse when love on a tractor collides with the party line, both get hurt.

A new standing order has now been issued, countermanding last year's. Hereinafter, it seems, the girls are authorized to wear make-up, and indeed it is their duty state in setting up cosmetic stores for them. Women in the police force are being issued with nylon stockings. Even, from now on, encouraged to show "more appreciation for young girls and women," and, furthermore, they are to give up their seats in buses to public vehicles.

The only thing that appears to be left unresolved is the repeal of those tractors.

Ah, spring!

Conservation Briefs

A series of little known facts about conservation, under the heading of "Conservation Briefs" will occupy this space weekly. These briefs are being written by Moira River Conservation Authority to let you, the people, know what your Conservation Authority stands for.

DID YOU KNOW that soil conservation is defined as "the use of every acre according to its capability and the treatment according to its needs." This type of soil management for all of the residents of our valley is the objective towards which your Conservation Authority is working. Through Mr. A. O. Dalrymple, Agricultural Representative, Stirling, some residents of the watershed have already taken advantage of the Farm Planning Service offered free by the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Where these plans have been implemented throughout Southern Ontario the average increase in productivity has been 30%, with as high as 110% and as low as 5% being recorded. The significant point is—every farm showed an increase in productivity.

Mondays Best For Holidays

(Financial Post).

Monday we had a holiday—the 24th of May.

Coming as a Monday, it lengthened the week-end and gave us a chance to get out into the country, to visit even distant relatives and friends, to have a real break from the regular work routine. This we got with the minimum of disturbance to business or industry and the most benefit to ourselves.

Six weeks later, however, we have a holiday that is quite different. July 1 or Dominion Day falls on Thursday.

Mid-week holidays are a disruption of work and they aren't much good for a holiday either.

There is not a single sound reason why all national holidays should not be officially celebrated on the nearest Mondays, just as we have observed Civic Holiday and Labor Day.

Virtually every citizen as well as industry and business would be in favor.

The Federal Government should not let a few misguided sentimentalists block this long overdue reform.

Frenchman Stole Railway

(France-Amerique, Paris, France

Speaking of fraud on the grand scale, we present the case of one Gaudier, who recently succeeded recently in removing 90—metric tons of rails from the entire interurban electric line near Grenoble.

Goudier labored industriously for the past two years. Finally, aided by an ironmonger named Jean Francois Gardelle, he pulled up several kilometers of rails without making any effort to conceal the operation. The rails were packed on the Grenoble road. Finally an inspector noticed the absence of the rails on an infrequently used spur of the line were missing and opened an inquiry.

It was developed that Chardelin had stolen the rails, bought a certain glory with them, a satisfaction that later comfortable circumstances did not, for Mme. Glasing, the English writer, during the days of poverty, would often stand before a bookshop, viewing some volume that he so much desired, and would try to decide whether to buy it with the small amount of money he had, or to spend it for food. Usually the book won!

We feel the money spent for things that enrich the mind and with dull beauty to our lives, is money well spent. How people have the money to buy, as they never had before, those things they are lacking. They do not then feel the money is spent.

We would not wish to have any of the blessings of poverty, and its terrible miseries, remembered. There were thrills accumulated from the sheer spend of dreary days in which he or ones have been able to match. Said Gaudier to his friend Gardelle: "Now you can afford to buy any book that pleases you, but I do not think you ever bring me home! any nice old volume that

Gabbling Prayers

(Manchester Guardian)

It is reported that the Bishop of Hurom has issued a pastoral letter to the Prevention of Gabbling in Church Prayer". He defined gabbling as "to rattle off without meaning it." But the mistake the Bishop has made is to enrol only adults in his anti-gabbling campaign; and it is the offenders are children, whom we should be concerned with the nature of their misgabbles. In one orphanage, for instance, the children say "Our Father" quite regularly as "Father Charten"; in another they are taught to kneel down to repeat "Our Father we shot in Heaven," still another perversion being "Our Father who art in Thames sighin."

Really reading the Twenty-third Psalm a boy insisted on repeating: "Thou preparest a stable before me," and his stable companion used to sing: "While like a giddy thing I went I heard a voice." a rather greedy but satisfied boy was heard to say: "What a shame though I be" sang "We can sing, full though we be." One more for the many misunderstandings due to gabbling is the tale of the little compassionate girl who wanted to know what "pliesity" meant. Her nightly prayer included the phrase "Pity my simplicity" which she heard as "make the simple pliesity." We know that mice were timed creatures to be pitied, but "pliesity" puzzled her.

Personal Health Talks

NOW SEE HERE GRANDMA.

My two grandchildren suffered all last winter, going from one cold (ouch) to another, writes Grandma O.C.

If you are not sure the grandchildren suffered whatever illnesses or indispositions they had last winter by reason of exposure to cold draft, insufficient clothing, dampness, change of weather etc., you will probably derive no benefit from what I tell you here. But if you are still capable of accepting a new idea you may learn something to the advantage of your grandchildren's health and your peace of mind.

I'm growing ever more cantankerous about this "cold" nonsense, for queries like yours make me feel frustrated. What's the use trying to teach people common sense, happily, when I get too down-hearted there's always the growing crop of seven blocks away where I forget all mundane things.

After the game I take queries like yours, Mrs. O.C., with good grace. Some disorders which morons, knuckleheads and stinkers call "colds" account for 80 per cent of all acute respiratory ailments, are certainly not infections, not communicable. But people who know enough to try to keep out of conversational spray and range are well aware of the infectiousness, the communicability of fully 90 percent of all acute respiratory tract disorders characterized by turning at the nose, stiffness, sneezing or coughing, are accordingly try to keep out of range until the nature of the trouble becomes manifest.

Now and then a health commissioner and even some practising physicians sanction the teaching that covering cough or sneeze with hand, handkerchief, screen or mask prevents the spread of disease. This is true enough. But while cough and sneeze spray (of visible or palpable and invisibly fine or impalpable droplets of moisture possibly containing virus by germs of disease) has an effective range of 10 or 12 feet, it is less dangerous than polite conversation spray, which carries not more than five feet. Less dangerous, that is, in my opinion.

Open-face cough or sneeze spray is so obvious, the droplets so palpable, that even the most ignorant bystander resents it, as an insult.

The spray given off in quiet conversation is impalpably fine but the germ-laden moisture droplets are there, all right, as scientific studies by agar plate culture tests. But unfortunately for the public health, most remain serenely unaware of this mode of infection, which probably accounts for most of the everyday practice of physicians, specialists and surgeons.

TODAY'S TALK

FEEL THE MONEY SPENT!

One of the most charming of the essays by Charles Lamb is the one he wrote on "Old China." He wrote of the time when they bought precious things and had to sacrifice to get them. Then, sometimes, aided by an ironmonger named Jean by the joy received. Lamb commented in these words: "A thing was worth buying, we feel, when we have the money we paid for it."

Sacrificing to get, to bought a things they have learned before. When people have the money to buy, as they never had those things they are lacking. They do not then feel the money is spent.

We would not wish to have any of the blessings of poverty, and its terrible miseries, remembered. There were thrills accumulated from the sheer spend of dreary days in which he or ones have been able to match. Said Gaudier to his friend Gardelle: "Now you can afford to buy any book that pleases you, but I do not think you ever bring me home! any nice old volume that

By DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

COST OF VIGILANCE

Someone described the conflict of evil some time ago by saying that humanity was always trying to keep the devil from getting in with pins and at other times stabs him with daggers.

Regardless of what one may feel about the reality of a personal devil, the fact remains that a force for evil works against our lives continuously. Sometimes the onslaught consists of a lot of irritating pin-pricks. Our irritation and bad temper are uncharitable and hasty talk lead us into all kinds of embarrassments and deplorable situations. But sometimes the force of evil—whether we personalize that force and call it the devil or not—really gets nasty and starts at us with knife and dagger. Then we begin to lose faith in God and man. Then we find ourselves confronted with temptations of such horrendous character that yielding to them will mean great evil and the ruin around us.

Alberta, Saskatchewan Well Supplied With Moisture; Man. Conditions Greatly Improved

TORONTO (CP)—Abundant rainfall during a cold, wet spring overcame moisture deficiencies that had been registered on the prairie farm belt in the autumn and winter months.

Statistics prepared for The Canadian Press by the meteorological division of the federal transport department here show that by the end of April, Alberta and Saskatchewan lands were both well supplied with moisture and Manitoba conditions had greatly improved.

The figures show Alberta at the end of April had an average 18 per cent excess over normal precipitation, compared with a deficiency of four per cent at the end of February.

Saskatchewan in the latest compilation had an average excess above normal of eight per cent, compared with a deficiency of two per cent in February.

Manitoba's over-all deficiency of 23 per cent at the end of February was reduced to six per cent by the end of April.

WET MONTHS

The grain areas of Alberta and southwestern Saskatchewan received above-normal precipitation during March, when temperatures averaged a few degrees below normal over the southern portion of the prairie provinces.

April was the wettest month on the Prairies, with temperatures averaging 14 degrees above normal in Alberta, 10 degrees below in Saskatchewan, five degrees below in Manitoba. Alberta had average precipitation, Saskatchewan was well above normal and Manitoba about double the normal amount of moisture.

Generally fair weather followed in the first 10 days of May but precipitation was again above normal in the three provinces. Then a storm developed in western Alberta and moved slowly eastward in the next few days, bringing 1.4 inches of rain to central Alberta with less than an inch to southern Saskatchewan and southern Manitoba. Since then, the weather generally was fair and cool.

SEASONAL PICTURE

For the whole nine months ending on April 30, two districts in southern Alberta and northern Saskatchewan—reported excesses of 32 and 18 per cent over normal precipitation. At the other end of the table, deficiencies of 7 to 9 per cent were reported in central Alberta, southwestern Saskatchewan and eastern Manitoba.

By districts, northern Alberta had recorded normal precipitation at the end of the nine months. Central Alberta had an excess of moisture in March and April, reducing the deficiency of total precipitation to seven per cent. Southern Alberta had five months of consecutive above-normal precipitation including April, giving it the greatest excess—32 per cent—for any district.

Northern Saskatchewan had only normal precipitation in March and April, but snowfalls earlier gave this district a total excess of 18 per cent over normal by the end of April. Southwestern Saskatchewan had a deficit of nine per cent, since dry periods earlier in the winter were not quite covered by the rains of March and April. Southeastern Saskatchewan April practically by normal since April overcame the deficiencies of March.

Western Manitoba had above-normal precipitation in April, but after a dry February and March the over-all seasonal deficiency was three per cent. Eastern Manitoba's total deficiency was nine per cent, despite the more than two inches of precipitation recorded in April.

Business Failures More Common Than Year Ago

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Fruits of the economic recession in the United States are showing up. Mild as it may prove to have been, the business shake-up is leaving a stark, unforgiving change that may affect most people in time.

It's changing a way of thinking, sharpening competitive methods, scaring little fellows caught in the middle of the big boys' fights, bringing newcomers into old fields, squeezing more businesses to the wall.

At the employee level, the business change is emphasizing the job-holding value of skills and the dangling value of technical education. At the factory level, its sharpening the work of the research laboratories and reshuffling sales departments. At the mill level, a new style is shaping up over dealer - distribution systems and prices.

Business failures are more common than a year ago. It is sure sign that the slump has sharpened competition and is weeding out the marginal ones. Fall bankruptcies, it's proving rough for businesses that haven't shared in the boom times.

Big companies are scrapping how over markets. Some smaller companies are being squeezed. The auto industry is an example. The tire industry is another.

The four largest rubber companies outfit almost all cars coming from the factories. Smaller rubber companies specialize in the replacement tire field. But the latter whose auto customers aren't producing much business this year are working hard to capture the replacement market, which looks big this year. Some of the smaller companies find the competition hurts.

Mountain Feud Boils Over Into Double Killing

DOGPATCH, Okla. (AP) — An old - fashioned mountaineer feud that boiled over into a double killing brought officers to this tiny community Friday, trying to unravel the mystery from a moonbeamed hill folk.

Billy Peters, 19, and Marshall Stroud, 24, were shot to death Thursday night in a clinch on the porch. Shooting began when Stroud divorced Peters' older sister, Lucy.

Sheriff Walter Irons said Peters entered the home parlor and ordered his former brother-in-law down on his knees to beg for his life.

Instead, Irons said Peters fired a bullet into the pleading man's body, then shot the fatal shot when Stroud started to rise.

Details of what followed were hazy, he said.

Dogpatch is only a couple of hen houses in southeastern Oklahoma, described by a member of the sheriff's staff as "just like in the comic strip."

Ontario Gives $5,000 To Widow of Airman

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario cabinet took time out from provincial problems Thursday to consider the plight of a widow and her infant son.

The result was that by order-in-council they approved a grant of $5,000 to the widow of Roy Downing of Cobden, in Renfrew county who was killed in an air crash last year while fighting forest fires in northern Ontario.

Downing was pilot of an aircraft which crashed near Round Island lake in Algonquin Park, killing him and his two passengers.

Downing was not a department employee, and therefore not covered by insurance.

Lands Minister Walter Gemmell told the cabinet the department was not liable, but that there was a moral responsibility to be considered.

ECONOMY IN BRAKING PARACHUTES

First retractable parachute for airplanes is given a test in Britain on a racing car travelling at 150 mph. The chute, let out from a tube when the auto was at top speed, was automatically pulled back into the tube when the car slowed to 50 mph. The test proved the design capable of slowing planes on runways and carrier decks. (Central Press Canadian).

Wellington on the Lake

THE ORIOLE.

Back from the south he has come again
Seeking a place for his hanging nest,
A meteor bright 'mid the orchard trees,
Happy he be on his gladsome quest;
Over and over he sings his song,
My heart responds to the happy strain,
For when soul was sick and the way seemed long
He brought new cheer to my heart again.

So when May returns to a wailing world
I watch each day for his plumage bright,
And listen with heart attuned to hear
His liquid notes in the dawn's grey light;
But oh! he seems far more to me
Than slight and song of a bittsbeone bird.
For in those drear days when he sang to me
"Hope" was the theme of the song I heard.

—HELEN B. ANDERSON.

WELLINGTON — As we walked down the street following the church service on Sunday morning we were delighted to hear an oriole singing from the tall trees. His jubilant song seemed a fitting conclusion to the morning service.

WELLINGTON PARK ON SUNDAY.

Wellington Park, one of the beauty spots of the county, was the scene of a pleasant gathering on Sunday afternoon, when the members of the Salvation Army Band of Newcastle Temple gave a fine concert. The Captain in his introductory remarks spoke of the beautiful weather and of the bandsmen's pleasure in being present. He said they had invitations to Niagara and other places, but the boys preferred Picton and Wellington. In the program presented they responded to various requests from the audience, among the numbers being "The Old Rugged Cross", "The Lord Is Risen Indeed", and selections from Stephen Foster's songs. Later they were entertained at lunch by the ladies of the Legion, before returning to Picton to complete the day with two more services. There they were welcomed by Mayor Cofarland.

The W.A. of the United Church held its May meeting in the Sunday School rooms on Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Glendon Sanders of Toronto spend over the holiday with friends in Wellington.

Miss Gladys Lamb, with several friends, enjoyed a picnic at Prezyby Ile on May 24.

A large number of tourists enjoyed boating and fishing in Wellington on Monday. More boats and cottages are required to accommodate the number of tourists.

Mr. and Mrs. Robertson of Welland are now occupying "The Manor" which they recently purchased. They are preparing to beautify the grounds with flowers and shrubs.

Mrs. W. H. Anderson and Miss S. E. Bickely spent a few days in Belleville, the guests of Miss Helen Arthur, Ann Street.

Veteran Waits For 15 Months In Pension Case

OTTAWA (CP) The Commons veterans affairs committee Friday wrangled for 1¾ hours over the case of a veteran who, the Canadian Legion has said, had to wait 15 months for a final decision on his case by the Canadian pension commission.

Howard, Green, (PC-Vancouver Quadra) said at one point that the first decision of the commission, turning down the application for pension, was based on "phoney" medical opinion by commission doctors.

Liberal members of the committee protested loudly and shouted for Mr. Green to withdraw.

Mr. Green said expert medical opinion which finally found in favor of the unidentified veteran was contrary to the original opinion of the commission doctors.

Brig. J. L. Melville, chairman of the Canadian pension commission, said the final decision was based on further medical evidence not available at the time of the original decision. He said applicants for pensions are invited to supply more evidence and to appeal the commission's first decisions.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SHE HAS "PROBLEM PARENTS"

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl of 17, and I have problem parents. Last February the boy with whom I have been going steady and I had a silly quarrel and after that, my parents told me I was never to see him again. Since then I have had a sad anything against Bill before. I asked them why, and they told me he was no good for me and that because his parents are getting a divorce, he and I would get divorced, too, if we got married.

I promised them I wouldn't see him again, but two weeks later, when Bill asked me to make up, I did it without my parents knowing about it, and we began seeing each other regularly again. That lasted about a month and then my parents seemed to be getting suspicious. I told Bill about it, and he said he wouldn't have my parents find out for the world. So we thought it best not to see each other any more until August. In August I will be 18 and then we could get married.

But I haven't seen nor heard from Bill for four weeks, and I can hardly stand it. I have tried to reason with my parents, but they won't even listen. I would like to write Bill, and have my mail come to the post office, but I would probably get caught.

Please tell me what is the best thing to do.— J.A.

Dear J.A.:

Under all the circumstances you describe, it seems to me the best thing for you to do is to let this whole thing ride until August, as you and Bill agreed to do. If he really serious about you, he will certainly get in touch with you then and let you know what can be done about your friendship. If he does not keep his promise to come back when you become of age, then you will have to accept the fact that he has lost interest.

As I see it, there are two reasons for Bill's not writing to you on an letter. First, he may be afraid of being deceiving your parents, and second is because Bill himself suggested that you stay away from each other. The latter is particularly good reason to let him be the one to push the matter, and for waiting to see just how sincere and good-hearted Bill's feeling for you is.

Of course it is hard not to see someone for whom you have a great affection. But, after all, August is not very far away now, and I'm quite sure that your wisest course is to try and wait patiently to see what happens then.

SHE WANTS TO BE POPULAR

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a constant reader of your columns and, like many of your fans, I'm a teen-ager.

I would like to know how I could get to know boys better. Everyone says I'm very pretty, and extremely nice, but it seems as though a girl has to have an affair with a boy before he'll have anything to do with her. You see, I'm sure I will never do anything like that, but I will be very grateful to you for any advice you can give me. — T.

Dear T.:

You're just blowing off steam, aren't you, when you say it seems as though a girl has to have an affair with a boy before he is interested in her? I'm quite sure your don't believe anything of the kind.

If you are pretty, and have the reputation of being "extremely nice," then you have two big assets to start with. If you add to these such popularity-makers as always being good-natured, happy and a good sport; always being ready to take part in various activities that girls and boys of your age enjoy; and always being thoughtful enough, when you are with a boy, to find out what things he's interested in and get him to tell you about them, I don't believe you'll have a bit of trouble finding boy friends.

It might help you to read over my suggestions on how to be popular, which I will be glad to send you if you'll send me a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Readers' Saturday Column

By Mary Moore

QUESTION:

Many's the time I've chuckled and sympathized with the readers' letters I've sent to your column and here I am, one of those poor souls who have to watch the ugly truth. . . . I have been told (by my doctor) I simply must reduce by 55 pounds. I use sucaryl tablets in my tea and coffee now, but in experimenting with them in a pudding I found they left a bitter taste. I have you any recipe I can use with "Sweeta"? . . . would appreciate menu for 1000-calorie-per-day diet, which I could also use for my family. There are five of us and not to say I'm the only "fatty" . . . my husband, a real bean-pole needs fattening foods . . . my children are extremely active . . . I am not allowed any bread, fats, potatoes . . . even fruit consumption is very low . . . buy our food in 3-week quantities so I usually make up menus in advance . . . we have one big meal at night . . . but it's the lunches that worry me. . . . Most of my meats have to be broiled, so I would like to know more about that angle of cooking. . . . Thanking you kindly in advance, I remain, a summer is coming and nary a dress will fit me . . . what would we do without you? —Mrs. A. M. B.

ANSWER:

Shall I answer that last question myself? Your letter was mailed you the 800-calorie per day menus. I'm afraid they're pretty low and green vegetables and skim milk to make them up to 1000 calories per day. Also the whole wheat bread and potatoes and butter and whole milk, and cream and cake and cookies for the family. Yes, you can broil liver, in fact, it's better than if it is fried can be broiled, with the added advantage that fat does not have to be added. To broil baby beef liver brush it with lemon juice for you, with butter for the family, sprinkle all with salt and pepper after it has been turned over. Broiled meats are placed as close to a preheated broiler flame as element as you can make without smoke, and cooked only as soon as first side is golden brown, and then cooked until barely done at centre. . . . Have no experience in the sweetener you mention. In using sucaryl, recipes are all given especially for this product. I have written telling you where to obtain a copy of the booklet.

QUESTION:

I would like to know how to make those pastry horns that you buy in the Belgium bakeries. They are filled with whipped cream and are flaky.—Rita.

ANSWER:

PASTRY HORNS

Danish Pastry: 1-2 cup scalded milk, 2 tablespoons soft butter, 1-4 cup sugar, 2 well-beaten eggs, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla, rind of 1-3 lemon, 1 compressed yeast cake mashed with 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 cup sifted cake flour, approximately 2 1-2 cups sifted bread flour, 1-2 cup cold butter (or 1-4 cup each cold butter and cold margarine). Pour the hot milk over the 2 tablespoons butter and 1-4 cup sugar. Add well-beaten eggs, vanilla, salt, and lemon rind. When lukewarm add the yeast, mashed with sugar. Gradually add flours which have been sifted together, to form a very soft dough. Knead gently on lightly floured board several minutes. Place in greased bowl, brush top with melted shortening and let rise until doubled. Knead again and let rise until doubled again. Wash the 1-2 cup cold butter in ice water, squeezing in hands until waxy. Divide into two parts and keep cold. After second rising of dough, roll out to oblong 8x12 inches, and distribute pieces of ice cold butter over 2-3 of dough. Fold unbuttered portion over buttered part, then fold other third over first two, making three thicknesses. Press edges tightly together. Chill, until covered. Roll out to 8x14 oblong. Distribute second portion of butter over it in the same way making two rollings. Chill.

To make horns roll out 1-3 dough at a time to 8x14 oblong. Brush with melted butter. Cut into four wedge-shaped pieces. At largest end place scoopful of this mixture: 1-2 cup well-drained cream cottage cheese strained, rind of 1-4 lemon, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 teaspoons flour, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 large egg yolk, (Triple this amount for 12 rolls.) This mixture is consistency of heavy custard and is what is usually used for pastry horns. Roll in each filled section to form a horn, brush top with melted butter, place on ungreased sheet with open end down. Let rise until very light —about 1 hour. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 15 to 20 minutes or until gold. Remove at once from baking sheet and let cool. Usually glazed or iced.

LEARNING TO DRESS

By NANCY CLEAVER

Learning to dress is a real accomplishment for a small child. Mothers sometimes forget this. Pulling off clothes is comparatively simple. It can easily be turned into a game. But few grown-ups realize how hard it is for little fingers to pull on articles of clothing, do up buttons or tie knots.

Interest is necessary for all learning. Enthusiasm to master a skill, even on the part of a small child, makes accomplishment much more possible. If a child is discouraged by his mother or his first trials in putting on socks or underwear, it may be a long time before he shows any eagerness to become self-sufficient in dressing himself. A parent may even wonder at his indifference to get himself dressed, forgetting that he was once the child whom he first wanted to try to look after himself.

SMALL CHILD HALF-WAY

A mother does well to meet her child half-way. Demonstrate how to put on certain articles. Then let the child struggle to do it himself. His fingers may seem to do all things but perform well. Stand in the background. Give only the assistance which is necessary. Encourage the child and praise him for even a small measure of success. Be careful, however, that Junior is not trying to dress himself just in order to get warm words of commendation from mother. Let small Junior get increasing satisfaction from becoming more proficient in his own ability to put on his clothes.

A year old child, or even an older baby may occasionally attempt to put on an article of apparel. But most two year olds are quite eager to dress and undress themselves. Their interest wanes from time to time. But until they are almost five will they be able to assume full responsibility. Tying shoes laces and doing button up at the back are often not done correctly till a child is five or six years old.

ONLY FAIR

It is only fair to the child's teacher that on the first day at school arrives he can dress himself, and bring such needs—and last but not least, have rubbers or galoshes for rainy days which he can leave him to learn!

Zippers are a real boon in almost all garments, providing they are sturdy and carefully inserted. Buttons must be large enough for small fingers and button holes roomy. Modern children are fortunate in the well-cut simply made little garments, which can be donned with the minimum of effort.

All children do a certain amount of dawdling. Mothers sometime wonder how in the world their children can consume so much time in the simple process of dressing! To nag or to scold a child who is a bit of a "slow-poke" is worse than useless. But do try to cut out unnecessary distractions or interruptions.

Plan for some enjoyable activity just after dressing is completed. I find that getting out and sing a Nursery Song with Junior when he is all clothed. . . . she will be delighted with the outcome; this is to his efforts.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

A "WELCOME" CAKE FOR RETURNING SERVICEMAN AND HIS WIFE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our family is planning to give a party for our brother who has been in service for years. He is coming home soon. Since he has been away he has married, and now his wife, whom we have never met, is expecting a baby. Would you advise that we have a wedding cake with "Welcome Home" on it?

—M.B.

It would, I think, be a charming gesture, more significant gesture too at this time, for you to have a cake with a message of Welcome on it. Because "Welcome" is the joyous idea of this party. And instead of "Welcome Home" (which would really apply more to your brother than to both), I would like to suggest "Welcome To Anne And John," or perhaps "Welcome To Our Anne And Our John," which would be a touching tribute to both, and which I'm sure will make John's wife very happy indeed.

(This cake needn't be "plain". . . it can be as handsome and as elaborate as you wish. And it might be candle-lighted and brought in during the dessert, to the accompaniment of the ice cream. And, as a matter of fact, you might have your brother and his wife stand by the bride-cake, and serve it to the guests.)

SALT CELLARS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When every guest at table is provided with an individual open salt container, should one dip the celery or radish into the salt cellar? — E.A.

No. Don't do that. Take some salt from the individual salt dish to your bread-and-butter plate to the rim of the individual dinner plate, or whatever plate is before you and dip the celery or radish or whatever into it. If there is a little salt spoon in the salt dish, of course you use it to take the salt; if not, take the salt to your plate with the tip of a clean knife.

MARRIAGE ANNOUNCEMENTS TO THOSE WHO LIVE NEARBY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are to have a house wedding in June. In addition to those attending the reception will be our parents, brothers and sisters, and our two attendants, there are four relatives live in and around this district. Is it proper to send engraved announcements to them? If not, what is the proper way of informing them of the marriage to them, since they all live so near to where we live? — B.

When a wedding is so small it is always correct, if you wish to, to send formal, engraved announcements to everyone. . . . relatives, friends, acquaintances, neighbors . . . who was not invited to the wedding. And this is true whether they live at a distance or next door! This is the customary way, and certainly the correct way. However, if you don't wish to plan to have any wedding announcements, you may write friendly little notes to your relatives and friends, and your bridegroom would write the news to his relatives and friends.

WEDDING QUESTIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Am I expected to buy the dresses for my maid of honor and bridesmaids, or do they purchase selves buy their dresses?

2. Do my parents collect, pay for, and send the wedding invitations?

3. Do we pay the organist and soloist? — J.

1. You, the Bride-to-be, plan every detail of each attendant's costume. . . but the attendant herself pays for her costume. The only exception is that your family plans and pays for the attendants' bouquets.

2. Yes.

3. Yes. (The minister of the church, or the sexton, will inform you about the professional fees.)

What to do...

FOR OUTDOOR HAZARDS.

Spring is a wonderful time of the year, heralding the good old summertime when everyone wants to get out into the open air. But the great outdoors holds a number of hazards for the unwary, says St. John Ambulance.

Most of these hazards and what to do for them are carried in St. John Ambulance first aid instruction. Here are some of them:

Poison Ivy: First of all you should learn to recognize the plant and avoid it. However, if you come in contact with it or suspect that you have, immediate washing with soap may prevent the itchy, and often painful, rash. If you do get the rash apply a counter irritant from your druggist to soothe the itchiness. If the rash gets really bad, see your doctor.

Insect Stings: If you can see the sting, remove it with a needle which has been sterilized by passing it through a flame. Apply something soothing like baking soda, vanishing cream or wet "blue bag", of the type used to whiten linens in the wash. Then cover the sting with a dry dressing.

If the sting is inside the mouth, a mouth wash of a solution of baking soda (one teaspoonful to a pint of water, should be used, followed by sucking ice). Apply cold soaked in salt water and wrung dry to the front of the neck.

Fish-hooks: Nothing more embarrassing for fishermen than to be caught by his own hook! But if it does happen, don't try to remove it—you can cause greater damage, perhaps even puncture a blood vessel. Never a nerve. Treat the wound, immobilize the part and get the medical aid. A doctor handle the tricky job of removing it.

Sunstroke: When the occurs if the patient usually becomes unconscious, his skin is hot and dry, his pulse is bounding, his breathing heavy and his temperature is extremely high, perhaps as much as 110 degrees Farenheit.

Remove the victim person to a cool, shady place. Take off as much of the clothing as expedient to the wash. Sponge the body with cold water and apply ice bags to the head, neck and groin. When patient is conscious, give him drinks of cold water.

FOND OF BATHING

The Romans built nearly 2,000 big public baths between 334 BC and 180 AD.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

OUTDOOR LIFE PROMOTES GLOWING LOOKS AND HIGH SPIRITS

There are some people who never feel right unless there is something the matter with them. They are experts, professional complainers. Keeping their minds continually on themselves, and what they consider their grievances, they are upset emotionally. They get into a rut, become morbid. . . .

That does not happen to the woman who has developed a philosophical attitude. She knows that life isn't all ice cream and cake, and when she feels glumness and depressed she goes outdoors and into the sunshine. She has a brisk walk if no other form of exercise presents itself. In no time at all her circulation is stimulated. She takes long, deep breaths to "aircondition" her lungs. She feels relaxed. Her jitters are gone; her good spirits are restored.

Monotony mildews the soul. When that happens cosmetics won't help. Beauty will be only half alive. Going through the same old routine day after day may get a woman down. She can pick herself up by indulging in some outdoor recreation. It will help keep her young and happy. Anything that is invigorating upon the body will have a favorable effect upon the mind.

Outdoor work too hard: others rest too much. To have perfect rest is to die. Inertia is bound to destroy youthful appearance.

Mothers and fathers who join their children in outdoor pleasures time youthful appearance. Faces and those dignified graven images will become more dignified and—never enter childish games.

Career girls, desk-workers and typists need some form of outdoor activity to keep their bodies in up-top condition. Without it they are likely to take on middle-age spread and, in the case of typists, their room scales are bound to report surplus weight. A brisk walk is fine for exercise—but both of which can be maintained through recreation. Exercise—any bit as attractive as a beautiful face.

Here's what you get with ordinary cleaning

When you look at your fur coat you see a soft shimmering garment. You don't see it the way the enlarged picture above shows it. But maybe you should.

Because this is a view of how your fur would look if you were to cut a pelt in the middle. Cleaven forbid! You'd see short silky hairs and longer pencil hairs growing out of the leather.

Yes'd see them this way if your fur had been Hollanderized. But if it had been cleaned by an ordinary method it would look like the picture below.

Insist on Hollanderizing for cleansing and rejuvenation by Hollander. The Hollander people are the world's largest and most famous processors of furs.

Hollanderizing uses fine "proof powders" to absorb and remove even the smallest particles of dirt, making your fur coat truly . . . wonderfully . . . clean.

Hollanderizing gives you separate spot removal and thorough cleansing of the lining.

Hollanderizing costs so little! Dare you trust your furs to lesser methods?

Laying Concrete Walk Good Job for Amateur

By J. RALPH DALZELL
Author of Books on Home Building and Repair

Two- or three-foot wide sidewalks are not difficult to plan and lay, and the home maker can do the work himself without help. The first step it to indicate the outline of the walks with string tied to stakes. Then excavate to a four-inch depth (B-D in the large picture) plus about six inches on each side for spaces H-B and D-R.

Make enough stakes from 1x4s as shown in picture X. Stakes should be about 24 inches long and pointed for easy driving. Drive stakes M and N three feet apart so their tops are level with the lawn. Measure the location of the stakes carefully from house or lot line, as shown at F, so their edges will be straight. Drive stakes G and P to the width of walk wanted.

In wet soils and in freezing climates, it is better to excavate another six inches and fill with tamped-down cinders or gravel as illustrated. This allows drainage and prevents frost heaving of the concrete. Your dealer can estimate the amount of gravel if you give him the dimensions of the walk. (If your walk is long enough for a minimum load, you may also have the base concrete delivered and poured.)

Use straight 2x4s for forms, and nail them to stakes as shown at stakes O and P. Check the levels of the forms at frequent intervals to be sure the tops are level with the lawn. Raise or lower stakes as indicated by a carpenter's level. Forms on each side should be level with each other, as well as level themselves. This is very important.

Make a stop form, base gauge and strike-off board as illustrated. For sidewalks two or three feet wide, you will probably want grooved divisions at two or three-foot intervals as shown in picture Y. Such walks look better and are easier to repair if cracking or crumbling occur later. Place the stop form before pouring the first batch of concrete.

Concrete for the base should be one part cement, two parts sand and four parts crushed rock. Your dealer can figure the amount needed from dimensions. Mix concrete in small amounts; for example, two pails cement, four of sand and eight crushed rock. Mixing can be done in a large shallow box, on a concrete surface or in a wheelbarrow. Mix thoroughly with enough water to make it easy to handle.

Tamp the concrete between forms. Zigzag the base gauge along the base, one inch below the tops of the forms (see picture). Add the topping immediately after the base has been poured. For topping, use one part cement and three parts sand with enough water to make it spread. Use the strike-off board to level the topping.

Allow the topping to become stiff, then trowel until the surface is very smooth, use a steel trowel, like a grocer trowel to make the division lines. Place the strike-off board flat across the topping and run the groover over it, then smooth the surface on both sides of the grooved lines.

Concrete requires moisture to cure it during warm weather, so put burlap bags or other cloth over it, and keep them moist for several days.

Remove the forms after several days, using care not to chip the new concrete. Before placing the rest of the walk, place a board about three-quarter inch thick, three inches high and the width of the walk where the slop form was placed. This wood will remain in the walk to allow for expansion and contraction and prevent buckling and cracking during summer heat.

Questions and Answers.

Q—Is ordinary varnish suitable for linoleum?

A—No, it discolors and cracks. A non-slippery wax in liquid form is the best preservative. It can be washed and renewed as required.

Q—Why did the wallpaper placed over a previously-painted wall not stick well?

A—Perhaps the original paint was glossy, on which ordinary paperhanging paste often fails to adhere. Add sugar to paste and dull glossy paint with sandpaper.

FARM BUILDING TIPS AND NEWS

Tips on Hardwood Flooring

By 'Home Builder'

It has been said, and rightly so, that "the hardwood flooring is the answer to the modern trend towards brightness, cleanliness and versatility in floors."

It is true that floor coverings of linoleum, asphalt and plastic compositions possess certain advantages for certain rooms in the house, but it is still true that hardwood flooring, laid and finished in the proper manner, will prove a superior floor in all respects.

This article will deal mainly with the grading rules as established by the Canadian Lumbermen's Association and a few tips on their correct handling, laying and finishing of hardwood flooring.

Here, in brief, are the Canadian Lumbermen's Association grade rulings for Canadian birch, hard maple, and beech flooring.

GRADING HARDWOODS

The first grade is all thicknesses and widths has the face practically free of defects—the varying natural color of the wood is not considered detrimental to its quality. Standard lengths in this grade are from two to 18 feet and not more than 25 per cent of the stock can be two or three feet long.

The second grade, in all thicknesses and widths, has tight, sound knots and slight imperfections in character but must lay without waste. Standard lengths in this grade are one and one half to 16 feet and up to 40 per cent of the footage can be 1-2 to three feet.

The third grade, in all thicknesses and widths, must make a good, serviceable floor with some cutting. Standard lengths are one to 16 feet with about 30 per cent of the footage three feet or less in length.

Fourth grade is the lowest grade of flooring manufactured. It allows defects not permitted in the first three grades which do not, however, render flooring unfit to use where circumstances admit in low cost construction.

GRADINGS FOR OAK

The gradings for oak are as follows:

The first grade has a face practically free of defects and not more than 25 per cent of the bundle can be under four feet in length.

In second grade oak the face may contain sapwood, pin-worm holes, streaks, slight imperfections in manufacture or small tight knots not more than one to every three feet of wood. In this grade 40 per cent of the footage can be 1 1-2 to three feet in length.

The third grade is of such a nature as to enable one to lay a sound floor without cutting. Not more than 30 per cent of the stock can be three feet or under in length.

Fourth grade oak may contain defects of any character but must still make a serviceable floor.

Here are a few of the facts concerning the proper handling, laying and finishing of hardwood flooring.

Never expose flooring to moisture until it is finished and sealed as a floor. Flooring is kiln dried to approximately five per cent moisture content and thus is liable to absorb moisture from the air on rainy or humid days. It should not be taken into a building until the plaster and paint work are dry and the humidity in the room is normal.

STABILIZE MOISTURE CONTENT

Endeavor to make sure that the room is at low humidity and that the flooring is stored for a period in that room, prior to laying. The flooring bundles should be broken open and the flooring spread out so that the wood moisture content becomes stabilized and in equilibrium with that of the air in the room.

Be sure the sub-floor is swept clean before laying; nailed floor. In all cases it is ... able to lay a moisture-proof paper before applying the hardwood flooring.

Always lay flooring across the sub-floor and with the length of the room.

Make sure that strip flooring is laid in a straight line, otherwise there will be openings in the end-matching caused by the ends of the boards not fitting squarely together.

Drive each piece of flooring up tight.

USE PROPER NAILS

Use a nail which holds the floor-ing, will not split the tongue, and can be set into the wood. When nailing 13-16 thick hardwood flooring the nails should be about 12 inches apart, for 3-4 inch flooring, about eight inches apart.

Stagger the end joints of flooring strips at least six inches apart. Strips from short bundles should be mingled with strips from longer bundle.

Leave a small space around the edges of the floor at the walls to allow for the expansion of the wood in the event the floor is exposed to excessive moisture during its lifetime. This space is covered by one quarter inch round moulding is not exposed to view.

Sand the floor carefully, always with the length of the board. An experienced sander can improve the quality of a hardwood floor by using three to four sandings and finishing with 00 sandpaper. All sanding should be done with the grain of the wood (by that I mean the length of the board). Cross grain sanding usually results in marked or streaked surface when the floor is finished.

BASIC FINISHES

Finish the floor according to the type of maintenance, wearing qualities, and appearance desired. There are five basic ways to finish a hardwood floor:

(1) Waxing after a thin coat of sealer has been applied.

(2) Using a penetrating sealer only.

(3) Using a penetrating sealer and a surface coat on top.

(4) Using a surface sealer only.

(5) Using a heavy coat.

Wax may be applied over all these surface finishes. One floor-ing requires that a filler be applied first to fill the pores in the wood to keep out dirt. Do not fill hard maple, birch or beech.

FEW POINTERS

Here are a few pointers on the basic methods of sealing floors.

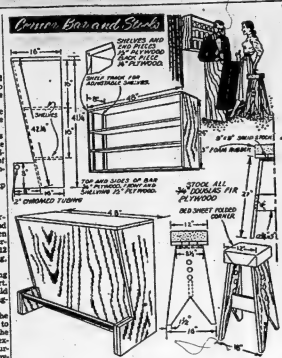
(1) A heavy penetrating sealer, full strength, will penetrate the wood, harden and bind the top wood fibs thus providing a hard, durable wood floor. This finish does not break down from traffic and gives a durable, non-slip job which does not discolor with age.

(2) A combination, penetrating surface sealer gives a high gloss with no glare and hardens the wood so that it will stand up under heavy traffic conditions. Penetrating surface seals should be tough, yet resilient to 'give' under heavy traffic without cracking or chipping.

There are two main types of surface finish—the soft and resilient kind which does not crack, and the hard kind which does.

Surface finishes generally give a high gloss with no need to apply a polish. It is preferable, however, to use a wax over the hard type of surface finish to avoid chipping.

It is generally recognized, by those experienced in finishing hardwood floors that penetrating finishes accent the color variations in the floor whereas surface finishes minimize the color differences of the wood



DOUBLE PURPOSE

Waxing not only provides a protective coating for the floor but also facilitates the reflection of light which makes the floor surface brighter.

There are two types of floor wax available—the paste wax that requires polishing and buffing, and the liquid, self-polishing product. Never apply a liquid wax to a floor that has not been completely sealed as it will stain the floor. Also remember to remove water from a waxed floor surface as quickly as possible as the water may dissolve the wax.

Floors that become slippery when waxed probably have too much wax on the surface. Excess wax can be removed by applying neutral cleaners especially manufactured for removing wax.

Finally, only wash floors when the finish manufacturer recommends it and then never use a surplus of water and never use sweeping compounds containing oil or abrasives unless the floor was treated with oil when it was finished.

Modern Teacart Plywood Version Of Old Tea Wagon

Simplicity and convenience, keynotes of homemaking today, are to be found in the modern teacart.

Convenient to use, simple to make, the fir plywood cart shown here is a 1954, streamlined version of the conventional spoke-wheeled tea wagon.

Complete with a lift-off tray and rubber casters, it glides sleekly into the modern living-room, the pride of any hostess.

The tray panel is of one-half inch Douglas fir plywood which can be finished to take advantage of the warm wood grain. Tray moulding detail indicates the shape of moulding used to form the lip of the tray.

The tray sits on a half-lapped frame which is edge-screwed to the side members. The slanting legs are also half-lapped and should be attached with screws as well as glue.

The bottom panel should be of one-half inch thickness to give the rigidity needed for this portable tea table.

Cat, Dog Figures Of Fir Plywood Form Coat Tree

Tabby's sitting pretty on this unique fir plywood coat tree which would be an attractive addition to an entry or hall.

The whole design can be laid out quite simply by drawing the cat and dog figures on a three-quarter inch grid as shown. A suitable thickness of Douglas fir plywood panel for the job would be the one-half inch grade.

The base is 15 inches square, and Tabby's lofty perch is 8 inches square. Design for the hangers, brackets and fellige is also detailed. All parts could be cut from the same one-half inch thick panel.

Coloring of the figures is a matter of taste. Any conventional woodwork paint or enamel could be used with success if the Douglas fir plywood is well primed first.

BIG GATHERING

HALIFAX (CP)—Officials doing preliminary planning here said the 25th annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce at Halifax Oct. 4-7 will likely be the largest ever held. About 600 delegates are expected from all parts of Canada.

CATCH LIVE RATTLER

AYLMER, Ont. (CP)—A two-foot rattlesnake was received at the local office of the lands and forests department after it was captured uninjured at the mouth of the Grand river east of Port Dover.

NEA SMALL HOUSE DESIGNS—Here's a budget-priced, three-bedroom bungalow designed by architect E. J. Dance, of Ottawa, who has relieved the rather severe lines with an attractive front entrance treatment.
The interior layout leaves little to be desired. One feature sometimes overlooked in bungalow designs—the provision of adequate dining space—has been included in this plan with an eating nook in the kitchen for light meals and a dining area off the living room. The kitchen, with its convenient working arrangement, is well-lighted and handy to the rear service entrance. The back to back plumbing arrangement for kitchen and bathroom fixtures also spells economy.
The floor area of this house is 974 square feet and the cubic measurement is 19,480 cubic feet. The exterior dimensions are 34 feet, four inches, by 27 feet. Working drawings for this house, known as Design 237, are available from Houston's at a Minimum Cost.

For maximum rigidity always apply fir plywood sub-flooring or roof sheathing with the face grain of the panel perpendicular to raf-ters or joists.

A mile of veneer 8 feet 8 inches wide was peeled from one Doug-las fir plywood log 8 feet thick cut recently in British Columbia.

If joists are green, to avoid nail shrinkage, use the face grain of the plywood sub-flooring.

Eight Men Struggle Upward, Call for Aid in Locating Man Stranded on Alaskan Mount

SHOWDOWN NEARS IN RAIL BATTLE

"Vesling" for victory in his fight to win control of the New York Central railroad, Robert R. Young looks jubilant after the annual stockholders' meeting in Albany, N.Y.

William White, president of the New York Central Railroad shows conductor John Quinn his railroad pass aboard the Stockholders' Special, en route to Albany for the crucial stockholders' meeting. Stockholders, numbering close to 5,500, balloted to choose between the management, headed by White, and Robert R. Young who gave up the chairmanship of the C. & O. railway in his bid to control the Central, the second largest railway in the U.S. White, aware of Young's confidence, pointed out that the result of the balloting will not be known until June 2. He said he doubted that Young has the gift of prophecy. (Central Press Canadian Photos.)

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — Eight men — in need of help themselves — struggled up perilous Mount McKinley's lower heights today seeking a tiny tent housing the broken body of a man they hope is still alive.

Their task complicated by the dangerous cracks and crevasses which lace the south buttress of the 20,300-foot mountain and hindered by swirling snow, the rescue party searching for Pic. George Argus called for a guide Friday.

They asked for aid from Morton Wood, one of three survivors of a 1,000-foot fall which killed a man May 15 and critically injured Argus.

The 25-year-old soldier was left on the mountainside when Morton and Les Viereck, the third survivor, had to give up attempting to bring him down the tortuous slopes alone. They left Argus in a tiny tent after spending a week with him waiting for help that never came.

SUFFERING WITH FOOD

He was warmly wrapped, lying on an air mattress. But he had only enough food to carry him through this week, and there was no way to mark conspicuously the tiny tent on a vast expanse of snow and rocks.

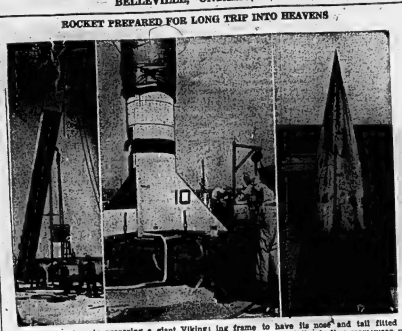
The rescuers, spread out in three parties ranging from the 8,000-to the 7,500-foot level and still at least 2,000 feet below where Argus is believed to be lying, asked that Wood be brought to the mountain in a helicopter to guide them.

The storm which hampered the climbers made their request futile — it grounded the helicopters. And Wood could not climb to them in time.

Added to fears whether Argus will have enough food to last until the rescuers reach him is the danger that the tent has been covered by a blanket of snow which would hide it completely.

The temperature at the tent level is estimated at 10 to 15 degrees above zero, but should not immediately imperial Argus unless the high winds blow away his protective canvas.

Canada Asked Not to Increase Fabrics Tariffs



OTTAWA (CP)—Peter Thorneycraft, president of Britain's Board of Trade, appealed to Canada Friday not to boost tariffs on wool fabrics.

The British trade minister, opening a three-week tour of Canada, disclosed at a press conference that he has taken up the textile tariff issue informally with Trade Minister Howe.

He said there was no talk of "reprisals" by Britain if Canada decided to boost tolls on British woolens, but the item was most important to the British trade and a rise in tariff walls would complicate her drive for economic recovery.

Finance Minister Abbott recently ordered the tariff board to investigate the impact of preferred tolls on British woolens on the Canadian industry. The industry has been complaining it is being crushed by heavy British competition. Mr. Abbott has suggested the investigation be completed by the end of the year so that the tariff items can be renegotiated with Britain.

At left, the body of the Viking is placed into the launching frame to have its nose and tail fitted on. Centre, members of the fueling crew wear protective clothing as peroxide is pumped into the tanks. At right, the needle-sharp nose of the missile is in place and the Viking is ready for launching into the upper air. (Central Press Canadian Photos).

Quebec Creates Traffic Control Ministry

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec province continued its crack-down on speeders Friday by creating a new ministry to oversee provincial traffic laws.

The announcement followed recent legislation setting reduced speed limits on highway traffic. Premier Duplessis said the new department of transport and communications will likely be in charge of an existing cabinet minister.

In parliamentary circles, Solicitor-General Antoine Rivard is favored for the job despite no official confirmation.

Speaking at his weekly press conference Mr. Duplessis asked for public co-operation in a two-week provincial traffic safety campaign starting June 1.

TO ENFORCE LAWS

Major job of the new ministry will be enforcement of traffic laws. Provincial transport commissions will also be under the new department.

Mr. Duplessis also announced a major Canadian oil company has asked permission to drill for oil along the St. Lawrence river between Quebec and Montreal.

Natural gas emanations in the Trois - Rivieres and Yamachiche regions were believed to have instigated the exploratory drilling.

A gold mine with a potential of "several million tons" has been discovered 19 miles north of Noranda, in northwestern Quebec, Mr. Duplessis said.

Would Union Permit To Lay Information

OTTAWA (CP)—Stanley Knowles (CCF — Winnipeg North Centre) Friday introduced a bill in the Commons to make it possible for a trade union to lay an information in court.

His bill, an amendment to the federal labor code, arises from a decision this year by Mr. Justice A. M. Campbell of the Manitoba Court of Queen's Bench, who ruled a union could not be an informant under existing federal law.

Civil Defence Exercises Planned June 14

OTTAWA (CP)—Five simulated attacks on North America will be made June 14 when Canada and the U.S. hold their biggest joint civil defence exercise.

Maj.-Gen. F. F. Worthington, Canadian director of civil defence, said Friday in an interview that the Canadian target areas will be Halifax, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver. Windsor, Ont., will get the backwash of the attack on Detroit.

Civil defence workers have been planning the exercise for three months. After it is held, they will evaluate the weaknesses — Gen. Worthington said there will be many—which appear.

Control centre for Canada will be at Arnprior, Ont., 50 miles west of Ottawa. The U.S. centre will be near Washington, D.C. The Canadian centre is linked by teleprinter to the 10 provincial control centres.

The attack will be based on the assumption that "nominal" atom bombs—equivalent of 20,000 tons of TNT—are used by the enemy bombers. Bacteriological and chemical warfare may also be simulated.

Thousands Gather For Canonization Of 'Papa Santo'

By FRANK BRUTTO

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Thousands of Roman Catholic faithful, including high officials and pilgrims from many countries, thronged St. Peter's Square today for ceremonies elevating Pope Pius X to saintdood.

Reserve places were set aside for hundreds of archbishops and bishops and cardinals as well as various diplomatic envoys to the Vatican and special missions from around the world. A crowd of possibly half a million crowded into the great square.

The solemn rites called for Pope Pius XII to be borne on a portable throne through the square and to proclaim Giuseppe Sarto — Pius X — a saint while a picture of him was being unfurled from the central loggia of St. Peter's basilica.

For the first time, the ceremonies bestowing the church's highest honor were carried to millions by means of radio and television. Various radio and many European networks arranged direct broadcasts, and the Italian television system set up its cameras for direct transmissions. Later the ceremonies are to be carried on Canadian and American television and radio networks.

Pius X was known during his lifetime as "Papa Santo" — the saint pope. The ceremonies today, only 40 years after his death, make him that in fact.

Relax VLA Rules

OTTAWA (CP) — The government Friday announced a relaxation of regulations dealing with the Veterans' Land Act.

Veterans will have until Jan. 1, 1960, instead of Jan. 1, 1957, to repay their re-establishment credits if they want to settle under VLA.

This would mean that a veteran who, for example, bought furniture with his re-establishment credit, would have until 1960 to repay that sum to the veterans affairs department if he wanted to take advantage of VLA to settle on a farm or small holding.

Indo-China Experts Cancel Meeting on Finding Problems Only Top Envoys Can Decide

By EDDY GILMORE

GENEVA (AP) — A scheduled meeting of Indo-China experts was cancelled today after the nine participating delegations decided they had run into problems which could be decided only by the top delegates.

The committee of experts met Friday to try to disentangle the various conflicting and overlapping proposals now before the Indo-China conference on cease - fire measures.

The conference itself was scheduled to hold another restricted session this afternoon. Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Gromyko of Russia started up Friday's initial meeting of experts who are seeking to find out common ground in the Communist and non-Communist proposals.

Gromyko tossed in new demands aimed at forcing the conference to sanction Communist claims in Laos and Cambodia, the smaller of the three associated Indo - Chinese states.

DECISIVE PERIOD

The West has insisted that the Communist - led Vietminh be allowed after the cease-fire to hold territory only in Tonkin in North Red forces be evacuated entirely from the kingdoms of Laos and Cambodia.

Should the Communists persist in demands for "assembly zones" in all three states, observers predict the conference might founder next week. This is the period that both France's Foreign Minister Bidault and Britain's Foreign Secretary Eden have predicted will be decisive.

Eden proposed earlier this week that senior officers of the two opposing sides in the war be called to Geneva to draw cease-fire lines. Gromyko said Friday Russia could accept this proposal—provided it was changed to leave no clear implication that the officers would draw cease-fire lines for all three associated states.

Gromyko also suggested that the officers meet in Indo-China rather than Geneva. The West had assumed there was agreement on Geneva as the site of the military discussions.

SEES THREAT OF RED SEIZURE OF PANAMA CANAL

U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles tells correspondents at a press conference in Washington that France has just about given the three Associated States of Indo-China the independence the U.S. would require as one condition for armed intervention. He emphasized, however, that America would not go to war alone. Dulles also said that recent shipments of arms to Guatemala from Communist countries might be part of a Red plot to seize the Panama canal. (Central Press Canadian).

SEEK POLLUTION SOLUTION

BRANTFORD (CP) — Municipal engineers and mayors or reeves of Grand river municipalities are scheduled to meet June 8 with Ontario Health Minister MacKinnon Phillips at Toronto to discuss the problem of sewage disposal. Dr. Phillips recently announced his intention of seeking some solution to the pollution problem in the valley of the Grand river and its tributaries.

LAUGHING AMAZONS OF MEXICO A PUZZLE TO HISTORIANS

In this eight-storied temple, built by the Totonaca Indians of Mexico long before Columbus discovered America, archaeologists have made discoveries which are a puzzle. Dozens of clay figures of women warriors, true Amazons equipped with spears, armor and visors, have been unearthed. All the figures show the Amazons smiling. Spaniards who first conquered Mexico made no record of women warriors and archaeologists are still at a loss to explain the meaning of the smiles.

A good example of the ancient Totonaca Indian art in clay is this figurine unearthed at Dicha Tuerta, 50 miles from El Tajin, capital of the Indian tribe. The odd shape of the head was probably due to the Indian habit of deforming the skull at an early age. Many of the figures showed the Amazons filed their teeth. (Central Press Canadian.)

Question Box

A Public Education Service of
THE HEALTH LEAGUE OF CANADA
111 Avenue Road; Toronto 5;
In co-operation with this newspaper.

All questions submitted are answered anonymously by members of the medical advisory board or special technical sections of the HEALTH LEAGUE.

The "Health League Question Box" grew out of questions submitted over the years to the Health League of Canada—a unique, voluntary lay organization which enlists the advisory support of leading specialists in every field of medicine to combat preventable sickness by means of public education. All questions submitted to the "Question Box" are answered by medical or scientific experts and checked for accuracy by members of the specialized technical sections of the Health League.

The Health League, in presenting this weekly newspaper feature, hopes, by making good medical advice available, to counteract the bad advice on health matters freely offered by non-professional passersby and old wives. Readers are invited to submit questions to the address. Of course, the "Question Box" cannot undertake to diagnose specific ailments by mail. However, all questions will be given courteous attention and answered as fully as possible.

THE HIGH STRUNG CHILD

Not too many generations ago the high-strung child was mainly expected to be doctored with tonics.

When a patient's trouble was attributed to nervousness, a tonic or sewed or sliced or pried loose, the old sawbones was obliged to resort to a closet full of pills, elixirs and powders that were rather distinctly guaranteed to set any harm.

Not very much was said about nerves in those days. It was a dangerous subject. People who insisted that nerves might have something to do with whatever was bothering them were likely to find themselves wearing funny hats and chains in the village square, surrounded by boos and hisses and with mudballs.

Nowadays it is almost impossible to conceive of a physician in any field of medicine who is not well-grounded in psychiatry. The borderline between psychiatry and physiology is a very indistinct one and in places a non-existent one.

Question: "Can small children have nervous stomachs? My oldest daughter, age 10, gets a pain that would kill a high pressure executive. Straight A's at school, creative work at home such as art, chemistry, plays, etc., plus taking care of her little brothers and sisters and the neighbor kids, cooking meals, etc.

We try to discourage this, but she insists on doing everything and doing it better than anybody. Half a year ago she began complaining of stomach pains. A doctor decided she should have her appendix removed and did so, but the pains recur at mealtimes and don't go often for a year.

Answer: Simple nervous upsets have no effect on the future of the baby of an expectant mother. Now even if the mother is a chronically nervous person the outlook is not so good. She may have a hypertonic baby; one who vomits a lot, is hard to find suitable feeding for, and cries a great deal. These babies fortunately can be taken care of readily by a prescription from the doctor or medicine. It is given the baby before each feeding. It must be given over a long period however—at least six months and recur at mealtimes and don't go often for a year.

Garden Notes

Food, Dust, Mulch and Water

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Food, dust, mulch and water are the four necessary ingredients for roses culture. And, you cannot neglect one of them if you want top performance from your roses all summer long.

Early in the spring each rose should have received some type of fertilizer. You may prefer bone meal, sheep manure, Vigoro or milorganit but what ever it is get it in early.

Hybrid perpetuals, climbing and shrub roses need one cupful of dry fertilizer for each plant, with another feeding immediately after bloom. In both cases place the fertilizer about four inches out from the plant, in a circle around it and work in lightly, then water.

The second and third feedings for hybrid teas should take place immediately after blooming and then again the last week of July. Roses should have no more plant food after this date.

A lightweight water soluble plant food may be applied at two week intervals during the growing season, at the rate of ½ pound to 800 square feet of bed. Apply this through a fine rose sprinkler attachment or applicator.

Pest control is made tremendously simplified with the introduction of rose dust which controls all fungus diseases and insect pests attacking roses including the hard-to-control mildew and the spider.

Dust at two-week intervals prevents invasions of these pests and keeps the roses in a good healthy condition to go into the winter dormant season. Healthy, vigorous roses withstand the rigors of winter much better than those weakened by insects, disease, pests or starvation.

Mulching is important, too, and often neglected. A three to four inch mulch of ground corn cobs, peat moss, compost, or similar material, extends rain-fall through reduced evaporation from the soil, prevents barking, and high soil temperatures, and discourages weeds. Roses respond well to mulching.

KEEP SOIL MOIST

Frequent watering is not necessary. See to it that the soil does not dry out too much, and when you do water give the rose beds a thorough soaking, not a light sprinkling.

Speaking of pest control; a lumber and grain man, who has 1,000 roses got very tired of spraying for pests. It seems that there was little six conscientious souls right after he had sprayed the roses. From a subsequent test he learned of "an elastic weather-proof substance that would defy downpours without impeding plant growth."

Mr. Milligan added the adhesive, (a later derivative which holds chemicals on plants) to a chemical solution for his own garden. It proved so successful he is now marketing it in liquid and dust form.

"Plant plate" is the elastic and stretchable film the plant grows. Wind, sun or rain do not affect it. It has been tested by many proven chemicals as rotenone, DDT, and fermate. Further information may be had from Frank Milligan Limited, Peterboro.

No Cause to Fear Ontario's Deer Population is Declining

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

TORONTO (CP)—Hunters have no cause to fear that Ontario's deer population is declining.

In its annual report, the provincial lands and forests department says that between 40,000 to 50,000 deer were killed during the open season last fall "there is no indication that deer are being overexploited."

On the contrary, the report says the animals are being "under-harvested" in some areas including the extreme western sections of the province and on Manitoulin Island in Lake Huron where they are dying of old age.

Some 120,000 hunters were licensed in Ontario including about 12,000 Americans, for the 1953 season.

AMERICANS RETURN

United States sportsmen were back in force last fall and American government lifted the 1952 ban on deer from Canada because of hoof and mouth disease in the Canadian West.

The cost of non-resident licences was increased to $35 from $25.

Statistics show one of every three hunters brought home a deer, taking 174 days to find and kill it.

Wildlife officials say that the mild, snowless weather during the first week of the season last fall prevented the harvest from being larger. Dry twigs snapping under a hunter's foot often gave the fleet deer ample warning. Many of the animals did not migrate from their northern feeding grounds because of the mild weather.

The open season varied in different areas of the province from almost two months in the extreme north to three days in a southern district. The average was about 20 days during the open season months of October and November.

YOUNG DEER KILLED

The large majority of deer killed were under two years old. Most of them were taken in the Trent, Parry Sound and Manitoulin island districts.

Some 5,776 animals were examined by provincial biologists, wildlife and conservation officials. Inspectors also visited 1,500 hunters.

Officials said the figures for the number killed were conservative since many sportsmen who hunted near their homes did not report their kills.

Authorities say ordinarily a deer will not go far from himself and it is only during certain periods of the year — usually in the rut — that he becomes weak and an easy prey to dogs and wolves.

Deep Crevasses Slow Attempt To Save Climber

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP)— Deep crevasses slowed to a crawl the inch-by-inch advance of a rescue party trying to find an injured climber on North America's highest peak.

Four men landed Wednesday by helicopter at the 5,000-foot level of the 20,300-foot Mt. McKinley to seek a tiny tent a mile higher on the ice-clotted mountain.

A plane dropped a radio to the searchers Thursday, and over it they reported they had gained only 1,000 feet of altitude in 24 hours. The helicopter landed four more expert climbers at the 5,000-foot level Thursday.

In the rough-for tent was George Argus, injured so seriously in a fall May 13 that he cannot use his legs. The fall killed a companion. The others left him in the tent while they made a supply walk they went for help.

None of the search planes has yet sighted the tent.

HIGH JINKS!

An automobile to Ray-Irwin, technician at the Bata Shoe Company, Batawa, is just a means to an end.

In other words, Ray uses his big Roadmaster Buick merely to convey him from his home in Batawa to Kingston, where he keeps his Fairchild monoplane.

"Cars, phooey," snorts Ray. "They're too darn slow if you want to go places in a hurry."

Ray, an aero engineer in the RCAF for eight years or so, was bitten by the flying bug when he catapulted from his crib one morning. Yet, strange to say, he never flew while in the RCAF.

But the virus was in his veins, and it burst into full bloom a few years ago when he bought a Tiger Moth and took out his flying license. Since that time life has just been one flip after another for the five feet four, 130-pound Bata technician.

The Fairchild is his third aircraft. The second was a Piper Cub, which did some hedge-hopping over Ray's hometown one evening, and changed hands the next day.

Born in Regina, Irwin saw a plane in the sky when he was 13 years of age. He made a solemn promise to his dad. "Pop," he said with all the majestic mien of a teen-ager, "some day I am going to fly one of those things." He kept his word.

He loves to fly just for the thrill of it—and the hell of it. The big Buick in second fiddle to the fleet Fairchild.

Ray heard about the opening baseball game being played here today between the Belleville Batas and the Toronto Dependables.

This, he figured, was a chance for another flying thrill. Why not, he said to Art Duncan, Bata public relations official, get some balloons and pamphlets, and flip them over the city and district as an advertising stunt.?

"How come?" asked Duncan, always ready for an idea.

"Give me the balloons and pamphlets, and I will see they are properly distributed over Belleville and district," smiled the indomitable Ray. That was it.

This morning he hopped into his "lethargic" Buick, groused at the delay as the big machine purred along at 105 in spots, and sped to the Kingston Flying Club where he found his baby believed Fairchild.

Then knew the rest. Ray and his pal were back in Belleville in plenty of time for the baseball game.

And he did it all "for free."

And lest we forget, Ray received permission from the Department of Transport and Police Chief Walter Probert before setting out on his aerial junket.

BOMB HIKE — BUSY WEEK!

Tomorrow, Sunday, the Batas take off bright and early for Toronto, where they are scheduled to play a double-header with the Queen City entries in the Viaduct League. They meet the Hoakings at 1.15 and the Dependables at 3.45. The Toronto curfew on sports is six p.m.

The Batas go right back to the baseball wars again come Tuesday when their ancient and honorable rivals from Peterborough will be their guests at a night game. They rest up until Saturday when they run into a toughie. They are scheduled to play a doubleheader, with the first game in Oakville at 2.30. After gulping their supper, if there is time, they rush away to Oshawa where they play a night game at 8.30.

PAINT JOB

The big scoreboard at the Exhibition Grounds is undergoing a brand new face-lifting in preparation for the baseball opener on Saturday. The Northern Electric Company is again "sponsoring" the big board, but this time has adopted a change in the color scheme. Instead of the white background, a base to batters, the board will be a deep dark blue with white letters.

SET IN MUSIC!

(Note: Paul Mercier, sponsor of the Bluebird Junior softball team will give away a $200 diamond ring at the final home game of the club in August. With apologies to "White Cliffs of Dover"):

"Oh, a Bluebird will linger, on some lucky finger,
In August, just you wait and see,
Some big shot might pick it, as grand will your ticket—
That ring may come to you or me.
The juniors will never rest, on the diamond, you may be sure
And Paul also gives his best, in his own sparkling way, and more,
So a Bluebird will linger, on some lucky finger,
In August, just you wait and see."

—Parody Pete.

NO TWISTERS!

Paul Strand, former big leaguer, tells the story of baseball game in which he pitched in fiddle to Tedtwister.

"We needed an umpire," Strand relates, "and one we could trust, so we asked the boss man of the little settlement to act. He knew as much about baseball as an ice cube, I was pitching. I wound up a fast one and shot it over the plate."

"Strike one," yelled the umps, shifting a big chaw of tobacco.

"The next one I shot across was an out-curve that didn't seem into the catcher's mitt, a clean strike, until it was close to the plate. As soon as the catcher had the ball I expected the umps to call the second strike. When he had nothing to say I said, 'Well, why don't you call it. You saw it, didn't you?'

"Sure, sure, I saw it," he said, meanwhile pacing back and forth behind me spraying the ground with tobacco juice. "That cockamsed pitch started out to be a ball, but the goth-darned thing curved."

"What do you call it?" I asked.

"Ain't called it nothin'. Yes," he went on, "Yes, sir-ree, twan't nothin' at all. Go on and pitch and don't go tinkering with those twists any more."

Rosen Breaks Up Mound Duel With Two-Run Homer in 7th; Chisox Clip Birds for Pair

By Ren Pelegar
Associated Press Sports Writer

If Al Rosen can continue his present pace, he's going to force the major league baseball writers to dig up a new award.

The writers unanimously picked Rosen as the most valuable player in the American League last season, the first time any player had been selected on a perfect ballot since the system started 22 years ago.

This season the Cleveland star is ahead of his last year's pace in every department. In 37 games he has collected 51 hits in 137 times at bat for an average of .372. He's hit 13 home runs, scored 28 and driven in 48. At the same stage a year ago he was hitting .338 with 47 hits, 10 homers, 22 runs and 30 runs batted in.

Friday night he broke up a scoreless pitching duel between Early Wynn and Steve Gromek of Detroit with a two-run homer, with Larry Doby on base in the seventh inning. The Indians' victory was 3-0 as Wynn checked the Tigers on two hits.

AHEAD OF SOX

They're winning, the Indians stayed nine percentage points ahead of the onrushing Chicago White Sox, who swept a twilight twin double-header from the slump-ridden Baltimore Orioles, 7-2 and 14-3. The New York Yankees came from six runs behind to edge Boston 10-9 and Philadelphia's Athletics let the Washington 12-6.

In the National League, the first-place Milwaukee Braves extended their winning streak to 10 straight though they had to go 12 innings to beat St. Louis Cardinals 3-2. New York Giants battered Brooklyn 17-4 knocking the Dodgers into fourth place. Philadelphia Phillies defeated Pittsburgh 4-0 in a game shortened to six innings because of rain, and Cincinnati beat Chicago Cubs 8-5 in the only daylight action in either circuit.

A Baltimore crowd of 22,184 sat through six hours and 25 minutes of misery as the Orioles ran their losing streak to nine. Chicago pulled into a virtual tie for first place with Cleveland, while Baltimore matched a three-way tie with Boston and Philadelphia for last.

Nels Michael's hit a grand-slam home run for the White Sox in the fifth game while the Orioles left 16 stranded. In the nightcap Baltimore left 13 men on base.

DROVE IN WINNER

Andy Carey's single in the ninth drove in the Yankees' winning run at Boston after the world champions had tied. Jackie Jensen hit a grand-slam home run in the third and Mickey Mantle homered with two aboard for Boston in the fifth.

Wayne Terwilliger hit a home run with two on for Steve Ridzik with one on and Jim Busby with the bases empty as Washington doubled the score on the Athletics. Gus Zernial drove in four Philadelphia runs with a pair of homers.

The Giants went home-run crazy against the Dodgers as Monte Irvin of the polo grounds as they won their sixth straight. They hit six, four of them in the eighth inning, one short of the National League record for a single frame. The loss was Brooklyn's fourth straight. Willie Mays of the Giants hit a homer and four singles.

Crew Fails To Qualify

WORCESTER, Mass. (CP)—St. Catharines High School failed to qualify for today's senior eight-oared division of the 20th annual national scholastic rowing regatta in trials held Friday at Lake Quinsigamond.

Representing Canadian schools today will be J. R. Pearce, rowing for Westdale Collegiate of Hamilton, Ont., in both the championship and junior championship eights sculls. Notre Dame College late Institute of Welland, Ont., will compete in the junior championship eight-oared division.

St. Catharines finished last in a field of five, some five lengths behind winning Allen Park High of Michigan, which edged out Washington and Lee of Arlington Va., in a final sprint.

Molson Stadium Home of Larks

MONTREAL (CP)—The long-expected announcement that Montreal Alouettes will make Molson Stadium at McGill University their home next season came Friday from president Roy Robertson of the Big Four football entry.

There was no specific announcement regarding financial terms or how the vexatious problem of a city tax was finally solved.

Robertson and Dr. C. Cyril James, principal and vice-chancellor of McGill, have been discussing for five months the shift that moves Alouettes from Montreal Royal baseball park to the collegiate gridiron.

Texas Wins Over Oklahoma, 'Bunny' Nearly Steals Show

By GEO. H. CARTER
(Sports Editor)

A Texas leaguer—pardon—legger, smacked a Oklahoma mummy in full flight in Memorial Arena last night, spread-eagled him until his knees touched his ears and you-alled home with the victory.

It was a one-three show. The one part was the "rasslers" — the other three parts were the Texas belted Unbilicus Murgatroyd Dunlop, otherwise known as "Bunny."

The portly Bunny, whose equatorial expansion is such that his toes are strangers to his eyes—he sees them through a mirror — made his 1954 Belleville debut in a flutter of colorful glory.

One thing we like about Bunny. He picks no favorites. He merely selects one and sticks by him come hell-or-high-water, and invariably the goon wins.

Last night Bunny lost his shirt, his temper, and his eye-shadow.

At one time he nearly passed out. The fans howled, then wondered. What they did not know, Bunny went down on the belt-line centre of gravity, and merely rocked himself to sleep.

A GOOD SHOW

However, it was a good show. Upwards of 1400 of the faithful saw the colorful "spectacular" from San Antonio, Texas, the Tex MacKenzie, who towers some six-foot-four, get the best of the Big Dee Zakina, a 276 lb. bunko man who hails from Oklahoma, or points south, east or west, in a surprising finish.

The good-looking youngster (he's 23), a trifle green in tactics, but ripe to grab, took some terrific punishment in that decisive third fall of the best-of-three.

He after Big Dee Lone Star of State kid with terrific elbow smashes, figured he could make it no yarn a passing attack so he took to the air.

He tossed two or three flying tackles that connected neatly, flooring the tall Texan until one lay tackle the two rope and the other, the opposite side.

He pushed himself for the "kill-er". He hurled himself through the air. Then for the first time in sports history, two forward passes were caught at the same time. Referee Bobby Managoff, Zakins feet, one in each hand, derricked them and straightened up. He looked like a huge kid posing for a picture with his first big fish. That was it. The shirtless Bunny raised high the mitt of the boy from the Lone Star State.

MIDGETS GOOD

For sheer belly-laughs, and mind-you-some fine, efficient wrestling, the half-plus, Tuffy McCrae, Little Cupid and Little Beaver and Ski-Lo-Lo relad tops. The midgets, as agile as an incense tax evader, put on a terrific show with their ant-antics.

They showed knowledge of all the tricks of a trade—and in a bit of a climax was reached when Texas-belted Little Cupid secured detached the holding rope, nosed it around the neck of Little Beaver, who was lying prostrate outside the ring, and proceeded gently, but firmly, to strangle him.

However, all's well that ends well. The villains met their just deserts. Tuffy and Little Beaver went "double" and Bunny went down on his knees to declare the winners.

Pat Flanagan and Don Lewin put on a spirited preliminary. Mr. Lewin collected in Mr. Flanagan's decision, promptly hung one on the Dunlopian schnozzle after 30 minutes of howling, and this scribe could Mr. Dunlop do? He did not. He awarded the fall to "Buddy" Flanagan. That was it.

Bluebirds Trim Stewart-Warner By 7-2 Score

By GARRY ALEXANDER).

"Bruno" McCurdy, husky hurler for the Bluebirds Softball club, threw a neat four-hitter at the Stewart Warner softballers last night to rack up a 7-2 win.

A homer in the sixth gave the Bluebirds a 3-1 lead but the Warner crew got that one back in the seventh. The Bluebirds big rally came in their half of the frame when they sent four runs scampering across the plate to take a commanding 7-2 lead and hold it.

McCurdy set the first seven men he faced down in order and fanned seven men in the nine inning fixture. He issued three free passes and fanned the third batter in the fourth and again in the sixth with two men on base.

Charlie Bracey got credit on the mound for Stewart Warner and allowed two runs off three hits in his 3 1/3 innings. He walked two with the first run against him in the fourth of fourteen. Frank Baldwin went in and took the loss with five runs coming off four hits. He struck out three and walked one to.

Mercier's boys opened the scoring in the first frame with a single by Paul Russell, two fielders' choice plays, one of which backfired and a couple of bobbled grounders. They added a run in the third on two walks and a line double by Warren Bovey.

Hatfield banged out a two-bagger to topen the sixth for the Bluebirds, went to third on a fielders choice and scored Scondo Isley's single. Bracey threw the ball over the third baseman's head.

Wally Walbridge slammed a home run to get that one back and then a walk, singles by Bovey, Day and Russell and a fielder's choice brought in the seventh lead up the win with four runs. Two of these runs came on passed balls.

The losers got their final run in the seventh on James' double that went all the way when Walbridge booted ball in left field.

Walbridge led the winners at bat with a homer and single in five trips while Bovey claimed a double and single. Doc St. Denis banged a long triple while Day and Russell had two singles.

Chick James banged out two of the losers hits, a double and single with Hatfield getting the other. Shorty Miller's single the only other hits.

The batteries:

Stewart Warner: Miller, Hatfield, Creegan, Bracey, Hurst, Burrows, R. Powers, Bertrim, Le Fort, James, Dracup, Baldwin.

Bluebirds: Walbridge, Russell, Barclay, P. Green, Casey, Bovey, ay, Walbridge, McCurdy.

St. Kitts, Petes Win Over Mimico, Tigers

(By THE CANADIAN PRESS)

St. Catharines Athletics and Peterborough Trailermen kept abreast of each other at the top of the Senior Ontario Lacrosse Association standings Friday night, each chalking up victories in the only two league games.

The Athletics edged Hamilton Tigers 14-13 in the former game while the Trailermen took a rain-shortened game at Mimico Mohawk Memorial Gardens in Peterborough. The game was halted after three quarters.

Al Frick and Derry Davies each counted four times to lead the St. Catharines victors. Roger Smith tallied three times and single goals were scored by Ross Hoey, Bill Bill Powless, Norm Corcoran, Bradshaw and Joe Croft.

Bob Goodwin led the Tigers with a pair of markers, Tony Damico, Bill Braddick, Jack Wadge, Bob Landoni, Jay Hill and Jim McNulty fired singles.

Cary Mason scored three to lead the Trailermen to their victory before a home crowd of 1,200 fans. Denny Peterson added two and Les Hicks, Ross Slater and Bob Thorpe rounded out the total.

Al Garbutt notched three for Mimico, two went to Don McPhail and singles to Pop Chard and Bert Sarager.

Honeymoon May Be Over For Orioles

BALTIMORE (AP) — Manager Jimmy Dykes and his Orioles got wind Friday night that their American League honeymoon might be over after a fast breaking up, and they offered oddities instead of winning baseball to prove it.

The Orioles were booed for the first time this year by drought the major leagues back here after 83 years this spring as their losers streak extended to nine on 11-6 and 14-8 losses to Chicago White Sox.

The doubleheader started at 8 p.m. and ended at 1.06 a.m.

The Orioles learned all 9 players in the first game to tie the record for the most in a American League hit contest. Twenty of them were Orioles.

Eight were pinch-hitters, one more than ever used before in a major league game.

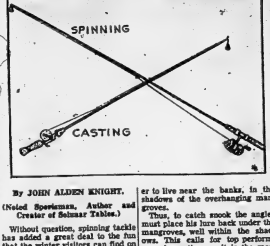
The White Sox also used a pinch-hitter, and the total of nine was two more than the combined previously in the big leagues by any two teams.

The games stranded 16 in the first game, only two shy of a record it put up in 1939 in National League back in 1897. It failed to bring in another 12 left on base in the second game, but failing shy by one of the American League record of 20 for a doubleheader and equaling the National League mark.

'Hurricane' Whips Charley Norkus In Comeback

NEW YORK (AP) — Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson swarmed over blood-spattered Charley Norkus in the eighth round to win a technical knockout victory in 2:29 of the fifth bout of his comeback attempt in the heavyweight ranks.

Jackson weighed 192½, Norkus 194 pounds.



Beaten in his last start by "Speedie" Jimmy Slade, the Hurricane cut loose after a slow start. Referee Al Berl stopped the battle as Norkus fell back against the ropes near a neutral corner.

There had been no knockdowns.

SIGNS WITH ULSTER

TORONTO (CP) — Leonard Garwood, former left half for the Tottenham Hotspurs of the English Soccer League, was only in Toronto three hours Friday before being signed by Ulster United. He will play against the Montreal Hakoah tonight.

Casting Rod vs. Spinning Rod

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT.
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Selmar Tables.)

Without question, spinning tackle has added a great deal to the fun that the winter visitors can find on the sand flats and in the channels that surrounded the Florida Keys. The average, casual angler takes very little about the art of casting in order to have just as much enjoyment as the expert caster.

Not many years ago the spinning rig was the exception rather than the rule. Now, almost every fisherman you see in Florida carries a spinning rod. On the bridges and causeways, at the boat docks and on the off shore cruisers, spinning gear is omnipresent.

Always it is interesting to me to see what kind of tackle the other fellow is using. More interesting still is to watch the way he uses it. While spinning has enabled the amateur to catch more fish than he could with fly rod or casting rod, it has also contributed little to the finesse and technique of angling in general.

"SUDDEN-DEATH" CASTERS

Of course, in the days when the casting rod was king we had all too many of the "side-wheel" casters among us. Many a time I came to learn how to use a casting rod properly after bad habits were, are, content to wind up and let fly, the lure going pretty much where the laws of dynamics happened to take it.

People being what they are, spin casting seems to have taken on the same kind of characteristics. A very great majority of the spinning addicts are of the heave-and-hope persuasion.

Like the side-wheelers, they use the same action on every cast, the only difference being that they have even less control over their lures than did the side-wheel casting-rod fans.

Last March two friends and I decided to explore the bays and "creeks" of the Keys country in the lower reaches of the Everglades northwest of Key Largo. We hired a sea-going skiff, a boatman who ran motors to the stern, and, with plenty of food and water aboard that skiff we set sail.

HAD TO FISH CREEKS

Unfortunately, the snook and redfish were not on the oyster bars. They were all in the soft mud sea ooze, which we did, we must fish the mangrove shores and the creeks. I rowed the boat while those two fellows went to work with their spinning gear. . .

Like most spinning fans, neither of them had taken time out to learn accuracy casting with a spinning rig. Snook, as you know if you have fished for them, prefer to lie near the banks, in the shadows of the overhanging mangrove groves.

Thus, to catch smook the angler must place his lure back under the mangroves, well within the shadows. This calls for top performance in casting, as it is the most difficult kind of shore-line fishing.

Believe me, the snook in those creeks were perfectly safe. High, looping casts certainly caused place a lure under overhanging bushes and trees. Every time they landed in mid-channel or were carried by the strong cross wind over the lure legs. As I say, the snook had no cause for worry. Such a thing as a bullet cast simply was not in their book.

A few days later, one of these fellows and I went out for a day with Rollie Hollenbeck, the well-known Warren Bovey, and Herb Corkan of the Orvis Company had sent Rollie a new bamboo casting rod, together with a couple of reels. Rollie's assignment was to test the rod, and to look it along to give it a try-out.

Naturally we came to one of Rollie's hot spots, where he knew there was a goodly supply of snook, redfish and trout. Rollie staked down at the mouth of a mangrove creek and went to work with his new spinning rod.

Being a caster, he was using a new rod, one with which he had never cast a lure. His cast were not spinning rod, varied from 50 to 80 feet. With that new, untried outfit, he could place his casts systematically along the shore line. He gauged these casts, also, to within 6 inches. Only once in perhaps fifty casts did he overshoot. Then, instead of letting the lure back among the shadows every bit as much as possible, he would set them there with thumb and forefinger, it was a beautiful thing to watch.

USES ONLY METHOD

Rolle uses the accepted, and only, method for controlling his lure. When the line is released at his forefinger at the start of the cast, he places the fingertip lightly against the rod to feel the line. In this way he has control at all times.

Of course, the heave-and-hope method of casting is much easier to learn with a spinning rod than with a casting rod, largely because a spinning rod won't take a lash. In half an hour, anybody, regardless of previous angling experience, can learn to use a spinning rig well enough to enable him to have a lot of fun.

But finished, accurate casting with a spinning rod is not to come by. It requires fine coordination and many hours of practice. Accuracy is a just about as deadly a method as one could imagine. Perhaps it is just as well that it is not easy to learn. As matters now stand, there are all if you have fished for them, pref-ioo few fish in our waters.

Most Puzzled Man in National Loop Is Brooklyn Dodgers' Joe Black

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP) — The most puzzling, and no doubt puzzled, ball player in the league today is Joe Black, a 220-pound pitcher with a Brooklyn Dodger uniform two seasons ago was such an outstanding figure that he came very near being elected the most valuable player in the National League, being edged out by Hank Sauer and Robin Roberts.

Fresh from Montreal Royals of the International League, the then 28-year-old Negro righthander delivered some of the greatest relief pitching ever seen in leading the Dodgers to the pennant. Without his services the ever club would have been lucky to finish third.

Black appeared in a total of 56 games, wound up with a won and lost record of 15-4, was a star on the Brooklyn staff, and with an earned run average of 2.15 per nine-inning game. He beat the Yankees once in the world series and lost one.

Last season—well, nobody has yet figured out what happened to the ex-meteor of the mound. Whatever it was, Joe got it bad. He was given a chance to pitch, to appear in, usually briefly, found him giving up 5.30 earned runs per contest, more than twice the previous year's figure, and winning only six games while losing three.

LEAVING EBBETS FIELD?

And this season, up to now, Joe shows no signs of doing even that well. He simply looks like a man who has forgotten how to pitch, and can't find what it is he's forgotten, no matter how desperately he tries. There is a feeling abroad that he may be gone from Ebbets Field.

Joe is trying everything he can think of. In his wonder year he

Elgins, Terriers Run One, Two In Intercounty

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Galt Terriers and St. Thomas Elgins, who ended up back to back in the Senior Intercounty Baseball League cellar last year, are good bets to be fighting it out for the championship this season.

The Terriers and Elgins looked like world-beaters Thursday night while finishing seventh and eighth respectively in the 1953 standings. This year they are running one-two on top of the league.

The Terriers boosted sole possession of first place Friday night by defeating London Majors 9-6 in Galt. The Elgins hoisted themselves into a second-place tie with Preston by downing the luckless Panthers 7-3 in Kitchener.

Home runs helped the Elgins overpower the Panthers, last year's Intercounty champions who are winless in six starts so far this year.

SMACKS LONG ONE

Soddy Groat whacked one 330-feet with a mate on base in the third and Bill Casanova followed suit in the fourth, connecting with the same inning. Butch Lawing hit the third for the Elgins with one on in the seventh.

Catcher Harry Faulks, converted into a first baseman, homered once with the bases clear for the Panthers in the fifth.

Although he allowed 10 hits, Joe Grasso went the distance to earn the victory, his first against one loss. The Panthers used three pitchers with starter Keith Weese, the starter, taking the loss —his second against no victories.

Galt scored in the second inning gave the Terriers their victory over the Majors. Galt was behind 6-1 before the big innings. The Terriers added another pair in the eighth to clinch it.

SCORE WAS TIED

Ed Beal's base-empty circuit clout accounted for the winning run in the eighth. Three walks, a wild pitch, two singles and a sacrifice fly had tied the score 6-6 just previous to Beal's blast.

A full schedule Saturday has Kitchener playing the Red Sox at Brantford, Guelph-Waterloo Royals at London and Galt at St. Thomas.

Red Wings Whip Bisons; Nudge Leafs

(By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Buffalo Luna, the $100,000 Boy of the St. Louis Cardinals, is making the most of his pitching assignments for Rochester Red Wings in International League.

Buffalo pitched Saturday night's contests for Rochester and moved to within one game of the league-leading Toronto Maple Leafs. The other games were postponed because of rain.

The Cards bought Luna during the winter from San Diego of the Pacific Coast League. Then the 23-year-old lefthander showed little to the parent club.

So with the Wings, it has been a different story. The crafty little southpaw has won 11 games while his decision against one setback, scattering seven hits while striking out three and striking out seven.

attracted attention by starting his pitching warmup, then suddenly faked the pitching slab and gradually moving up. He said he thought the change of the plate seem shorter when the game began. But he reported he is starting from the box and then moving back. When and if he settles on Joe he doesn't pick and choose between doctors.

England, Scotland May Not Be Represented in World Soccer

By JEFF RYAN.
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Sixteen soccer teams, ice cream of what is probably the most widely-played game in the world, begin the World Cup competition in Switzerland in June. The prospect of teams representing England and Scotland aren't considered too bright.

The critics claim that England's players are either too young or too old and that the Scots are off form. Their international records tend to bear out the theory.

At the worst, it's hoped that both will gain experience for future World Cup competitions—games are held every four years—but that England will do better than in 1950 when as favorite she was humbled 1-0 by the United States.

BY FOUR GOALS

Four groups of four countries each start the first round. Each group produces two teams to carry on in the quarter-finals starting June 26. The final is July 4.

The teams, besides those from the British Isles, are Austria, Belgium, Brazil, Czechoslovakia, Italy, France, Mexico, South Korea, Turkey, Switzerland, West Germany and Yugoslavia. Hungary, the Olympic champions, and Uruguay, the defending champion, will also be on hand.

The games will be played in stadia at Bern, Basel, Geneva, Lausanne and Zurich. England's competition in the World Cup has been short and successful.

The trophy was introduced in 1930, but the British group resigned from the federation of the International Football Associations, which organizes the games, two years earlier on a question of payments to amateur players.

POST-WAR SERIES

In 1950, four years after Britain rejoined the FIFA, the first post-war World Cup series was played. Uruguay eventually won the trophy that year.

The British Soccer celebrates its 50th anniversary this year, contests what must be the largest global sporting group. There are almost 30,000 clubs under FIFA rule in British Isles and members abound in 82 other countries. Individual membership is estimated to total more than 50,000,000.

Hungary will field the team that has thrashed England twice in two years. Last year the Hungarians tumbled England's 90-year unbeaten home record and a few days ago administered a 7-1 whipping at Budapest. Yugoslavia, which recently beat England 1-0, will have a strong team, not to mention the South American teams which have good records against touring English squads.

ORFU Moguls Hopeful Redskins Will Stay In

TORONTO (CP)—Officials of the Ontario Rugby Football Union said Friday they are hopeful that Brantford Redskins will post a $5,000 bond and stay in the league for the 1954 season.

But they said they have received no official word from Brantford officials on a working agreement between the Redskins and Ottawa Rough Riders of the Big Four.

The agreement was announced at Ottawa and Brantford earlier Friday under which the Redskins would receive financial and player aid in return for Ottawa option on Brantford players.

ORFU officials said they had not received the bond by Friday's deadline. They said they did not know whether an extension would be granted.

AT THE McCARTHY

Even the snakes in Hollywood are temperamental.

In Columbia's Pictures' "The Nebraskan," outdoor epic filmed in color by Technicolor and now at the McCarthy Theatre, a scene called for a three-foot rattlesnake to slither into the box of Phil Carey, playing an Army coat.

For a month prior to shooting the sequence, Wesley Dickinson, who specializes in trained reptiles for movie stars, kept the rattler in a box, duplicate of the one to be used by Carey. Each time he Columbia's wardrobe department was too strong for the snake. When the compound was wiped off, the snake emoted and the scene went through without a hitch!

Seen with Carey are Roberta Haynes and Wallace Ford.

AT THE CAPITOL—Beverly Michaels and Richard Egan in a dramatic love scene from "Wicked Woman", Clarence Greene-Russell Rouse production which opens Monday at the Capitol Theatre through United Artists release. HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Some hands just holler out loud to be taken to a slam. Those who take pity on this appeal are sometimes sorry. But they hate to overlook the gain of the ones that deserve the try.

There was the tournament deal you see here:

NORTH
♠Q J 8 7 3
♥A 3
♦K 3 2
♣A 6

WEST
♠8
♥Q J 10 9
♦7 6 4
♣J

EAST
♦K 10 9 8
♣9 7 5 4 3 2

SOUTH
♠A K 6 4 3
♥K 7
♦A Q 7 6
♣K 8

Bidding at most tables went like this:

South	North
1 Spade	3 Spades
4 No-Trump	6 Clubs
6 Spades	Pass

The jump assist by north is a promise of five tricks because it promised an agreed trump suit in a major. This comes from the fact that an opening one bidder promises at least five tricks.

The fact that the jump was immediate also gave the promise of two sure tricks in the hand of the responder. Of course, the fact that it was an answer also promised adequate support for spades.

In answer to four no-trump, six clubs is my convention for two aces and no kings. With a king missing, south did not bid seven.

At a couple of tables, west made a quick attempt to block the traffic. Over the opening of one spade he threw in a pre-emptive call of four hearts. But this did not change the final bid. Opening lead from west was heart queen. Declarer could see in a hurry there were no losers in anything but diamonds. If opponents are split three-two and the finesse works, the contract is in.

However, it was just too bad for those who used this play on the first diamond round. Finding east with four diamonds, they had to give up two diamond tricks in the end. Down one.

At least one table made the contract. He did it when east played small on the first diamond lead. Figure out how he did it.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes, and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SUNDAY, MAY 30TH, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Hold that sentence, that retort! Will it hurt needlessly? Or will it lead to bickering and wasting time explaining later? Start day the best way—at church; pray sincerely for the oppressed.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — If tired of the same activities or routine, try some new diversion in order to relax. But don't discard old methods and good habits just for the sake of variety. Be sturdily purposeful.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — There are small items that together make a powerful whole, and none of them in themselves are seemingly important—but just leave them out and see! Review for better methods today.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Get out of bed on the "right" side, and stay on that side. Don't get your blood pressure up fretting over others' ingratitudes or dispositions or moods. Keep yours in order and keep smiling.

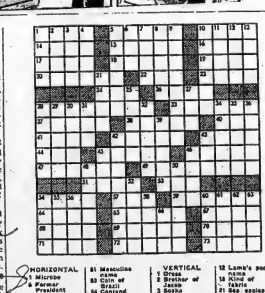
July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Doing everything the best way you know how, and not dwelling upon "how others are treating me" is important now. Remember the little-dos and don'ts and the big ones will be easier.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — If you have enjoyed doing things during the week, turn as hopefully and determinedly to church services and the blessings they bring. Ask loved ones their opinions; listen well; take suggestions.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Relax, reduce strain. Attend your church, pray earnestly for world peace: All ages have found that prayer is the most potent weapon against tyranny.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Mind what you say, and how you say it. We all could avoid many unpleasant discussions and decisions could we heed this simple rule. Also, for Scorpio: Don't dwell fretfully over the past.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — You may have found yourself pressed for time, may have had many demands made upon you in the recent past. If so, take today's free hours for rest and diversion. But no real idling! Pray.



December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Forgotten something? Review for safety's sake. Think also about the "little" blessings that go, with daily living in the land we enjoy. Go to church in gratitude; don't overdo pleasures.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — It is much the same for most of us today but, naturally, personal habits and requirements will prove a definite influence. Evaluate carefully; indulge only in the worthwhile; start right at church.

Feabruary 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — We do not all accomplish what we set out to but how we work, think and react along the way are important factors in building a happy future—for ourselves and others.

YOU BORN TODAY have many diversified talents, an abundance of vitality, energy for countless activities. You can handle more than one undertaking at a time, but herein be cautious: You can wear down energies and resources by your very ability to do so much. Always try to finish one task ably before undertaking another. Curb hasty words; they may hurt. Develop your imagination and sensitivity.

Chile Players Insist On 'Hard Courts'

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The Chilean Tennis Federation says Chile will insist that the American zone first round Davis Cup tennis contest between Chile and Canada, to be held June 8-11, be played on hard courts instead of the grass courts the Canadians prefer.

The Chilean players who will face the Canadians are Luis Ayala, participating in Los Angeles, California and Ricardo Balbiers, who is in New York.

The federation said the Davis Cup rules provide that the country that wins the drawing may choose the brand of ball to be used in the matches and the type of court. Chile was winner in the drawing.

The Chileans are fixed to playing on clay courts and the Canadians usually play on grass.

In Montreal Harry Marpole, president of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association, confirmed that the Chileans have insisted on playing on the tie on hard courts but that Canada has objected.

He said the hard surface is used it will put Lorne Main and Bob Bedard, likely singles choices for Canadian team, at a disadvantage as they plan to play at Wimbledon the weeks before the Davis Cup matches.

If they can not reach agreement, the United States Lawn Tennis Association, which is in charge of North American zone play, would have to decide the issue.

Canada is a member of the Chile at the Toronto Cricket Club July 8-10.

Sport in Brief

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Pfullins, Canadian senior basketball champions, have received an invitation to compete in the second annual Pan American world basketball championship at Rio de Janeiro in October, it Pfullins officials and manager Al Carlson says they intend to make "every effort" to do so. It would be the first time a Canadian team has participated.

AUSSIES-YANKS MEET

PARIS (AP)—Americans Tony Trabert and Vic Seixas, disposed of one Australian doubles combination in the quarter-finals of the French international tennis tournament Friday and earned the right to see Australia's No. 1 team, Lew Hoad and Ken Rosewell, in the final.

Football Games May Replace Grandstand Show

TORONTO (CP)—Hiram McCallum, general manager of the Canadian National Exhibition, said Thursday that exhibition football games between such teams as Calgary Stampeders, Toronto Argos, Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Montreal Alouettes may replace the usual CNE grandstand show this year.

He made the announcement following a special two-hour meeting with Robert Saunders, CNE president, Mayor Allan Lamport and Jack Arthur, CNE grandstand show producer.

The meeting was held to discuss the jurisdictional stalemate between the Toronto Musicians Union and the American Guild of Variety Artists which threatens to block production of the planned grandstand show starring singing cowboy star Roy Rogers and his troupe.

"Football may be the answer," Mr. McCallum said. "We are on the spot right now and are scraping our heads for ideas."

At the same time Marpole said that the question of grass or clay courts is still to be decided definitely but added that there is no deadlock between the Chilean federation and ourselves" we are simply discussing the pros and cons."

Russians Say They Explored Africa First

LONDON (Reuters) — The Russians claimed today they had discovered documents showing their explorers were among the first white men to go into darkest Africa.

The Soviet news agency Tass said Ivan Babkov in a lecture at the Russian Geographical Society in Leningrad told of the documents, unknown until now, revealing Russians visited African tribes as early as 1617.

In that year Vasily Gagara, a merchant, visited the dark continent, Babkov said. In 1728 Vasily Grigorovich-Barsky made many observations in remote areas of Egypt.

One of "the most remarkable travellers" in Africa, Tass reported, was Yegor Kovalevsky, who in the middle of the 19th century described the culture and the "social regime" of a number of African tribes.

Injured Climber Snatched From Death by Squad

Broke Hip May 16th In 1,000-Foot Fall

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — A rescue has fired eight secret mercy-rescue team of eight expert mountain climbers cat-stepped its way down the ice-covered side of Mt. McKinley to-day, carrying an injured soldier safely to safety.

Strapped tightly to a sled was Pfc. George Argus of Brooklyn, N.Y., whose hip was broken May 16 in a 1,000-foot fall that killed two companions, Corporal Carter, 21, of Reedsboro, Vt.

Argus, 21, left in an improvised tent May 23 by two other climbers who survived the fall, was found Sunday morning by Dr. John McCall of the University of Alaska and Frank Miller of the U.S. Air Force.

The two who survived the fall continued down the mountain and Les Viereck — left Argus wrapped warmly in the small tent at the 11,000-foot level on McKinley, while they made their way to civilization. Today the rescue report the tragedy.

McCall and Milan, rapidly outdistanced the other five members of the ground party Sunday and Saturday after Argus' tent was spotted from the air, succeeded in a desperate bid to beat death to Argus' side and reached the tripplied climber at 10:10 a.m. (5:10 p.m. EDT) Sunday.

To a small air force plane flying overhead they radioed:

"Mission accomplished."

PERILOUS DESCENT

The tent, a small dot on a vast expanse of white, was found near the edge of a bowl at the head of Muldrow glacier.

They got Argus on to a point where he can be picked up by helicopter, which can't operate at high altitudes, the rescue party must take him on a sled down the side of the mountain to the glacier.

At the end of the glacier, the rescuers are faced with more crevasses, ice-covered cliffs and rock outcroppings, all of which add to the dangers they face.

Although it took McCall and Milan about four hours to make the last miles to the tent Sunday, the return will be a much harder job. The rescuers must constantly keep before them the plight of Argus, who has a fractured hip and cannot stand pressure on the small of his back. He will never have to walk.

Below the glacier at Gunsite pass, Argus will be picked up by an air force helicopter for a flight to rescue headquarters at Anchorage.

The ill-fated expedition to climb Mt. McKinley, at 20,269 feet the highest mountain in North America, can continent, started April 17.

French Have Enough Forces To Defend All of Red Delta

By LARRY ALLEN

HANOI, Indo-China (AP) — The French high command rushed strengthening of the Red river delta defenses today following orders from Paris to defend the entire strategic area.

With reinforcements on hand and en route, a high command spokesman said the French will have all necessary means to counter any attack that might be launched by the Communist-led Vietminh.

The command also announced the rebels had withdrawn to the French medical personnel captured at Dien Bien Phu. They were scheduled to be evacuated today by helicopter from the Dien Bien Phu area to French lines.

MAY BE JUNE THRUST

The spokesman said the French command was planning the defense of the delta despite possibility the rebels might launch a vast assault by mid-June.

The French were sure that if the Vietminh do not attack within the next two or three weeks, the chances are they will not stage any big offensive before the hot summer. The French contend the rebels will find it almost impossible to launch an all-out assault in July new offensive strategy.

and August because of the heavy monsoon rains.

The Vietminh have four divisions in the region around the French smashed Dien Bien Phu. They also are believed to have about 100,000 guerrilla fighters inside the delta area. The Vietminh troops moving toward the delta defenses are being hammered by French fighter and bombers. Some 90 bulk of the rebel forces is reported about 90 miles west of Hanoi, with advance units further along.

DELTA IS KEY POSITION

The French seem to have been reinforcing the delta defences since the fall of Dien Bien Phu May 7. Already the equivalent of two light divisions have arrived or will arrive shortly to bolster the 80 battalions of French Union troops now inside the delta. That area, rich in rice, means the rice manpower, could furnish the Vietminh with a big supply. Even the seven-year-old war if they should conquer it.

It was reported in Saigon, meanwhile, the United States has been considering the evacuation of the contingents of the Viet Namese national army. The U. S. training proposal was said to be conditioned on the adoption by France of a new offensive strategy.

Four Children Are Killed By Tornadoes in Nebraska

NORFOLK, Neb. (AP)—Tornadoes cut a swath across northeast Nebraska Sunday night, killing four children and injuring a dozen to 18 other persons.

The list of dead was revised downward this morning when hospital attendants accounted for all members of the Ben Kohl family.

All the deaths and injuries were in an area about two miles wide and four miles long some 10 miles southeast of here. Torrential rains made slick roads impassable and highways were reported blocked in three places.

One tornado from the southwest hit the Kohl farm about 10:18 p. m. (CDT), killing six-year-old George and eight-year-old Robert and injuring Kohl and two other children.

Then it jumped three miles east to the Weldon Rakowsky farm, killing Cindy Carberry, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Carberry of Norfolk and injuring 12 other persons, apparently attending a Memorial Day family gathering.

The tornado hopped across the highway to the Lawrence Klawonn farm, killing Neil Klawonn, 8, and injuring four others. The farmhouse was levelled.

Victim of Crash Was Luftwaffe Pilot Report

TORONTO (CP)—The Telegram says today in a newspaper story that a photograph published by the paper in 1945 showing Flying Officer Karl Martin, 27, of Hamilton, killed in a plane crash near Sharbot Lake Saturday, was a Dornier bomber pilot who escaped from the German prison of war barracks in Kapuskasing.

The escape took place in 1945. Martin is believed to have returned from Germany last month.

The paper said it had identification as an escaped prisoner was made when Hamilton police discovered several photos in his personal effects of Martin in the uniform of a Luftwaffe flying officer.

Police said they were satisfied Martin was the same man as the one shown in the newspaper photo.

Search Number Private Homes In Guatemala

GUATEMALA (AP) — Unconfirmed reports today said Guatemalan government authorities have unearthed an armed subversive plot and are searching a number of private homes.

At least four persons are reported to have been given asylum in the 12 Salvador embassy here and another was said to have taken refuge in the Ecuadoran legation.

There was no confirmation from either government sources or diplomatic missions.

ALL QUIET

The reports came after tension had built up in the Central American capital. Expected week-end disturbances over the removal of the country's Communist Party from the job as party secretary-general failed to materialize.

The party announced Saturday that Jose Manuel Fortuny had been relieved of the secretary-general's post because of illness. The move also dropped him from the National Democratic Front, which leads the government coalition.

The United States has accused the leftist government of receiving arms shipments from behind the Iron Curtain.

TORONTO (CP) — Police said Sunday they have caught William Francois Lynch, 26, one of seven men who escaped from the state penitentiary at Norfolk, Mass., May 25.

They said Lynch was identified at a roadblock set up to watch for questioning after finding him sitting in a car on the lake front Saturday night.

The detective, Victor Henderson, said the man was charged and Lynch for tossing a sandwich wrapping on the street and became suspicious when he saw the car radio was missing and a home-made dagger resting across the ash tray.

Police said Lynch has been charged with car theft and placed in deportation cells here pending the arrival of FBI agents from Boston.

Aircraft Took Off In Bad Weather

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A small plane crashed into a log and shallow water of the Mississippi river about 40 miles north of here Saturday, killing all three men aboard.

The victims were found by two residents. The single-engine aircraft was upside down. Only its tail showed above the water.

The dead:

Pilot Lloyd Shanks Jr., 21, Anton Martin, 23, and Robert Alderman, 24, the pilot. All were from Hamilton.

Cause of the crackup is not known. The aircraft took off from Hamilton's Mount Hope airfield in bad weather. Farmers living near the isolated section of the river said they heard a motor sputtering and then a crash.

BODIES FOUND.

Martin and Alderman were thrown from the wreckage. Their bodies were found on the muddy bottom of the river. Shanks was found in the front end of the aircraft. The log was about 100 yards downstream.

The victims were headed for a meeting of the Canadian Society of Pilot's Association at Carp, about 20 miles east of Ottawa. The pilot, Shanks, who was claimed another victim had not John Kershaw, 19, of Hamilton, was going to go on the trip, been a few minutes late for the take-off hour.

The four-passenger plane took off at 9.45 a.m., a few minutes after the other aircraft from the same airport returned to the airfield because of poor flying conditions.

The aircraft, a high-winged monoplane, was owned by the Brant-Norfolk Flying Club.

Gaullist Deputy Accepts Post In Indo-China

PARIS (Reuters) — Gaullist deputy Raymond Schmittlein, 53, today accepted the appointment as secretary for Premier Joseph Laniel to socialists, secretary of state for the Associated States of Indo-China, who resigned Sunday.

Schmittlein told reporters after talks with Laniel he will reconsider his acceptance after seeing Gaullist leaders this afternoon.

Schmittlein, also a Gaullist deputy, had been secretary of state for the Associated States until April 12 June. He was known to have disagreed with government policy on Indo-China on a number of occasions.

But Jacquet told Laniel he was resigning because a letter written by himself agreeing to the publication of his personal criticisms of government policy had been found during a police search of a newspaper office Thursday.

Son of Minister Accused of Murder Hears Father Deliver Sunday Sermon

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A minister delivered a sermon often in his sermon as emotion overcame him, preached Sunday on adult responsibility, then disclosed 10 days ago accused of murder. He is the father of his son.

After Rev. Luther B. Osborne, as is customary at the end of his sermons, called for professions of faith, many in his emotion-charged congregation began crying.

The son, Luther, 17, and Jerry Wills, 18, are accused of beating Julian Vega, 63, cafe-bar owner, to death with a pool cue the night of May 21.

Several times the pastor referred directly to his son, out on bail pending trial.

He listed these as his views on the cause of juvenile delinquency: Lack of parental love; being called the devil; parents' failure to correct and other parents' failure; making of association of "teen agers" into conventions.

"I think more in terms of parental delinquency than of juvenile delinquency," he said.

"Every one of us, including myself, were too busy, too pre-occupied, with material things and selfish motives to give youngsters the love and attention they have they needed 12 years ago."

Secret Report On Reserve Army Will Not Be Made Public

PCs Force Vote on Issue And Are Defeated 80-41

OTTAWA (CP)The Commons today defeated by 80 to 41 a Progressive Conservative bid to have a secret report on the reserve army made public.

The PC party forced a vote on the issue after Associate Defence Minister Campney said the government could not accept a motion by John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) that the report be laid before Parliament.

Clarie Gillis (CCF—Cape Breton South) sided with the Liberals in opposing the motion. Progressive Conservatives were supported by other CCF members, the Social Credit group, Paul Gagnon (Independent Conservative) and Raoul Poulin (Ind—Beauce).

The report was submitted to Defence Minister Claxton several months ago following more than a year of investigation by three senior officers. Their recommendations for changes in the reserve army were requested by LL-Gen. Guy Simonds, chief of the general staff.

The division came shortly after the Commons opened the first of its morning sittings called in an attempt to speed Parliament's work.

Mr. Campney said the reserve army had been built up in accordance to Gen. Simonds to help him and the government in formulating defence policy. As such it was a privileged document and the subject to be tabled at the call Parliament.

Mr. Diefenbaker started to say that the government's attitude was "to impose arbitrarily a blackout of information. . . ." His statement was interrupted by Speaker Rene Beaudoin, who said Commons rules prohibited debate on the motion.

Mr. Claxton said he will tell the House later what the report recommended and what is being done to implement suggestions.

Luxembourg's Co-Operation Assured by Vote

LUXEMBOURG (AP)—Returns from Luxembourg's parliamentary election counted by mid-Tuesday that the little grand duchy will continue its policy of full co-operation in such European organizations as NATO, the European coal-steel community and the proposed European army.

Semi-official returns from the Sunday election gave premier-foreign minister Joseph Bech's conservative party a commanding majority, 26 of the 52 seats in the legislative body, a gain of five seats.

All other parties lost ground. The Socialists, who had supported with the Social Christians in the last government, won 14 seats but remained the country's second party with 17. The Liberals won six seats, a gain of one. The Communists lost one seat and won none.

Observers expect the government alliance of Social-Christians and Socialists to continue, but with more ministerial portfolios going to the larger party.

What Is It, Dander, Doose Grake or Guck?

HUTTON, England (Reuters)—Charles Franks is a little confused about what to call the latest addition to his barnyard.

He was hatched by a hen. But its father was a gander, and its mother was a duck.

It has the neck and head of a duck and the body and beak of a goose.

Friends have all promised to name it a dander, a doose, a grake and a guck.

Pope Once Again Works Long Day

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Pope's appointments fully recovered from his long winter's illness, again is working 12 or more hours daily.

Tuesday he will receive in series of ceremonies connected with the canonization of Pius X, the pontiff received cardinals, archbishops and bishops gathered here from over the world for the event.

More than 40 cardinals and more than 200 archbishops and bishops heard the Pope address them in Latin in the Vatican's Benedictine Hall.

The prelates congratulated the Pope on his recovered health and on his own saint's day anniversary, that of St. Eugene, which falls on June 2.

The Pope presided Sunday at a solemn pontifical mass for St. Pius X. After the long ceremony he appeared at the portal of the basilica to give his blessing to a cheering crowd in St. Peter's square.

APPEARS EIGHT TIMES

He also appeared at the basilica's central loggia to give his blessing to the city and the world. He appeared eight several times during the day to give his blessing—from the window of his Vatican office and authority of the church.

In his address to the prelates today, the Pope recalled that Pius X during his lifetime reaffirmed Catholic doctrine against the errors of modern scientific discoveries.

The Pope said that the church esteems and favors scientific study and that students in all fields, he said, is exclusively within the apartment.

Charges Pending Against Driver Of One Vehicle

A Hamilton woman, Mrs. Thomas Stevenson, suffered severe head lacerations and ten other persons suffered minor cuts and shock in a three-car collision on No. 2 Highway, west of Belleville, Saturday night.

Two persons were taken to the Belleville Hospital in Bush's ambulance, but one was allowed to go home following treatment. Jack Denny, Brighton, driver of one of the cars was later admitted to hospital for observation, by Thompson's ambulance.

Police said the accident occurred shortly after 9 o'clock Saturday night near Jones Creek, three miles west of the city.

Denny was westbound with one others adult and four children in the car, when his vehicle collided with an eastbound car driven by Thompson Ross, R.R. 3, Trenton. The Denny car then went out of control and struck the Stevenson car, which was also eastbound following Ferguson.

Mrs. Marcotte, left the road and after crashing into the tree bounced back onto the highway.

Three Anglers Cling Hour To Swamped Boat

Three Cleveland anglers spent an anxious hour clinging to an overturned boat in Bay of Quinte on Sunday afternoon, before they were rescued by a fourth American.

Fritz Kushner, C. T. Splaik and V. Weikel, spent half way between Big Island and Goose Island, when their fish-laden punt was swamped by the seas piled up by a stiff wind. The boat upset. As they were clinging to it, their plight was noticed by Mrs. W. G. Rowland of Belleville, who has a cottage in the vicinity. She telephoned Lake Ontario Camp, where the Cleveland anglers were staying. A rescue boat set out, but before it reached the scene, the three men had been picked up by Paul K. Lobdell of Newburgh, N.Y.

Mr. Lobdell had two companions with him in his craft, but fortunately it was large enough to take the additional three passengers with safety. Rescue operations were in expert hands, for Mr. Lobdell had served for seven years in the United States Coast Guard.

The three Cleveland anglers were none the worse physically for their experience, but they were $300 poorer. They lost fishing equipment valued at that figure when the boat upset.

Work Resumed On New Highway

With the return of fine weather work on the construction of the new four-lane highway between Belleville and Trenton has been resumed by the McFarland Construction company.

Right of way for the east half of the ten-mile stretch of highway was opened last year by the contractor and some grading was done west of Centenary. This spring grading has been resumed as between Centenary and No. 14 highway.

At Centenary and at the No. 14 end of the new four-lane highway the fences are now being moved back to provide room for the cloverleafs which are to be built.

Construction of the cloverleaf at Centenary will mean moving of the public school there. The school has been purchased by the highways department and the Centenary Trustee board has built a two-room school which is expected to be open for classes in September.

Holy Name Society District Rally Packs Memorial Arena

Close to 2000 members of the 18 Holy Name Societies in the eastern section of the Archdiocese of Kingston participated in a regional Holy Name Society rally held in the Belleville Memorial Arena Sunday night.

The rally, held in honor of The Blessed Virgin Mary, filled the arena packed the arena with well over 4,000 Holy Name men and parishioners from Belleville and district. This is the third and final rally to be held in the diocese, others being held previously at Brockville and Napanee.

A parade of parish societies preceded the rally, marchers assembling on the grounds of St. Michael's Academy at 7.30 and moving off at 8 o'clock. Direction of parade marshal Maurice Callaghan.

The route of march was down Church street to Victoria, along Victoria to Front and down to Market street and thence into the arena.

REVIEWED MARCHERS.

His Grace, Most Rev. J. A. O'Sullivan, D.D., Archbishop of Kingston, reviewed the marchers from a reviewing stand on the lawn of St. Michael's convent on Victoria road. Seated on the reviewing stand were Rt. Rev. P. F. Butler, D.D., Peterborough; Rt. Rev. E. M. Leacy, D.P. V.F., Napanee, Rt. Rev. Lee Byrne, D.P., Kingston, and Very Rev. J. J. Garvin, P.P., V.F., Belleville.

The Belleville Municipal Band and the Kingston Boys' Band accompanied the parade.

Those taking part in the parade were from Batawa, Flinton, Marysville, Marmora, Madoc, Picton, Tweed, Stoco, Stirling, Read, Trenton, Deseronto and the three parishes in Belleville — St. Michael's, St. Joseph's and Queen of the Holy Rosary's. Members of the clergy marched with their parish societies.

KNIGHTS HEAD PARADE

Fourth degree Knights of Columbus, wearing their colorful regalia, headed the parade.

The official welcome was given by Archbishop O'Sullivan —who said that the gathering was the fitting climax to the Marian Year rallies held under his auspices in the Holy Name Societies. He warmly congratulated all parishes for their showing and expressed appreciation to the sisters from Brockville and Kingston for their assistance.

He had a special word of appreciation for the 4th degree Knights of Columbus who, he said, had "added dignity and color" to the three rallies.

The Archbishop said the rally was the church's way of proclaiming Mary's sinless conception. Her sinless was sinless, because she was destined to be the mother of Christ.

NEED MOTHER'S PRAYER

"We need a mother's prayer, especially in these troubled days," the Archbishop went on. "We need to imitate Her. That is the message in the Marian Year."

The sermon —was delivered by the Right Reverend P. F. Butler, D.P., of Sacred Heart Church, Peterborough, who noted that the great public assembly at the arena was formed a rally.

"The word rally has a military significance in that it is a gathering to regain strength and vigor to re-engage the enemy," he said.

Also the rally was like the gathering of a clan—its members were united folk, united in the same faith and in the same ecclesiastical authority.

HONOR BIRTH OF CHRIST

The clan gathered to honor the heroes and heroines of faith, the purpose of this particular gathering to honor the birth of Christ.

The speaker warned against the enemy of immortal souls who could be as subtle as the serpent in the Garden of Paradise, who could be fully possessive, who was a false prophet and a master destroying agent, chance for elec-deceiver, and whose purpose was real happiness.

Against this enemy all Christians gathered, their purpose to follow the pattern of Christ. Christ is the only mediator between God and man. He is the Way, the Truth and the Light.

Calling on his listeners to honor Mary Mother of Christ, Father Butler asserted that when God chose to become Man, He also chose to have a mother. Mary gave Christ to the world.

SPECIAL ALTAR ERECTED

A special altar centred with Mary's statue and a backdrop of St. Peter's in Rome, was erected across the south end of the arena while the lights in St. Joseph's parish era placed on the dais.

Framing the altar were five living tableaux of outstanding events in the life of the Blessed Virgin, presented by pupils from Belleville's Separate Schools.

The tableaux presented were "The Historical Rosary," by Holy Rosary School; "The Mother of God," by St. Michael's Academy; "The Virgin Mary" by St. Joseph's School; "The Immaculate Conception," by St. Michael's Academy, and "The Assumption" by St. Michael's High School.

The tableaux were directed by the Sisters of the House of Providence, who also decorated the altar.

CHOIR OF PUPILS

Pupils of Belleville's Separate Schools made up the choir, which filled the entire southeast quarter of the arena seating section. Music was provided by the electric organ of St. Michael's Convent. The public address system was supplied for the rally by the Stewart-Warner Alemite Corporation.

Public recitation of the Rosary was led by Rev. J. A. Carey, English secretary of the Canadian Catholic Conference of Bishops, and formerly a curate at St. Michael's Church.

Members sang by the children's choir included "Queen of Joy" and "Thou Art All Fair, O Mary." "Ave Maria" by Gounod and "Hail Holy Queen Enthroned Above" were sung by the entire assembly. Rev. W. P. Healey led the Public School System Prayer.

Chairman of the regional committees was Very Rev. Dean R. S. Garvin, pastor of St. Michael's Church, assisted by Rev. J. J. Crowley, St. Joseph's Parish; Rev. Michael Simson, Holy Rosary, and Rev. Peter Murphy, St. Michael's.

Rally chairman was Ernest Coleman, St. Michael's Holy Name Society. Officers of committees were: Maurice Callaghan, parade marshal; Robert Kitchen, guard of honor; Edward Sabaday, ushers; Harry Percy Brant, reviewing stand; Allan Meagher, bands; Jack Chapelle, parking; Harold Brown, ushers; Ed. Buckley, lighting; S. Kvarda and E. Wardhaugh, pictorial illustrations; George Whalen and Harry O'Neill.

Salvation Army Drive Reaches Half-Way Mark

With approximately half the allotted quota of $8,000 collected, and the end of the campaign in sight, campaign committee members of the Salvation Army Red Shield drive, today urged canvassers to redouble their efforts to cover their various territories. Those who have not been approached by canvassers and wish to forward their donations can do so by sending them to the campaign headquarters at the Salvation Army Citadel, Pinnacle Street.

The "Sally Ann" as it was lovingly dubbed by veterans of two world wars, and none knows its good works better than battle-scarred veterans of these conflicts, always stands ready with a helping hand.

Many times during the course of a year do the sick and needy, the unfortunates and those who perhaps have strayed by the wayside come to the "Army" for assistance. Never, are they turned away empty-handed.

The familiar uniform of the Army, the bonnets of the lassies or peasy Funeral Home, where service in the chapel was conducted by Rev. Everett Smith, of Christ Church. Interment was in Ellis cemetery.

The bearers were: William Canning, Jack Canning, Jack Symmons, Alex. Wardaugh, Ron Bunnett and Fred Symons.

Auto Accidents Do $1,750 Damage

Property damage amounting to about $1,750 resulted in the city Sunday as result of two auto mishaps, one at the intersection of Front and Bridge streets, and the other at the corner of Cannifton Road and Station streets.

Mrs. Mabel McNaughton, wife of General McNaughton of Rockcliffe, driving south on Cannifton Road had stopped for the stop sign before entering Station street when her car was struck from the rear by an auto driven by Grant Dingman of Stirling. Damage amounting to about $500 to each vehicle resulted, while Lorraine Dingman, 18, of Stirling, suffered shock.

Sunday morning autos driven by Basil Williams of Peterborough, and Norma Hunter, of Fredericton, N.B., collided at the corner of Front and Bridge streets with $350 damage resulting to each vehicle. Wilma Hunter, aged 5, suffered a cut over the left eye.

St. John Ambulance Cadets Hold Annual Inspection

The St. John Ambulance Cadets held their annual inspection at Prince Charles School, Thursday evening under the direction of their superintendent, Mrs. C. D. Ashley, and Mrs. H. Reid, cadet officer.

Mrs. Ashley has been superintendent of Nursing Cadets since 1945 and has just recently formed a Boys' Ambulance Division, which was well represented at the inspection.

The Nursing Cadets in their grey uniforms with white organdy cuffs and veils looked smart and efficient as they lined up on the floor to be inspected by Mrs. R. H. Back, Provincial Cadet Nursing Officer, of London, Ont.

The program was interesting as well as entertaining to parents and guests, who watched the cadets in competition in first aid and home nursing. There were three first aid teams who were judged by Mrs. Mack, and Dr. R. D. Knox. They were efficient in their knowledge of how to administer first aid to the injured. Equally efficient were the three home nursing teams who were judged by Mrs. Back and Mrs. E. Enright, Reg. N.

Demonstrations of proficiency badge work were enacted in skits by the girls and certainly showed how adept they were in child welfare if called upon in an emergency, by making baby formulas, bathing and dressing the baby and taking care of the home until the mother returned.

ANIMAL CARE

The care of animals was especially interesting because the model was a real dog, who is the Cadet mascot "Butch." He played his part well in allowing himself to be muzzled while his paw was washed, padded and bandaged.

The girls also showed remarkable ability in their fire-fighting skill and the quickness in which they rescued patients who were overcome by smoke from a burning building and revived them with the new Holger Nelson method of artificial respiration, brought rounds of applause from the audience.

Note only are the cadets well trained in home nursing and first aid but also showed their versatility in physical exercise and folk dancing and singing.

Refreshments were prepared and served by the cadets to their parents and guests.

The program was brought to a close with the presentation of First Aid certificates by Mrs. H. Back to the following:

Beryl Wager, Joan Kimmett, Joan Mary Reid, Patricia Squire, Beverley Squire, Mary O'Neill, Marlene O'Neill, Caroline Fox, Sandra Pridmore, Sherian Titterton, Sheron Trapnell, Donella Anderson, Patricia Jenkins, Janet Langabeer, Delva Power, Donna Lagasse, Carolyn Day, Patricia Way, Gerald Fox, Lorne Hall, Ian Scott, Eugene Pearook, John McNally, Dennis Rowbotham, Richard Brant.

Superintendent L. Ashley and Cadet officer M. Reid were presented with their warrants.

Mrs. R. H. Back congratulated Mrs. Ashley on her well-trained division and made particular comment to the Cadets on how lucky they were to have such fine officers.

Belleville should be proud to recognize such a fine youthful organization who are living up to their motices: "Pro-Fide" (for the faith); "Per Utile Hominem" (for the service to mankind).

Penguin Sea Food Restaurant Opens in City

Penguin Sea Foods, Ltd., forced out of business when fire destroyed the former upper Front Street location on January, is re-opening at a new location.

Three weeks to the day the foods firm purchased the Guild restaurant business and this popular downtown eating spot will stay open under new management, a new name and carrying a much wider selection of sea foods. The restaurant will be known as Penguin Sea Foods, the same name as the former location on upper Front Street.

Restaurant manager, Murray Hunter, said the new Penguin Sea Foods fish and chips shop will offer a full line of sea foods, including scallops, shrimps, and lobsters, as well as the ever popular fish and chips. A selection of fowl will be available as well as fried, will be offered. The restaurant specialty, however, will be fish and chips.

The new location of Penguin Sea Foods will have a much larger seating capacity than the former restaurant and will be open for breakfast serving bacon and eggs—the ever-popular breakfast fare.

Mr. Hunter came to the city four years ago when his firm took over the former Bean's Fish and Chips Store. Mr. Hunter is president of Penguin Sea Foods Ltd., which has stores in both Toronto and Barrie. A restaurant in Peterborough is expected to be opened shortly.

Two Canadians Draw Tickets On Favorite

MONTREAL (CP)—A resident of Glace Bay, N. S., and another from Chipawa, Ont., drew Irish Hospital Sweepstakes tickets on Rowston Manor, the favored horse in the Derby at Epsom Downs, Eng., Wednesday.

The tickets are among 65 in Canadian hands for the running. A ticket on the winning horse is worth approximately $140,000. Second place draws $56,000 and third $28,000.

The drawing took place in Dublin and information on Canadian ticket-holders was forwarded by cable to Montreal.

Holders of the two tickets on Rowston Manor, favored at 6 to 1, were identified only as Golly of Chippawa and M. P. S., of Glace Bay.

Three Canadians drew tickets on Darius, second choice in the race at 13 to 2. They are Ginger of Guelph, Rennley of Edmonton, and D. R., of Toronto.

Ferriol, third choice in the race at 17 to 2, has five Canadian backers, including Coming Home and Honey, both of Toronto.

Two have tickets on Landau, the Queen's horse. They are Good Luck of Iberville, Que., and Maggie of Wallaceburg, Que.

Robbers Build Tent Over Safe, Use Torch, Escape With $1,000

Using a canopy made from auto robes to keep in the light, safe robbers Sunday night used an acetylene torch to cut the mechanism from the safe at the Belleville Motor Car Company on Bridge Street West, and escaped with an undetermined amount of cash believed to be in the neighborhood of $1,000.

Police said that cheques had been left in the safe and only cash in bills was taken.

Entry to the garage premises was gained through a small window. Once inside the building the safe-crackers made their way to the office and trundled in the acetylene tanks from the repair department. Then using auto robes they erected a tent over the safe to keep in the flare of the torch and proceeded to cut the combination from the safe door.

The theft was discovered by garage employees shortly after 7 o'clock this morning when an insecure door was found at the garage. The safe breaking job had been done some time after 11.00 o'clock Sunday night as the garage proprietor had left the building at that time.

Chief Protestant Chaplain Dies At Church Parade

IROQUOIS, Ont. (CP) — Col. Cyril G. F. Stone, 53, principal Protestant chaplain to the Canadian Army, collapsed and died during a Canadian Legion church parade here Sunday night.

Col. Stone was stricken with a heart attack as he entered St. John's Anglican church after a quarter-mile parade through this eastern Ontario town and died in the rectory a short time later. He was to have preached at the service at which the Queen's colors were dedicated.

The rector, Rev. Ralph Smith, and Maj. D. L. Fenton, chaplain of Legion Branch 379, continued with the dedication service.

Frank McMahon of Calgary, has backers in Eileen Hryboriw of Hamilton and Tonomo of Toronto. Blue Sail, to be ridden by veteran Johnny Longden, is ranked seventh in the race at 100 to 6.

EVEN CONACHER GREW OLD

The death of Lionel Conacher—"The Big Train" of Canadian sports—at the comparatively early age of 52, was a tragic loss, not only to his family, but to the entire sports family of Canada. There is little that can be said in his obituary that he himself did not write in glorious action in one of the country's most magnificent sports careers.

There is much of value that may be learned from tragedy if the lesson of tragedy is heeded.

Lionel Conacher was almost the invincible athlete. He starred in football, hockey, lacrosse and boxing and was a better than average sculler and swimmer. It is history that on occasion he starred in two or more in his obituary that he himself did not write in glorious action in one of the country's most magnificent sports careers.

There is much of value that may be learned from tragedy if the lesson of tragedy is heeded.

Lionel Conacher was almost the invincible athlete. He starred in football, hockey, lacrosse and boxing and was a better than average sculler and swimmer. It is history that on occasion he starred in two or more top flight athletic events on the same day. He was 36 when he completed his 11-year career in the National Hockey League. Last winter he toured the province playing hockey with the NHL Old Timers' hockey team and he died, as fight have expected, while participating in a sporting contest.

In an active life, that included a political career that started in earnest when he was elected to the Ontario legislature in 1937 and which was continuing at the time of his death as he served in the House of Commons, Lionel Conacher was the very epitome of healthy, vigorous manhood. He was, alas, human.

Running out a triple was merely a trifling physical exertion for Lionel Conacher in his prime. At 52 it killed him.

Here lies a lesson for the man who is aging and still thinks he can compete in vigorous physical games without endangering his well being. The body at 52 is no longer able to adjust to the demands of strenuous activity with the resilience that is one of the characteristics of youth. The strain upon it after a short but relatively lengthy periods of physical inactivity can be, and all too often are, fatal.

As the population ages, and the aging process seems to be retarding, the problems of physical activity among senior citizens become more and more pressing. The urge of spring and summer to get out and play golf on Saturday to play three fast sets of tennis on the hot days of summer, or of spring and fall to easy chair by the fire, or enter the golf club's 36-hole tournament on the first sunny week-end after the greens are mowed, can, in reality, not be the urge of youth. The fountain of youth has never been found. An elixir that will keep aging bodies young, warriors' hearts strong, and bone and sinew as tough as one's will to win, has not been found either.

Growing old gracefully is galling enough to the average man and likely doubly galling to an athlete. But growing old gracefully is the only proven way to grow old. Any other system brings on death prematurely.

Lionel Conacher's great heart served him to the breaking point without giving warning of failing strength. Had it been less sturdy it might have given him adequate warning by falling in lesser endeavors, and might in the long run have saved his life for many more active and fruitful years.

Lionel Conacher, who delighted thousands with his prowess, and who served his country with the same zest as he played sports, may yet, in his untimely death, provide his aging fellow countryman with the ultimate lesson that could prolong their lives.

BUSINESS DISTRICT IMPROVING

Slowly—but nevertheless surely—Belleville's business district is getting its face lifted.

This is of importance to more than businessmen. A city, like an individual, is often judged by appearances. Many a beauty has to teamed with a kindly heart or a brilliant mind. Similarly many a progressive merchant does business in an out-moded building. But the casual acquaintance must be impressed if he is to note the kindliness, the brilliance or the progressive spirit which are so camouflaged.

The individual's reputation rests chiefly on the estimates of his friends, who learn that outward appearances can be deceptive. But a city's reputation is built mainly on the comments of strangers who visit it only briefly. Eye appeal is not a community's most important aspect—but it is still an important one.

Moreover, appearances do influence character. If surroundings are bright and pleasing, we all feel an instinctive duty to match our conduct to them. If a store is drab and dreary, it will require much strength of character for owner and staff to be neat and cheerful.

Belleville, as one of the older centres of population in what is, after all, a comparatively newly-settled province, has many buildings in which the years will only add further character and charm. But not everything that is old is good and what is not good should be replaced.

Nature has given us an unsurpassed landscaping job for our city. If we build well appearances will quickly tell all our visitors the truth about us.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

25 YEARS AGO

MAY 31, 1934.

Mr. Frank Domenico, Mr. Gerald Lynch and Mr. J. Hennessy of this city made a nice catch of pickerel at Moira Lake over the week-end.

Miss Grace Embury and Miss Marjorie Scantlebury, of this city, were among the graduates of the training school for nurses at Kingston General Hospital and will receive their diplomas at the graduation exercises which will be held in Grant Hall at Queen's University shortly.

Mr. and Mrs. Finley Dafoe and children of Detroit, Mich., are spending holidays with the former's sister, Mrs. J. N. Tutts, Cedar Street.

Mr. Nelson Bateman of Oshawa, and Mrs. R. Dafoe of Bronxville, N.Y., are visiting their mother, Mrs. James Bateman, Bridge Street.

Miss Evelyn Y. P. Rice of Belleville graduated as a graduate in nursing at the recent graduation exercises in the Toronto General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Truesdale, Ann Street, are in Lakefield to attend the Association meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary when Truesdale will act as Moderator of the association meeting.

The visiting tennis players champions for second time in the Intercollegiate League. The final match was played at the Recreation Alleys between the Ontario-Intelligencer team and the Teco team. The Ontario-Intelligencer team won and the cup was presented by George Fordyce, the president of the league, to "Cec" Ling, the captain of the Ontario-Intelligencer team. Many kind words were spoken of the genial manager of the league, Leo (Slim) Barrett, for the excellent manner in which the league was operated and all credit for its success was due to his management. Prizes for individual efforts were elected for the following year: honorary president, W. J. Mack; president, George Fordyce; secretary, Newt. Wannamaker.

50 YEARS AGO

MAY 31, 1884.

The long journey on horse back from Belleville to Washington, D.C., was undertaken by Mr. Miss Gwen Lazier of this city, the courier bearing an invitation to the President of the United States to visit Belleville at the time of the United Empire Loyalists celebration here in June. Today Mayor Lazier received a telegram from Miss Lazier stating that she had reached Washington safely and that she had arranged to take the invitation to Belleville back to Belleville and she will return home by train. It is expected that President Cooley will receive the Belleville courier at the White House today as it has been intimated that arrangements have been completed for Miss Lazier's reception. There were many people in this city and elsewhere who felt that Miss Lazier would not be able to complete the journey on horse back. It was said that the horse would give out and that Miss Lazier would find the journey too fatiguing, but such proved to be incorrect. The horse, "Tip" stood up well and Miss Lazier enjoyed the journey, being most hospitably received in many important places by officials and prominent citizens.

The steam yacht, "Where Now" will commence regular trips to Picton tomorrow and on June 1st, leaving Miller's wharf, foot of Wharf Street, at 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. on Monday, Wednesday and Friday. An orchestra will be on board. Special attention will be given to private parties. Capt. E. Clapp is in command of the boat.

Their Royal Highnesses, the Duke of Connaught, the Duchess of Connaught and their daughter Princess Patricia, will make a short time here on June 2nd. The Royal train will arrive at 10.30 a.m. sharp, opposite the court house on Pinnacle Street, where a large platform has been erected on the court house grounds. The reception will be over by 11.30 o'clock and the parade will leave by Pinnacle Street to Bridge Street, thence westerly along West Bridge Street, Commercial Street and Front Road to the Ontario School for the Deaf where a reception will be held for twenty minutes. Returning trip by motor car the same route to George Street, to Dundas Street to the hospital and house of refuge. Leaving these institutions the parade will proceed along Bleecker Avenue to Bridge Street, thence to Front Queen Street, northerly to Pine Street thence to the Grand Trunk Railway station. It is requested that drivers of motor cars do not use these streets for the short time the Royal visitors are in the city as it is desirable to keep the streets free of flying dust. Citizens along the streets named are requested to decorate their premises.

Today the C.P.R. steamship Empress of Ireland lies at the bottom of the St. Lawrence River having been rammed in a dense fog yesterday morning by a heavy laden collier — as the Empress lay to near Father Point awaiting the end of the fog. The crew and passenger list numbered 11,387 and of this number 934 are missing. Among the lost are Commissioner Lessard of the Salvation Army, who was in charge of the Canadian contingent of 60 officers, en route to the Salvation Army Congress in London, England; the octor Laurence Irving, son of Sir Henry Irving, and his wife, also Sir Henry Seton Karr the famous sportsman and big game hunter. The Empress of Ireland was valued at $2,000,000 and her cargo was valued at $250,000. No ocean tragedy in Canada's history has cost so many lives and the shock to others in modern times, the sinking of the Titanic and the burning of the Volturno in mid-Atlantic, have exceeded in the horror cited by the sinking of the Empress of Ireland.

Week-End Ordeals

A week-end is a time for relaxation. Like putting up screens, washing the car, standing in a line at a supermarket, cleaning out the cellar.

Saturday is a day of rest, of communion with nature—cutting grass, digging post holes, patching the roof. Sunday is a day of meditation — painting a ceiling, sanding floors, cutting down a rotten oak.

A week-end is a time to make you go back to the office refreshed—with a lame back, blistered hands and a bill from the hardware store.

Born on Bus, Will Ride Free

(Hamilton Spectator)

A Spanish bus company has announced that a child born on one of its vehicles will travel free for the rest of his life, and this strikes us as a most generous gesture, especially considering the disruption of service that his arrival entailed. (The child's parents, a farm couple, had been on their way to town and knowing Spanish buses we're prepared to bet it was running late in the vicinity of La Canada, bound for the hospital in Tarragona, and had got as far as that town's main square—a pleasant spot at a spring day—when the stork overtook them. The driver parked and put the rest of the passengers off, because we understand it as a voluble scene, with much arm-waving.)

We are wondering, however, whether the bus company's action was a real kindness; whether it may not leave scars on the child's psyche as he grows to manhood. Births in public vehicles—qualify he insists—are rare, and normally they leave no permanent memorial. The locale of little Pedro's nativity may become a gentle family joke, but he doesn't have to grow up to be the playmates and the public at large. This particular child, however, will find that his lifetime pass is a permanent proclamation of his singularity, which is a most appalling unsubtlety of their kind. He will become the Spanish equivalent of Buzz or Son of a Bus or maybe, in the longer grades, Pullman. In later years adults will dream up more ingenious forms of torment to affably bored with the whole business.

It seems to us that there is only one psychological solution open to him: Drive the bus by his horns and become a bus driver.

Wild Things Defend Selves

(St. Thomas Times-Journal).

During the past few days we have noticed a number of news items recording the unexpected behavior of animals and birds.

At Stanley Park, Vancouver, a mounted policeman unwittingly neared a Canada goose's nest, and the gander attacked him and the horse.

In New York a 50-pound Alaskan bobcat slipped its leash in a television show and clawed its owner.

In Santa Monica, Cal., Mrs. Ben Blue, wife of the comedian, was hospitalized when her Russian wolf-hound darted from behind a sofa and she failed to drop the leash. She was slammed into an end table, suffering unconscious, Damage — 14 stitches, broken table and dog leash.

At Bourne, Lincolnshire, England, a woman went to cut a cauliflower for dinner and was driven back by a furious lark which had built its nest among the vegetable. In another part of the country a man who was gardening jacket and was viciously pecked by a little wren which had nested in the pocket of the coat.

Don't think that because an animal or bird is small it cannot put a human that it will not defend itself. Many birds are very brave. They are especially fearless in defence of themselves if they are attacked. Sometimes even a dog or the sheep as a dangerous animal because it does not realize that the amount decided upon. Just Sitting Beats Pills

(Evening News, London, Eng.)

The first Lord Baldwin had a habit, in the days when he was Prime Minister of sitting on the front bench in the House of Commons contemplating with a dreamy detachment his strong, stubby fingers.

This posture used to remind observers of cartoons of Cromwell who was asked what he did with his leisure and replied, "Sometimes I sits and thinks and sometimes I just sits." His political opponents unkindly believed that Lord Baldwin just sat.

Perhaps the place that he chose was a little unsuitable, but what he did—or did not do—had wisdom in its shrewd, homespun countryman's way.

In our turbulent epoch we have largely forgotten how to rest. Some of our critics, of course, suggest that Britain has forgotten how to work too; but the capacity for stillness, for repose, for simply sitting for a bit, put, for—other than a number of elderly country folk — seem to possess or desire necessary.

Yet how salutary a capacity it is! Sitting still on a garden chair in the sunshine or in the evening in front of a crackling fire is really far better than any number of little white sedative tablets, or, indeed, of a good dose of work, fatigue, rest and recaptured quiet. The human life stretch, monotaneous and natural in childhood and youth, many of us forget in maturity.

We are apt to talk a little pompously about "the value of leisure" and sit on committees to see that other people use their leisure properly. Overwork is the chief cause of a coronary thrombosis are often the effects of this incessant activity.

Why get into a sterile, exhausted state of mind? Why not, every now and again, just sit still? It is pointless to be dull by one's moment—not perhaps when the boss has called for an all-out production drive—and recapturing and reaching unheard-of targets.

But at the week-end, when the spring sunlight begins to have some warmth in it, when the first sleepy bees dance drowsily in and out of the fodils, when distant bells rig out, and children's voices call from hill to cill, life's quieter, slower melodies take on a deeper and deeper meaning. Sitting and thinking become—just sitting.

Quebec Folk Take a Hint

(Toronto Star)

It must be nice to be as independent as the Quebecers. So while ago Quebec editors, who evidently check the country's vital statistics as avidly as the weather observer scanning the form sheet, noted that Ontario's share of the total Dominion population was growing faster than Quebec's. This fact, they decided, simply must be reversed. They said the province ought to try to get more immigrants, and immediately.

Well, nobody can say that those Quebecers aren't quick to take the pattern of immigrant distribution hasn't changed much, but in the first quarter of this year the rate of increase. Quebec is gaining fast, and so is Ontario. The total number of births in the first quarter of this year Ontario led all provinces with 30,934. Quebec was second with 30,534. Births in March, Quebec led with 12,557.

Not in this merely a temporary spurt. "Quebec's marriage rate is spectacular fashion," reports Statistician Robert Fraser from Ottawa. "For the first quarter the marriages in Quebec totaled 9,939, but we have been running higher than for the first quarter last year by 15 percent above the 1951-53 average."

That should take care of the Quebecers. Not a single editorial or else the citizens there really have nothing to do but marry and bust out a nickel's worth of sound advice. Either way it must, as we said, be very gratifying to the editors, and a few words of congratulation and encouragement, from them should now be in order.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

CALCIUM AND THE NERVES.

Four of the last six God Bless You letters I have received told of benefits derived from calcium ularly on their steadier "nerves."

Dr. Brady

Even though I am just a one-horse-and-buggy man I have a occasional idea, and today I present one of my late model 'ideas' for you to mull over when or if you stop to wonder why you are so ready and willing to resort to barbiturates, pain killers or some pep-pushing drug on trifling provocation or none at all.

Your weakest link is due, I think, mainly to malnutrition, nutritional deficiency, from which most Americans suffer today. Particularly calcium deficiency.

This isn't just a pipe dream. Sherman said it—Henry C. Sherman, Ph.D., Sc.D., nutritional chemist of Columbia University, and not an authority to be sneezed at lightly than in any other element.

Tell me, if you are sane and sober, why should any normal individual resort to any ache or pain killer, sedative, narcotic, stimulant or other drug in the pursuit of happiness?

Maybe you has what I call vita naturally wants to keep his senses ultra-nutritional diet he may enjoy every minute of life. One well-balanced meal a day—nutrition, the old timers called it) doesn't feel so good and so for him these drugs dull for a while consciousness of inferiority, discomfort, weakness or fatigue, whatever his weakness may be.

One of the functions of calcium in the physiology of every infant, child, youth, mature adult and aged man or woman, as summarized in Sanborn Wright's Applied Physiology (Oxford University Press), is—

"Regulates excitability of nerve fibres and nerve centres."

This is physiology. Cut it out and paste it up where you will see it next time you reach for your barbiturate or liquor.

Best source of calcium is milk and milk products. A quart of good, fresh milk each day does provide approximately 16 grains of calcium — more than enough for the normal daily requirement of an adult, nearly enough for the daily requirement of a healthy teen-age boy or girl.

Most of the calcium in food is not absorbed — but its assimilation by utilization is favored by (a) sunshine vitamin D and (b) acid reaction in the bowel.

VACATION DREAMS

People who boast that they have never taken a vacation have missed one of the great experiences of life. They have been bound up in themselves and only live half a life. There is no more dull and stupid people day in the obituary columns of my newspaper.

The successful vacation is made up of three parts—the dream and anticipation before the journey, route to the place, and the place itself; all must make up the full vacation. It's the change and variety of experiences that make the ideal vacation. New friends to meet, new scenes, interesting books to read, inspiration and communion with Mother Nature, who never let us down.

For twenty years I have gone to my small summer island retreat, but never is it the same. There are always new adventures awaiting me. No two days are alike. I am newly stimulated in mind, heart, and body, and it is always a thrill to welcome friends to my island. There is no dull vacationing alone. There are always a few books that I save for my island retreat, away from the noises and confusion of the city streets. There is a wonderful sense of peace in the heavens.

We get acquainted with our island on a vacation more than at any other time, and other people are more interesting to us. There is plenty of time, too, to meditate upon the wonderful gift of life. It's a time for refreshment of spirit, as well as of body. Many a vacation has been ruined by some new person. Many a song bird's call has been drowned by the noisy and many a flower's perfume fails to "waste its sweetness," for we treasure it in our heart.

Make that vacation of yours memorable. Don't remember—it dream happily fulfilled.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One thing the American thinkers or are working on is how to put into the fabulous flow of traffic, take our places skillfully, and there avoid being killed by the wild machinery in our hands, with enough driving weight behind it to help us kill us deader than flicks if our confidence in ten thousand others is not well placed.

In some particulars, we may be improving. We are more honest in money matters, for example, we're usually very careful not to drop dollars, to lend or borrow a hundred dollars, to buy or sell a house, to choose the person with whom we will buy a refrigerator, we will not even consider, or hardly pause to consider every aspect of the deal.

And so far as our lives are concerned, to back with it. We trust everybody.

Looked Ahead

Once more we are impressed by wonderful, foresighted Nature. Before anybody knew that some day there would be an atomic cloud she designed the mushroom for it to be compared with.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS

HOW DO YOU PLEAD?

At a certain winter resort they have a unique way of estimating the number of tourists present in the community at any one time. They simply take the tax bills, by carefully weighing the garbage. They allow two pounds of garbage per person, and by noting from week to week the increase during the tourist season are able to estimate increase in tourist population at that time.

When I first read this, it struck me that I have known quite a few people during my lifetime who estimated their popularity by carefully weighing the garbage. They, too, were full of the scandal of the community. They know all the dirt. They have no good word for anybody except for a few of their own kind. Mention anybody in terms of praise, and these observers will begin their depreciatory speak of them in terms of disparagement. They judge nobody well, but very critically, but on the basis of what he is not. Their standard of everything is arrived at always by precisely the same formula—they weigh the garbage.

This may be a good way to find out how many tourists are visiting a resort town, but it is not a good way to estimate a man's character, especially or judging persons. There are many ways of arriving at such judgment than by weighing the garbage.

Toronto Boy, 2½, Falls From Car Near Brighton

TRENTON (Special) — Bryan Hagen, 2½-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Hagen of Toronto, fell out of his parents' car while it was proceeding east on Highway No. 2 Saturday afternoon, but apparently escaped with no more serious injuries than scratches.

Mr. and Mrs. Hagen, who were married five years ago, were taking their first trip since their wedding. They were driving between Colborne and Brighton, in a car some twenty years old, with their two children in the back seat. A window was open and Bryan fell through it. The car was travelling at a speed of about 35 miles an hour at the time.

The little boy was taken to a doctor's office at Brighton and then to Trenton Memorial Hospital. Sunday he was discharged from the hospital, but hospital authorities advised the parents to terminate their trip and return to Toronto so that little son can be placed under observation in the Hospital for Sick Children.

Perennial Sow Thistle

Perennial Sow Thistle can be a perennial source of trouble, says the Field Crops Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. The plant is a persistent weed farmers may be inadvertently "planting" on their farms when they buys "cheap" seed. With soft green notched leaves, and a profusion of yellow composite root stock topped by a profusion of orange yellow dandelion like flowers and an inch across, this weed flowers from June to August. The airborne seeds, like miniature parachutes travel about the country, establishing beachheads wherever they land. Once established rootstocks spread out, sending up stalks from buds on these rootstocks.

Perennial sow thistle is common on all types of soil but is liable to be troublesome on heavier, poorly drained soils. To control this weed, cut it to prevent it going to seed, and practise a bare fallow or row cropping rotation.

Carefully timed spraying with 2,4-D amine or ester acid at one-half to one pound per acre just before the flowers develop will prevent seed production. More than one such treatment is necessary to get a complete kill.

If clean seed is used and any individual plants are killed before they are established, this creeping menace can be kept under control. If present in a field of grain, spraying will control it. Heavy fertilizer applications will help the crop crowd out this unwelcome intruder.

Scouts, Guides, Cubs and Brownies Parade to Church Services Here

The largest, most colorful parade of its kind ever seen in Belleville heralded the annual church services of the city's Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, Brownies, Cubs and Rovers on Sunday morning.

Upwards of 800 uniformed members of the different organizations packed Bridge Street Church to capacity while some 150 others attended eleven o'clock mass in St. Michael's Church.

Troop and pack banners mingled their colors with those of the Union Jack as the entire parade assembled at the Collegiate campus at 10.30 prior to moving off to their respective churches.

The parade was under the supervision of District Commissioner Archie Lewis of the Boy Scouts' Association and Mrs. R. D. Arnott, district commissioner of the Girl Guides' Association. Commissioner Lewis was assisted by his assistant District Commissioners P. L. Allcorn and D. D. B. Allan, with District Capt. Mrs. H. Jones assisting District Commissioner Mrs. Arnott. M. J. Johnson was the parade marshal.

Attending St. Michael's Church were the 3rd Belleville Cub Pack under Cubmaster W. H. Sweet; 3rd Belleville Scout Troop under Scoutmaster W. Buller; the 8th Brownie Pack under Brown Owl Mrs. G. Sweet and the 9th Brownie Pack under Brown Owl Mrs. S. Maude.

Flags and banners fluttering in a warm May breeze under a cloudless sky topped the list of uniforms of the various organizations giving the parade a dash of pageantry as it swung from the campus to Church St.

MARCHED IN REVIEW

Following the respective services, the units marched back to the campus where they paraded in column of route past a reviewing stand where District Commissioner Lewis took the salute. With Commissioner Lewis were Deputy Commissioner Mrs. Arnott and W. N. Hurst, President of the local Boy Scouts' Association.

With the parade lined up in solid formation, District Commissioner Lewis formally presented Cubmaster Mrs. Margaret Kemp of the 2nd Belleville Pack with a long service medal "for efficient and faithful service as a leader". Cubmaster Kemp has been associated with cub work for the past ten years.

Cubmaster Kemp was escorted to the commissioner's stand by Assistant district commissioner Allcorn, where the medal was pinned on her tunic. Commissioner Lewis warmly congratulated the recipient.

In a brief post-service address, the commissioner congratulated the various units on their fine appearance and steadiness on parade. He said it was the finest turnout of its kind ever held in Belleville and was a distinct compliment to all the units. He expressed his appreciation to those who had taken part in arranging and carrying out the parade and services to such a wonderful success.

Girl Guides Commissioner Mrs. Arnott, added her congratulations saying she was "very proud to be your commissioner." She thanked Commissioner Lewis and the Boy Scout Association for their fine cooperation, wishing them all success in future scouting.

Bridge Street United Church was filled to overflowing with the youthful visitors filling the nave of the structure. The balcony was packed with the congregation and extra chairs were brought in to accommodate the over flow.

COLORS DEDICATED.

During the service the colors of the 2nd and 7th Girl Guide Companies were dedicated in simple yet impressive rituals by the Rev. Duncan McTavish, minister of the church.

The lesson was read by Guide Priscilla Wagner, while seven uniformed boy scouts assisted in taking the collection.

Mr. McTavish extended a warm welcome to the scouts, guides, brownies, cubs and their officials, saying, "it was an inspiring picture. I wish I had a photograph of it." He said it was the last great audiences he would address in Bridge Street Church before elsewhere.

The minister gave an address to the boy scouts, especially for the children. "The adults could sit and listen in." He spoke of the "left-handed man" drawing his text from the story of Ehud.

Left-handed people he said were considered unlucky in the right-hand side or his bride. This he said, came from the old days when cavemen held their wives in the left hand, and grasped a club or axe in the right. It was for protection.

NEED STRONG THINKERS

"We live in days when leaders should be strong men and thinkers," he said, "and people of today need to be thinkers in their gizzards if they are to digest and masticate the tough things they have to eat. Likewise, if they only do the things they want to do, the way people they want to meet, they will not get very far in life."

Today the world was organized for right-handed people," Mr. McTavish said, "there is plenty or room for the others." He illustrated his point with the story of a polio victim, who making his handicap pay off because he devoted his time to his life task instead of play. He used his handicap to better himself in the world.

He said that there is talk in these days Nr. the danger of "swinging to the left. We need a few left-handed men in the world who are not afraid to do this. People like to think they are swinging because they dance to the Communists. We are the victims of left hysteria, and it is hardly fair to damn Communism because of a few monsters in Russia."

Freethinkers have led the world, the minister said, and we are sorry to say, religions and the church have lagged behind."

During the service the choir offered a melodic arrangement of "Onward Christian Soldiers."

Following are the officials and leaders of the various groups who attended the services:

Must Alter Trade Policies Or Revert to 50 Cents-an-Hour Economy Says Manufacturer

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada must change her trade policies or revert to a 50-cents-an-hour economy, O. W. Titus, president of the Canadian Electrical Manufacturers Association, said today.

Mr. Titus, in an address to the Eastern Ontario Development Conference, declared that Canadian electrical manufacturers are prepared to meet the world on any part of it on their ability to compete per man hour.

"But there is a limit to the premiums they can pay per man-hour when cheaper labor articles are freely admitted to domestic markets. I think the limit has been reached and passed."

QUEBEC RELATIVE VALUES

Mr. Titus, who is president of the Canada Wire and Cable Company, Toronto, said Canadian organizations had recently placed multi-million-dollar orders for electrical equipment and supplies abroad, and commented:

"When a forest product or agricultural area, pressure is brought to bear on public utilities to place large contracts in transatlantic areas in order to provide hard-currency funds to purchase those areas to buy forest, fisheries and agricultural products, this results in the laying off of Canadian workmen paid about $1.30 an hour to provide for their needs less than 50 cents an hour.

"Which workman will buy more plywood, canned salmon and high-quality beef—by $1.30 - per - hour man, or the 50 - cents - per-hour tion."

man? Mr. Titus said 27 per cent of federal revenue comes from corporation income tax, 27 per cent from personal income tax and 25 per cent from excise and sales taxes. A serious setback in industry would upset the whole budgetary structure.

CANADA ON GATT

"We have seen nation after nation in the free world on their commitments under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade. Canada has carried out her engagements at no small disadvantage to Canadian industry at not time that Canada let some one leap the parade for a while!"

Canada continued Mr. Titus, has the largest natural resources in the world now being developed or capable of quick development, and her opportunities were enormous. Competing British and European countries had basic labor rates well below 50 cents an hour; a 48-hour week was common; ocean rates in many instances were heavily in their favor; exchange and fiscal policies worked against Canada; and government assistance in other ways such as exchange arrangements, long-term export credits and food subsidies worked to overseas advantage.

"The net effect is that our export prices for manufactured goods are disappearing, or are being negligibly improved. This loss has the effect of raising the cost for our remaining production."

Two Yachtsmen Rescued By Passing Fishermen

OLIPHANT, Ont. (CP) — Two Ontario yachtsmen were rescued from an island Sunday by passing fishermen after high waves drove their 35-foot yacht aground on a reef near this village on Lake Huron, 20 miles northwest of Owen Sound.

A. G. (Tony) Hornick of Fort Colborne, and Thern Miscner of Welland, his brother-in-law, drifted to the island on a life raft after they abandoned the yacht.

Salvage attempts to free the boat from the reef was frustrated by the heavy waves and will continue today.

SAIGON, Indo-China (AP)—Authoritative French military sources said Sunday night the United States may undertake a giant Globemaster airlift soon to help meet the menace of a Vietminh offensive against the Tonkin delta.

The Globemasters would speed a mobile group of three battalions, Welland, his brother-in-law, drifted of some 2,100 men, from bases in North Africa to the fighting fronts.

The U. S. Air Force has on two previous occasions transported French military units from France to Indo-China.

1st Brownie Pack Holds Mother-Daughter Banquet

There were approximately 36 mothers present at the recent 'Mother and Daughter' banquet held in Bridge Street United Church under the auspices of the 1st Brownie Pack.

Lovely bouquets of fragrant lilacs and tulips in all the gorgeous colorings adorned the attractively appointed tables, which were laden with a fine variety of good things. Dainty party favors, designed by the conveners, some with little Brownies, and others with the floral decor, designated the seating positions.

TOASTS PROPOSED

Following the introduction of the guest mothers by their Brownie daughters, Mrs. Linton gave the invocation. The toast to the mothers was proposed by Barbara Ann Hall, to which Mrs. G. A. Bradford replied.

A short program followed the bounteous repast in which five Brownie songs were rendered by Mrs. Ross James as accompanist, and two Brownie dances, which were enjoyed.

Thanks were tendered the mothers for their co-operation through the year, by Brown Owl Mould, who also extended appreciative thanks to the pianist, and thanks to Mrs. St. Pierre, and Mrs. Else, the social convener for the decorative place cards with their accompanying thimbles. Mrs. St. Pierre also thanked the invisible helpers and to Mrs. Arthur Clare, leader of the W.A. group for their assistance.

BROWNIE-GUIDE MOVEMENT

Mrs. Branscombe, who started the Guides and Brownies here, has been intensely interested in their progress through the years, spoke briefly, noting the destination of the boys—the Crerdell Mission — and how much they are appreciated.

The district commissioner, Mrs. R. D. Arnott, gave a detailed talk about the three years of Brownie as a preparation period for advancing into the Girl Guides, and of the many interesting things the Guides accomplish.

The Brownies had a fine display of their handwork made during the year. These included scrapbooks, sock dolls, stuffed animals, woodwork, aprons, doll clothes and samples of fine knitting.

Brownie Banquet Highlighted By Presentation of Badges

On Wednesday, the Brownies of the 5th Belleville Pack entertained their mothers at a delightfully-arranged "Mother and Daughter" banquet held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church hall.

The tables, arranged in a square, were beautifully decorated for the occasion in the Brownie and Girl Guide colors. The head table was centred with a beautiful floral design of mauve and lilac and yellow tulips flanked by dark blue candles. The side tables featured lilacs and multi-colored tulips and yellow candles. Each place card was held by a glazed pottery bird in vivid red which the Brownies took home as a souvenir.

The guests at the head table were: district commissioner, Mrs. R. D. Arnott; district captain, Mrs. H. G. Amos; Brown Owl Adams; Tawny Owl Addy and Mrs. W. L. Harwood.

MOTHERS INTRODUCED

Following the bountiful dinner prepared by Mrs. Dunn's group of St. Andrew's Church, each Brownie introduced her mother to the group and then formed their "Fairy Ring" and entertained their guests with a short program of songs and dances.

In a short address, Brown Owl Adams extended her thanks to the mothers for the help they had given her throughout the year and complimented the Brownies on their excellent work. She then introduced district commissioner, Mrs. R. D. Arnott. The guest speaker of the evening, Mrs. Arnott, speaking especially to the girls who have spent three years in Brownies, stressed their thanks to Brown Owl Adams and Tawny Owl Addy.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IT'S TIME FOR THIS GIRL TO DEVELOP SOME MORE MATURITY

Some months ago, a letter appearing in this column from a 17-year-old girl described a situation which made me congratulate the girl and the boy about whom she wrote me, upon their maturity.

Briefly, she and this chap, having known each other only about two months before he left for service overseas, agreed that they should not rush into romance, as they felt like doing, but, through letters, would try to get thoroughly acquainted while he was away, and leave any decision about "getting serious" until he returned.

Now, months later, a second letter has come from this girl, who is so disturbed about the way things are going that, as from feeling that she deserves congratulations on her maturity, she believes she needs "To have my head knocked against a wall."

It seems that after some months of correspondence with her young man, she received a letter one day telling he was "not sure" that he wasn't still interested in his girl friend. He wanted her to keep on writing to him, though. This letter, she says, "hit home hard, that my parents were very worried about me for awhile; they wanted boy to stop writing to the young man; she wanted to keep on, and did, even though, she adds, "I know darn well that I should stop writing, but I just don't want to. I keep thinking that when he comes home, and I have a chance to see him, things will work out."

To complicate the problem, she has met another chap who, she declares, "is everything any girl could possibly want," and who "loves me very much." On her side, she "can't seem to have any real feeling for him at all. Yet I love being with him. He knows about the first fellow and wants me to stop writing to him, and really have cut down on my letters, yet I still seem to think about him constantly.

"I like this second fellow very much, and I'm very happy and at ease when I'm with him; but when I'm not with him, I tear the poor guy apart, filthy things, like saying to myself, 'He didn't wear a suit tonight,' or, 'He didn't shave today.' Why on earth do I do this?

"One other thing—why should I be so afraid of breaking with this new fellow? If I'm so afraid of hurting him, I must like him!"

So here my little 17-year-old is, still confused, with nothing working out the way she'd hoped and confidently expected it would. As I read this second letter, two thoughts came to my mind which I would like to pass on to her, and which, if she will give them honest consideration, may help her out of her confusion.

First, let her remember that, by her own statements in her original letter, her correspondence with her servicemen was definitely an experiment for the very purpose of finding out if, as they came to know each other better, they actually were as "made for each other" as they thought. Obviously, she lost sight, a little, of the fact that it was a test period and the outcome was by no means certain, and allowed herself to believe there could be only one outcome, and that, the one on which she had set her heart. Hence, she was quite unprepared for the young man's statement that, on his side, he was "not sure" of his feelings. So she went to pieces completely.

To regain that "mature" attitude which prompted the two to set up a writing period, she must remind herself that in any experimental venture one must be prepared for failure even while hoping for success, and that, to accept failure philosophically, if failure comes, is a part of maturity.

And the second idea I would like her to think over is that the reason she may be, as she puts it, "so afraid of breaking off with this new fellow," may be that in the back of her mind she doesn't really want to let him go. Even while believing herself to be in love, she may be finding consolation over the cooling interest of the boy friend, she may be half convinced, in spite of herself, that in time she could go for this second one. Her derogatory thoughts about the latter may even support this theory, for they may represent a subconscious effort on her part to "unsell" herself on a new romance as an effort to hang on to the old.

What I would advise her to do is to be willing to go along with life, first, in accepting the fact that things are probably not going to work out as desired in the one instance; second, in allowing herself to accept the fact that she may really come to like some new young man as well as she did the other.

As time goes on, this is what is likely to happen anyway. If she will permit it to happen now, she will not only save herself a lot of unhappiness, but will increase that maturity for which she has already been given credit.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

THE IMPORTANCE OF REST

Tension is beauty's number one enemy. It is an evidence, of fatigue, and continued fatigue is a health menace. It slows up the digestive system, has a depressing effect upon the spirits. The cure, of course, is relaxation. Without a certain amount of rest the efficiency of the human machine slows up.

The woman who tires herself to the point of exhaustion eventually comes to the conclusion that her body is just a bundle of aches, longing for surcease from the jitters. The first step is securing relaxation is to check one's racing thoughts which reflect themselves in rigidity of the muscles. Unless the mind is relaxed and at peace, the physical being cannot go limp. For the chronic worried repose is impossible.

The overworked mother, looking after husband and children, doing the housework and cooking meals is more prone than there is illness in the family, often protests that the days are too full for relaxation and that she couldn't relax if she tried. So it may seem, but she must learn to work restfully. It can be done.

Simple washing dishes it is not necessary to keep telling yourself how much you don't like to do them. Keep your mind off the subject. One must avoid boredom that will show itself in strained lines of the face, hunched shoulders, scrawny necks and other beauty liabilities.

To make life restful a woman should practise shutting inactivity for a short period every day. She should find some time to be alone, to lie down, unkink those tight muscles and nerves, close her eyes and really rest.

Some women find relaxation in a warm bath, others in a book, others in outdoor walks. One must find it somewhere. that's certain.

Orange Breads — Two Versions

By Mary Moore

You good cooks certainly keep this old grist mill grinding.

Yesterday a letter arrived from Catherine C. with several recipes that are favorites with her and among them was "Delicious Orange Bread."

I have had a sharp eye out for Orange Bread recipes because "Wanda" wrote saying those that sent her were not quite the right ones. . . and since we aim to please. . . .

. . . now that I have two more I hope Wanda and all the rest of you who fancy these fancy breads will give them a try. One calls for baking powder, the other for yeast, so take your pick, or take both.

DELICIOUS ORANGE BREAD

(Courtesy Catherine C.)

Two and three-quarters cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 1-2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon each baking soda and salt, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 cup and 2 tbsp. sugar, 1 egg, 1-4 cup orange juice, 1 cup broken pecans, 1 egg. Start oven at 325 deg. F. and grease 9x5x3 1-2 inch loaf pan. Sift flour with baking powder, soda and salt. Cream butter, stir in honey, unbeaten egg and orange rind. Now add the flour-mixture and orange juice alternately to the butter-honey-egg mixture, mixing well after each addition. Stir in pecans. Bake until golden (at 325) about 45 minutes.

ORANGE NUT BREAD

One package granular yeast, 1-2 cup orange juice, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1-2 cup scalded milk, 3 tablespoons soft shortening, 1 teaspoon salt, about 3 3-4 cups sifted bread flour, 1-3 cup sugar, large egg or 2 yolks, beaten, 1-2 cup blanched chopped almonds, 1-4 cup well drained chopped orange pulp. Warm the orange juice to lukewarm, add the 1 teaspoon sugar, then sprinkle granular yeast over and let stand without stirring for 10 minutes (then stir and—see below). Have 1-2 cup milk scalding hot and pour it over the shortening; 1-3 cup sugar and salt in bowl. Stir until shortening is melted, and when lukewarm stir in beaten egg or yolks, then stir in dissolved yeast. Gradually stir in about 3-4 of the amount of flour. Then stir in the nuts and drained orange pulp being sure it is thoroughly mixed, then add remaining flour. Turn out on floured board and knead for seven minutes. Place in greased bowl, cover carefully and allow to rise until doubled—at least two hours. Knead again for three minutes. Return to greased bowl, brush with melted shortening, cover and allow to rise again for one hour or until doubled. Now roll dough out to rectangle of about 9x18 inches. Brush entire surface with one beaten egg and sprinkle with 1 or 2 teaspoons orange rind (grated). Roll up like a jelly roll and place with open edge down in greased loaf pan or about 9 by 4 1-2 by 2 1-2 inches or a little larger. Let rise until more than doubled, bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 35 minutes, then reduce heat to 350 to bake about 25 minutes longer.

QUESTION:

. . . would appreciate some advice . . . before my marriage 18 months ago I did next to no cooking . . . so I still have to learn. 1) last summer I bottled peaches. They were tightly sealed but the top half of each jar was a grayish-brown color and smelled fairly of fermentation. The bottom half was all right. Could this be a result of overpacking? I think I packed one layer in each jar. 2) This summer I would like to bottle fruit-juice, but we both should lose some weight I'd like to do them with sugar substitute. Is water-packed dietetic? Cans of fruit . . . could you give me directions, please? 3) I'd dearly love to cut my food expenses, especially my meat. You always say the cheaper cuts are just as good, but my experience has always been that they have so much fat that actually they are no cheaper than the more expensive cuts and involve the extra work of trimming off surplus fat. I am not a food fadist and do agree that everyone should eat a reasonable amount of fat.) Admittedly I do find hamburger and stewing beef good value, but won't you please help me brushing in what I say?—Elizabeth K.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

ANNOUNCING AND CELEBRATING AN ENGAGEMENT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our son has just become engaged, and his fiancee would like to have a big party given to announce the engagement. We know the girl very well, she has been a guest in our home quite often, we are devoted to her, and we are pleased about the engagement. Because of circumstances in her home, it is not possible for her family to give the kind of engagement announcement party she would like to have, and our son has suggested (I imagine they talked it over together) that we give this engagement announcement party in our home, my husband to propose the toast to make the announcement. Somehow I just can't think this would be the right thing to do. Do you think it would be the right thing to do, Mrs Beeckman? — Fiance's mother

No. Your point of view is right and round about this "It would be the right thing to do," Certainly it would not show proper regard and respect for the girl's parents. The announcing of the engagement is the honor and prerogative that belong to the girl's mother and father, and neither the girl, your son, nor you and your husband should even contemplate taking this honor from them.

No engagement-announcement party is necessary. . . the girl's parents may make the announcement in the simplest way, by sending the announcement to the newspaper or by whatever means they prefer. But it should be they who make the announcement. Then, after they have made the announcement, it would be entirely proper for you and your husband to give a party to celebrate the engagement (The important point is that significant difference between announcing the engagement and celebrating the engagement.)

Mum Has Laugh On Daughters, Escapes Exams

STRATFORD (CP)—Mrs. Stuart Merrill, housewife, mother and student, has the last laugh on her two young daughters. She won't have to write school exams this year after all.

Mrs. Merrill during the last nine months has been studying at the Stratford Teachers' College to qualify as a public school teacher.

Her daughters, Helena, 11, and Judith, 6, until recently were gleefully anticipating that mother would also be subjected to academic trials at the end of the term.

She fooled them.

The other day she arrived home from school and announced she'd been recommended and wouldn't have to write exams.

"It's been a very busy year," says Mrs. Merrill.

During the term she arose early on school days, prepared breakfast for her husband, herself and the children, sent the children off to school and then went herself.

Next summer she hopes to start work on a bachelor of arts degree at the University of Western Ontario and to drive the 40 miles each way every school day.

SPIDERS EAT BIRDS

LONDON (CP) — A group of schoolchildren in Paraguay has sent London zoo its first pair of bird-eating spiders. Insect curator L. C. Bushby said the spiders, each "big enough to cover the palm of a man's hand," will be fed on lizards and insects.

Timmins Man's Postal Bride Has Arrived

TIMMINS (CP)—Paul Aquino met his bride of two months for the first time Friday.

Mrs. Aquino arrived here from her home in southern Italy following a postal romance that ended in a proxy marriage last March.

The romance began a few years ago when Joe Tedesco, of North Bay, showed Paul a photo of Irene Laura Franca Vila, a girl he had known at school in the province of Cosenza, near the Tyrrehenian sea.

"I liked the look of the girl and started to exchange letters and photographs," said Mr. Aquino, a native of Italy who came to Canada 34 years ago. "Before I knew it I had fallen in love with her."

He proposed a few months ago. Then followed a long list of documents essential for a marriage by proxy.

Mr. Aquino's brother was the proxy bridegroom during the ceremony in Italy.

"It was a big church wedding with all the trimmings and I was very happy," said Mrs. Aquino through an interpreter.

Woman Makes Career In Decorating

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) Joyce Thompson made a career in the commercial paint contracting business after decorating the wood work in her new home.

The 30-year-old mother of four children has just finished two big jobs—decoration of the woodwork in the Goulais bay country school addition, 23 miles from here, and a suite of offices in Sault Ste. Marie.

Paint-spattered and tired, Mrs. Thompson rounds off her day by preparing supper for six and then tackling the washing and ironing.

But she's not complaining. "I love painting and get a great deal of satisfaction out of it."

Her new career was launched more than a year ago when the Thompsons moved into their new home. Joyce and her husband Howard, an employee at the Algoma Steel Corporation, decided to finish the wood-work themselves.

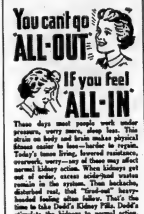
REAL WORKER

Joyce wanted blonde woodwork to match her furniture. A painter friend was so impressed with her work that he persuaded her to help him. A cousin, a building contractor, soon had Mrs. Thompson finish the woodwork in the houses he was constructing.

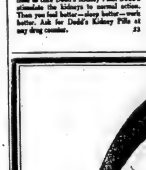
The Goulais bay school was her first independent job.

"My mother loathes painting but she thought I'd be on the job for weeks so she offered to help me. We did the two rooms in three days and mother says 'never again.' Now I'm on my own.

"Did you ever try painting with 62 kids running in and out around your legs and under ladders?"

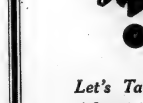


The money Mrs. Thompson earns is being saved for special treatment in the United States for her youngest daughter Peggy, 4, a cerebral palsy victim. Her three other daughters are aged 11, 10 and 5.



While Joyce is away on a job her husband and mother-in-law look after the family and home.

Mrs. Thompson's hands take a lot of abuse from sandpapering treatments done without the use of gloves. Each night she rubs them with a nylon brush and strong laundry soap and rubs them with vaseline.



"This work I'm doing reminds me of an advertising slogan I saw once. 'Any woman can handle it—and most men.'"

10th Anniversary Of D-Day

Ten years ago, on the 6th of June, shock troops of the 3rd Canadian Division stormed ashore near Berniere on the coast of Normandy and fought their way through Hitler's West wall defenses to establish the beach head over which poured the men and supplies to fight and win the battles of Normandy. The photos, above, taken by Canadian Army photographers on the fateful day, recall some of the torrid action which took place on the beaches. (1) A long line of German prisoners march over the beaches on their way to internment. (2) Major General Rod Keller, commander of 3rd Division, briefs some of his men on his arrival in France. Vivid Reminders in Britain Of Massive Invasion of 1944

Don Whitehead, war correspondent, was last in Britain 10 years ago, on the eve of the Allied invasion of Normandy. Now he's back, reviving those days leading to Normandy.

By DON WHITEHEAD

AT THE ENGLISH CHANNEL (AP)—After 10 years a monument . . . a memory . . . and a prayer.

These remain as vivid reminders of the massive invasion of 1944 which sprang from these Channel towns and beaches, swept Hitler's legions to defeat in Europe and—for a time at least—brought a hope of peace to the Free World.

The monument is a square, grey block of concrete. It stands just a few yards from the southern beach at Portsmouth, overlooking a sunken garden aflame with flowers.

Chiselled into the four sides of the block are these words:

"D-DAY"
JUNE 6, 1944

1940—France and the low countries having been overrun, we laboured alone to obstruct our coasts with such blocks as this against invasion by the enemies of freedom.

1944—Yet from this very beach in the company of powerful allies, many thousands of our men embarked on the great adventure of liberating Europe and achieved their objective.

It is engraved on the hearts of tens of thousands of Britons, Americans and Canadians who camped along this coast, lived with their planes, or waited aboard ships for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower to give them the signal for the Channel crossing.

And the prayer?

It is sensed in an almost fierce desire for peace found in this land, a yearning that seems to cry out: "Don't let it happen again!" It springs from a haunting fear that peace may be slipping away.

DARK, LEAN YEARS.

The memory of 1944 lives with such Britons as Harry Plummer and his wife, sitting on a park bench near the monument enjoying the warm sunshine sparkling on the Channel waters.

They remember, these two — jolly-faced Mrs. Plummer and the man who had spent 40 of his 60 years working in the dockyards nearby before he retired last year.

They remember the dark, lean years and the crash of German bombs. They remember the thunder of the anti-aircraft guns, and their own fear that the Nazis would invade the shores of England.

Harry Plummer said: "Look at these gardens and flowers—and the people sunning on the beach.

"It was so very different then. The guns were in the gardens. There were no flowers. The barbed wire shut us off from the beaches, and we lived a good deal in the air raid shelters.

"The ships and the boats! They were packed in and hidden along the coast until you didn't understand where they found room for all of them.

"I was working 12 to 14 hours a day in the shipyards, but we didn't have the faintest idea when D-Day was to be. It was marvellous how they kept it so quiet."

'CAN'T STAND ANOTHER'

Mrs. Plummer said: "They went away very fast. Suddenly they all were gone and we knew the time had come. After that they took away the barbed wire and opened the beaches again. The rebuilding has been slow—but we're getting along."

Her husband squinted at the blue sky and said: "It's nice to have things peaceful again. You know, we can't stand another go like that last one."

My thoughts slipped back over the years. It hardly seemed real now—revisiting the Channel country—that a vast army which once was poised here to strike the West stronghold in Europe.

This island was packed with men and war machines, and London then was the heart of the throbbing surge. The city was stripped down for War.

There were no children playing in the streets and parks. They had been taken to the safety of the country. The strain of war, of bombings, and strict rationing was etched on the faces of the people.

At night the Searchlights sat on the rooftops and the city sprawled in darkness broken only by the red flare of fires. The most familiar sound was the eerie wail of the sirens. Barrage balloons ringed the city and from the parks anti-aircraft guns slammed shells at the enemy planes overhead. You groped your way through the blackout only sensing the presence of others near you.

TENT CITY HEADQUARTERS

At the edge of London, in a huge tent city camouflaged by trees and nets, the invasion planning moved forward in Eisenhower's headquarters—planning for an amphibious operation the like of which the world had never seen.

In the country, the English roads and lanes were lined with guns, tanks, trucks and vast mountains of supplies. Almost every field seemed to be an encampment.

Commandos practised the techniques of scaling cliffs and attacking enemy gun emplacements spotted on the coast of France. Paratroopers dropped from the skies in grimly realistic manoeuvres. Infantrymen sweated through training under combat conditions. Special teams practised the art of slipping ashore to blow up enemy coastal defences.

Along the coast, the invasion fleet gathered—battleships, cruisers, destroyers, mine sweepers, lassding craft and swarms of assault boats. The fleet gathered at Portsmouth, Portland, Weymouth, Southampton, Torquay, Exmouth and other invasion points around the island.

The assault troops—more than 20,000 strong — were moved into camps along the Channel and sealed off from contact with the outside world. Then they boarded the invasion craft and waited for the trial by fire.

D-DAY POSTPONED

Eisenhower and his commanders had chosen June 5 as D-Day. This was the phase of the moon when the Channel tides would be most favorable for getting ashore on Normandy. This was the day of decision, the climax to months of planning and preparation to fit all the pieces together into a complex fighting machine.

But on June 4, a storm swept the Channel and threatened to wreck the whole invasion plan. Eisenhower was forced to postpone the big push for 24 hours while anxiously watching the weather.

Next day his meteorologists foresaw a break in the weather. It was a gamble—but Eisenhower took the chance. He gave the command which sent the huge armada moving into the Channel.

England is a vastly different country today, compared to that wartime land. The strain and the grimness are gone. The gardens along the Channel are blooming as though trying to make up for all those wasted years. White-sailed pleasure boats bob in the Channel waters and commercial craft have taken over most of the berths once occupied by the grey war fleet.

The countryside is peaceful again. The fields are green with spring crops. The guns and tanks and paraphernalia of war are gone—except for a few airfields and army encampments. The beach barriers and the barbed wire are gone—and the beaches swarm with people during weekends.

In London, the city's face is happy again and there is the sound of children laughing in the streets and in the parks.

FOOD IN ABUNDANCE

The lights are on again—in a hundred little ways London flaunts the victory over the lean, hard years during and after the war. Windows are piled with bread and pastries. The candy shops are swarm with people for he had at the butcher shop and golden butter and fruit and all the milk and eggs you care to buy.

MME. DE CASTRIES RETURNS TO FRANCE

Madame Christian de Castries, wife of the captured commander of Dien Bien Phu, steps from the plane which brought her to Paris. When she visited Premier Laniel, it is reported, she told him her husband did not favor U.S. intervention in Indo-China.

But none of these things spelled out the change from the war years so much as Harry Plummer and his wife sitting there in the warm sun on a park bench—relaxed and at peace with themselves and the world.

What was it he had said? Something like—"It's nice to have things peaceful again."

And it was. The sky overhead was deep blue. The great invasion seemed a thing lost in the past. The only flaw was the vapor trails in the sky, left by jet planes streaking high above us across the Channel.

But Harry Plummer didn't seem to notice. And it didn't seem right to mention them.

Little Benny's Note Book

Dopey Shorty Judge has the mumps on both sides of his face, and nobody is suppose to go in to see him on account of his germs, and this afternoon us fellows were talking and arguing around the letter box, and we saw a truck stop in front of Shorty's house saying Bon Ton Ice Cream on the side, and Skinny Martin said, Oh boy, look what's being carried into shorty's house.

Oh boy, they're trying to encourage him to get better, let's go and pay him a visit and cheer him up, Sid Hunt said, and Glasses Magee said, Sure, what's a use of having friends if they dont come and see you when you get mumps and things?

Meening mumps and ice cream, and I said, Sure, what's a use of telling me I'll get a guy is all better before you act simpathetic?

And we went and rang Shorty's doorbell and his mother came to the door and I said, We came to cheer Shorty up.

That was very nice of you, but I'm afraid Howard's condition is still too contagious for him to have visiters, Mrs. Judge said, and Glasses said, Aw, we dont care, we'll take a chance.

Sure, we'll hold our breth, Skinny said, and I said, We'll go rite home afterwards and gargle.

Perhaps on a day or 2, I really can't take the responsability, Mrs. Judge said. Besides, I'm having a little gathering of older peeple this evening, and I'm very busy making preparations, she said, and Pods said, G, is that what the ice cream is for?

Why yes, oh I see, Mrs. Judge said, I'll tell Howard you called, said.

And she wnt in laffing to herself, and us fellows went away feeling like a narrow escape.

IN PLACE OF A PICKET PLACARD

Union pickets are designed to call public attention to the complaints of persons on strike, but they have become so common that new stunts are needed to advertise strikes. So this striking employee at a plant in Kohler, Wis., wears a gas mask, and to add emphasis to the idea, fits his dog with one. The idea is that the striker is insinuating that there is something far from aromatic about the place he is picketing. (Central Press Canadian).

"Dad's Green Thumb Grew a Doctor!"

"That's Dad back there, at his greenhouse. It's been his hobby ever since I can remember. When we were kids, he used to tell us that he was growing our future in there. But it wasn't till years later that we found out what he meant.

"You see, Dad has never earned a large salary. But every year he'd earn extra money from his greenhouse . . . selling seedlings, flowers and plants. And Dad put every penny of this money into a special savings account at The Dominion Bank.

"I didn't even know about Dad's savings account until the year I decided I wanted to start medical school. Even though I was working weekends and all summer, I knew I'd have to borrow extra money to get through the long course. That was when Dad told me about his 'green thumb' savings.

"Thanks to Dad's foresight, I'm a doctor now. And this summer, when I was able to start re-paying Dad, he put the money back into his special account at The Dominion Bank. My brother Jim's coming on fifteen, and Dad says he thinks he'll start growing himself an engineer."

You'll be pleasantly surprised at how quickly your dollars will grow in a savings account at The Dominion Bank. See the Manager of your nearest branch. He will be pleased to explain the Bank's many services. Remember, every account at The Dominion Bank is an important account.

French Socialist Party Supports European Army

PARIS (Reuters)—The French Socialist party Sunday decided to support ratification of the European Defence Community treaty but refused to compel its members in the National Assembly to vote for the project which would set up an international army including Germans.

The outlook for French ratification of the six-nation treaty was dim as a result of the compromise action at the party convention, observers here said.

If only 30 of the 105 Socialist deputies fail to vote for ratification the army treaty will not be ratified, parliamentary experts believe. As many as 40 are considered possible opponents of EDC.

GLAD OF U. S. SUPPORT

The convention backed ratification after noting with satisfaction U. S. guarantees of military support and Britain's recent agreement to work closely with EDC.

The motion advising the 105 assembly deputies laid down no penalty for Socialists who defied the official party line. It simply said the party would recognize no exceptions to the rule of a united vote in parliament, and invited the party committee to "take all measures to insure the unity and discipline of the party."

The mildness of the resolution was considered a victory for party opponents of the treaty, which would bring France into a common army with Italy, West Germany, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

The party could, if it wished, have threatened a defiant deputy with expulsion from the party.

Menzies' Margin Expected to Be About 9 Seats

MELBOURNE (Reuters) — Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies said today his Conservative government's election victory over the Socialists showed Australians prefer steady progress on sound foundations to "getting something for nothing."

Latest results in Saturday's polling for a new House of Representatives gave 61 seats to Menzies' two-party coalition and 54 to the Labor party, which had campaigned for more welfare state measures. Six results are still outstanding, but the government is expected to win four of the six doubtful seats.

AUSTRALIA "LUCKY"

Menzies said that though the government's majority in the new parliament will be small, he is sure "we will be able to continue stable and progressive administration."

He added: "This is a piece of good fortune for Australia, for there will be difficult problems to deal with both externally and internally, and the teamwork which has characterized these recent years will be more important than ever."

Keen bidding raised share prices on the Melbourne stock exchange today as a result of Menzie's victory.

Oxford Student Dies in Attempt To Climb Dome

OXFORD, England (Reuters)—A young Oxford University undergraduate plunged to his death from a lofty university building here today in a tragic finale to an outburst of student hijinks.

Alexander Godfrey, 22, was found dying beneath the 180-foot-high dome of the Radcliffe Camera library building. He had evidently tried to scale the massive dome from outside.

A seasoned mountaineer, he was wearing climbing boots and a climbing rope was wrapped around his waist, concealed beneath his coat for the stunt.

Godfrey's fatal fall came as a sobering climax to a suddenly intensified Oxford craze for climbing buildings and leaving triumphal tokens behind. In recent weeks bicycles have been found perched on the weathervanes of the lofty Indian Institute building and nearby Hertford College. Adventurous students have left nylon stockings, flags and paper streamers on other spires to mark their undesp climbs by night.

Godfrey had evidently aimed to beat his fellows by scaling the Radcliffe dome.

Mysterious Explosions Rock Quebec Town, Causing $300,000 Damage

Volunteer firemen attempt to control blaze which gutted a printing plant in Lennoxville, Que., and touched off fires in two other buildings in eastern townships centre. A series of explosions ripped apart the frame building which housed the printing plant, causing chain-reaction which set two cars and three other buildings aflame. Six persons were injured by flying glass, primarily, but firemen said it was incredible no one was killed. Blast, causing damage estimated at $300,000, was believed caused by benzine stored at plant for cleaning purposes. (Central Press Canadian).

Eastern Ontario Development Conference Suggests New Dept. of Trade and Industry

Courtesy Cops Help in Drop Of Accidents

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)—New Zealand believes it has found the solution to the highway accident problem. In two months, "courtesy cops" in plain clothes have produced a sharp drop in accidents.

In January and February this year road accidents cost 74 lives. Normally, the toll increases in the next two months. But after the "courtesy cops" began patrolling, the deaths in March and April dropped to 48 for the two-month period.

The system has been such a success that the number of patrols will be considerably increased.

WELL DISGUISED

The special patrols use cars of different sizes, colors and makes. They change cars frequently, and none of the cars has any distinguishing mark. Individual patrols also change their district, so they do not stay long enough to become known to drivers.

The officers wear civilian clothes and put on a uniform cap only when they want to stop a motorist. The cars carry sirens but the drivers, but the sirens are hidden.

The patrols carry identification to prove their bona fides, but they have no power to prosecute no matter what the offender's plea is to look for "accident promoting" practices and to assist these out on the spot by motorists.

The only disciplinary aspect of their operation is that they can make reports of serious offences which can be taken into consideration if the driver is later detected in a breach by a uniformed patrol.

PSYCHOLOGIC EFFECT

It was widely expected that at no penalty was involved, the "courtesy cops" would be ignored by many drivers, but the reverse has been the case. Motorists have proved much more willing to cooperate with them than with the uniformed patrols who wield the "big stick" of prosecution. Even drivers have frankly admitted their fault and many have thanked the patrols for pointing out dangerous habits they had fallen into unwittingly.

Even more effective has been the dislike of the system among those of having his driving ability questioned. Short driving tests go to great lengths to avoid the risk of being stopped by a patrol even when no penalty is involved.

Every time a car appears behind a driver now, the motorist has a prick of conscience. He checks on whether he is driving too fast, cutting corners, or breaking the law in some other way. Automatically he avoids traffic breaches.

OTTAWA (CP) — The three-day Eastern Ontario Development Conference, first of its kind ever held in the province opened here with a recommendation that the Ontario government set up a trade and industry department.

The suggestion was contained in one of several briefs presented to provincial government members at discussion began of economic problems of eastern Ontario.

The conference, sponsored by the government and the Eastern Ontario Associated Boards of Trade, representing 43 eastern Ontario municipalities, hopes to find means of attracting new industries to the area, where many towns have been affected by the slump in the textile industry.

The planning and development brief also urged that full-time municipal planning consultants be made available by the government.

It also recommended that the province consider setting up a regional planning board to deal with rehabilitation of communities to be affected by the St. Lawrence seaway.

Larger grants for flood control should be made available to municipalities and that they pay only 10 per cent of the cost, the brief said. Municipalities now must pay 25 per cent, the province 37½ and the federal government 37½, exclusive of engineering costs.

WOULD RAISE STATUS

The planning and development brief said the planning of business and government "has been largely maintained on a hodge-podge organized basis" in Ontario. A "full department" of trade and industry should take its place alongside the other senior and vital departments.

Ontario municipalities could be organized on an area basis in the field of industrial promotion. The Eastern Ontario Associated Boards of Trade, for example, would change its name to the Eastern Ontario Development Association, elect a board of directors and become a permanent body.

The association would hire a full-time manager-secretary and work out its program in close liaison with the trade and industry branch. The province could municipalities in the area would split the cost of such a program.

Another brief urged that eastern Ontario be given a lower hydro-power rate than central Ontario since most of the electrical energy used in the Ontario section is generated in eastern Ontario or supplied by power companies in Quebec province to the area.

OTHER REQUESTS

Recommendations in other briefs included:

1. More expert guidance in marketing farm produce from the area, largely dairy products.

2. Farm drainage assistance through government payment of transportation charges on drainage tile purchased in the area.

3. Adequate compensation for farms and expropriated for the St. Lawrence seaway and power project or assistance in re-establishing displaced farmers on farms as good as those they left.

4. That all road and publicity department issue more information on eastern Ontario resort areas.

5. A continuing lands and forests department survey of reforestation needs in eastern Ontario, where more than half the land is said to be the growing of trees."

6. Appointment of a conservation commissioner for eastern Ontario to renew forest resources.

7. Creation of a highways authority with a status similar to that of the hydro commission's, to have control of highways, such as No. 2 from Toronto to Barrie and Orillia, and the proposed route from Windsor to Toronto, leaving the highways department to provide "regular" highways required by areas not previously populated sections of the province.

8. Provincial or federal relief of municipal expenses as indigent relief, social services, and unemployment relief.

9. Increased provincial grants for education, so that there may be a mean a provincial or municipal sales tax, a provincial income tax or federal aid for education, without federal control.

Pyramid of Cheops is Scene of What Might be Greatest Discovery in Egypt

The great pyramid of Cheops, seen above, was the scene of the recent discovery of King Cheop's solar "death ships." Excavations under Gamal Mukhtar, who announced the discovery said the finds might be the most important in the history of Egyptology. One of the boats was described as being 130 feet long and fully equipped for the celestial journeying that the ancient Egyptians believed their souls would sail a course set by the sun, passing through 24 gates representing each hour of the day and night. Since the discovery at the pyramid, south of Cairo, Egypt, two 5,000-year-old secrets of the funeral ships have been under seal and heavy guard and might not be reopened for a week or so. It is hoped the discovery will unfold information about the fabulous reign of Pharaoh Cheops in the fourth dynasty which began 2,900 B.C. and lasted 150 years. (Central Press Canadian.)

Family United For First Time In 26 Years

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Clifford Found, 21, of Kitchener, who had been searching for his four brothers and two sisters since 1943, has found them at last.

Found, adopted when he was one year old, had no idea he had brothers and sisters until his foster father told him shortly before his death in 1943. Since then he had been looking for them.

Sunday the family was reunited for the first time in 26 years. They had all been adopted after the death of their mother.

The brothers are William Eadie, 40, Brantford; Vernie Eadie, 38, Harper Woods, Mich., James Eadie 36, London, and Leslie Marshall, 29, Washington, DC.

His sisters are Mrs. Margaret White of London and Mrs. Kay Mayo of Toronto.

The 11-year search Mr. Found said: "It was just a process of elimination. I kept at it until I found them."

Tax Investigator Uncovers Scheme To Evade Payment

By JOHN E. BIRD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—An income tax investigator methodically spaded a garden in the back yard of a home in one of Canada's eastern cities. The uneasy owner watched from the kitchen door.

Suddenly the spade clanged as it struck something metallic. The investigator grunted with satisfaction as he uncovered a long metal container. Inside were several thousand dollars' worth of bonds purchased by the home owner with income on which no tax had been paid.

This was one example of schemes devised by dishonest Canadians to beat the federal income tax laws, under which all income must be reported. The home owner was fined for not reporting the income used to buy the bonds, and also paid income tax, with interest, on the money accumulated during the time he had left a clue to the purchase of bonds, and which was enough to start the investigation.

WIFE'S TIP-OFF

Out west, a taxpayer had been claiming his wife as an income tax exemption for several years. However, the wife wrote to the taxation division that the income department stating her husband was not entitled to claim her as a dependent.

"You should investigate this," she wrote. "I have not been living with my husband for many years and I hope I never do. He is a rat of the first water."

The case was investigated, the taxpayer pleaded guilty and he make good the taxes he owed on the money he had claimed as exempt.

The government's eagle-eyed tax sleuths use a hundred-odd methods to track down dishonest returns. They will talk about some of the various methods, but not about others.

All of the 4,530,000-odd tax returns which had to be filed by April 30 are checked several times by investigators. Extra attention is paid to returns where claims are high.

CAREFUL CHECK

Chronic types of falsification include exemptions for persons who are dead or never existed, false claims for failure to report income from outside sources, dishonest business deductions and returns doctored to show smaller business profits.

The initial examination of a return may show inconsistent statements. Checking it with that of the previous year also discloses irregularities.

Information on a particular source of income can be checked against the returns of the person or company which paid the money. The taxpayer may be asked for more bill for merchandise sold and not reported as income can lead to discovery of a fraud.

Other sources of information include letters, phone calls and published reports of the activities of persons. Many letters and phone calls are received from persons who identify themselves and say they are providing the information as a public duty.

Letters and phone calls are welcomed by the department and have led to substantial recoveries of unpaid taxes.

One man who bought a home and car for cash—and reported only the money on which no tax had been paid was discovered through a tip supplied by a suspicious neighbor.

BIG SLIP-UP

The most glaring example in recent years of a taxpayer's failure to report income occurred in eastern Canada.

The taxpayer operated a business in a small town and had his books made up by an accountant in a nearby city. At the end of the taxation year the accountant would make up the tax forms for the business and send them to the owner for signature and mailing.

The tax forms showed the business had operated at a small loss and no quarterly tax payments had been made. However, an accompanying letter gave a fuller picture of the firm's operations and showed there had been a $10,000 profit.

Unfortunately, the taxpayer mailed the tax forms — and the letter—to the income tax department.

WAR'S DELAYED TOLL

REGGIO CALABRIA, Italy (AP) War took another delayed toll Friday—two boys killed, a third injured, and two girls hurt—at a Red Cross summer camp. The victims were among 150 children playing on the beach. They found an old German anti-air craft artillery shells and kicked them. One exploded.

Nationalist Terror Rises As Moroccans Are Insistent Deposed Sultan Be Restored

(Editors note: Last month William L. Ryan, Associated Press foreign news analyst, during a study tour of the Far East and Southeast Asia, surveyed France's fight in Indo China. Now investigating current affairs in North Africa, Ryan reports today on the troubled situation in another vital French overseas territory.)

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

CASABLANCA, Morocco (AP)—French civilians are carrying guns in this worried city today as nationalist terror rises.

Casablanca, Morocco's big Mediterranean port of 700,000, falls silent by night. Streets are virtually deserted. Movie houses and restaurants are bare of customers. The French and those Moroccans terrorized by extreme nationalists are staying home at night.

Outside the central prison dozens of veiled Moslem women cling to the bars of the iron gates and wail for their men. Around police stations crowds are herded daily by heavy identifications verified as a strict security measure.

Heavily-armed Moroccan government troops roam the streets on bicycles watching for trouble in the crowds of the native towns. In the medinas and bidonvilles—the Moslem quarters and shantytowns—there is an air of tension. It is there the nationalist agitators carry out terror against Moroccans suspected of being pro-French.

Despite the extraordinary military measures, terrorism continues. Almost every night there are killings or other violent incidents in Casablanca, scene of the two most sensational killings.

SPLIT WIDENING

The terror is frightening away the French and foreign capital. Some French are already beginning to pull out of Casablanca.

Anger has been rising steadily during the nine months the French ousted Sultan Sidi Mohammed Ben Youssef and placed 63-year-old Sultan Moulay Mohammed Ben Arafa on the throne of the Cherifian empire.

"There is nobody on the throne," a group of Moroccans told me during an interview. "The new sultan is nobody."

They added:

"And what is happening? The gulf between French and Moroccans is widening. There's danger the gulf will become so wide that Morocco and the rest of North Africa will be thrown fully into the Arab orbit instead of halfway and become Asian rather than Western in outlook."

Francis Lacoste, incoming French resident general, faces a tough job. One thing which all Moroccans I saw agreed was the issue of the sultan. Before Mohammed was deposed, they were not particularly passionate about the sultanate. Now it is a question of principle and they are insistent that he must return.

JAILED IN THEFT

WASHINGTON (AP) — James R. Landis, former employee of the bureau of engraving and printing, was sentenced Friday to three to nine years in prison and fined $10,000 for the New Year's Day theft of $19,000 and $20 bills from the bureau.

Woman Winner Pulitzer Prize Dies in N.Y.

NEW YORK (CP)—Anne O'Hare McCormick, 75, whose foreign news reporting for the New York Times won her a Pulitzer Prize and a top spot in her profession for a generation, died Saturday.

Her death was caused by cancer. She had been in a coma for several hours before she died in Doctors' Hospital. She entered the hospital May 11.

Since 1925, and almost up until the day of her death, Mrs. McCormick had been one of American journalism's leading interpreters of foreign news and personalities.

She had described for Times readers the personalities and thinking of such figures as Hitler, Mussolini, Stalin, Leon Blum, De Valera, Dollfuss and, on the domestic scene, President Roosevelt, Truman and Eisenhower.

NEWS EXPERT

She was an expert on news about the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, the Korean conflict, United Nations, and many other phases of foreign affairs.

She also had served as an adviser to the U.S. state department, and as a delegate to the UN Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

Informed of her death, President Eisenhower said in a statement:

"Mrs. McCormick was a truly great reporter, respected at home and abroad for her broad analysis and impartial presentation of the news developments of our day."

FIRST WOMAN

Since June, 1936, the articles had appeared under her byline on the Times' editorial page, making her the first woman to contribute regularly to that page.

Her husband, Francis J. McCormick and a sister, Mrs. Paul Gill of New York, were at her bedside. Another sister, Mrs. James B. McCalley, of Havana, also survives.

Mrs. McCormick was born in Yorkshire, England of "American parents. Her husband was an engineer and importer. They travelled widely and Mrs. McCormick began contributing to the New York Times in 1922, when she sent her first articles which dealt with the rise of Mussolini in Italy and the sinister aspects.

Her only previous journalistic experience had been as an associate editor for a Catholic weekly. In 1937 she won the Pulitzer Prize for the excellence of her foreign correspondence.

National Health Insurance Favored by Young Liberals

OTTAWA (CP) — The Young Liberal Federation of Canada favors a national contributory health insurance plan in co-operation with the provinces.

This was one of several resolutions adopted during its national convention here which ended Saturday with speeches by Prime Minister Laurent and Opposition Leader Pickersgill.

Commending the government for having a set foundation for a practical national health insurance plan, the resolution declared that such a plan be implemented "as soon as necessary agreements can be reached with provincial governments."

It is understood the 340-odd delegates rejected a British Columbia proposal that provincial premiers be permitted to spend taxes collected by federal or provincial retailers in the province where the goods are sold.

The B.C. group's suggestion that a separate sales tax system be used to control the licensing and regulate the operation of all retail sales tax outlets in Canada. The CBC now holds this power.

TAX ROW TEMPORARY

Mr. Pickersgill said the current tax dispute between the federal government and Quebec cannot be permanent.

"It is not fair to the people of that province to have to pay federal taxes at the same rate as other Canadians without receiving for provincial purposes benefits similar to those the people in other provinces are getting," he said, reflecting Quebec's refusal to accept federal-provincial tax rental agreements.

"I think only province which has not signed a tax rental agreement under which the federal government pays annual grants for the sole right to collect personal and corporation income taxes and succession duties, recently levied a personal income tax. The agreements to about 15 per cent of the federal levy, but also subject revenue from the tax fully deductible from federal payments was waived. Federal tax laws permit a deduction of only five per cent.

Earlier St. Laurent told the United British North America Act—on matters affecting federal and provincial rights, said he is sure a method eventually will be found to settle the issue.

"When that problem is solved the tax situation of our former dependent status will be removed."

The federation elected William Appleby, 30, national treasurer for the last 2½ years and past president of the Manitoba Young Liberal Association, as its new president. The 30-year-old Si Bonifacc, Man., lawyer succeeds Guy Rouleau, who was elected to Parliament in Montreal Dollard constituency in the 1953 general election.

MARMORA

120 Canadian Legion L.A. Representatives Attend Rally

MARMORA—A rousing rally, whereby they received much edification and learned of the auxiliaries of the Canadian Legion in Marmora, on Thursday evening with an attendance of over 120 ladies representative of eight of the auxiliaries forming zone 39. Only one auxiliary, that of Bancroft failing to turn up at this auspicious gathering, which was held in the Sacred Heart Parish Hall.

Commencing the rally was the serving of an excellent repast by the members of Marmora Women's Institute. Padre Canon J.M. Brownlie said grace. Mrs. Jennie Wellman, president of the Marmora Auxiliary, was chair lady.

At the appointed time, the zone commander, Mrs. C. Jeffs, of Belleville, introduced the guests who were seated at the head table. This was followed by a cordial welcome to the Auxiliaries from Reeve Mitchie Wells, of Marmora Village.

The toast list was well taken care of Mrs Wellman submitted "The Queen"; and the toast, "Provincial Command", was fittingly proposed by Mrs. (Major) Percy Gray.

The chief guest of the evening was Mrs. Jessie Tompkins, of Brockville, honorary treasurer of the Ontario Provincial Command. In responding to the toast, she said that "Zone Commanders were one group of officers to whom to give acclaim. Their number has been increased due to rezoning of auxiliaries. It is proposed to hold a school of instruction for zone commanders, an idea which should be well received."

In the absence of president, Stanley Kerr, of the Marmora Branch No 237 Canadian Legion, past president, Major Percy Gray, handled the toast, "Ladies Auxiliary", He referred to what constituted membership in the Auxiliary and said that its aims and objects were identical with those of the Legion. He concluded with reference to the practical assistance afforded the Legion by the Auxiliary.

REPLIES TO TOAST

Past President, Mrs. Norman Hipson, replied to the toast thanking the Legion for their appreciation of the Auxiliary support.

Rev. W. F. Healey, parish priest, who was present as a guest, welcomed the gathering to the Church Hall, and wished all to know their presence was appreciated. He said that the women more or less, were the backbone of the country. He wished the auxiliary every success and happiness.

The zone commander having tendered a vote of thanks to the W. I. for their excellent catering an entertainment was then presented by Mrs. Frank Bobyk. Her young son, Robert, and little Mary Lou Parkin, were pillared as silent announcers for each act, the duo bearing a large card on which was printed what was to ensue as the next act.

Five girls of Mrs. Bobyk's dancing class executed an Irish jig to be followed by four younger girls following suit. Next, a junior boy, Allan Grant, performed on the bones. Lois Marie O'Neill followed with a tap dance after which Sandra Mehlejohn and Lois Bowes rendered the duet, "Do you know?" and an encore number.

ACROBATIC DISPLAY

A striking acrobatic display was given by Darlene Newton, followed by a return of Allan Grant with the bones.

With seven young girls dancing the hornpipe and applause forthcoming for Mrs. Bobyk, the program closed. A short adjournment allowed time for clearance of tables and the business meeting to be conducted from the stage which was gaily bedecked with lilies.

The colors were brought forth by the standard bearers, Mrs. John Vanvalkenberg, and Mrs. G. Osborne. Following opening exercises, the Zone Commander welcomed the auxiliaries.

Secretarial reports from the eight branches represented were then heard each revealing a year of prosperous activity. The presidents were next called to their feet by Mrs. Jeffs in the following order, Picton, Belleville, Consecon, Deseronto, Marmora, Wellington, Tweed, and Madoc. Each reported the number of members present Picton had the largest contingent 34, and Marmora came second with 22.

Mrs. Jeffs then gave a brief but concise report as zone commander. She said the zone had a total membership of 353. Tweed and Madoc Auxiliaries were organized in the past year. She could not speak too highly of the wonderful work done by each auxiliary and asked that they be well represented at the convention in September.

STIRRING ADDRESS

A stirring address was then given by the Provincial treasurer, who mentioned that the reports of the auxiliaries to which she had just listened, were wonderful, showing that without exception they had been holding up the three principles—service, loyalty and comradeship.

She congried Mrs. Jeffs for her work as zone commander, and congratulated her on being returned to the office by acclamation, this time through the new ruling for two years. This also meant that the convention in September would be the last one for a period of two years. Thus it was essential that a representative be sent to each auxiliary.

She also mentioned that there are now 311 auxiliaries in the Province with four more pending. She was pleased to hear that the auxiliaries in Zone 39 had been donating to the Scholarship and Book funds.

In lucid speech, she told of Provincial Command procedure and then turned to the subject of Life Membership. "Life membership is an honor not to be handled lightly" she charged. "It is for outstanding service and an auxiliary must have been in existance for ten years before application can be made for one of its members to be given Life membership."

LEGION CREST

She directed attention to the crest of the Legion as worn on member's coats and berets. She besought her hearers to think highly of the crest and not to wear it anywhere where it would be being discredit to the same. It was a reminder to the men who wore it of loneliness, toil, and suffering, and it was a reminder to all of those who had paid the supreme sacrifice in conflict.

At the conclusion of her address she was accorded an ovation.

A presentation by the Marmora auxiliary of an identical cup and saucer was then made to Mrs. Tompkins, Mrs. Jeffs and Mrs. Wellman and applause, for which each made suitable acknowledgment.

The Picton Auxiliary, through its president, Mrs. Ogilvie, extended a hearty invitation to the Zone to hold its next rally in the Prince Edward metropolis.

The closing part of the meeting took the form of a "Question Box" handled by Mrs. Tompkins into which a surprising number of varied and interesting questions were placed to receive able answers on the part of the Provincial officer. Much benefit to all was derived through this medium.

Before the meeting adjourned, Mrs. Jeffs took opportunity to thank her comrades for effecting her re-election.

ZATOPEK SETS RECORD

PARIS (AP)—Emil Zatopek of Czechoslovakia Sunday broke the world record for the 5,000-metre run by covering the distance in 13 minutes, 57.2 seconds in an international track meet at Colombes Stadium here. The old mark was 13 minutes, 58.2 seconds set by Gunder Haegg of Sweden in 1942.

Zatopek, who won the 5,000-metre, 10,000-metre and marathon races in the 1952 Helsinki Olympic Games, competed Sunday by the grace of the French foreign office which at first refused him a visa to enter France and later changed its mind.

The $7,500 tournament will be played over the difficult par 72 Cascades course, a 6,400-yard layout dotted with rolling hills and troublesome gullies.

HANDICAP WINNER

Only the 3:59.4 by England's Roger Bannister earlier this month is better than Santee's time. He was a 10th of a second faster than the former record of 4:01.4 set by Sweden's Gunder Haegg in 1945.

(AP)—Ben Hogan, defending champion of the Colonial national invitation golf tournament, and resting in third place as the tournament entered its third round, was forced to withdraw Saturday because of an attack of influenza. He had been tied with amateur Harvie Ward of San Francisco.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

A GREAT OPENING!

Coach Vern Geyer's daring gamble; the fleetfootedness of Keith MacDonald, the powerful bludgeon of Dick Fitzpatrick and the canny, quick-thinking of Claude Carr, combined to climax the best opening day baseball has seen since steaks were a quarter apiece, the First World War was still remembered and you could buy a pair of pants for twenty bucks, with the coat thrown in.

It was a great day. The weatherman, after threatening a deluge all morning eventually climbed back into his hole; the splendid hands of the Trenton RCAF and Belleville Bata teams in fine fettle, the shiny convertibles of many hues carrying the quota of officials, civic and parliamentary dignitaries, purred proudly along the parade route; the prancing palominos ridden by owner Jack Bush and Cliff Fox, pirouetted their spirited way; the Bata baseball team natty in their blue-trimmed white uniforms, were in victory mood and everything was hunky dory.

Even the "V.I.P's" were in holiday mood. Mayor John Bosh finally got a strike across the plate and Dr. Hers, of the Bata Shoe Company laid a neat single down the first base line. Frank Pollwell, M.P., did a right snappy "Yogi Berra" behind the plate.

To top the whole thing off to a golden brown was a neat 5-4 victory for the Batas over the Toronto Dependables, after what appeared to be almost certain defeat. The Gover gang, down four runs going into the sixth eventually turned their batting eyes. Dick Fitzpatrick smashed a towering 330-foot homer over the right centre field fence to score two mates ahead of him and the fireworks started. They slung home another run in the inning to tie the score—and it was a fresh ball game.

Then came the second thrill of the day. Keith MacDonald, who can pick-'em-up-and-lay-them-down like a tap dancer, fretted and fumed on third base after getting out an automatic double that bounced over the left centre field fence.

Ray Jim Ronen, Toronto pitcher, was taking his time on the mound with a long, lazy wind-up.

MacDonald got Coach Geyer's ear. "Metihnka," said Keith, "I can pilfer the plate on this gent."

"Metihnka," comes back big Jumbo, "you can. Suppose you try it."

Keith took a long lead, then as Rosen went into the alarm-clock stint, streaked for the plate. There was a flurry of arms and legs, and plate umpire "Lefty" Whitman came up with the safe sign. That, kiddies was the ball game.

Art Wright, who did a masterful job of chucking for eight scoreless, whistling eleven, and allowing but three hits, weakened in the ninth. Enter Sammy "The Man" Mulholland. Wright had walked the first batter and Sambo promptly proceeded to get himself into trouble. The next batter banged a liner into the left centre field alley but a fine throw by Davey Jones, relayed by Mulholland, caught the runner at the plate. The next batter hit safely and the runner on third scooted for the plate, time to the amazement of the crowd, stopped and returned to the sack. "Poor coaching," the crowd screamed.

Mulholland forced the next batter to hit to the box. He promptly tossed out the runner at the plate, and Tony Pettit quickly relayed the ball to first for the double play. The game was over.

But, what is not generally known, it was not "poor coaching" that sent the Toronto runner back to third. It was a quick thinking on the part of the Bata third-sacker, Claude Carr. The runner was a pinch-stroller for the Toronto pitcher. An inning previous the third-base coach had been tossed out of the game by Umpire Whitman for using profane language. The runner apparently did not know "His Master's Voice."

As he scooted for the plate he heard a voice say "Hold it up, hold it up." He stopped and went back to the bag.

"Poor coaching," me eye! The voice the runner heard was that of young Master Carr.

SPLIT IN TORONTO!

The Batas divided the spoils in Toronto on Sunday, defeating the Hoskings 14-1 and losing to Dependables 8-6 in the nightcap. Copy missed the columnar deadline so details will be seen in the box scores. The Petes dropped a pair to Oshawa and Dependables. Oshawa took two, as Belleville and Dependables split.

Tomorrow, the Petes with three defeats under their belts, will be guests of the Batas who have a record to date of two and two. Not bad for a kick-off.

NORTOWN LADIES HERE

Star attraction of this week-end will be the visit of the Toronto Nortown Ladies' Softball champions, who will be here on Saturday, June 5, to play an all-star male squad. The Nortowns are the 1953 Canadian girls' champions, who went to the quarter-finals in the all-American championship series before bowing out. The said the girls play the game as good as a lot of their male counterparts and a lot better than the most of 'em. The game is scheduled for 6.30 at the CNR Recreation Park. President Stew Stewart of the Belleville District Softball League, has lined up a lot of handsome gate prizes, so it looks like a good night all round.

Phils Pitcher To Ottawa

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Athletics Saturday optioned pitcher Lee Wheat to their Ottawa International League farm club and purchased pitcher Allen ("Dutch") Romberger, another righthander, from the same club. Romberger, 24, comes from Klingerstown, Pa. He has appeared in 12 games this season with Ottawa, all in relief, and has won one and lost none. He has pitched in 13 games for a total of 26 innings, has allowed 12 hits and struck out eight.

Wheat appeared in five games with the Athletics, pitching 16 innings. He was charged with two losses, no wins. He came to the A's in the deal for outfielder Dave Philley. Bill Upton, the other hurler obtained from the Indians, also is back at Ottawa.

Wallop Detroit Tigers 3-1 As Orioles Clip Chicago 5-2; Phils, Giants, Brooks Tied

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Baltimore "pick-me-up" is a sure fire remedy for woozy National League contenders. One trip to Fred Hanny's clinic and the ailing patient is young at heart.

Philadelphia took the cure Sunday and shot into a second-place tie with New York and Brooklyn, only 1½ games behind the leading Milwaukee Braves. Now it's the Giants' turn to visit the health spa.

The league closed in on Milwaukee Sunday when St. Louis knicked off the Braves 3-2 for Harvey Haddix's seventh victory. Brooklyn bested New York 5-3, the Phils dumped the Pirates-thrice, 5-0 and 10-7, and Chicago split two with Cincinnati. The Cubs took the opener 7-5, the first start for ex-outfielder Hal Jeffcoat, but Cincinnati rallied to take the second 6-3 called by darkness after eight innings.

A GAME AHEAD

Cleveland finally shook off Chicago's challenge to open up a one-game lead in the American League defeating Detroit 3-1 while Chicago's eight-game winning streak was broken by Baltimore 3-2. The victory snapped the Orioles out of a 10-game losing slump.

Boston added to Casey Stengel's worries, dumping New York Yankees 3-1 on Willard Nixon's fourhitter. Washington shut out Philadelphia 5-0 and lodged McDermott and the Athletics came back to get an even break with the second on Ed. McGhee's pinch double in the last of the ninth.

At the start of the season the National League looks like a seven-team scramble, but the American party has shoved four clubs into the "also ran" class. A year ago Milwaukee led Brooklyn by a half-game and New York Yankees were four games on top in the American.

Robin Roberts pitched his third shutout in the Phils' first game romp over the Pirates, spoiling Dick Littlefield's first National League start. The Phils continued to bombard Pirate pitching in the second game, making a total of 27 hits in the two games.

TWO IN A ROW

The Cardinals made it two in a row with a first-inning rally in which Red Schoendienst hit a home run. Four successive singles off Warren Spahn followed the homer.

A crowd of 47,672 tops for the season in the National League's the Polo Grounds for the Dodger-Giant game, was on hand to see Rube Walker lead off in the ninth inning due to a tightening in his shoulder.

Jeffcoat, starting a new career as a pitcher at the age of 32, held the slugging Cincinnati club to four hits until he had to leave in the ninth inning because of a finger blister.

Mike Garcia held Detroit to four hits to keep Cleveland moving with their 14th straight hometown victory.

Mickey Vernon and Wayne Terwilliger homered behind McDermott in Washington's first game victory over Philadelphia in the second game. Bases were loaded with one out in the ninth and Washington leading 5-4 when McGhee, batting for Arnold Portocarrero, doubled to score Vic Power and Pete Suder.

Wings Take Over Top Position; Leafs Divide

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If manager Reg Cleve of Havana Sugar Barons could alternate Emilio Cueche and Saul Rogovin in starting roles, his club probably would run away with the International League race.

The veteran Rogovin has won four in a row and Cueche has won seven against only two losses, including a 4-1 triumph over Richmond Sunday. The Sugar Kings gave Cueche two runs in the first inning and that was all the little right-hander needed.

Rochester Red Wings took over first place in the close race by handing 8-5 and 3-4 defeats to Buffalo Bisons, who have lost seven of their last nine games.

The other two doubleheaders ended in splits. Montreal Royals, behind Ken Lehman, who batted in the run, edged Toronto Maple Leafs 3-2 in the first game. The Leafs came back to take the second 11-4 on a five-run barrage against three Royals' pitchers.

Syracuse Chiefs broke over Ottawa Senators' opener 6-2, only to have the Athletics come back and win the second 8-5. Ottawa Senators buried a five-hitter for the Chiefs, then first baseman Joe Frazier couldn't hold a three-run lead in the afternoon.

Queen's Plate Trial Entries May Force Divisional Races

TORONTO (CP)—A race that may be carried only as a tuneup for the 85th running of the $20,000-added Queen's Plate has captured the imagination of racing fans.

It is the Plate Trial, to be run at Woodbine track Wednesday over a mile and 70 yards. The Trial has drawn so many entries it may be necessary to split the field into two divisions.

The luck of the draw may again postpone the eventual meeting of the two hot favorites, King Maple and Queen's Own. Queen's Own, owned by Toronto industrialist E. P. Taylor, did all his racing in the United States last year and as yet, hasn't met Mrs. Gordon McMartin's King Maple, voted "Canada's Horse of the Year" in 1953.

Each colt won a trial race at Woodbine May 22 and their times for six furlongs were identical—1.11 3-5.

LAST FILLY WITHDRAWN

Indications are that 22 colts will accept the issue in Wednesday's test. The last filly has been withdrawn from the field with the announcement that Windina, owned by R. S. Sloan of Toronto, will stay in the barn. Trainer Jim Bentley feels that Windina, Canada's top-ranking two-year-old miss last year, hasn't the strength to compete against the colts at this stage of the season.

Apart from Windina, there have been few surprises among the withdrawals from the plate. However, the Sloanna stable, which has won 18 renewals of the plate, won't have a representative this year. Trainer John Thorpe said neither of his colts, Three Stripes and Assiniboia, has trained up to expectations.

The chief western Canadian hope, Hi Laude, met with minor misfortune during the past week. Hi Laude, owned by Dr. L. H. Appleby of Vancouver, was sent for a morning walk of one mile and, after he had negotiated four furlongs at a sizzling clip, his saddle slipped and jockey Emil Roy was forced to pull him up to prevent an accident. There is no telling how fast Hi Laude might have travelled that mile as he was full of run.

Trainer Gordon Campbell was forced to revise Hi Laude's training schedule. He sent the colt a slow mile Sunday and has decided that he will have no further work until Wednesday's race.

Belleville Batas Edge Toronto 5-4 In Colorful Viaduct League Opener

MacDonald Gets Winning Run With Daring Theft of Plate; Fitz Blasts Three-Run Homer

By GEORGE H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

A daring gamble by Coach Vern Goyer that sent fleet-footed Keith MacDonald on a successful late-stealing foray in the seventh inning, provided the margin of a 5-4 victory for the Belleville Batas over the Toronto Dependables in the Viaduct Ontario Baseball League opening here Saturday afternoon.

With the Batas trailing 4-2 going into the sixth, Dick Fitzpatrick blasted a towering 330-foot home run over the right field fence scoring two runners ahead of him. The blast featured a six-hit attack by the Batas who tied the score before the last man was retired.

DOUBLE STARTED IT.

Keith MacDonald slashed out a lusting hit that bounced over the left field fence for an automatic double to open the seventh inning. Fitzpatrick singled him along to third after Tony Pettitt popped out. Keith MacDonald then out and Doug Hull came to the plate.

Out of a blue sky, MacDonald who had taken a long lead, dashed for the plate. Jim Rossen, Toronto hurler, had started a lazy wind-up when the Batas took him for home. He sprang-legged in a sprawling slide and Umpire Leftie Whitman gave his safe sign. A long tonsils leaped up for air as the big crowd let out a mighty roar.

The Batas, however, were not out of the woods. They were given a terrific scare in the top of the ninth when Toronto had the bases loaded with one out. Sam Mulholland had relieved Art Wright, who pitched superlative ball for eight innings and walked the first batter in the final frame. Davy Jones drove a long hit to centre for a runner at the plate for the first out. The next batter hit to the left field, and the runner on third scooted for the plate and foe some unknown reason changed course and returned to the bag.

Mulholland forced the next batter to Goyer at the mound. He quickly threw the runner out at the plate and Umpire Whitman promptly relayed the ball to Gerry Goyer at first for the double play and ball game.

Art Wright started for the Batas and came up with a fine performance for eight innings when he was relieved by Mulholland. Wright struck out eleven and walked five, also collecting a single. He allowed but three hits over the eight-inning route and was credited with the win. Mulholland was touched for three safeties during the innings he worked.

Rossen went the route for the Dependables, striking out two and walking a pair. He was good for a pair of hits in the fifth inning and a clout apiece. He gave up nine safeties to the Bata batters.

It was a hustling affair with the fifth when two Bata errors and two safeties accounted for four runs. Two bobbles and a walk filled the sacks with one out and Bill Brown delivered a four-run romp. Young also singled, scoring a runner, and Anderson's sacrifice accounted for the fourth.

MacDonald started a four-run Bata rally in the sixth with a slashing single to left. Tony Pettitt drove out another, then came Fitz' mighty smash to score three. Kelleher walked and Hill singled safely. He stole second and galloped home on Wright's timely poke to left field.

Fitz paced the Batas with a homer and single. MacDonald had a double and single. Jim Rossen led his Toronto mates with a pair.

COLORFUL PARADE.

The game was preceded with a colorful street parade headed by the Trenton RCAF Trumpet Band, and the Kinamen Boys' Band. Almost everything but a partly uniformed Bata and Toronto players while the prancing palominos of the Jack Bush stable led the column. Civic and parliamentary officialdom in state. These included His Worship Mayor Jack Bush, Frank Pollwell, M.P., Elmer Sandercock, MPP, Roscoe Robson, MPP, Harry Morrow, reeve of Sidney, Les Grills and others.

During the colorful opening ceremonies on the Exhibition Grounds where it is estimated 1,200 were present, Mayor Bush, Dr. Herz of the Bata Shoe Company, Batawa, and Mr. Follwell participated in the diamond festivities, with Dr. Herz driving out a clean single off the mayor's delivery.

Canuck Runners Win at Meet

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—John Cook, Michigan State track man from Canton, Ont., won the mile event of the 54th Big Ten outdoor track and field meet at Purdue University Saturday in the credible time of 4:14.1.

Cook finished ahead of another Canadian, John Ross of Oakville, Ont., who runs for the University of Michigan. Ross was the 1952 conference mile champion.

Iowa's two distance man, Rich Ferguson of Toronto, finished third fourth in the two-mile run. Purdue's Gene Matthews ran the defending champion into the ground in 9:16.3.

Final Tributes Paid To Lionel Conacher

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—This city buried one of its famous sons Saturday—the legendary Lionel Conacher, acclaimed just four years ago as Canada's greatest all-round athlete and football player of the 20th century. It marked the finish of a career that may never be matched in Canadian sports.

The body of the 54-year-old Big Train was lowered in the churchyard cemetery of St. John's Anglican church in suburban North York after a simple funeral service conducted by Canon A. C. McCollum referred to him as "a born sportsman, a family man and a leader in the affairs of his fellow men."

Nearly 1,000 persons overflowed the flower-banked church and into the country-like setting of the yard. They were from all walks of life—cabinet ministers, members of Parliament, provincial and civic leaders, athletes and sports officials from the Conacher era to the present and sports fans.

GIANT AMONG GREATS

There were sport greats and near-greats, men who had played with and against the Big Train in the years stretching from the early 20's to the 40's. Many had clambered the Conacher's athletic prowess was at its scintillating best. There were men and women who had seen the 200-pound sportsman-businessman-politician-judge as a symbol of sporting greatness.

There were many who had heard the name Conacher when Big Lionel rose to athletic heights on Canada's football fields and in the boxing ring. They were ther to pay tribute to Canada's first lacrosse player, one Grey Cup-winning team, two Stanley Cup champion clubs, a little world series winner, city and provincial baseball and lacrosse champions.

The Conacher legend was brought into focus in 1930 when the country's sports editors and sportscasters in a Canadian Press poll named that shot him to the top as the greatest all-round athlete. The Big Train walked in to be judged the outstanding football player of the 50 years.

Canadian Wins Sculls Singles

WORCESTER, Mass. (CP)—Jon Robert Pearce of Hamilton saved the day for Ontario oarsmen Saturday when he pulled to an easy victory in the junior championship single sculls event in the 20th annual national scholastic rowing regatta.

Pearce, representing Hamilton's Westdale Collegiate, originally was listed to compete in the senior championship event but elected to compete instead in the six-man junior field.

Breaking strong headwinds, Pearce travelled the mile course over whitecapped waves in 8:10.2, some four lengths ahead of George Betz of Haverford (Pa.) School. Albert Henri of St. Francis-Xavier High School, Ecorse, Mich., was third.

Notre Dame Collegiate Institute of Welland, Ont., finished last in a six-boat field in the junior championship eight-oared race. St. Catharines High School, entry, a championship eight - oared shell, was eliminated in the semi-finals.

Notre Dame finished several lengths off the pace. St. Joseph's College Institute of Buffalo, N.Y., won in 6:12, a length ahead of Washington and Lee High School of Arlington, Va.

Mystery Bettor Makes It Pay

BOSTON (AP)—A mystery man who does his speculating on a large scale visited Suffolk Downs Saturday to put down a $13,000 bet.

He put his money on Blesbull, the feature race winner, and came off with a minimum $1,200 return. Jim Fricker put the $13,000 on Warm Breeze to show to earn $1,000 profit on his investment.

INSIDE BASEBALL for Little Leaguers

By MICKEY McCONNELL
Director of the Baseball Academy

Some years ago George Sisler, who reached the Hall of Fame as a first-baseman after beginning his career as a pitcher, asked Mordecai "Three-Finger" Brown, one of the greatest pitchers of all time, how he achieved success. Brown answered: "Well, if a batter stood away from the plate, I pitched him outside; if he stood close to the plate, I pitched him inside; if he stood straight up, I pitched him low; and if he bent over, I pitched him high." This is a basic formula that can help any young pitcher in determining where to pitch to a hitter whose batting strengths and weaknesses are not familiar to him.

Such a big majority of batters prefer to hit balls above the belt that it is a good idea for young pitchers to practice throwing the ball between the knees and the belt.

Homers Cause Three-Way Tie In Intercounty

By TH- CANADIAN PR-SS

Extra-base hits, especially home runs, had a big hand in causing the three-way tie for first place which now exists in the senior Intercounty Baseball League.

As a result of eight circuit clouts in the three Saturday games, London Majors, S. Thomas Elgins and Galt Terriers are tied for first place in the standings—each with five victories and two defeats.

In Brantford the Red Sox, backed by power hitting of outrightfielder Harry Fisher, trounced Kitchener Panthers 13-3 to hand the Panthers their seventh consecutive defeat since the season started.

St. Thomas Elgins edged Galt Terriers 5-4 in 10 innings at St. Thomas and London Majors defeated Guelph-Waterloo Royals 7-5 in London.

THREE HOMERS

Fisher belted three homers and a double to send home nine runs while the Red Sox were pasting the Panthers. Pitcher Wilmer Fields, who gained credit for the victory, was also a power hitter, getting four safeties in four trips to the plate, including a grand-slam homer. George Carrington, Brantford first baseman, hit the other circuit clout of the game.

Ken Nagel, the first of three Kitchener pitchers who was touched for two of Brantford's 19 hits, took the defeat.

Canadian Takes Honors In Wrestling Trials

MONTREAL (CP) — Wrestlers from Montreal took firsts in five of the six weight divisions in the final rounds of the British Empire Games trials Saturday.

Two Ontario grapplers and one from British Columbia walked off with the remaining honors. Keith Maitman, 33-year-old physical education instructor from Vancouver, pinned Winnipeg's Victor Pleti in four minutes, 26 seconds to take the heavyweight honors. Montreal policeman Rudolph Sarrazin finished ahead of Pleti in points and was declared runner-up.

In one of the liveliest bouts of the night, Bob Steckle of Kitchener Ont., scored a unanimous decision over Jean Desjardins of Montreal. Veteran coach George Kurgl of St. Catharines, Ont., for the 191-pound title.

Winners of the trials will be recommended by the wrestling committee for the Canadian wrestling team for games in Vancouver next month, subject to approval by the games committee. Where possible, runners-up are carried as team substitutes.

Calgary's Hal Evans beat Phil Slabosky of Montreal for second place in the 114½ pound class after Dave Clutchey of Timmins and London, Ont., had beaten both of them in earlier rounds to be declared the winner.

Defending Empire Games champions Henry Hudson and Armand Bernard both of Montreal, won in their only bouts.

Batas Divide Sunday Games; Hand Dependables 14-1 Loss; Lose to Hoskings in Nightcap

TORONTO (Special) — Belleville Batas, making their first appearance in Toronto in the newly formed Viaduct Ontario Baseball League, trounced Hosking Burners 14-1 in the opening game of a twinbill this afternoon, then fell before the pitching and batting of Dependable Caterers' manager, Johnny "Lefty" Moore 9-5, in the second tilt at Millen Stadium.

Johnny Mowat came up with a great five hitter on the mound for the Shoemen in the opener. Solid batting support from Jerry Goyer, Dick Fitzpatrick and Dave Jones each with three safeties, made the contests a route as a time limit forced calling of the game in the sixth inning.

Tony Pettitt's single in the fifth plated three runners, starting Bill Mowat's rout. He meant two more runs in the fourth. Claude Carr chipped in with two singles as three Hosking hurlers failed to stem the onslaught.

Johnny Moore was alone responsible for the Caterers' triumph in the late fixture, lefty batted 4-for-4 and plated six of the nine runs. His homer came in the second frame with two aboard. The Shoeman kept everything in the air delivery and scored singles in the second and third, then went ahead in the fourth with three on by rally. Moore sending home the fourth run with a single. He came after two errors with a clean single in the fifth. Dependable's fourth run with Moore again leading the way with a two run pingle.

Wildmoe on the hill and loose play in the field by Belleville aided the homesters' cause. Eddie Wollens homered in the second for the opening run of the game.

Jerry Goyer and Al Kelleher had two safeties each. Goyer drove out hit the winners 11-10. Manager Vern Goyer went into the game as a pinchhitter in the sixth and got a life when outfielder Bill Brown muffed a ball in the heavy wind. Batas used 14 players in the wind-blown affair.

Montreal Tracks Agree on Dates

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal's two harness racing tracks announced during the week-end signing of an agreement to alternate meetings between Blue Bonnets and Richelieu Park race tracks.

In a joint statement the tracks said the agreement, signed Saturday, is for five years. Racing dates during the season will be split between the two, with each track taking it in turn to open the season. Richelieu will stage the first meeting in 1955.

Dates for meetings for the balance of the 1954 season are: at Blue Bonnets; May 31-July 4; Aug. 9-Sept. 12. At Richelieu Park; July 5-Aug. 8; Sept. 13 until close of the season.

"No city anywhere in North America is big enough to support two racetracks operating at the same time," the statement said.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Sibling

Some of your bridge problems are probably like some of your own daily problems. If you had a chance to handle them over again you could do much better. As in the tournament deal shown here:

NORTH
♠Q J 8 7 2
♥ A 3
♦5 4 3 2
♣A 8

WEST
♠A 9
♥Q J 10 9
♦7 6 5
♣Q J 10 7

EAST
♥8 2
♦K 10 9 8
♣6 5 4 3 2

SOUTH
♠K 6 4 3
♥K 5
♦A Q 7 6
♣K 9

Such was the declarer at a contract of six spades. The bidding told south that opponents had one king. So, he retrained from going to a grand slam despite an immediate north jump assist.

The opening lead from west happened to be the queen of hearts. Not that the play would have been any different it west had started out with a club or trump instead. The key play was in diamonds.

It is obvious that a diamond trick must be lost. It is possible to lose two diamond tricks if west has the diamond king. With five of diamonds in opponents hands the most likely split is three-two.

So, it looks as if the play to try here is a diamond finesse. If it works and the opponent has four diamonds, a small slim is made. But most of the slams went down when they played it that way.

Why? They found an unfortunate division of four-one in that suit. If south takes the first diamond trick he has two diamonds.

After pulling trumps and striping his hearts and clubs, dummy ends a diamond. If east plays a second hand high with the king, there is no way for declarer to make the contract either.

But at least one table made the slam when east played less than the king on the first diamond lead. There the declarer ducked the cast eighth and west had to win with the jack.

Now endplayed, west must lead a heart or a club of which dummy and south have none. So, dummy ruffs and south stuffs a diamond. Now a dummy diamond is finessed which is good for the rest.

You need not feel bad if you fail to make a play like this. The next-time you try it, the unseen diamonds will be three-two.

Pravda States Way Is Opened To Settlement

LONDON (Reuters)—The Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda says today that the agreement reached at Geneva Saturday "paved the way for a peaceful settlement of the Indo-China question."

The nine-nation Indo-China peace conference agreed to summon to Geneva officers from the opposing commands to negotiate details for a direct cease-fire.

The Soviet news agency Tass reported that Pravda adds:

"It will be seen during the next few days to what extent the delegations of the Western powers, and above all the French delegation, are ready to accept the unanimous verdict of public opinion demanding that the hostilities be stopped and a peaceful settlement reached on the basis of principles of freedom and respect for national sovereignty."

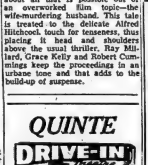
Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Let's take a look at some of the current and forthcoming movies.

Three of them were made in Europe with American stars, and they provide an interesting contrast. "Three Coins in The Fountain" was filmed in Rome and Venice and is a decorative travelogue against which is played a palatable romantic story. Dorothy McGuire, Maggie McNamara, Clifton Webb and Rossano Peters play Americans in Rome with varying degrees of romantic inclinations. All of their problems are more or less resolved for the inevitable clinch, leaving the audience with a warm feeling. It fills, else.



"Flame And The Flesh" was filmed in Naples and the cast is European with one exception—Lana Turner. She plays an Italian girl of negligible morals and presents Lana you never have seen before. This one scratches her hip and disports herself in a tired suit (undoors) or an ingenious slip. Without the usual glamorous trappings, she demonstrates an acting skill that few suspected.

INDIGNATION THEME

"Indignation Meeting Of An American Wife" is an unwieldy title for a fairly elemental subject. Filmed entirely in the Rome railroad station, it concerns an American wife who tries to catch a train home after a fling with an ardent Italian. Jennifer Jones is highly stylized as the wife, and Montgomery Clift offers intensity but is hardly believable as a Latin lover.

"Elephant Walk" puts Elizabeth Taylor in jeopardy of a cool husband and a herd of elephants. All ends well, after the elephants have gone their destructive way. Miss Taylor is properly perturbed throughout.

"Dial M For Murder" wrings just about all that is possible out of an overworked film topic—the wife-murdering husband. This tale is treated in the delicate Alfred Hitchcock touch for tenseness, thus placing it head and shoulders above the usual thriller. Ray Milland, Grace Kelly and Robert Cummings keep the proceedings in an urbane tone and that adds to the build-up of suspense.

AT THE BELLE—Two of the screen's top funny-men Mickey Rooney and Eddie Bracken, team for laughs in "A Slight Case of Larceny", M.G.M. picture co-starring Elaine Stewart and Marilyn Erskine, showing today at the Belle Theatre, with a 2nd romantic comedy, "Sky Full of Moon," co-starring Jan Sterling and Carleton Carpenter. "Home Coming of the Queen", is a timely special added attraction.

INQUEST ADJOURNS.

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—An inquest into the death of John P. Redmond, 42, was adjourned Friday to June 4 when a woman failed to appear to testify. Redmond died in hospital May 12 shortly after he was found unconscious in his home. Doctors said the autopsy showed Redmond had suffered two head wounds.

SOLVE SALTY SAKE

OSAKA, Japan (AP)—Osaka police today cracked "the case of the salty sake." Crew members on a freighter carrying Japan's staple rice wine have been taking a drink from each bottle in their cargo, then filling it up with sea water, police said. The result was a rash of complaints that Osaka's sake had turned salty.

Probing Fire

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP)—Provincial police are investigating a week-end fire which destroyed a sawmill and camp belonging to C. A. Roy Lumber Company about 18 miles east of here. Damage was unofficially estimated at $10,000.

The fire was believed to have started early Sunday morning. The camp has been closed for two months.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR TUESDAY, JUNE 1ST, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Time and thought are of the essence now. Don't be lackadaisical. Seek just promotion, favors; begin new ventures if carefully analyzed.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — The morning hours may be dull and uninteresting but you may have surprises sooner than you suppose. Be alert, ready to jump on the achievement wagon. Knowing what you can do is essential.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Obstacles, expenses may run high through no fault of yours, but you are clever—more so than you realize—so you can do a bang-up job and get what you are looking for.

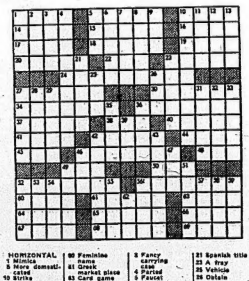
June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Your planet is in excellent aspect to help your best efforts, but it will take work and management and it won't be entirely easy at that. A journey or pleasant unexpected situations likely.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Do not expect to swing through the day successfully just for the asking. Your planet transits through certain areas that demand co-operation and less thought of self. Be on guard against questionable schemes.

August 22 to September 22 (Virgo)—Your vibrations express their strength easily; be on the lookout for pitfalls or foolish errors. You could miss out through unwillingness to try the unusual.

September 24 to October 22 (Libra)—Changes indicated during the day. Study problems with thought for future and try to eliminate past mistakes. Take on new ideas with justice and equality in mind; reasonable fortitude, too.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Important influences from favorable planetary positions should make your path more interesting even if a bit more crowded. Dispose of tasks in proper order—not according to your likes.



November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—This is no day to follow hunches. Set your course cautiously, determinedly. Be reasonable in demands and you will have no fear of having to retract or becoming embarrassed.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Make the most of good aspects in a.m. hours. Step out, but judiciously. Do not be afraid to take reasonable chances. Combine a progressive and enterprising attitude with opportunity; it's here.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—So much to do and so little time to do it in! That's what many have to contend with today. Get at the meat of things; don't flutter around; settle on essentials quickly and get them out of the way.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—More avenues for expression should open up now. Certain friendly contacts can help you on the road to success, if rightly managed. Avoid entanglement in the affairs of others.

YOU BORN TODAY have an attractive personality, which you should cultivate for the benefit of your family and your future. You are most capable in financial and business fields, but personal affairs may be troublesome occasionally if you are not diplomatic. You see the weaknesses of an opponent quickly but, in this regard, must be careful not to act or speak too abruptly. Your fondness for travel and changing activities should be guided well lest it interfere with real accomplishment. Don't rush into anything; investigate schemes before considering them.

Crowds Cheer Malaya Leader, Homeward Bound

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (Reuter's Staff) — Gen. Sir Gerald Templer, the twice-tried British high commissioner for Malaya, drove through cheering crowds to the airport today to leave Malaya after 27 months of leading the battle against Communist terrorists.

Templer flew to nearby Singapore to spend two days before flying to Britain and his new post as commander of the British army of the Rhine.

In a farewell broadcast Sunday night, the architect of Malaya's successful "get tough" policy with the Communists called for even more toughness.

He said the six-year-old emergency could be ended "in a pretty short time" if natives living near the terrorist-ridden jungles "would resolve once and for all to be finished with this useless drain on the country's economy and give all the information (they) can to the police and no support of any kind to the communists."

Templer has been succeeded by Deputy High Commissioner Sir Donald MacGillivray. This restores the line of civilian high commissioners.

The British-owned Straits Times says of Templer in an editorial today: "The real debt we owe him is that by support and example, by compulsion and persuasion, he has marched Malaya out of the jungle."

WILL SIGN TIN PACT

Former German U-Boat Moves Up Welland Canal

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — A former German submarine, under tow to Chicago from the Atlantic, moved up the Welland ship canal early today.

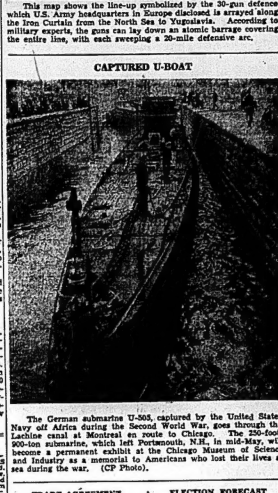
The U-505 arrived in Port Weller north terminus of the canal, late Sunday. Thousands flocked to the canal, clogging traffic on several main roads.

Later, the U is was moved through two locks to Homer, where the Queen Elizabeth way crosses the canal.

WAS TEXTILE EXECUTIVE

TORONTO (CP)—Leon B. Webb, 55, prominent in the Canadian textile business, died in hospital Saturday. He was a director and textile consultant with the William B. Stewart Company and had been associated with the firm for 30 years. Born in Montreal, he received his education in Peterborough where his father was a Baptist minister. He leaves his widow and two daughters.

U.K. TO PLAY "SILENT ROLE" AT U.S. MILITARY TALKS



Britain's Field Marshal, Sir John Harding, above, chief of the imperial general staff, will join representatives of five other countries in Washington for military staff talks on the Southeast Asian situation. Besides Britain and U.S., New Zealand, France and Australia will be represented at the military conference, to open June 5. The British foreign office emphasized the U.K. has agreed to participate in the talks "without commitment." The principal problem facing the Allies is formulation of a program of joint action, and possible intervention, in Indo-China, in case the Geneva talks fail to produce a settlement. (Central Press Canadian).

MAGINOT LINE OF ATOM GUNS

This map shows the line-up symbolized by the 30-gun defence which U.S. Army headquarters in Europe disclosed is arrayed along the Iron Curtain from the North Sea to Yugoslavia. According to military experts, the guns can lay down an atomic barrage covering the entire line, with each sweeping a 20-mile defensive arc.

CAPTURED U-BOAT

The German submarine U-505, captured by the United States Navy off Africa during the Second World War, goes through the Lachine canal at Montreal en route to Chicago. The 250-foot, 900-ton submarine, which left Portsmouth, N.H., in mid-May, will become a permanent exhibit at the Chicago Museum of Science and Industry as a memorial to Americans who lost their lives at sea during the war. (CP Photo).

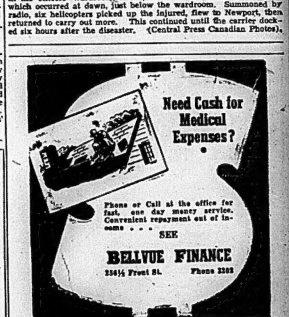
TRADE AGREEMENT.

OTTAWA (CP) — Portugal has agreed to more than double her potential market for Canadian dry salted codfish under a new trade pact signed with Canada Friday.

In return, Canada has reduced tariffs on coffee from Portuguese African colonies to the rates applicable on imports from Brazil and other big producers.

ELECTION FORECAST

St. John's, Nfld. (CP) — Premier Smallwood told Opposition leader Malcolm Hollett Friday that he has better "get ready fast" for a provincial general election but the premier named no date. Mr. Hollett said "we know an election is near" and the premier himself has said its going to take place this year."



AFTERMATH OF CARRIER DISASTER

One of the 201 men injured in the explosion and fire that ripped through the U.S. aircraft carrier Bennington—while on a routine training mission off the New England coast—Andrew T. Dobias, of the Bronx, N.Y., is wafted upon by a Red Cross worker in hospital at Quonset Point, R.I. A special naval board of inquiry has been set up in Quonset Point to investigate the disaster which killed 96 of crew. The board will check particularly for indication of sabotage, although preliminary inspection showed no evidence of it.

The disaster, second largest in U.S. navy's peacetime history, occurred while crew of 3,000 was lining up for breakfast. The Bennington's master, Capt. William F. Raborn, of Oklahoma City, Okla., ordered full speed for Quonset, 70 miles away, while damage control parties and rescue workers fought their way into the choking smoke that billowed from the third deck forward. Debris in the officers' wardroom, above, indicates the force of the blast which overturned at down, just below the wardroom. Summoned by radio, six helicopters picked up the injured, flew to Newport, then returned to carry out more. This collision and the earlier dock-ed six hours after the disaster. (Central Press Canadian Photos).

Representatives Of Radio Stations Discuss News

SASKATOON (CP) — Thirty-two representatives of 16 prairie radio stations met here Saturday to discuss the gathering and writing of news.

The radio writers, from stations served by Broadcast News Ltd., opened their one-day meeting with the appointment of an advisory committee to recommend a program pattern for future such sessions.

C. B. Edwards, Broadcast News manager, said the success of Saturday's first meeting of news editors and other news room representatives proves the value of the exchange of ideas among radio writers.

At a dinner Saturday night, Mr. Edwards presented to Blair Nelson of CFQC Saskatoon, on behalf of Canadian Broadcaster and Telescreen, an award "for the pioneering effort of its new department, directed by Godfrey Hudson, in establishing the station's editorial voice" with a program known as "Opinion."

The broadcasting trade magazine makes annual awards for distinguished service to Canadian radio.

A FAMILY AGAIN AFTER LONG SEPARATION

Two Greek children, eight years in a concentration camp behind them, are re-united with their father, Tvalko Argirovsky, right, a Toronto truck driver and introduced to their new step-mother, following their arrival in Toronto from Yugoslavia. Mr. Argirovski, who has been in Canada since 1949, believed his son, George 15, and daughter, Fane, 12, were dead, until informed a few months ago by the Red Cross that they were alive. The children were separated from their father during guerrilla fighting in Macedonia. When the partisans lost the fight, the youngsters were taken to a concentration camp in Yugoslavia. Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was eating her grapefruit diet this morning, saying to pop, Well William, I see coffee is going up again.

Yes gods, that's enough to make a man boil over, and I dont intend that as a joke, pop said.

Meening coffee boiling over, and ma said, I feel the same way William, and personaly I drink very little coffee.

Well personaly I drink entirely too much, but horse blanket to blazes I've got a good mind to cut it out entirely, pop said. It would be a good thing for my helth and it would show that bunch of plazies that they can push some of the public around all of the time, but they cant push all of the public around all of the time without haying some of the public push back. He laughs best who blows a happy gurgle into a cup of tea, he said.

Why William how wonderful, ma said. The bridge ladies are getting up a pledge, and everybody that gines it guarantees not to touch another drop of coffee until the price comes down. I never even thought of asking you to sine it, William, knowing how you are about coffee, she said, and pop said, I told you how I am about coffee, bring me that pledge.

You can have your name amung the very first signers, ma said, and pop said. Well, I wouldn't want to look as if I was showing off. Bring me the list when it has a thousand names on it, and I'll add mine with a fourish that will stick out like a sore thum. By guilies, I'm bernt up. The only thing that'll settle my nerves is an exter cup of coffee, he said.

And he held out his cup for ma to pore it for him, which she did, shaking her head sad.
